Gainor's status will be settled on Wednesday night when the Union executives will listen to Winnipeg's argument that the burly middle wing qualifies under the residence rule although he spent part of 1938 at University of North Dakota, completing studies for a degree.

On the athletic field of Appleby College, where Bombers will live and train until Friday, Coach Reg. Threlfall put Bombers through a long drill this morning. They will practise again this afternoon and continue the two-a-day workouts until Friday. Then they will come to Toronto for an overnight rest before meeting Toronto Argonauts for the national championship.

Plays Usual Position.

Hopeful they will win the committee-room argument, Winnipeg officials decided to use Gainor, backbone of the team's secondary defence, at his usual position in practice. Originally the meeting was scheduled for Thursday night, but it was advanced a day at the request of the Western officials.

The team held its first workout yesterday, shortly after arrival here from Winnipeg. Conditioning exercises and a long signal drill occupied most of Threlfall's time and he will continue to stress speed and condition. Art Stevenson and Greg Kabat did the puting with Etevenson showing fair form. Kabat did not get great distance.

Threlfall, who has scouted Argos in two games, remained confident Bombers will avenge the one-point beating they took from Argos in last year's final. He believes the charging Bomber line will break up the vaunted Argo end attack and that his plungers will gain the necessary yardage into pay-off territory.

Argos are not scheduled to don uniforms again until Wednesday when they will hold a light drill. They came out of the game against Sarnia last Saturday, when they beat Imperials 25-8 for the Eastern title, in good condition.

SPORT SPICE

(By SID FEDER)

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (A.P.). — Lefty Gomez, home from a-hunting around Halifax, brought back the story of the winter—and it's on El Goofo himself....Seems a sports writer up there wanted to interview the Latin from the Yankees, made an appointment by 'phone, and arrived with a stranger in tow.... After talking with Lefty for an hour or so, the writer said, "Well, Mr. Gomez, I've a confession to make. I'd read so much about you and your antics that I didn't know what I was running into when I came over here, so I brought this man along with me. He's a Spanish interpreter."

Is Frankie Frisch interested in one of the International Baseball League franchises?....Biggest field ever is likely to go after that 100 G's in the Santa Anita Handicap this winter....Drew a list of about 115 eligibles—but only one Seabiscuit.. ..What a week this is for the banquet men....The Heisman Trophy dinner (Davey O'Brien's show) tonight, the Lambert Eastern championship banquet for Carnegie Tech to-morrow....The fight writers' affair on Thursday, and Jake Ruppert's party for the year's No. 1 coach on Saturday.

Hold your hats, boys—the baseball folks start firing around N'Awleans to-day, and if all that trade talk is the McCoy, you won't know those old major leagues next year.... Chances are, though, that when the smoke clears up, it'll be no runs, no hits, no errors....Unless the Tigers swing that certain deal.

Tag Petey Scalzo, a classy clouter from New York's west side, as your next featherweight champ....He stopped Joey Archibald, the current king (New York version), last night with as sweet a right hand as you'll see in a day's walk.

Runnymede Wins Gridiron Title

When Runnymede Collegiate turned back St. Michael's College by a close 8-to-6 count Friday afternoon the Junction Redmen became the first team representing the Toronto and District Interscholastic Association ever to capture the Ontario Rugby Football Union Interscholastic championship.

Although their claim to the title was not cemented until Saturday, Runnymede brought the O.R.F.U. Interscholastic title back to Toronto for the third time in four years. Peterborough won the honors last year, clipping a two-year string run up by St. Michael's.

Secretary Hal Bailey of the O.R.F.U., reveals that since he took over the duties in 1927 Delta C.I. of Hamilton has won the title four times; St. Michael's College three times, Sarnia C.I. twice, and U.T.S., Peterborough and Runnymede once each. Records previous to 1927 were destroyed by fire.

Hastings Club Beats Havelock In Badminton

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 6. — Hastings defeated Havelock here last night by a wide margin in the first badminton tournament staged in the Community Hall this season. In the mixed doubles Hastings took a 9 to 3 decision and in the ladies' double they won 3 to 0. The men's doubles were a little more evenly matched with a 2 to 1 decision for the locals. Eighteen members of the Havelock club were present.

GOTTSELIG AND ANDERSON LEAD N.H.L. SCORERS WITH 13 EACH

Blake, Cowley Are Tied For Runner-up

MONTREAL, Dec. 6 (CP). — Chicago's Johnny Gottselig, at the head of the National Hockey League scoring race almost since the outset of the season, has to share first place with Tommy Anderson of New York Americans, according to last night's weekly statistical figures issued by the league.

The Black Hawk stickhandling master is credited in the official figures with seven goals and six assists, while Anderson's thirteen points are made up of six goals and seven assists. The pair are two up on their nearest rivals, Toe Blake of Montreal Canadiens and Bill Cowley of Boston Bruins.

Error in Statistics.

(While the official statistics show Gottselig obtaining a goal and an assist during the last week, the Hawks actually scored only one goal in their two games of the week. Joffre Desilets was the scorer, and he also is credited with a goal in the league's compilations).

(Anderson is shown as having picked up three assists over the previous week's total, though Americans scored only one goal. In the previous week's statistics Anderon had been given one less assist than appeared in the unofficial summaries. A teammate, Eddie Wiseman, also receives an assist not appearing in unofficial summaries, and in the previous week he also had been given one less than the unofficial figures showed).

Leadership in goals, according to the league's figures, is divided between Gottselig and Blake at seven apiece, with Blake having four assists. Anderson is one to the rear.

Alex. Levinsky of Chicago, now under suspension for what Manager Bill Stewart claims is indifferent playing, is shown at the top of the penalty lit.

Trio In Spotlight On Three National League Fronts

With a month of playing written into the records, five of the seven teams in the league bunched at the top and the other two climbing, it's an opportune time to present some of the stars of the campaign thus far. Here is a trio that has frequently been in the spotlight. LEFT, Ebbie Goodfellow, veteran member of Detroit Red Wings, who got off to a slow start, but has been picking up steam with each game. Ebbie, formerly a high-scoring forward, but of recent years on the defence, has been turning in some great games and twice has scored a brace of goals in a game on his dangerous rushes. That keen-eyed fellow in the CENTRE is Walter (Turk) Broda, guardian of the twine for Toronto Maple Leafs. The Turk has been sensational in most of the Leafs' games and is largely credited with the team's good showing in spite of a number of injuries to important players. Lorne Carr, speedy right winger with Red Dutton's Americans, is at the RIGHT. Lorne plays on the Amerks' ace line of Art Chapman, Sweeney Schriner and himself, and has banged home some important goals for the "Keep Punching" team.

Goney McGowan Keeps Slipping By To Pace League Scoring; Shows Experts He's Not Through

TORONTO, Dec. 6.—(CP).— No one gave old Goney McGowan much of a tumble before the start of the senior "A" schedule of the Ontario Hockey Association three weeks ago. He'd had his day, they thought, and anyway the six-team circuit was crowded with fast, clever and youthful prospects for professional ranks.

But Goney, a stranger to few Ontario arenas over a period of more than a dozen years in the game, is leading the scoring race to-day with nine points. One point behind is youth, represented by Peanuts O'Flaherty and Johnny Inglis of Toronto Goodyears, who graduated from junor ranks at the end of last season.

McGowan, starting his second season with Port Colborne Sailors, has slipped his slim frame through opposing teams for four goals and five assists. His great play-making at centre ice is a major reason his team shares second place on the league ladder with Niagara Falls' Brights.

The Tars and Brights have each won two games, lost two and tied one for five points. Goodyears have three wins in as many starts and have been scored against but three times.

Early Favorites Slip.

Oshawa G-Men, fall-book favorites to provide the league-champion Goodyears with the most opposition, have lost two games in four played and are tied with St. Catharines Chiefs with four points. Deep in the cellar are Leo Reise's Brantford Red Birds with no wins in five games.

Port Colborne have placed three players among the eight leading scorers. In third position is Lloyd Fitzgerald, Sailor forward, who is tied with Len Chisholm of Oshawa, each with seven points. The trio of George Wade, Sailor veteran, Steak Morrison, Niagara Falls, and little Winkie Smith, Oshawa, is tied with six points each.

George (Basher) Baumgart of Brantford is leading the penalty parade with 20 minutes in the penitence pew. Three minutes behind is Toronto's Inglis who mixed battling with scoring.

Mickey Roach, former National League performer and minor league coach, will mastermind to-night when Brights skate on to Brantford ice against the Birds. Roach was appointed coach yesterday on the suggestion of Tommy Boyd who found coaching interfered with business. Boyd will serve as team manager.

In the other scheduled tilt, Goodyears will attempt to keep their unbeaten record intact in a battle on the small Port Colborne rink. Goodyears defeated the Sailors 7-1 in the opening game of the season—but that was at Toronto. The champions always have a session of argunments and fights when they visit the canal town.

It was announced to-day that the new arena in St. Catharines will be opened Dec. 20 with the homesters entertaining the Sailors. St. Catharines will not play a home game until that time. Members of Toronto Maple Leafs, National League champions, are expected to take part in opening ceremonies.

London police are handing jaywalkers printed instructions.

Connell's Death Still A Mystery

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Dec. 6—(AP).—A certificate that the cause of death was "undetermined" was signed today by coroner William R. Winne, following on autopsy upon the body of Jerry Connell, member of Syracuse Stars hockey team, who died in his hotel room here Nov. 23 following a heart attack.

Lesions of the brain and heart which might have caused death were found, coroner Winne reported. There was no evidence of any injury and the autopsy report further stated that a chemical analysis of the contents of the viscera failed to reveal any poison.

Connell, whose home was in Hespeler, Ont., was regarded as one of the finest lacrosse players in Canada. He was playing his first season of professional hockey with the Syracuse team of the International-American league, and prediction of a brilliant future in the sport for him had been made.

U.S. Football Gates Increase 11 Per Cent.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (A.P.). — Aided chiefly by a six-week stretch of near-perfect weather in the East, attendance at United States football games for 1938 showed a sharp increase over 1937 figures.

An Associated Press survey based on figures submitted by 69 representative major colleges in all sections of the country revealed an 11 per cent. rise in average attendance per home game. The total attendance for 351 games in 1938 was 8,146,124, compared to 7,386,222 for 353 games a year ago. This year's average was 23,208, 2,284 better than the 1937 figure.

Armstrong Ends Manfredo's Hopes In Just Three Rounds At Annual Cleveland Show

CLEVELAND, Dec. 6—(AP). — Henry Armstrong, champion of the lightweight and welterweight divisions, began to-day a holiday vacation from ring warfare after defending the welter title twice in two weeks.

Armstrong, who recently turned back Ceferino Garcia, made short work last night of Al Manfredo of San Francisco, scoring a technical knockout over his fellow Californian in the third round of their scheduled 15-round go.

Referee Tony Labranch stopped the bout at 1:45 of the round when Manfredo was helpless, his arms dangling at his sides.

A crowd of 12,724 saw the championship bout which headlined an all-star card on the Cleveland News' 13th annual Christmas charity boxing show.

Manfredo was another victim of the tireless, rushing attack of the Los Angeles negro. Armstrong, carrying the fighting all the way, wore Manfredo down early in the second round, and Al spent his last three minutes in the ring vainly attempting to ward off the champion's rapid-fire punches.

Giants Preparing For Bay Packers

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP).—After one day of rest following Sunday's 36-0 triumph over Washington which gave them the eastern division title, New York Giants go back to work to-day to prepare to meet the Green Bay Packers in the playoff battle next Sunday for the United States' National Football League championship.

Two Giant players, Ran Hanken and Jack Haden, were kept out of the Washington game because of slight injuries and will be ready for hard work against the Packers.

The game will produce the first "repeater" since the East-West playoffs for the Ed Thorp trophy were begun. New York won the 1934 playoff and Green Bay, seeking its fifth league title, won in 1936.

Not For Jimmy

The boxing public won't ever see Jimmy McLarnin like this again, says Jimmy McLarnin. In some circles, notably ring publicity ones, there was talk of Jimmy being a future opponent for Henry Armstrong, who is rapidly running out of suitable fighting foes. With Tony Canzoneri, Kid Berg and even Jimmy Braddock (possibly) on the comeback trail there's no telling what might pop up, but canny James, "for the one hundredth time" denied rumors that he would foolishly return to the punch pastime.

275 Swede Athletes To Attend Olympics

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 6 (A.P.). — Sweden will send a team of 275 athletes and officials by plane to Finland for the 1940 Olympics. Seventy competitors will be sent for the track and field events; only 10 less will be entered in the wrestling, one of Sweden's most popular sports.

The Swedes will send a contingent of 30 to the winter games at St. Moritz, Switzerland.

Finis Written To Maroon Saga

Last two players of what used to be the Mauling Maroons to be disposed of after the Montreal team folded were Allan Shields, LEFT, and Dave Trottier, RIGHT. It was announced that Trottier, speedy forward, had decided to retire from the puck wars, while Shields, burly defence player, would go into action for New Haven, Canadiens' farm in the International-American League. Trottier and Shields were the only ex-Maroons not picked up by either Canadiens, Black Hawks or Maple Leafs.

BORN

HASKETT.—At Nicholls Hospital, Monday, December 5, 1938, to Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Haskett (nee Gladys Taylor), a daughter.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. Fred Waterman, Bailieboro, wishes to announce the engagement of Gertrude Florence Goulding to John Edward Smith, both of South Monaghan. The marriage to take place quietly the early part of January.

DIED

DAVIE, Mrs. Elizabeth Cowan.—On Tuesday, December 6, 1938, at her home on Lot 6, Concession 8, North Monaghan, Elizabeth Cowan Arroll, widow of the late Lewis Davie, in her 83rd year. Funeral on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Nisbett Funeral Home; Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church officiating. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

LLOYD.—In loving memory of Mrs. A. E. Lloyd, who departed this life three years ago, December 7, 1935.

As I gaze on your picture that hangs on the wall,
Your smile and your welcome I often recall;
I miss you and mourn you in silence unseen,
And dwell on the memories of days that have been.
Dear is the grave where Mother is laid,
Sweet is the memory that never will fade;
Flowers may wither, leaves fade and die;
If some do forget you, never will we.

—Ever remembered by daughters: Mrs. Holland and family; Mrs. Hill and family.

LEE.—In loving memory of our dear son Donald, who entered into rest December 6, 1930.

Times have changed in many ways,
But one thing changes never:
The memory of the happy days
When we were all together.

—Sadly missed by Dad, Mother, Sister and Brothers.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. George Sproule wishes to sincerely thank the attending doctor and the staff and nurses of Nicholls Hospital for their kindness to her during her recent illness; also to those who sent flowers, and especially to Mrs. R. J. Wolstenholm for her kindness.

Havelock W.I. Members Donate Toys

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Dec. 6.—The Havelock branch Women's Institute, held their regular December meeting Monday afternoon in the council chamber with Mrs. John Armstrong, president, in the chair There were quite a large number of members in attendance and all responded liberally to the roll call donating a large assortment of gifts suitable for children 12 years and under. These gifts will be distributed at Christmas to needy children in the village.

The Institute decided against applying for the government grant. The secretary was instructed to order 60 copies of the leaflets containing instructions for "Spot and Stain Removal." The sick and visiting committee presented their report, having called on three persons last month.

The president appointed Mrs. Geo. Iles and Miss E. Wright to make the annual audit of the library board books. Mrs. Robert Jones was reappointed librarian for the ensuing year.

The Institute will spend $10 on Christmas cheer boxes this year, in addition to donations by the members. The president was authorized to purchase $3 worth of goods to be given to a family recently burnt out in Belmont.

A very interesting program was presented with Mrs. Joseph Little, as convener, taking the chair. Opening first with a Christmas carol, "Joy to the World," a very complete report on the recent Women's Institute Convention in Toronto, was then given by vice-president, Mrs. Robert McCutcheon, the local delegate. Current events were presented by Mrs. H. W. Roche, and another Christmas carol, "Silent Night", was sung.

Mrs. Andrew McLauchlin, guest speaker for the afternoon, gave a very lovely address on "Christmas Thoughts," quoting portions of Dicken's Christmas Carol as an illustration.

A very attractive exhibit of inexpensive Christmas gift suggestions were displayed by Mrs. Clare Price, with the president explaining several points of interest about the different items.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting by the committee in charge and a social half-hour was much enjoyed.

Janetville Guild Organizes For '39 With B. Capstick President

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, Dec. 6.— The first meeting for the fall and winter months of the Young People's Guild was held at the manse when the following officers were elected for the New Year:

President, Bryce Capstick; vice-president, Harry Latham; recording secretary, Audrey McGill; corresponding secretary, Ross Carron; treasurer, Myra McGill; organist, Norma McGill; Fellowship conveners, John McNeil, Mrs. H. Johnston, and Omer Capstick; Citizenship conveners, Harry Latham, Leonard McNeil, and Ross Carron; Social converers, Verna Wright, Leonard McGill, Ruth McNeil, Marjorie McNeil, and Ruby McGill; Recreation conveners, Verna Wright, Norma Nell, and Lloyd Capstick; Group leaders, Jimmie McGill, Ira McGill.

The next meeting will be held on December 7 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McNeil, when the losing side of last year will serve a banquet for the winners.

Hold Trousseau Tea.

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. William Wilson held a trousseau tea at her home in honor of her daughter, the former Miss Mabel Wilson, who was married to Lloyd Hall on December 1.

The many guests were received by Mrs. Wilson and the bride-elect, while upstairs Miss Muriel Fallis of Blackstock presided in the gift room, and Miss Norma Stacey of Hudson displayed the trousseau.

Refreshments were served from an attractive table with ecru lace cover and pretty floral centre of baby 'mums.

Aunts of the bride, Mrs. Harry Preston of eBthany and Mrs. Mitchell of Ballyduff poured tea and were assisted in serving by Miss Hazel Wilson, sister of the bride, and Miss Anna Fallis of Cadmus.

Guests were present from Blackstock, Nestleton, Ballyduff, Yelverton, Bethany, and Janetville.

War Against Germany Justifiable Gandhi Decides

Bombay, Dec. 6 (AP)

MOHANDAS K. GANDHI said today that "if ever there could be a justifiable war in the name of humanity, a war against Germany—to prevent the wanton persecution of a whole race—would be completely justified."

The Indian nationalist leader, writing in his weekly newspaper, called Germany's anti-semitic campaign without parallel in history and recommended that the victims try his own brand of passive resistance.

ERIEAU, Ont., Dec. 6 (C.P.). — Thanks to a storm, Erieau fishermen are bringing in the heaviest catches of herring in 10 years. The gale early last week is believed to have forced the fish into shore. Each tug operating brings in an average of a ton of fish.

Wrong Tablets

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 6 (C.P.). —Enmeshed in details of a busy staff meeting, Brewster Gallup, Park Department draftsman, called for "two tablets." An efficient secretary promptly entered with two aspirins and a glass of water.

Gallup downed them in one gulp. Then he remembered it was writing tablets he wanted.

Crash Costs Driver Jail, Fine '39 Permit

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Dec. 6 (C.P.). — Judge M. B. Tudhope yesterday recommended to the Ontario Department of Highways that a 1939 driving permit be denied Roy Littlejohn of nearby Oxford Mills as he sentenced him to 20 days in jail for being in charge of an automobile while intoxicated and fined him $50, or three months in jail, on a charge of criminal negligence.

Littlejohn appeared at a special sitting of County Criminal Court here as the result of an accident on the Maitland-North Augusta Road last May 9. Littlejohn's car allegedly crashed into ne driven by Lorne Good of Prescott, Ont. Good and two passengers, Hazel Ferguson of Maitland and Dorothy Perry of North Augusta, were seriously injured in the accident.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

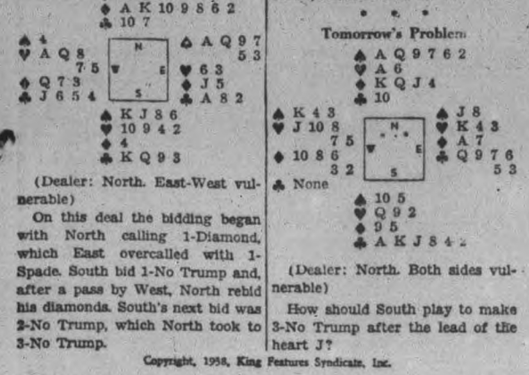
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

DUCKING IMPORTANT

NO TRUMP contracts are sometimes nightmares when you hold only a singleton in your partner's suit. With a doubleton, you are in position to duck the first trick as an aid in establishing the balance. It becomes a rule of sound bidding therefore to consider some action other than a no trump bid when you have only one card in your partner's suit. Of course if there is nothing else to do, go ahead and take the risk with your eyes open.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable)

On this deal the bidding began with North calling 1-Diamond, which East overcalled with 1-Spade. South bid 1-No Trump and, after a pass by West, North rebid his diamonds. South's next bid was 2-No Trump, which North took to 3-No Trump.

The heart 7 was led by West and dummy's J held the trick. The spade 10 was returned. East jumped right in with the A and led his heart 3 to West, who won with the A. The third heart lead was taken by South with the 9.

With no entry remaining in dummy, declarer was obliged to play for a diamond break with the chances very much against him. When the Q and J failed to fall on the A and K, he was able to win only two tricks in diamonds. As a result, declarer was set two tricks.

How should South play to make 3-No Trump after the lead of the heart J?

Rotarians Given Talk On Etching By Rev. Meeks

Rev. P. Thornton Meek, minister of the Uxbridge Presbyterian church, introduced by Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr as one of Canada's outstanding artists, delighted Rotarians at their regular luncheon Monday with a discourse on etching.

Rembrandt was the first great etcher and the finest perhaps the world has ever known. His works exist to this day and have endured since the 16th century, said Mr. Meek. He explained that Rembrandt was the first to engrave pictures on copper plate so that they might be preserved to posterity.

In explaining how an etching is made, Mr. Meek said the most common types of echings are drypoint and acid and both are somewhat similar in the way they are made. In the first place a picture is drawn on paper although not in detail and the artist transfers the picture to copper plate reversing the entire picture. A drypoint needle which is merely a piece of highly tempered steel sharpened to a fine point and shaped like a pencil, is used to gouge the lines on the plate of copper. A small burr left by the cutting tool which is a desirable characteristic as this burr identifies the dry point etching.

In making an acid etching, the copper plate is covered with an etching ground of wax, which is then darkened by candle flame. Using the same needle the image is drawn through the wax, then varnish is put on the wax every place except on the drawn lines. The plate is immersed in an acid bath and the acid bites into the lines accentuating them. Often the plate must be touched up with varnish and immersed as many as a hundred times before a perfect plate is obtained.

After three or four minor operations such as polishing and drying the plate is ready for the first proof to be taken. Pulped paper which has been soaked to remove the size is placed on the heated plate after a coating of ink has been daubed on the plate. The paper face down on the plate is rolled through the press and when removed the paper is dried and the first print is ready.

Colored Etching

He explained that colored etchings to the fore at the present time, and are made the same as a single tone etching except they are inked and pressed once for every color used.

The average etching will give sixty clear cut proofs but after that the print is not perfect, unless the plate has been steel plated to give it longer life. The speaker related that with the steel plating process as many as 500 good strong prints may be obtained from a single copper plate.

He advised the Rotarians to remember that all etchings are mounted on a mat and he warned them when they are buying etchings to watch for the platemark which is always visible on a genuine etching. The embossed line of the paper, he said, is always raised and this too is a mark of the genuine etching.

Etchographs so common on the marekt today are not genuine copper plate etchings but merely pen and ink sketches which have been specially treated to take the appearance of an etching.

Rotarian D. Diplock voiced the appreciation of the club for the interesting talk, and Alderman James Dutton, president of the club was in the chair.

23 Children Killed When Train Hits Bus

Crashing into a school bus near Salt Lake City, Utah, during a blizzard, a speeding freight train killed 23 children, the driver of the bus, and critically injured six others. The bus carrying 40 children was reported to have stopped at the crossing and then to have started across directly in the path of the fast-moving train. The wreckage of the bus was carried for half a mile along the right-of-way and part of the wreckage can be seen here still clinging to the front of the locomotive.

Harwood Newlyweds Honored By Young People And Choir

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HARWOOD, Dec. 6.—The Young People's Union was largely attended on Thursday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Whitney Davey (nee Sarah Young) of Baltimore were guests of honor. Mrs. Davey, one of Harwood's most popular young ladies, has been a willing worker in the Young People's Society choir, and all church activities. Suitable addresses were read by Mr. Cecil Lean and Robert Bell. A handsome lace tablecloth was presented from the society, while the choir presented a wicker fernery as well as a miscellaneous shower.

In suitable words Mr. and Mrs. Davey thanked everyone for their gifts. After the program, under the leadership of Mr. John Lean the gathering enjoyed recreation and dainty refreshments which closed the happy evening.

Women's Institute

The December meeting of the Harwood Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. J. P. Corkery on Thursday.

Mrs. Corkery gave an interesting demonstration on the different ways of cooking beef. Mrs. McCulloch gave the paper for the day on "What Christmas Should Mean To Us." The roll call was answered by a Christmas verse. Readings were given by Miss Lottie Drope and Mrs. R. McLean.

The ladies enjoyed supper of roast beef, meat loaf, potatoes, salad and pie.

The members were very pleased to have Mrs. J. N. Rosevear at this meeting after her serious illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Francis and family of Keene visited on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Lee.

Miss Helen Haskin spent Thursday in Toronto attending a wedding.

Miss Vinnetta Houghton spent the weekend with her parents, Mr and Mrs. S. Houghton.

Congratulations to Miss Jean Shearer on holding the lucky ticket which entitled her to a hope chest. This was a special feature at the dance on Friday put on by the Roseneath Women's Institute.

Mr. Edward Hill, who has spent the past summer in Weston building a church, has returned to his home here.

Miss Rita Bell entertained her school chums on Tuesday, when she celebrated her twelfth birthday.

Rev. W. F. Payton and his mother of Humber Bay renewed old acquaintances in the village last week. Mr. Payton was former minister of St. John's Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Derwyn Trew of Port Hope and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bevan of Cobourg visited with Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Lee on Sunday.

British Guarantee To Czechs May Be Shelved

London, Dec. 6 (C PCable)

GREAT BRITAIN and France may never be asked to enforce the guarantees to Czechoslovakia they promised in the Munich agreement.

There is a growing feeling here that Czechoslovakia will consider territorial guarantees by Germany and Italy sufficient and will never ask Great Britain and France to add theirs. This might be done through German pressure, indicating Germany does not want Great Britain and France involved in southeastern Europe. The Czech government probably would do as Germany wished.

It might be a technical violation of the Munich agreement if Great Britain did not give guarantees but, if Czechoslovakia indicated she did not want them, the two countries could not run counter to her wishes.

French Plants Begin To Bring Strikers Back

PARIS, Dec. 6—(AP).—Owners of factories closed since the general strike last Wednesday took back thousands of employees at the government's suggestion today, but the French Line strike at Le Havre still tied up the giant Normandie and other liners.

A government spokesman said all factories involved in the general strike which Premier Daladier crushed, would be functioning normally by Thursday.

These would include the Renault Automobile plant where 35,000 employees have been out since Nov. 24. Three thousand Renault workers returned to work today, summoned by special slips mailed to them and which they had to present before passing through lines of mobile guardsmen surrounding the factory.

Despite a government order putting them under military control, approximately 1,500 of the Normandie crew, 2,000 workers on the liners Paris and Ile De France, and 1,500 dock workers and port handlers refused to work at Le Havre.

Hastings Council Names Officials

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 6—The regular session of the town council was held Friday night with all members present.

Appointment of deputy returning officers and poll clerks was made in the case of a municipal election here. Deputy returning officers will receive $4 for the day and poll clerks $2.50. Messrs. W. J. Boyle and W. Wellman were appointed acting constables for each polling division.

M. J. Baker was authorized to post the necessary notices for nomination and election day. The next statutary meeting will be held Dec. 15 at the regular hour, 7.30 p.m.

Moved by C. Lynch, seconded by I. Bond that this council recommend to the 1939 council that payments made by Neil Scriver regarding property purchased by agreement be changed to read $50 yearly in place of $100.

Moved by S. Stevenson, seconded by C. Lynch, that the communication of Father P. Costello, regarding two children, be laid on the table until December 15 meeting for further consideration.

A grant of $10 was given the Women's Institute for a Christmas fund on motion of Bond and Lynch.

The clerk was authorized to have 75 copies of 1937 auditors' report of the Hydro accounts for nomination day.

New Bank To Replace Mail, Empire Building

TORONTO, Dec. 6 -(CP)- The old Mail and Empire building at the corner of King and Bay streets, in the heart of Toronto's financial district, is to be torn down early next year and replaced by a 15-storey building by the Bank of Montreal.

Announcement of the project was made here simultaneously with the bank's annual meeting at Montreal. Site of the Mail and Empire building was purchased by the bank shortly after the Mail and Empire was purchased by the Globe in December, 1936, when the two morning papers were merged.

Rye Re-elected President Of Ratepayers

H. B. Rye was re-elected chairman of the North Monaghan Ratepayers' association by acclamation at the annual meeting of that organization in Confederation school last night. With him were returned virtually the entire executive body from last year, only one change being made.

Mrs. Eva Ainslie was returned chairman and Herb Bourne, vice-chairman. The executive body consists of William Carter, J. S. Roberts, W. Jones, Les Bristow. W.J. Grady was dropped from the executive since he is now a member of the North Monaghan township council. All elections were by acclamation.

The association decided to support Reeve James Milby, and Councillors Archibald and Grady in the township elections on January 2. This slate is the same supported by the association last year. Affairs throughout the township seem to be leaning toward return of the entire council by acclamation this year, Mr. Rye believed. He warned, however, that the urban section of the township must have a full representation out on nomination day in event of any surprise. He favoured an acclamation and paid tribute to the three men the association had helped to install in office. Their work deserved a continuance, he said.

Mr. Rye's re-election as chairman followed an offer on his part to withdraw. He said he had heard it charged that he was running the organization and through it the council, and that he felt a certain antagonism. He did not want to hamper the growth of the Ratepayers' association and would gladly step down from the chairmanship if members believed such action would help their organization to grow.

He flayed individuals who stand on street corners and criticise the council and association. Many people in suburban North Monaghan seem to have grievances aplenty, yet they never go to such meetings as last night's in order to air those grievances, he said. "Some people have the idea that this association was formed to embarrass the council. Such was never the intention." The purpose of the association, according to his definition, was to arouse interest in municipal affairs in the ratepayers and to form resolutions to pass on to council regarding matters its members believed to be in the best interests of the community.

Stanley Lowes Heads Emily Lodge

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ORANGE CORNERS, Dec. 6. — Stanley Lowes was elected Worshipful Master of L.O.L. No. 41, Elmly at the annual meeting held in the lodge room on Thursday evening, succeeding Elmer Henry, who held that position during the past year. the election of officers, while Vic Fife acted as Marshal. Russian General Mystery Unsolved, Actress Wants Her Freedom

PARIS, Dec. 6—(AP). — "La Plevitskaia," fiery actress of Czarist Russia, today began a court fight for freedom although the "mystery of the vanished white Russian generals" in which she played a leading role remains unsolved.

The middle-aged actress is accused of complicity with her vanished husband, General Nicholas Skobline, in kidnapping another white Russian general, Eugene de Miller, who disappeared September 22, 1937.

"La Plevitskaia" denies the charge which brought to French courts a case with a theme of espionage and counter-espionage rivalling thriller fiction.

When he dropped from sight, De Miller was head of the Emigre veterans of the old Imperial Russian armies. His predecessor, General Alexandre Koutepoff, likewise vanished in 1930.

De Miller left one clue, however—hastily penned scrap of paper saying he had a rendezvous on the night of his disappearance with Skobline, his aide, and a mysterious German "military attache."

"Perhaps it is a trap," De Miller wrote cryptically.

When police sought Skobline for questioning the next day, he too had vanished.

De Miller's wife accused Soviet secret police of spiritin gaway her husband and said Skobline was a Soviet agent. Among the place raided by detectives investigating the case was a house rented by the Soviet Embassy in Paris.

The hunt for clues has continued 14 months. All that time "La Plevitskaia," arrested when her story failed to satisfy police, has remained in prison protesting her innocence and planning her defence.

Meanwhile, the leaderless white Russian "army" has sought a successor to De Miller as head of the 25,000 former soldiers scattered throughout the world. The veterans are being polled for their choice of a new leader.

Officer Wounded

BUCHAREST, Dec. 6 — (AP). — Two youths whom police identified as members of the illegal Fascist Iron Guard, to-day shot and slightly wounded Colonel Oristesku, president of a military court, at Cernauti, Northern Rumania.

Four shots were fired as the officer was walking on a Gernauti street. He suffered a flesh wound. One assailant was captured and identified by police as eLonite Lutotovic, 18-year-old student and Iron Guard member. The other escaped.

Care Of Clothing Discussed By Lakefield W.I.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 6.—Mrs. W. E. Gillman spoke on "The Care Of Clothing" at a special meeting of the Lakefield Branch of the Women's Institute which was held in the Memorial Hall here on Wednesday afternoon. The meeting was held for the purpose of hearing Mrs. Gillman's report of the classes at the local Leader Training school held in Peterborough recently, at which Mrs. Gillman represented the Lakefield branch.

Mrs. Albert Darling acted as chairman in the absence of the president, Mrs. Stanley Higgins.

Mrs. Gillman discussed first the three materials, wool, cotton and silk. She gave experiments to show how to tell one material from another, and explained the care of each. Care must be taken not to break the fibres, since once broken they do not go back to their original shape.

Mrs. Gillman then spoke on spot removal and pamphlets on the subject are available to interested members who were advised to leave their names with Miss Margaret Sanderson.

The speaker told about the care of different types of clothing; dresses, shoes, gloves. etc. She spoke of the care necessary in the taking off and puttin gon of gloves; of the hanging of dresses, and showed how to make a hanger in a twinkling from a roll of newspaper tied with a string in the centre. This is often convenient in travelling. She mentioned clothes closets, their size and shape, stressing that they should be light and airy. Clothes should never be hung close together.

Representatives were present from the hospital auxiliary of Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, for the purpose of interesting local ladies in their work. A number of Lakefield ladies have already joined the Peterborough branch of the auxiliary and Mrs. Wharry of Peterborough spoke advocating the organization in Lakefield of either a local branch or a local committee. A number of Lakefield ladies gave evidence of their interest in the work of the hospital auxiliary as outlined by Mrs. Wharry and it was decided that a meeting of the Lakefield members would be held here in the near future to plan a program of work.

Mrs. Wharry was accompanied by Mrs. Hughes (nee Verna Elliott of Lakefeild), Mrs. Lillico and Mrs. Ross, all of Peterborough.

Dundas Lady Suffered 2 Years With Rheumatism

Also Troubled With Stomach, Was Nervous, Couldn't Sleep. Like a New Woman Since Taking Syntona, She Declares.

The great popularity of Syntona throughout Peterborough and vicinity is by no means accidental, for this new medicine does actually give wonderful results, as evidenced by the many hundreds who tell of the splendid work that it has done in the few months that it has been known here. For example, here is the experience of Mrs. A. Clark, a well-known lady of Dundas, Ontario.

"I had suffered from rheumatism of two years' standing. Pains in my back and limbs were so severe that I couldn't sleep and no matter what I used I could get no relief. I was troubled a lot with gas in my stomach and heartburn after meals. I often had dizzy spells and my nerves were so bad I was afraid to drive in the car.

"Even from the first bottle of Syntona I felt an improvement and I said, 'If this medicine helps me I certainly will recommend it.' That is only three weeks ago and in that time it has done wonders for the rheumatic pains have all disappeared. I sleep soundly at night, my nerves are steady and I have no trouble now with gas or heartburn. Not only that, but I feel better in every way since I've used this wonderful medicine. I cannot find words to praise it highly enough."

The Syntona Man at Elliott's Drug Store, Peterborough, is daily introducing and explaining this new medicine to scores of local men and women.

Lakefield Church Holds Pie Social

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 6. — A large crowd attended the pie social and movies of "Our Home Town" held in the basement of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Lakefield, on Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Women's Association.

Rev. J. Young acted as chairman, and Mr. T. W. Chaplin ran off the films of "Our Home Town," which were recently presented to the village by Dr. Charlton. This is the first showing of the film since its presentation to the town in October, and those persons present enjoyed it thoroughly.

After the movies a delightful social half hour was spent. Pumpkin pie, doughnuts and coffee, served by the ladies, was much enjoyed.

Mines Minister Heads Party Into Colliery Depths To Probe Death Of 16 Men

Majority Leap To Safety Before Fatal Crash That Left Over 20 Children Fatherless And Cost Sidney Mines 2 Town Councillors

By Arthur Andrew (Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

SYDNEY MINES, N.S., Dec. 7 (CP). — A committee of miners and officials planned today to descend Princess Colliery and trace the death-dealing trail of a runaway "man-rake" that killed 16 men yesterday. Their visit is the first step in an investigation seeking the reason the string of cars broke loose, spreading death and injury. More than a score were injured.

The evidence they gather, added to the testimony of the more than 200 men who survived the disaster, will be placed before an investigating commissioner. Mines Minister Michael Dwyer will attend the probe into the worst accident in the last 21 years of coal mining in Cape Breton.

The tragedy occurred as miners were going down into the pit. The "rake," a string of 26 cars bearing about 250 men to work, was on its second trip of the morning. Just after it started down the two-mile slope the haulage rope broke.

Most Jump in Time.

The first the men knew of their danger was a sudden jerk. Then the cars picked up speed as they headed down into the black depths under the Sydney Harbor. Most of the miners jumped to safety. Others clung to the runaway string and either jumped too late or died in the tangle of wreckage at the bottom of the incline.

Eleven of the victims were married. More than 20 children were fatherless after the accident. Sydney Mines lost two town councillors, William MacDonald and Donald McPhee, as well as 14 other citizens.

Youthful Jimmy Morrison survived the disaster but lost his brother and father. Richard Morrison was found dead in the same car as his son Joseph.

A Fortunate "Break"

The minister considered it fortunate only a small amount of coal fell when the cars piled up against the mine wall. Otherwise more might have been killed.

Nova Scotia steel and coal company's crack rescue crew went to work, bringing first aid to the injured and picking up the bodies scattered along the mile and a quarter path of the plunging cars followed.

Last night more than 1,000 men gathered in a theatre here and were assured an investigation would be held. They heard survivors tell of the wild ride down the rake road. Prime Minister Mackenzie King's telegram of sympathy was read and miners bowed their heads in two minutes silence for their comrades.

Steve McLean, who jumped from the trip before it ended in a pile of smashed wood, twisted metal and broken bodies, stood before the meeting with tears streaming down his cheeks.

After the rake ran away McLean said he felt the "rope jerk" and sensed something was wrong. "I told the man alongside of me in the box that the trip is gone," he said.

Before he jumped he noticed other miners "crawling over the top of boxes like flies." Some were flung back against the cars; others met death in their efforts to escape.

Timmins Robber Carries Off $2,000 In Loot

Better Off In Kingston Than Way I Am Says Gunman Leaving

TIMMINS, Ont., Dec. 7—(CP).—An unmasked man today held up the staff of the Bank of Montreal branch here and escaped with more than $2,000 in ash.

First of its kind ever carried out in Timmins, the robbery took place shortly after noon. The armed hold-up man threatened to "shoot to kill" any of the bank staff who resisted.

Wearing a leather cap pulled down nearly over his eyes and carrying a black leather satchel ,the bandit pushed a cheque across the counter of the teller's cage. On the blank cheque was written: "Hand over the money—quick."

Teller John Norman filled the satchel with bills while the robber made menacing gestures with his right hand, stuffed deep in his pocket as though it held a revolver.

Girl Fires Two Shots

As the bandit reached the door on his way out and addressed the bank staff, Miss Pauline Mullen, ledger-keeper who was standing at the rear of the room, fired two shots. Neither struck the robber. Miss Mullen said she had heard the teller inquire: "Is this a holdup?"

"I'm willing to take chances with this thing," said the robber as he backed to the door, pointing from his pocket.

The shots fired by Miss Mullen landed in the wall just above his head. Reaching the street, he broke into a run and was out of sight when Bank Manager T. W. Todd, Accountant M. Currie, Miss Mullen and Norman got outside.

Edward Mines, who was walking past the bank, said the escaping robber brushed past him.

"I thought I heard shots," Mines said. "I noticed this fellow backing toward the door but before I could realize what was happening he had turned and was running down the street."

A Mine Train

On the 21st anniversary of the Halifax explosion, in which 1,600 persons lost their lives, disaster once again struck at Nova Scotia. At least 16 miners were killed and 40 seriously injured in a mine disaster at the Princess Colliery, Sydney Mines, when a mine train, similar to the one pictured BELOW, carrying 250 miners, broke loose from its haulage rope and hurtled down a steep mile incline.

Ribbentrop Assures France No Colonial Demands In Berlin Mind, At Present

Merely Aiding Franco As Partner Of Il Duce; Would Have Paris Pledge Open Path To German "March East"

By Charles Foltz
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

PARIS, Dec. 7 (AP).—France and Germany, having signed their agreements to try to avoid war, today talked over differences which might arise between them in the future.

The talks between Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop of Germany and Georges Bonnet, French Foreign Minister, which began yesterday and were to continue this afternoon, were said in informed quarters to have established Germany's position as follows:

1. Germany will not immediately press any colonial demands for herself.

2. Germany will not at present back Italy's loud, though unofficial, demands for Tunisia and Corsica.

Von Ribbentrop was believed to have told Bonnet just that in their 50-minute talk last night. (The German press stated with emphasis, however, that the new German-French war renunciation pact in no way detracted from the solidarity of the Rome-Berlin axis).

3. Germany now has no desire to establish herself south of the Pyrenees and is supporting the Spanish insurgents chiefly because of Italy's demands on her as an axis partner.

An Open Road East

In exchange for these pledges, well-informed French sources said, Germany wants France to do nothing to stop her economic-political drive in eastern Europe, bringing her ever closer to the Russian Ukraine.

That, according to French sources, means that Germany wants France to declare that the French-Russian mutual assistance pact is really inoperative so that Germany could feel safer on the west in the event of a German-Russian conflict.

Few sources ventured to give Bonnet's answer to the reported German stand.

Pertinax, writing in Premier Daladier's Radical-Socialist party newspaper L'Oeuvre, declared, however, that Bonnet would "defend Russia and Poland no better than he defended Czechoslovakia."

Many newspapers ran the story of the signing of the friendship pact yesterday and Von Ribbentrop's visit next to other stories whose headlines must have caught his eye.

One of them said: "Violent anti-French demonstrations in Rome, Milan and Turin." Another said: "Germany's reorganized army will number 950,000 men."

Labor Protests Unions Run By Reds

MONTREAL, Dec. 7—(CP).—The Canadian Federation of Labor today decided to protest to the Governments of Canada against labor unions controlled by Communists or which use violence. The protest was adopted unanimously after delegates told of disputes between Canadian union and foreign-controlled unions in Great Lake shipping and Saskatchewan coal mines.

Captain H. N. McMaster, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Ships' Employees, said Great Lakes shipping interests had "betrayed" Canada by signing union contracts with the Canadian Seamen's Union, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor. He declared the shipping interests thereby had turned over control of their vessels to a union directed from United States.

A. D. Maynard of the Saskatchewan Coal Mines' Union said the present trouble at Estevan, Sask., was being caused by the United Mine Workers of America, an affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organization. He charged violence had been used against miners who preferred to join the Canadian union instead of the International U.M.W.A.

Furnace Blamed In Trenton Blaze

TRENTON, Ont., Dec. 7—(CP).—Fire which destroyed the Central Steel Company plant here to-day was believed caused by an overheated furnace near the plant office. The fire, which broke out late yesterday, caused damage estimated at $50,000. Water was hard to obtain to check the blaze.

The nearest hydrant was 5,000 feet from the plant, but the Trenton Fire Department had only 3,000 feet of serviceable hose available. About four hours after the outbreak was discovered, equipment from Belleville arrived and the firemen were able to get water on the blaze.

Steel girders in the 148-foot long building were buckled by the heat. Only eight men were working at the time the fire started, although about 40 are usually employed.

13 Airliner Passengers Drink Toast 'To Life' While Mechanic Fights Jammed Wheels

London, Dec. 7 (CP)

A CHAMPAGNE TOAST "to life" was drunk in London's cold mist today as a disabled cross channel plane with 13 passengers circled Croydon airport unable to land because the under-carriage stuck.

While the mechanic ripped up floor boards in a frantic fight to loosen the wheels, someone in the plane brought out a bottle of champagne for a toast: "Well, if it comes, it comes."

Thirty minutes later the under-carriage was lowered and the plane landed safely.

Those aboard the new Imperial Airways plane Frobisher included Grace Evans, London actress, Frances Madux, American cabaret artist, Mlle. Anne Chagnon of Paris, D. S. Wedderburn, formerly of the Scots Guards and Equerry of the Duke of Gloucester.

Britain May Give China Aid To Balk Japs

LONDON, Dec. 7. — (AP). — The British government is considering financial assistance to China to combat Japanese domination of the Far East at the expense of the Western powers.

The Earl of Plymouth, undersecretary for foreign affairs, cautioning Japan to "realize their present policy is bound to have incalculable repercussions," told the House of Lords last night that Great Britain was disposed favorably to give "assistance to China in connection with export credits."

Lord Elibank urged economic action against Japan by reducing Japanese export sto British colonies, withholding foreign exchange and credits, and closing Hong Kong Indian and Straits Settlement ports to Japanese shipping.

The government five months ago refused a Chinese bid for $100,000,000 and the reopening of the subject led some political quarters to interpret therein a move to impress upon Japan the desirability of making concessions, lest China with new outside help prolong the war.

The Empire has been much concerned by the prospect Japanese advances in China would bring restrictions of foreign trade.

Lord Plymouth replied to a suggestion that Britain seek United States cooperation in retaliatory measures by asserting the government kept in mind the possibility of "parallel action" to protect "our respective business interests in China."

Jews Get Orders To Wear Arm Bands

BERLIN, Dec. 7 (A.P.). — Jews doing compulsory labor on construction jobs in the Gaenserndorf, near Vienna, were ordered to-day to wear on their right arms a yellow badge similar to the badge worn by Jews in the Middle Ages.

The order was issued by Joseph Buerckel, Nazi commissioner of Austria, to avoid "contamination" of Aryans who recently have been put to work with the Jews.

The Jews working on the project have been at Gaenserndorf since the anti-Semitic campaign started on November 10. Most of them were handicraft men and they had been conducting a camp-like school for young Jews learning trades preparatory to emigrating.

Aryans were engaged to help them when Buerckel decided to enlarge the labor camp by erecting additional barracks and workshops.

Gaenserndorf, a town of about 3,000 population, is a half-hour's street car ride from Vienna. The Jews are permitted from Saturday noon to Monday morning to visit their families in Vienna.

Stamp Dealers Jailed.

Meanwhile, Vienna police have been quietly rounding up all Jewish postage stamp dealers in the city. They have been placed in concentration camps and their stamps, estimated at 3,000,000 marks (about $1,200,000) have been confiscated.

Sixty per cent. of Vienna's postage stamp trade had been in Jewish hands.

At the same time the Jeudisches Nachrichtenblatt, only remaining Jewish organ in Germany, published an appeal to President Roosevelt to help hard-pressed German Jews by offering 100,000 of them temporary refuge in the United States.

The paper said other countries "would certainly follow suit" if the United States should make such a move.

Town Calls Its Third Nomination For Four Councillors Brave Enough To Tackle Relief

MASSEY, Ont., Dec. 7—(CP).—Wanted: Four councillors who aren't afraid to tackle a relief problem which town clerk K. S. Teasdale terms "baffling."

Although 45 men have been nominated at two nomination meetings, this town, 60 miles west of Sudbury, still is without a full council for 1939. Massey has a reluctant mayor, N. J. Dyell, and two members of the council but four seats still remain to be filled.

It happened this way: Only F. N. Byers of 21 men nominated at the first meeting Nov. 28 qualified. The others did not attempt to do so. "There's a reason," town clerk Teasdale said at the time. "The relief problem baffles everyone. It is acute. Already there are 60 of our 700 people on relief and there are more applying every day."

Four men were nominated for mayor and 20 for councillors at the second nomination meeting Monday. Only W. A. Beckett qualified. Citizens prevailed upon Mayor Dyell to be re-elected by acclamation but he did so only after repeated pleas. Byers and Beckett have been elected by acclamation.

So another nomination meeting has been called for next Monday, Dec. 12, in the hope that within the next few days citizens can convince four more men to accept council seats and complete the election.

Clerk Teasdale says that if nothing then results he has no idea how Massey will gather its 1939 council.

Keep Calling

TORONTO, Dec. 7—(CP).—It is up to Massey, Northern Ontario town, to keep on holding nomination meetings until it gets a council, it was said here today at the Department of Municipal Affairs.

Last Minute News Flashes

LONDON. — Malcolm MacDonald, Secretary for the Dominions and Colonies, told the House of Commons to-day he was convinced that British public opinion is solidly against the return to Germany of its colonies lost in the Great War.

MONTREAL.—Loot estimated between $7,000 and $8,000 was obtained to-day by a gunman who walked into an East St. Catherine Street branch of Banque Canadienne Nationale, held up the teller, Roger Allard, and escaped down a nearby lane.

Trucker Tangles Radio Law

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Dec. 7. —(CP).— Judgment was reserved yesterday on an appeal by the Department of Transport from a decision of Magistrate J. H. Campbell which, according to Transport Department lawyers, makes the radio license law "practically impossible to enforce."

Magistrate Campbell dismissed a charge of operating a radio without a license laid by Department inspectors against Malcolm McFadden. The court found McFadden had purchased a license after the inspectors had visited him, and therefore had a license on Oct. 20, the date mentioned in the charge.

J. J. Bench, K.C., counsel for the Department, said unless the day were divided into parts so the court would recognize the license had been purchased after the inspectors called on McFadden the statute would be difficult to enforce. He contended no one would have to buy a license until an inspector found him operating a radio without one.

2 Police, Convict Shot In Battle

BURLINGTON, N.C., Dec. 7—(AP).—Two officers and an alleged escaped convict were shot to death in a gun battle at a filling station here early today.

Sheriff M. P. Robertson, of Alamance County, and policeman S. E. Vaughan of Burlington, were felled by bullets as they rushed into the filling station with drawn pistols to investigate a light burning after closing time.

The third victim was shot down by Deputy Sheriff F. B. Bailiff, on guard outside, who said he fired through a window after seeing his fellow officers fall. Bailiff said the slain robber was Roy Huffman, an escaped convict. Another man in the building escaped.

Women's Bingo Game Gets Rude Jolt As Prizes Seized

Toronto, Dec. 7 (CP)

MORE THAN 100 women were found in a bingo game abruptly terminated last night by the visit of a police raiding squad.

Disgruntled women who had won prizes said they would smash them rather than hand them over to police. After much discussion they finally wrote their names on the prizes at request of the police and departed. None of the women were held.

The police seized about $20 and a number of floor lamps, table lamps and other prizes.

BARCELONA, Dec. 7—(AP).—Figures available here show that insurgent air raids and naval attacks killed 4,018 persons and wounded 6,174 in Catalonia, a province in northeastern Spain, in a little more than two years of civil war.

Statistics up to Oct. 31 showed that this government capital alone suffered 170 bombardments, which killed 2,500, wounded 3,200 and destroyed or damaged 1,200 buildings. Throughout Catalonia 5,963 buildings were partly or completely destroyed.

No Let Up

ZARAGOZA, Spain, Dec. 7—(AP). —Insurgent planes have been subjecting the entire coastline of government Spain to bombardments apparently in fulfillment of General Franco's threat to bomb 198 military objectives to force an early end of the war.

Squadrons of bombers, often numbering as many as 30 planes, daily raid ports like Barcelona and Valencia and nearby towns and villages and drop heavy incendiary bombs that damage and destroy warehouses and munitions depots.

Six days ago Franco broadcast a warning to inhabitants of 198 communities in government-held Spanish territory that they should leave the towns immediately.

Low Pay Rapped

SARNIA, Ont., Dec. 7.—(CP). — Municipalities which pay auditors $5 a year up for checking thousands of dollars of expenditures were criticized by J. P. Coombe, supervisor of the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs before the Lambton County Council at the opening meeting of the December session.

Profit-Sharing Like Kissing Wife In Morning -Aids Relations, But Useless If Supervised

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP)— A United States senate committee heard today that business profit-sharing is like kissing your wife in the morning—it promotes good relations but it wouldn't be very effective if a government agent was standing by to see that you did it.

T. M. Beavers, vice-president of the People's Drug Company, a chain with headquarters in Washington, gave the senate profit-sharing committee this interpretation of the difficulties he saw in the path of attempts by government to encourage employers to share profits with employees.

"If I may be slightly facetious profit-sharing is like kissing your wife in the morning," Beavers said. "It improves domestic relations. But I doubt that it would be very effective if you had a government agent standing over you to see that you do it."

"I'm surprised," commented Senator Vandenberg (Rep.-Michigan), "that they haven't thought of that."

To Beavers' remark that profit-sharing should come voluntarily from business, Vandenberg said the committee had no thought of recommending any compulsory system.

France Fearing Crotian Assassins Rings Prince Paul With Guards

PARIS, Dec. 7—(AP).—The Surete Nationale today surrounded Prince Paul, Regent of Yugoslavia, with strong police guards after receipt of warnings from London that unidentified terrorists might take an attempt on his life.

Prince Paul, who arrived yesterday from England, conferred with President Albert Lebrun and later lunched with him at the Elysee Palae. He also talked with foreign minister Georges Bonnet.

Check on Queen Mary

PLYMOUTH, England, Dec. 7—(AP).—Special Scotland Yard officers boarded the liner Queen Mary today as she rode at anchor off Plymouth and checked reports that terrorists sworn to kill Prince Regent Paul of Yugoslavia were aboard.

The inspectors examined credentials of passengers scheduled to land in England, but it was understood no suspicious persons were found. The Yugoslav regent left London for Paris yesterday under extra-ordinary Scotland Yard protection. It was denied he left because of published reports Crotian terrorists were coming from New York to "get" him.

While the Scotland Yard men were aboard the weather became so rough the tender lines snapped and the Queen Mary proceeded toward Southampton without disembarking 250 passengers from New York and unloading 2,000 bags of mail.

MANION GOING TO QUEBEC

Takes President Of France To Sanction Search Of Soviet Embassy–Month Too Late

PARIS, Dec. 7 (AP) — Testimony that President Albert Lebrun intervened to permit police to raid a house rented by the Soviet embassy in Paris put the case of the missing white Russian generals in the realm of international politics today.

The testimony was given in the trial of the former Ukrainian concert singer, La Plevitskaia, charged with conspiring with her husband to kidnap General Eugene De Miller, head of the union of white Russian war veterans in Paris. De Miller disappeared Sept. 22, 1937, and La Plevitskaia's husband, General Nicholas Skobline, vanished the same day.

The international angle was injected into the case yesterday when Police Commissioner Jean Roche was being questioned by La Plevitskaia's counsel, Maurice Ribet, about police raids in connection with the case. One of these raids was on a house rented by the Soviet embassy. It stands close to the subway station where De Miller, in a note left just before he vanished, said he had a rendezvous with Skobline.

"The foreign ministry never replied to our request for permission to raid this house," Ribet told the jury. "It required the intervention of the chief of state (Lebrun) to enable police to go ahead — and that was a month later. Naturally nothing was found."

Roche confirmed Ribet's statement.

Coroner Wants Foreigners Checked On Lies

TORONTO, Dec. 7 (CP)—Several witnesses were reprimanded by Chief Coroner Dr. Smirle Lawson last night at an inquest into the death of Jack Kovalainen, Toronto, who died during an alleged drinking party Nov. 18. Dr. Lawson said there was an evident reluctance to tell the truth about certain details prior to the fatality.

"So far as this particular case is concerned I am more interested in seeing that we get at the truth," he said. "Some of these foreigners must be taught that if they live in this country they must tell the truth.

"There has been some conflicting evidence heard here. It is not right; it is not British and it is not democratic."

The jury found that Kovalainen died from hypertrophy and dilation of the heart and a brain condition. The verdict said that death was due principally to the existence of a chronic heart condition and that a drunken brawl may have hastened death. He had a heart that weighed 20 ounces in comparison to a normal 10.

In a rider the jury said that "if aliens and foreigners are to enjoy the privileges of living in this country, a greater regard for truth should be more prevalent than was indicated in the evidence given at this inquest."

"The verdict is fair, much fairer than would have been brought in over in Russia," Dr. Lawson said.

Medical evidence was to the effect that Kovalainen was drunk when death occurred. Taisto Saari admitted he pushed Kovalainen from the house to the back porch twice. Kovalainen was found lying outside the door.

Italian Clamor Eases Slightly

ROME, Dc. 7—(AP).—Police continued to guard the French embassy today although it appeared the street demonstrations in support of Italian claims to French Tunisia had subsided.

The Fascist newspapers, likewise, adopted a more moderate tone but continued to report anti-Italian agitation in Tunisia "with evident connivance of authorities."

Ilpopolo Di Roma predicted that Premier Daladier of France on a visit to Corsica next month would learn the abandonment in which the paper said France had left that Mediterranean island while at Tunisia he would be able to learn directly of the "intolerable situation created for the Italian community" here.

Unless he revised French policies n African Tunisia, the paper said, is visit would do France more harm than good.

Italian students in a Tunisian demonstration yesterday twice tried to approach the French embassy but were turned back by police.

Blond Killer Collapses At Refusal To Save Her From Chair

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 7—(AP).—Anna Marie Hahn, revived from collapse, grasped for hope to-day as the State prepared to put her to death in the electric chair after nightfall.

The nerves of the condemned poison slayer crumbled and she sobbed hysterically after Governor Martin Davey declined to intervene in the electrocution, scheduled for about 8 p.m.

"I had no idea he would do this to me," moaned Mrs. Hahn, repeatedly kissing a picture of her 12-year-old son, Oscar. Finally, last night, she fell in a faint in her penitentiary "Death Row" cell. Two matrons placed her on a bed and revived her with spirits. She sobbed until she dropped into a fitful sleep.

Warden J. C. Woodward said Oscar will be permitted to remain with his mother until her last meal is served, about 5.30 p.m.

Mrs. Hahn's last hours probably will be spent with the prison's Roman Catholic chaplain, Rev. John Sullivan, for whom she has been embroidering altar cloths.

Joseph Hoodin, her attorney, asked permission to confront the governor with the condemned woman's son in a last desperate plea for clemency, but Davey said he would not see them.

The governor described Mrs. Hahn as a "cold-blooded" killer who slew in "remorseless deliberation for money."

He said the case gave him more concern than any during his four years in office, and that "I tried to find a reason that would satisfy my own conscience to commute the sentence to life imprisonment."

But, he added, "one opposing thought always surged forward: What could I say to the mothers whose sons have had to die in the electric chair for committing only one murder, and then perhaps not quite so cold and calculating as the several murders committed by Mrs. Hahn?"

A 32-year-old blond born in Bavaria and never admitted to United States citizenship, Mrs. Hahn was convicted of administering poison to 78-year-old Jacob Wagner, a Cincinnati gardener.

The prosecution charged that Wagner was only one of four elderly men poisoned by Mrs. Hahn so that she could obtain their meagre savings to pay her race track losses.

Montreal Bankers Discuss Canada's Business Outlook

Sir Charles Gordon, President, Reports Expansion of Loans for Commercial Purposes — Bank in Very Strong Position — Presents New Vision of Empire Trade and Industry

General Managers Explain How Ever-Increasing Taxes and Other Operating Costs Reduce Banking Profits — Urges the Desirability of Making Public Tax-Conscious

The important part that the Bank of Montreal plays in relation to Canada's productive activities and attendant financial operations again was emphasized at the 121st annual meeting of the shareholders held in Montreal this week. With assets at the highest level since 1929, and the trend of commercial loans upward, the Bank, as Sir Charles Gordon, G.B.E., the president, pointed out, has fully maintained the strength of its financial position, which a year ago he described as the strongest during the ten years in which he had then held the position of president. Reporting for himself and Jackson Dodds as joint general managers, G. W. Spinney, in referring to the substantial increase in the number of the bank's commercial borrowers, stated that current loans and discounts in Canada had increased by $27,800,000 during the year making a total of $178,700,000, which was $47,900,000 greater than two years ago.

Reviewing the year's experience of Canadian business, with which the bank is so closely identified, Sir Charles stated that it had been a period of great uncertainty in respect to the immediate future and, consequently, of some hesitancy in business operations. However, he added that, by and large, having in view the situations in other countries, the experience in Canada had not been unsatisfactory. "Most of our industries," he said, "have maintained a fair rate of production and, although there has been recession in some lines, this has been offset largely in other directions, with marked activity of mining contributing in increasingly important measure to the welfare of many subsidiary enterprises from coast to coast." During the year, he stated, a new record had been set up in gold mining, with production now on the basis of $180,000,000 annually.

Nature had been kind to Canada during the year, Sir Charles said, in referring to the largest grain crops in the Prairie Provinces since 1932. Other parts of Canada also had fared well agriculturally and, taken all in all, the crops of the whole country had been "good", while in practically every region live-stock farmers were in a position to face the winter with an abundance of feed supplies. Fisheries had reported good catches, both on the Atlantic and the Pacific, but markets had been depressed.

Newsprint Outlook Improved

The lumber industry had had a difficult year, owing to curtailed export demand and lower prices. Production of newsprint had been markedly less, but Sir Charles said that he was glad to note that there had been no recurrence of the cut-throat competition which proved so disastrous in years gone by; more recently newsprint consumption had improved and the outlook for the coming year was more important.

Export trade, a highly important factor in national prosperity, had been affected by the current crises in Europe, the situation in the Orient and the depression in the United States, but the year was closing on a more hopeful note in view of the importance of the trade upturn in the United States and the passing of the war scare in Europe.

The New Trade Treaties

Another important trade development referred to was the tripartite treaties recently signed by representatives of the United Kingdom, the United States and Canada. These treaties, said Sir Charles, would affect in more or less degree every industrial and commercial enterprise in the country. Canada had given co-operation not without sacrifices and not without some misgiving as to what these sacrifices might portend. However, freer access was provided for primary producers to the great market of the South "and we have hopes that the advantages which it offers to them will result in such a general increase in the purchasing power of the nation as to offset the added competition which many manufacturing industries will be called upon to face."

British Armament Orders

Dealing further with trade and industry, Sir Charles stated that among the more immediate factors likely to have a stimulating effect on certain of our manufacturing industries was the prospect of this country contributing to the armament requirements of Great Britain. In this connection he mentioned that when in London last spring he had had a number of interviews with important people in this regard, in which he directed attention to the fact that in Canada there was a large body of skilled workmen in industries not now very busy and that under technical advice the skill of these workmen could readily be adapted to the production of armaments.

Guaranteed Wheat Price Helpful

In discussing the agricultural situation, the president dealt particularly with the undertaking of the Federal Government to guarantee a fixed price for wheat at a level which, he described as "generous" in view of all the circumstances. He reviewed arguments both for and against the fixed price policy, and reached the conclusion that for this year it was a wise measure and one which, while primarily benefiting the Prairie Provinces, had been helpful to business in every part of the Dominion.

Concluding, Sir Charles referred to the official visit of the King and Queen in the coming year as "an honor unique in our history." He described it as an event indicating the unity of the British Empire and urged that "we relegate our parochial squabbles to their rightfully subordinate place and, as a nation, face with a united front the great era to which the finger of destiny so unmistakably is pointing."

General Manager's Report

Referring to the substantial increase in the number of commercial borrowers using the bank's facilities, Mr. Spinney reported that "to an extent we have obtained more profitable employment of money than could be found in short-term, high-grade securities."

In spite of this favorable development, however, profits were practically the same as for the preceding year. Low interest rates and the still moderate borrowing requirements of business had made it difficult to effect any improvement in this respect, he said.

Meanwhile taxes were ever on the increase—so much so that operating costs under this heading were about $500,000 higher for the year under review than for 1933, despite the fact that there had been a reduction of 63 in the number of branch offices. In referring to the ratio of quick assets to all liabilities to the public at 77.80%, he said that "naturally we would like to see the percentage brought considerably lower through an increase in good commercial loans, and we are glad the trend is in this direction.

Money Rates and Public Debts

The large total of dominion and provincial government obligations held by the chartered banks amounting in all to about 18% of the outstanding issues, was mentioned by Mr. Spinney in discussing the trend of interest rates and government finance. After presenting statistics to emphasize the growth of public debts and referring to the large obligations which would have to be met within the next five years, he suggested that, in the light of this situation, "it seems obvious that the central authorities will endeavor to keep money rates down." However, he took the view that the current level of interest rates could not be maintained indefinitely.

Dangerous Hidden Taxation

Continuing his discussion of public finance, the general manager spoke with some concern of the rising tide of public debt. He suggested that perhaps one of the reasons why there was no wide-spread demand for eonomy in government was that so much of our taxation was of the hidden type. The average citizen did not show concern at hidden taxation of which he was not immediately conscious but resisted such levies as direct sales tax which served to remind him daily of the demand of government. It might, therefore, benefit the nation if some rearrangements could be made in certain classes of taxation which would produce no actually higher charge to the individual but which would result in his knowing the cost, and, therefore, assuming a direct and personal interest in government economy.

As to the business outlook, Mr. Spinney stated that in the complicated conditions which now beset the world any general forecast would be risky, but added that, "given peace in our time, and prudent management of our affairs, there is every reason why Canada should face the future with confidence."

Tories To Be Asked To Support Seaway

TORONTO, Dec. 7 (C.P.). — A resolution declaring the Ontario Conservative Party stands for immediate co-operation with the Dominion Government to hasten the St. Lawrence River seaway and power development projects, will come before the party convention here to-morrow and Friday.

The Resolutions Committee set up by the convention Organizing Committee is meeting to-day under the chairmanship of Thomas Kidd, M.L.A., Kingston. About 75 resolutions have been received and these will be put in presentable form for the convention.

The present committee includes two former Premiers, George S. Henry and Hon. Howard Ferguson. The committee will officially come to an end when the convention opens, but it was expected its members might be re-elected by the convention itself.

Northern Ontario resolutions will advocate a reforestation policy and possibly re-establishment of the Department of Northern Development as a separate ministry in the Provincial Government. Another resolution will urge a works program for the relief of unemployment.

Explosion Victims' Condition Fair

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Dec. 7 (CP)—The condition of John Fleming, elderly Huntingdon township farmer and his son Percy, seriously injured by an explosion of dynamite on their farm Monday afternoon was reported as "only fair" today by hospital authorities. Dr. James H. Forrester, who is attending the injured men, stated "their eyesight may be restored but it would be some time before the actual results of the emergency operation will be known."

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Dec. 7 (C.P.). — Winnipeg wheat futures prices skidded in the closing stages of a quiet session to-day on increased selling credited to houses with southern connections. The closing range was ⅝ to ½ lower, December at 60¼; May 62½, and July 62¼.

Export business was comparatively light and estimated at 300,000 bushels. Shipments were made from Atlantic and Pacific ports.

Trade throughout the morning was dull and lacked feature. Some local and eastern houses made small purchases absorbing whatever offerings appeared. Volume of business transacted during the day generally was light.

Urge T.B. Treated National Problem

OTTAWA, Dec. 7 (CP) — A request that tuberculosis be treated as a national problem was made at today's meeting of Dominion and provincial ministers of health, held jointly with the Dominion Council of Health. The conference called upon the Dominion government to assist the provinces in the prevention and control of T.B.

Several ministers, including Health Minister Paquette of Quebec, said tuberculosis should be given preference over all other diseases when the question of federal contribution to health work throughout Canada was considered.

Industrial hygiene problems were outlined to the conference by Dr. F. S. Parney, chief of the industrial hygiene division of the department of pensions and national health, and there was an extended discussion on silicosis, a disease common among miners and those engaged in sandblasting, spray-painting and grain-handling.

LAKEFIELD

Mrs. Charles Hunter of Lakefield is in Orono where she was called by the death of her father.

Miss Jean Miller, Lakefield, entertained a number of little friends at a jolly party at her home on Wednesday afternoon and evening, when she celebrated her birthday.

"Lone Eagle" In Paris

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, wearing spectacles, is pictured with Mrs. Lindbergh as they strolled in the Rue de Rivoli in Jaris during their recent visit shortly after the colonel had been decorated with the order of the German eagle in Berlin. Rumor hath it that the Lindberghs will take up residence in Berlin in the near future.

Windsor Going Home Says Copenhagen

LONDON, Dec. 7.— (AP).—Reports over whether the Duke of Windsor plans to return home provoked diverse headlines yesterday.

The Daily Mail (Independent) reported friends of the Duke as saying he was arranging to take a house in Cadogan Square near both Buckingham palace and the home of his brother, the Duke of Kent.

The newspaper National Tidende of Copenhagen, where the Duke of Kent was en route to the funeral of Queen Maud of Norway, quoted him as saying, "Yes, yes, sure" in answer to a reporters question whether the Duke of Windsor intended to return to England soon.

But the Daily Herald (Labor) in a front page story declared without qualification: "The Daily Herald understands, however, that these reports are without foundation and that the Duke does not intend to return to England."

KLERKSDORP, South Africa — (CP).—Precedent in South African municipal elections was believed set when a candidate here did not poll a single vote. His requisition was signed by 25 registered voters.

One Officer Naps 9 Others Get Into Jam

NEW YORK, Dec. 7—(CP).—In the manner of the kingdom once lost because a horse's shoe needed a nail, nine New York policemen will appear on the departmental carpet Wednesday because one of them took a nap on what appeared a dull night.

The charges arise out of the disappearance recently of 7,200 records from Brooklyn headquarters, and go something like this:

One patrolman had a charge against him because he was asleep in the back room of the station house the night the records were stolen, when he should have been on duty. His sergeant got in bad because he didn't catch the cop's siesta. The patrolman on the switchboard is accused of covering up the slumberer by reporting him on duty every hour. This threw a noose of circumstances around the neck of the lieutenant on duty, who failed to detect the twin deception.

Another cop is charged with failure to report that the door of the record room was open while the policemen slept, while the sergeant let him sleep while the switchboard man, etc.

And the captain is up on charges because he didn't know the lieutenant didn't know that the sergeant didn't, etc., etc.

How the charges stopped at this point, when they could have logicaly reached the mayor was not explained by headquarters.

The cops to be tried Wednesday are Captain Francis A. McCloy, in command of the station; Lieutenant August Deutsch, Sergeant Pasquale Damiano, and Patrolman John F. Barnes, Walter C. Herzer, James J. Sweeney, David J. Mulcahey, Michael A. Cunniffe and Edward J. Lawler.

Canada's Quads May Meet the King and Queen

Deny Terrorists Curtailing Prince's Visit

LONDON, Dec. 7—(AP).—A squad of Scotland Yard detectives saw Prince Paul of Yugoslavia off for home to-day. A spokesman at the Yard denied the Regent had cut short his visit in London because of a reported warning Croatian terrorists were en route from New York to "get" him.

A London newspaper said last night Scotland Yard had been warned by "Washington police" that a band of Croatian terrorists were on their way to London under oath to assassinate Prince Paul.

The Scotland Yard spokesman said the Regent's plans to depart today had been made some time ago. "The whole story is wrong," he said.

More than half a dozen special Scotland Yard inspectors and numerous railway police and detectives were at Victoria station when the Prince departed on a boat train.

TRENT RIVER

Mr. and Mrs. George Dunn of Campbellford celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary November 19 at their home, with immediate members of the family in attendance. The occasion also marked the birthday of Mrs. Dunn. Mr. and Mrs. Dunn were the recipients of many lovely and useful gifts. Mrs. Thain is a sister of Mr. William Thain of Trent River.

Mr. and Mrs. William Thain were recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barnum of Petherick's Corners.

Miss Helen Thain of Campbellford was a weekend visitor at the parental home.

Mrs. Will Wright and son Foy left Sunday for Toronto, where they will spend the winter.

Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. John Sedgwick and family were Mr. and Mrs. Archie Waldie, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sherwin and children of Fenella.

Mr. George Wigmore has returned to Norwood after visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Barrie and family, and later will leave for St. Catharines to spend the winter.

The annual meeting of the Cheese Factory was held Saturday afternoon to transact general business.

More Shooting

King Carol of Roumania is pictured as he made a wing shot during the shoot arranged in his honor by President Albert Lebrun of France on the occasion of his recent visit. King Carol returned to the land over which he rules to find more shooting. Zalea Codreanu, former leader of the "Iron Guard," Roumania's "Little Hitler," and 13 of his followers were shot to death while attempting to escape from a Bucharest prison.

HALIFAX—(CP).—More than 100 summonses for non-removal of snow from sidewalks were issued here by Police Chief Judson Conrad after the season's first snowfall.

Hastings Man Without A Job Now Hollywood Movie Actor

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 6.—James Harrell of Hastings was a man without a job this past summer Today he is a Hollywood movie actor signed up with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. The story of his success has been the main topic for discussion in this town for he had been a summer resident here for more than five years and everyone in town and district knows him.

Hunch Of Friend

His success is attributed to the hunch of a friend which prompted him to drive from Hastings, direct to Hollywood to try to get a job as an actor. One hour following the 4,000-mile drive he was cast for the fat man in "A Christmas Carol" at M-G-M studios. He was a radio performer but had never appeared on screen or stage before.

Wilson Benge, British actor in Hollywood, is said responsible for Harrell's success. Following one of Harrell's broadcast, Benge wrote him suggesting there should be a place in Hollywood for his type of comedy. He went to Hollywood on the suggestion of Benge and sought out Edward L. Martin, directing the Charles Dickens' story. In ten minutes he had his first screen job.

Harrell started his radio career about ten years ago and eventually broadcast from St. Catharines and Toronto stations. His "Uncle David" program a few years ago from CKCL station, Toronto, was centred about this town and had many listeners locally. He eventually became known as the man with twenty-eight voices.

Work In Peterborough

Although Harrell was born in Toronto and lived there during his youth he spent most of his time in various towns and cities in Ontario and the states. He worked in Peterborough for some time in a brick yard and is also known in Havelock. He is probably better known generally by Hastings residents.

One of his close friends here is J. C. Wilson, publisher, who has known Harrell since childhood. "I knew he had the acting ability and could make good if the opportunity presented itself," he said, when told of Harrell's success.

Harrell weighs between 250 and 275 pounds but is exceptionally smart on his feet. Occasionally last summer he would give an informal demonstration of his tap dancing abilites for the amusement of children in the "Sugar Bowl" restaurant.

"He was a great favorite among the young people here." Reeve Lewis E. Kelly said. "I am sure everyone here is pleased to learn of Mr. Harrell's success. I know that people of this district took great interest in his radio programs when he broadcast from Toronto and I am sure they will be looking forward to seeing him on the screen," he commented.

Overcome By Gas

KITCHENER, Ont., Dec. 7 (CP).—Roland Schulte, 30-year-old insurance clerk, and Mary Funkhauser, 19-year-old stenographer, were found unconscious, overcome by carbon monoxide fumes, in Schulte's car by relatives early today. They were taken to the Kitchener-Waterloo Hospital.

A brother of Schulte found the pair in the car, which had been parked in the garage with the doors closed.

Successful Bazaar Held By Cavan W.A.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAVAN, Dec. 7.—A very successful bazaar and afternoon tea was held by the W. A. of Cavan United church in the Sunday school room of the church on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Ray Syer and Mrs. J. H. Snider were in charge of a table of farm produce, home-made cooking, and many other articles which had been donated.

Mrs. R.A. Sutton and Miss Annie Tinney presided over the table where aprons, socks and remnants of print goods were for sale.

Mrs. J. R. Trumpour and Mrs. Keegan were in charge of the "touch and take" table.

In one corner of the room the C.G.I.T. had a table of fancy articles and notions with the Misses Audrey Nill, Norma Gillis and Mary Richards in charge.

Afternoon tea was served at small tables by Mrs. Donald Tinney, Mrs. Perrin and Mrs. Hunter.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Wolff and family and Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Wolff, of Peterborough were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Charles Thorndyke.

Miss Flora E. Morgan, B.A., Miss Shirley Buckingham, B.A. and Mr. Walter Zeigler, B.A., of the Continuation School staff motored to Toronto on Saturday, to secure costumes, and make other final arrangements for the annual Commencement, which is to be held in the Town Hall on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week.

Salary Is Sought For Hydro Members

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 7 — Hastings Hydro Cmmission passed a resolution on Monday night at the monthly meeting requesting the Town Council to authorize payment of a salary to the Hydro Commissioners effective this year from January, 1938. If the resolution is passed, the chairman will receive $2.50 each monthly meeting and two other members $2 each per meeting when attended. This will mean an annual total salary to the Commission of $78. The resolution was unanimous.

Insurance on stock of the Commission was renewed with F. S. Richardson at $6.00 annual premium.

The secretary was instructed to prepare a detailed statement of receipts and expenditures for 1938 up till December 1 and have it ready for the printer for nomination day.

The low voltage on Front Street power lines was discussed, but the Commission will not undertake to have theis corrected this season. H. G. Fairman, member of the board, voiced complaint that at certain hours in the day he could not run an electric meat grinder. T. A. Coughlan voiced a similar complaint regarding a motor at his home.

CARGO OF CANOPUS

Cargo of the flying boat Canopus when it arrived at Sydney, Australia, recently included a patient on a stretcher, orchids from the Malay Archipelago, tea samples from Java, and "lung" fish from Burnett River.

Literary Program Is Presented By Students

(Examiner Correspondence.)

KEENE, Dec. 7—The students of the Keene short course gave a very interesting literary program on Friday. It opened with a singsong, followed by a reading by Whilemine Edwards. A duet, "The Little Old Cathedral in the Pines," was sung by Miss Anna Houle and Jack Godfrey. The editor of the school paper, Earl Stillman, read the several items.

A contest was enjoyed, after which Miss Wright gave an instructve talk on "How Not to Climb Mountains." A comical and musical one-act play entitled 'School Days,' put on by the pupils, was greatly enjoyed.

The roll call has now reached 27 boys and 27 girls. The boys have judged Herefords and Shorthorns cattle on farms in the district. The united classes have heard special lectures on "Cream" by Mr. Davies.

The Ladies' Club held a very delightful meeting at the home of Miss Mary Drummond, with Mrs. George Gall hostess.

Sixteen members were present, with two visitors. A very interesting letter was read from Miss Jean Armstrong of New Carlisle, Quebec, where she is in charge of a home for High school students. Current events were given by Mrs. D. D. Brown. Miss Lyla Drummond gave a talk on "The Short Course." A very instructive talk on British Columbia was given by Mrs. Jas. McFarlane.

$1.61 In Firm's Account

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 7—(CP)—A firm named Intercontinental Airways, Toronto, had only $1.61 in its bank account since Feb. 1, 1937, Magistrate H. A Burbidge was told today as Fred MacLean Toronto, said he was on his "last legs" as far as his air mail plan to link Buffalo, Hamilton, Toronto and Detroit was concerned.

He was convicted of obtaining money under false pretences in presenting a $10 cheque to Wilfred Myatt of Hamilton. He was remanded a week for sentence. On two other false pretences charges he was granted a week's adjournment.

Annexation?

The Italian Chamber of Deputies resounded to frenzied cries calling for the annexation of the French possessions of Tunis, Nice, Corsica, and Savoy, as Francois Poncet, newly named French ambassador to Rome, embarrassedly pretended he did not understand what was being said. The action of the deputies was seen as Italy's first bid for territories shown ABOVE, which now belong to France.

MARMORA

General Division Hold Safety Star

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Dec. 7—The regular monthly meeting of the Deloro Safety committee was held in the Electric Shop on Monday afternoon with R. A. Elliott presiding.

George Brooks, for the suggestions committee, told of the receipt of two suggestions during the past month. C. T. Nicholson brought in the report of the competitive committee which revealed that an award was given one suggestion and that the star was retained by the general division. W. L. Regg reported for the inspection committee.

J. A. Rice touched on the routine work of the health and investigation committee. C. H. Buskard gave the monthly statement of the benevolent relief funds and J. H. Hemphill gave the concluding report, that of the publicity committee.

It Is Not Clear-Cut

There are some legal decisions made which leave the feeling that they are not as clear-cut as they might be. For example: Some weeks ago Clifford Case, former member of the Ontario Legislature for North York, was charged with being drunk while in charge of a car. The magistrate who heard the evidence registered a conviction after finding the driver guilty and sentenced Case to seven days.

Then there was an appeal made to the judge and the conviction was quashed on the ground that the condition of Case was due to medical treatment as he had been ill.

Attorney-General Conant made this remark: "While I still think the judgment is wrong, the case will have to rest where it stands under the present state of the law." Mr. Conant said as he understood the situation the Crown has no further right to appeal.

So there is what we regard as something which is not clear-cut and therefore not satisfactory — the Attorney-General believes the ruling which quashed the conviction is wrong but he can do nothing about it. It is hard to ask a sensible man to believe our law is sufficient when it can produce such a situation and allow it to remain that way.

Doing Something Real

Bathurst Street United Church in Toronto has adopted two young men, single and unemployed. The selection was made by the Single Men's Unemployed Association, and the two picked out were taken because of their youth. One is 17 and the other 18.

Rev. Gordon Domm, minister of the Bathurst United Church, explained the two adopted boys would be sure of a good bed and regular meals and an effort would be made to find jobs for them. He explained the move was made because the people felt it should be done and also in the hope that other churches and organizations would follow along and do something similar.

There are a good many young fellows in this group—single and unemployed—and it would take much adopting to care for them all. But we feel the church in Toronto has done something which needed doing. It is not merely extending sympathy and an occasional donation, but is assuming actual responsibility for the two who have been made its wards for the time being. It puts the church exactly where it ought to be; makes it a participant rather than a bystander.

Mr. Hepburn Tried It

David Croll, formerly a member of the Hepburn cabinet, and now in the Ontario Legislature as member for Windsor-Walkerville, has been elected Mayor of Windsor and his majority was between four and five thousand. As a rule it would not make much difference to people outside of Windsor who might be elected as Mayor in that city, but this election was different. The candidates did nearly everything except shoot at each other. More worthy of note was the fact that Premier Hepburn threw his full weight and influence into the fight against Croll. He wrote a strongly-worded letter in which he charged against his former colleague all the way through and the letter was published in full-page size as campaign material.

It did look at the time that Mr. Hepburn would have been well advised to stay out of a municipal campaign, but he went off the deep end as a letter writer and thus placed his influence against the man who ultimately won by a substantial majority. It proved conclusively that Mr. Hepburn could not unhorse Mr. Croll in his own bailiwick.

Now—Gather Them In

The annual report of the assessment department gives the people of Peterborough according to religious preferences which they themselves have stated. There are in all 15 religious bodies represented, and at the end there is a classification known as "Miscellaneous." Just what the assessor has placed in there we do not exactly know, but numerically 286 are so classified.

Denominations whose membership extends into the four figure group are: United Church, 7,561; Anglican, 5,778; Roman Catholic, 5,361; Presbyterian, 2,231; Baptist, 1,440.

It is made clear that the assessment department does not wish its statement regarded as a religious census, as all occupants are classified according to the religion of the householder. But even so it at least is a partial census, and shows that virtually every householder in the city has some religious preference. They have so stated and possibly have no desire to deny it. The census accounts for all the homes in the city.

The figures indicate that 24,146 people in this city, to say nothing at all of the several thousands who live immediately adjacent to it, have placed something closely resembling a lever or a mild weapon of persuasion in the hands of the ministers and the church visitors of the city. We have a feeling that nothing like our entire population attend church service on Sunday. The preference which they expressed when talking to the assessor is not the one on which they place emphasis when the first day of the week is at hand.

It can also be urged that the city as such has done its full share to make it possible for all these people to have splendid places in which to worship, as according to statute it taxes church buildings only for local improvements, and the total value of church property is listed at $887,050.

There was no place in the assessor's book for a listing of those who might like to put themselves down as non-active, so it seems right enough that the ministers should now walk forth boldly and call upon our folk to make good the information which they presented to the assessor.

Admirable Caution

If you are going to give skiis, sleighs or toboggans for Christmas, let not the present open weather deter you. Dan Whetung, chief of Curve Lake Reserve, has spoken, and he says there will be snow.

The Chief admits we have had a fine open old-fashioned fall, but we are also going to have some old-fashioned snow.

The Chief is a weather prophet of the sort which indicates he might do well enough if he were to join the diplomatic service of the nation. He predicts snow, but he does not say just when it is liable to come. He leaves a little latitude in which to work and that is indeed advisable as any weather prophet well knows.

At any time when the snow is ready to come then the Chief will find his prophecy fulfilled. And to our way of thinking that is an entirely admirable way in which to predict weather. One is not well advised who says the snow will come on such a day and at such an hour, or that it will measure six inches or six feet or just the depth of a broom handle. Chief Whetung is wise in his day and generation. He is content with the general prediction that we will have snow.

Willie Has a Grievance

Willie Curle of Campbellford, substantial town in the county of Northumberland, has a grievance. Willie states (in brackets) that he is 11 years of age, and his grievance is directed toward Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of the Dominion and therefore we take it Prime Minister of Northumberland as well.

The grievance of Willie (probably registered at birth as William) is contained in this letter to the Examiner:

Campbellford, Ont., Dec. 1, 1938.

Dear Mr. Editor:

I am writing to you to tell you that all the children at our school are very much disappointed that Premier King has announced that the King's birthday will be celebrated on a Saturday, May 20.

Mr. Editor, we wish you would try to persuade Mr. King to celebrate this important holiday on a Monday or a Friday or any school day, but not on Saturday. Unless a change is made, Mr. King is doing us out of a holiday and this would not be fair.

Thanking you, sir, I am

Sincerely yours,

WILLIE CURLE (age 11).

We notice on a second reading of that letter that it is not only Willie Curle who has a grievance, but "all the children at our school," and we dare say children in other schools feel the same way about it.

Willie, we're inclined to say at once that we're with you. Us men will have to stick together in an emergency of this sort, as contending with Prime Ministers and with decrees which take our holidays from us is something which we cannot very well expect the girls to handle.

Possibly as we go along we may add to our numbers. You may have heard Canning's delightful story of the "three tailors of Tooley street" who when sending a petition to the British House of Commons began it this way: "We, the people of England . . ." We may be few in number as we start, but we can at least speak in a big way. So how would it be, Willie, if we start a petition to say: "We, the people of Northumberland and Peterborough Counties . . ."

Perhaps we better make sure of our ground before we go too far. As we understand it, the 24th of May has not been definitely rubbed out. That is a holiday which we started celebrating in Canada years ago as the birthday of Queen Victoria, and we have kept at it ever since, although we are the only part of the British Empire to do so. We never have celebrated the birthday of our present King, and we will not be actually celebrating it by observing May 20, because the King was born on the 14th of January, 1895. We have had a holiday in June when the birthday is officially noticed, but its celebration is not general. So we have been having quite a time pushing the birthday of our King around from one day to another, and the 20th of May is asked for this year because our King and Queen are expected to be in Ottawa on that day.

Meantime Willie, we know how you feel about having a holiday celebrated on Saturday. It's kind of tough because you'd be having a holiday then any way, but don't give up hope. We like to knock off for a day just the same as you do, and the 24th of May is about as fine a time of the year for that purpose as we know.

Our Table Manners

There are all manner of agencies which keep on telling people what they should and should not do. One can purchase a book on etiquette, go and attend a course of lectures or read about it in the newspapers.

They have a way now of presenting table manners by a series of questions and answers. Like this:

Question: Is it good manners to keep your fork in your hand and gesture with it while talking at the dinner table?

Answer: No.

Just what to do with the fork is not stated so we do not regard that answer of only one word as satisfactory. It leaves one guessing whether he should slip it in his pocket, put it in the flower pot or stand it up against a water glass. Perhaps he ought really just to leave it on the plate. That is something we shall have to find out.

On the Tenth Concession the hired man was handy with his fork; he seemed to like the feel of the thing and he seldom let it have a rest. If there was discussion or argument he had a habit of pointing it this way or that, and for emphasis he would tap the handle on the table. Never was any person in danger on account of proximity, but the hired man seemed to find in the table fork a channel for self expression.

Likewise he made other uses of his fork. He was always seated at the end of the bench at the table; let's see, he would be at the north-east corner, and on account of his location would often enough find himself rather far removed from the plate on which the bread was stacked. Yes, stacked is the right word to use there. He was one of those individuals who seldom asked any person to do anything for him. If any man was self-contained it was the hired man. So when he wanted more bread he speared it with the fork. It was not a clumsy movement, but rather was it deft, even to a degree where it might have been termed slightly artistic. He endangered no person nor did he disturb anything on the table. Possibly the people who write the column about table manners and the proper handling of a fork never saw an expert using one, and that in turn may account for their tendency to make arbitrary rulings on the subject.

NOTE AND COMMENT

There are some new rules coming which will make a bridge game end faster. That is fine if it does not mean some person will then suggest starting a new game.

Minister in Chatham has tried something new. He sings a sermon instead of delivering it in the usual way. Fine, if some of the folk in the pew do not take it for a lullaby.

Defeated by David Croll for the Windsor mayoralty, Col. Wigle refused to wish the successful candidate luck. Perhaps he thought the winner had already had enough luck.

France and Germany have now signed a peace pact. However, no armament plants in either country have shut down as yet and we believe airplanes are still being turned out.

There is sometimes something in a name. The Earl de La Warr has warned Germany that there is a growing conviction in Britain that only armaments can speak effectively.

Some folk appear to think that turkeys and Christmas trees are to be had in the rural districts merely for the collecting. The courts may have to do something to teach them the error of that viewpoint.

BOASTFUL

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Cousin Jake was rather brave, and on that question used to rave, he'd talk two hours or one; he scoffed at those who used to quake, and start and tremble like or shake, when threatened with a gun.

¶ They have no nerve, said Cousin Jake, a spine just like a garter snake, and all they have is fear; instead of going to stand their ground, they shiver at the slightest sound, and think their end is near.

¶ For when a man begins to shake, according to my Cousin Jake, right then he's out and done; but if a man will show some fight, then everything will turn out right, intruders then will run.

¶ The other night, Jake heard a noise, he would not lose his nerve and poise, he would investigate; he heard a stealthy step downstairs, he heard a shuffling of some chairs, and it was very late.

¶ A burgling man was in the place, he had an ugly sort of face, and he was broad and thick; Jake saw him through the keyhole there, he straight-way mounted up the stair, and did it rather quick.

¶ Jake hammered on the upstairs floor, and locked up tight the bedroom door and he was much alarmed; that burglar man looked awful tough, and Jake was sure that like enough—he also might be armed.

"Annie Laurie" Was Not A Myth

MANY PEOPLE may be inclined to believe Annie Laurie is just a song; that, like Mrs. Harris, there was "no sich person," and that when William Douglas wrote about being ready to "lie doun an' dee" for bonnie Annie Laurie he was just writing verse and nothing more, which Lady John Scott subsequently set to music. The song, says the St. Thomas Times-Journal, was written and composed about 250 years ago and its popularity will probably endure, not only among Scots, but among all lovers of simple and appealing ballads.

Memory of Annie Laurie is revived by the announcement that Craigdarrock House, Dumfries, Scotland, is for rent from the Ferguson family. Behind that prosaic business statement lies the story of Annie Laurie, for there she lived for a great many years as the wife of Alexander Ferguson, for, disappointing as it may be to shatter the belief in an immortal love story, she did not marry the man to whom she was said to have given her promise true, but the son of a neighboring laird.

Annie Laurie was the daughter of Sir Robert Laurie, and her birth certificate is still in existence in her father's handwriting to the following effect, he having apparently forgotten the surname of the minister who baptized her.

"At the pleasure of the Almighty God, my daughter Annie Laurie was borne upon the sixteenth day of December, 1862 years, about six o'clock in the morning, and was baptized by Mr. George ——, minister of Glencairn."

At what time William Douglas entered her life is not known except that she was in her early teens when he penned his poem. Of the writer little is known, except that he was something of a wanderer, a soldier of fortune, and visited the Laurie family at Maxwelton House—the place where the braes are bonnie. Maxwelton House was an imposing place, having previously been the ancestral home of the earls of Glencairn. The Lauries were not a noble family, the founder of the fortunes having made his money as a merchant in Dumfries, and it may be that even in those days there were earls who were obliged to sell their estates to the new rich.

As all the world knows the first verse of the song reads:

Maxwelton's braes are bonnie,
Where early fa's the dew,
And it's there that Annie Laurie
Gie'd me her promise true,
Which n'er forgot will be,
An' for bonnie Annie Laurie
I'd lay me doun an' dee.

MISS LAURIE was 28 years of age when she married Alexander Ferguson, who came of a very old family prominent in Scottish history since the thirteenth century. She must have exercised as great fascination over him as she had done over William Douglas because the houses of Laurie and Ferguson were as politically divided as were the houses of Montagu and Capulet. The Fergusons were Covenanters; the Lauries were violently opposed to them. Be that as it may, Annie made a favorable impression on the Ferguson family and lived on the utmost terms of amity. She outlived her husband by many years, dying at the age of 82. Parts of her old home of Maxwelton still exist, the house, or castle as it really was, having been burned about 200 years ago. A portrait of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Ferguson exists, according to a writer in the Milwaukee Journal, and a visitor describes Annie as follows:

"Annie's hair is dark brown, and she has full dark eyes—it is difficult to say whether brown or deep hazel. At any rate, they are not blue. Whoever doctored the second verse of the original song had apparently no knowledge of this portrait, for you all know he has given Annie a 'dark blue e'e.' The nose is long and straight; the underlip full, as though 'some bee had stung it newly,' like that of Suckling's bride. A true Scotch face, of a type to be met any day in Edinburgh or any other Scotch town. She is in evening gown of white satin and she wears no jewels but the pearls in her hair."

What became of William Douglas is unknown. One story is that after he was jilted by Annie Laurie, assuming they had made the bargain, he went to Flanders as a soldier and was killed. His poem was published in a book of ballads, but did not attract much attention until set to music. But it was long forgotten until it suddenly returned to fame during the Crimean war when the Scots soldiers sung it around their bivouacks at Alma, Balaclava and Inkerman.

ONE PRIME MINISTER.

(Edmonton Journal)

THE ENCYCLOPAEDIA Britannica states that "prime minister" and "premier" are synonymous. There is no reason why they should not be regarded so in Britain, where there is only one person to whom to apply either term. But in Canada it is desirable to have a distinction made, with the first title confined to the man who presides over the Cabinet at Ottawa and the second applied to the heads of the various provincial governments. This has been the usual practice and it should be adhered to strictly.

HARD TO RECONCILE.

(Toronto Saturday Night)

COPPER PRODUCERS in Canada find it difficult to reconcile the fact that the recent trade agreement between Canada and the United States failed to reduce the duty of 4 cents per pound imposed against Canadian copper entering the United States. This 'oversight' is all the more difficult to understand in light of the fact that Canadians are asked to forego their empire preference of 6 cents per bushel on wheat and also their empire preference on motor cars.

Unappreciative

Foremost among the discouraging incidents to which a business man must accustom himself is seeing a secretary yawn while writing one of his snappy salesmanship letters.

"A half of bitter, please, and I'll have to ask you to pour it down because my wife handcuffed me to stop me nipping out and having one."

• The Right Place For Col. Drew

LESS THAN A WEEK before the convention which is to choose a provincial Conservative leader as successor to Hon. Earl Rowe, the latter has initiated a controversy with Lt.-Col. George A. Drew, former party organizer and present candidate for the leadership. Study of Mr. Rowe's statement as to the circumstances of Col. Drew's resignation last April, says the Woodstock Sentinel-Review, and of the latter's reply to Mr. Rowe, makes it clear that there is but one important point at issue. Rowe says that Drew insisted upon consideration of a coalition with the Hepburn government, and declared the time had come to end two-party government in Ontario. Drew has produced his letter of resignation, in which the C.I.O. was chiefly discussed, and which concluded with expression of a hope that the writer and Mr. Rowe would yet find themselves in harmony on this issue. Drew did express the view that a coalition could most effectively deal with some other issues, including Hydro, civil service reform and—if we recall correctly—succession duties. But he also said that he retained his confidence in the general principles of the Conservative party, and does not seem to have had any desire or expectation that its identity would be permanently submerged.

There is not, therefore, a great deal over which to quarrel, but the incidence of Mr. Rowe's statement at this particular time is taken by Col. Drew as a direct attack upon his qualifications for the leadership, and he alludes to "poisoned arrows" or something to that effect, and to machinations on the part of what he terms "the old gang." Possibly the really important feature of the affair is that it casts grave doubt upon the ability of Col. Drew to lead, in event of his election as leader, a united party. In that respect, it would appear that Hon. Earl Lawson has more to offer.

Of late, one encounters a trend of thought in some quarters that Col. Drew is the local man to fill the post of military critic in the House of Commons, where the Conservative party for some time has lacked a competent specialist. Already he has done more outside of Parliament than any critic inside. His association with military and defence affairs has acquired further prominence from the Bren gun enquiry, and it would be difficult for him to discontinue that association even if he would. That his commitments to federal affairs should be made to serve both the Conservative party and George Drew seems to be the hope of many, but as a provincial leader he would have to stick somewhat closely to provincial issues. Those who argue along this line suggest also that lack of House experience would be a handicap, as would his evident personal hostility to the premier. They think Col. Drew should put himself in line for a federal seat, so that he could carry on in Parliament the work he has begun outside, and in event of a change of government become Minister of National Defence.

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics

CHRISTMAS 1938

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I am wondering—how can we celebrate Christmas without being hypocrites? I do not wish to be unduly pessimistic but there lies the note under my fingers and I must strike it even if it does sound dismal or false. We still have wars and preparation for war while violence seems to increase its momentum downward carrying numbers of our young folk over the precipice.

The persecution of the Jews is another horror we have to face. Edwin C. Hill in his article in the Examiner on Saturday gives us a picture of them, men, women and children, dying in ditches, desperate from cold, hunger and thirst, while German and Czech guards refuse them food or water.

Horror grips me as I visualize these mothers beholding their little ones perishing and again I ask "How can we keep Christmas," the birthday of Jesus the Saviour born of a Jewish maiden whose birth was announced by angels to the shepherds in the fields of Bethlehem as a momentous event and upon which Mary, His Mother, pondered as the shepherds related their experience of a vision of angels, although she herself knew He was to be called Jesus and the Son of the Highest, but her secret was no secret now—it had been made known to others.

This morning a minister over the air related the case of a little boy in a department store picking up a little wooden image of the Christ Child, part of a manger scene; but his mother was hurrying him along saying you don't want that, it's only a picture of the Christ Child. Yes, only—to her, but perhaps more to a child heart.

Oh yes, how we crowd Him out in our rush at Christmas time, and may I add right here—how our merchants have commercialized Him. They dress up a man as "Santa Claus" because it is good for trade, but when God came to earth in the person of Jesus He came to give and not to get. He came to save, to give life, for mankind was dead in trespasses and sins and are we not now to a great degree dead as to spirit but alive to all that is not good.

Thanking you, I remain,

Yours truly,

"FIDEI DEFENSON."

VALUE IN WHEAT

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—This reader was attracted by that Examiner editorial "They Speak in Millions," in the course of which reference was made to the distribution of $100,000,000 among non-farm hands, when 250,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat moves into the international market.

The editorial made me think, and I suppose that is as high a tribute as a reader can pay? At any rate, Mr. Editor, here is what I thought: A Toronto journal was making reference to the $165,000,000 worth of 1938 "Canadian Gold" and concluded it was a major factor in "giving Canada a metal rather than a wheat economy." While the words look brave, I looked beneath their surface, and found the contrast as between "a metal rather than a wheat economy" a spurious one. The reason can be compressed into a few words. If we didn't recover a fine ounce of Canadian gold in 1939, it would be a serious blow to Canadian economy—but the country would soon adjust itself to the loss.

Can any reader visualize the paralysis that would grip urban Canadians if the grain tonnage disappeared It is the axis upon which the Dominion turns. The fact that there does not appear to be a "living wage" for the wheat farmers, having rendered such pivotal services, is another matter. Those millions of tons of grain move thousands of miles over rail, lake and ocean! With unfailing regularity, three or four times daily, the farmer serves the goldminer,—and the best of mines would soon cease to function were the boys not called "to the cookhouse door." Unfortunately the wheat farmers (and most other farmers!) do not see or handle enough of the gold miner's harvest to know what it looks like. Moreover, I find it very curious to reflect upon the fact that when Canada was producing 10 per cent of today's gold, the words "unemployment relief" were seldom heard—but our wheat farmers were prosperous!

There is no escaping the results of denying purchasing power to the 5 million Canadians "down on the farm." Mining, tourists, newsprint, manufacturers, are all of major importance to our economic and social health—but the great mother industry of "agriculture" outweighs them, for they are collectively dependent upon it.

THE FLOWERS ARE GONE

The flowers are gone, I saw them die.
No more their beauty charms my eye
Upon a morning fair.
No more their sweetness floats about
On summer evening air.
But fuscias on my window sill,
White lilies in a dish,
Bittersweet and evergreens
Are all the heart can wish
In a winter bouquet
To chase away the gloom
When the early evening shadows
Fill my living room.
So till springtime comes again,
My vigil I am keeping.
I know the flowers will bloom again,
They are not really dead—
Just sleeping.

TIME FOR PEACE.

(Toronto Financial Post)

IT IS HIGH TIME Mr. Hepburn and Mr. Bracken smoked the pipe of peace together.

After all, they are neighbors. They are both heads of great provinces mutually dependent on each other for prosperity; mutually concerned about preserving the national well-being.

If Mr. Hepburn is serious about giving leadership to solve national problems he will take steps to get acquainted with Western Canada, British Columbia and the Maritimes. If he knew their problems better he would be less ill-tempered in his comments on the public appeals of men like Mr. Bracken.

MOTHER'S AGONY.

(Christian Science Monitor)

MUSSOLINI'S WIFE is said to be almost violent in her hatred for war. Her sons have been militarized over her outraged protest; the youngest boy, 11, is drilling and looking forward to a career in the army. She is speaking the language of motherhood. The tragic futility of bringing sons into the world to be seized by somebody bent upon conquest and slaughter in coveted lands is almost too much for the spirit, flesh and blood to bear. Women have never fought much in wars, but they know more about war than men do.

Grant Of $200 Is Made Rink At Campbellford

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 7. — A grant of $200.00 is to be given C. H. Davidson, manager of the local skating arena, council decided at their meeting held on Monday. Howard Davidson, who addressed the council said that the skating would begin earlier this year and asked that the grant be increased from $150.00. P. H. MacMillan strongly disapproved the grant stating he would support the $150.00 but failed to see why any increase should be made.

"It's the taxpayers money you are spending and we can't run our business on the same basis as Belleville and Bowmanville," he intimated, when it was pointed out that it was customary for these towns to rebate the full amount of taxes in order that children should have free skating and hockey practice.

Condemning the compulsory pasteurization law as an unwarranted invasion of personal freedom, the council went on record as being opposed to the legislation which comes into effect in January. The resolution forwarded by the National Milk Producers and Consumers association was endorsed on motion of Deputy Reeve Locke and Councillor Battisby.

Fixed Assessment

An application for a fixed assessment for a company to be known as the Trent Dehydrated Products Limited, was deferred until a special meeting. The company which it was revealed, had as yet not been incorporated, was asking for a ninety-nine year lease on a lot located on Second street on which it was the company's intention to erect a plant. The company also required a fixed assessment of $1,000.00 for their plant.

Mayor Long revealed the plant at which alfalfa meal would be dehydrated would probably employ about forty men during five months of the year and from eight to sixteen during the balance. The company is a subsidiary of the Blatchford Calf Meal Company of England stated the Mayor.

A request for information regarding the duplex frame house situated at the north end of Front street near Market, was made by Bob Robinson, who represented the Loyal True Blue Lodge. Chairman of the town property committee, James L. Dories, stated that $7,500 was being asked for the property on which another offer had already been made.

Place Names on Cenotaph

Permission to cut a large tree on the Plumpton property on Inkerman strete was granted James Wilson. The name of veterans of the Fenian Raids, Northwest Rebellion and Great War are to be added to the base of the cenotaph on large cement plaques which are being constructed by A. H. McKeel. Addressing the council, Mr. McKeel drew attention to the fine work which had been done by the caretaker, A. Messenger, during the summer. He claimed that members of the Legion desired to have these names added and that he would do the work himself.

Due to lack of employment there are twice as many families on relief as there were at the same time last year relief officer J. J. Lewis Hay reported. The number at present seeking assistance from the town is between ten and twelve, he stated, and most of these are on for the winter, rather than the occasional type. The tax collector's report disclosed that $50,278.48 had been collected. Before passing the pay sheet council authorized advertising for tenders for the town weigh scales.

Name Of David Fife Will Live As Long As Wheat Is Grown

The granite column in a small Otonabee township cemetery marks the last resting place of David Fife, but his name will live as long as wheat is grown in Canada.

With these words the curtain was rung down on the talkie-reel, The Kinsmen, shown under the auspices of the Men's Association of St. Paul's Church in the Sunday School auditorium Tuesday night.

The picture was produced by Cockfield Brown of Toronto for the Canadian Wheat Board during the past year and was shown for the first time in Toronto last week Last night was the second showing and it now goes to England as a goodwill messenger to show how their Kinsmen in Canada produce the golden grain that goes into the making of British bread.

The motion picture shows clearly each step in the great wheat industry of Canada but the romantic story of David Fife, pioneer Otonabee township farmer and how he first grew the wheat that bears his name forms the basis for the story.

Tale Of Courage

The story of Red Fife wheat is a tale of courage, an epic of pioneer days in Otonabee when the first settlers hacked away at the forest to clear land for farming. David Fife with his wife had been living on a small cleared section for a few years when a friend in Glasgow, Scotland, mailed a small package to them which contained about a quart of wheat. The grain, according to a letter enclosed, had been taken from a ship docked in Glasgow harbor with a cargo of grain from some Galician port.

In the firm the first picture shows the package being opened and inside is a Scot's tam filled with wheat and the letter nestling among the grains. A few scenes are shown of the Fife farm in Otonabee township where descendants of David Fife still live, with Edwin Fife, a grandson and J. J. Duffus, M.P., walking across the farm. The scene then shifts to the Fife Cemetery in Otonabee township where tombstones mark the graves of the Fifes and many of their children.

No more pictures are shown of the Otonabee farm or the Fife family but the reel then goes on to picture the wheat growing sections of the prairie, and modern machinery, cutting and threshing the crop of wheat. Elevators in all provinces to which the grain is taken are shown, along with all of the tasks incidental to the delivery of wheat. Vancouver, Churchill and Montreal with their harbors, elevators and grain laden ships are beautifully filmed.

To Old Country people the picture gives a little tug at the heart strings, for its shows young Englishmen working on the prairies and jumping up eagerly from the noonday meal in the wheatfields when the mail arrived at midday. One husky looking chap receives a newspaper from home, the Manchester Guardian, along with a letter from his sweetheart. Again a rather touching incident is recorded as the farm laborers gather in the bunkhouse following the evening meal, unshaven and weary, and one tall young Scot sings the "Hills Of Home" while his companions accompany him on guitar and accordion.

They Are All Kinsmen

Thus does the picture not only clearly show the wheat industry in every stage but would impress on the minds of an audience in the British Isles the thought that these Canadians are kinsmen, and the products of Canada are worthy of prefrence on the British market.

The photography is excellent and the reel takes forty minutes for a showing. Last night the audience was keenly interested, and their enthusiastic reception of the film augurs well for its success in England.

J. J. Duffus, M.P., who spoke after the film had been shown gave a brief sketch of David Fife and his early life on the Fife homstead. After explaining how the wheat sample had been obtained, he said the grains were planted and watched carefully all during the summer. One day when Fife was busy clearing the land, his wife glanced through the cabin window in time to see most of the stalks of wheat disappearing down the throats of their oxen. She arrived in time to save three heads of the precious grain.

During the long winter the grain was carefully hoarded and planted the next year. Success attended the venture and soon there was sufficient wheat harvested to permit samples being given to farmers in the district. Each year more was produced and gradually the grain spread, first throughout Ontario, then down into the New England States and finally to the West. Its introduction is estimated to have advanced the development of the great Canadian West half a century because it was not until more than twenty-five years later that Marquis wheat, a superior variety was produced.

"This picture should be a source of pride and inspiration to every resident of Peterborough county. In short we should remember how great a contribution this humble Scottish farmer has made to the growth and development of Canada. It was perhaps the greatest single contribution since the first settlers arrived," said Mr. Duffus.

Now Time for Action

Mr. Duffus urged that now was the proper time to make a concerted effort for a suitable memorial to this courageous and far sighted Otonabee township farmer and his good wife. He said no better place could be found to start the movement than at such a gathering, and Roland Denne after asking that Mr. Duffus make his suggestion a motion, seconded it, and a committee will be formed to push the idea.

Dr. J. J. Craig, president of St. Paul's Men's Club called on the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, to extend a welcome to the audience of more than 200. He tendered a special welcome to members of the Fife family, many of whom were in attendance, to members of the city and county councils, and mentioned H. B. Cowan, J. J. Duffus M.P., and Roland Denne.

It was peculiarly appropriate to have Rev. Dr. Barr tender the welcome. He is a Scot and explained that he was a native of Fife Scotland. Dr. J. J. Craig, the chairman, is a native of Edmonton, Alberta, and thoroughly familiar with the growing of wheat. During the evening the Scottish theme was carried further when Jack Smith and Bob Hendry, top notch entertainers, sang the "Crooked Baubeen" and other songs.

H. B. Cowan introduced H. H. Webb of Toronto to the audience. Mr. Webb directed the production of the picture He explained to the gathering that Peterborough was his home town, and that at one time his father had been minister at Murray Street Baptist church. Edwin Fife, grandson of the late David Fife, was introduced and took a bow before the audience.

Alderman James Dutton was called on by Dr. Craig to express the appreciation of the audience to Mr. Webb and the operator of the motion picture machine, Jack Chisholm. Alderman Dutton described the film as a creditable piece of work and he said the story of Red Fife wheat was perhaps one of the most romantic tales he had ever heard. Dr. Craig in passing along the vote of thanks added that everyone present stay and enjoy a lunch which was served by the men.

Chief Would Toss Daughter Off Reserve

MONTREAL, Dec. 7 (CP)—The paleface must go from the Caughnawaga Indian Reservation, Chief Joe Delisle says, and he makes no exception of his own daughter who married a white man.

He denounced "trespassers" on the reserve at a tribesmen's council and last night the chief told how his demand for a purge would stretch into his own family. "Even my daughter must go," he said to the assembled braves.

Re-opening a fight that has been going on intermittently since 1879, Chief Delisle demanded none but Caughnawagas should live on the reservation across the St. Lawrence River from here. To Jude Thibault, Indian department inspector at the meeting, he addressed a request that the department of Indian affairs authorize banishment of 35 persons who he said were not legitimate members of the tribe.

The chief cited the Indian act and treaties dating back to the time of the French occupation to make good his contention none but tribal members should be allowed on the reservation.

Banishment of the trespassers—26 whites and nine Indians from other tribes—would aid somewhat in alleviating what he termed distress and squalor among the Indian, he claimed.

Have the Power.

The Indians had the right to keep all but their own tribesmen off the reservation, he said. "We have the power by law to send the Indian agent away. He is not an Indian, he has no right to live here. We threw the agent out once before and we can do it again."

Tribal fires were smokeless in many cases because of lack of wood, he continued. Relief payments were low and there was much suffering among the 300 members of the tribe.

Silencing the braves with a shout when they applauded and stamped their feet in encouragement, Chief Delisle said: "This is not a show. All we want is justce. We are not politicians and we do not want to have to play politics. All who are not members of the band must be ejected from the reservation."'

"Why," he continued, "we even have negroes and Chinamen here." He added some persons in the hospital on the reservation were not Indians.

Seymour's Deputy Is Acting Reeve

TORONTO, Dec. 7. — (CP).—Heavy, wet snow, driven by a southeasterly wind, fell on Toronto this morning. Though the big flakes melted as they hit the pavements, the snowfall appeared likely to continue throughout the day. Temperatures at 8.30 a.m. were 35 above zero.

The snowfall was expected to hamper training practices of the Winnipeg Bombers, the west's entry in Saturday's Canadian football final, at Oakville, 15 miles west of Toronto, though the weather bureau declined to forecast the snow would continue throughout the day. Toronto Argonauts, Eastern Canadian finalists, also are expected to have a muddy field for to-day's workout.

The weather forecast for to-day and to-morrow is "occasional rain or part snow." The meteoroligical service declined to predict probable weather for Saturday's big game.

Britain May Widen National Register

LONDON, Dec. 7—(CP).—Possible extension of the Government's voluntary national register to provide for the registration of property useful for national defence was indicated in the House of Commons at the close of last night's debate.

Sir John Anderson, Lord Privy Seal, who spoke for the Government as sponsor of the project, made the following statement immediately before adjournment of the debate until to-day:

"As minister for civilian defence, I conceive that I have the responsibility laid upon me which extends to considering how the financial and economic structure of the country can be braced, having regard to the narrowed margins of taxable capacity to meet the shock of a major war. . . .

"In interpreting civilian defence in its wider sense, that important problem has been little explored. When examination of the problem has gone rather further than it has, this question of the registration of property, small and large, will assume a most different aspect in the eyes of the Opposition than that which it has presented up to the present."

Sir John's statement, followed warning by Clement Attlee, Labor leader, that the country would not accept mobilization of manpower without a corresponding mabilization of wealth.

Leave Grand Jury At 13 Men Or Abolish It Entirely Is Advice Of Judge O'Connor

Judge However Voices Approval Of System As It Is At Present

"The suggestion made recently by the Peterborough County council seeking to have the size of grand juries reduced from 13 to 7 members may have merit but I feel the time honored system which has not only been used in Canada but the countries of Great Britain should be retained. Either leave the grand jury at 13 members or abolish it altogether". In these words Judge L. V. O'Connor of Cobourg gave his opinion of the recent resolution, as he addressed the grand jury at the Court House Tuesday afternoon as the December Sittings of the County Court got underway.

Judge O'Connor all through his address to the grand jury voiced approval of the existing jury system. He pointed out however that the feeling, approving of abolition of grand juries, seems to be growing, and he added it remained to be seen what legislation if any will be passed.

Two Criminal Charges.

There are two criminal charges listed which go before the Grand jury for consideration. One is a charge of drunk driving against Michael Murray of this city and the charge arises out of an automobile accident last summer when it is alleged a car driven by Murray collided with another auto owned and driven by Robert Hewett. The other charge is against Pierce Nicholson also of this city and concerns a serious offence involving his own daughter. Fred J. Overend was selected by the Grand Jury as their foreman and the judge's address to the jury was as follows:

"Twice in every year jurors are called together in the County Court and in the Supreme Court sittings to deal with, consider and pass upon infractions of the law. The jury system sprung up from the ages, and its actual origin is shrouded in mystery. However the jury system as we know it today had its beginning with the signing of the Magna Carta. In the time of Henry II, they had a system of trial which was far from being uniform. It arose out of the confusion of the times and was a system engineered by the King and the Lords. The rights of the common people were not given the consideration they receive today.

"This system of trial was peculiar. One style was that of trial by battle, that is the two principals would decide to fight. Then there was trial by ordeal, when the guilty party would jump into a river and if he was able to swim ashore he was guilty of the offence.

"In the time of King John on June 15, 1215 the Barons with a show of force demanded a charter setting forth the people's rights. King John acquiesced, and the Magna Carta was signed."

"This charter is one of the greatest articles of civil liberty ever framed. Because of it we enjoy personal and civil liberty today. King George VI and all the judges throughout the British countries feel that one's personal liberty is his most prized possession.

"In the Magna Carta there is a clause dealing with juries. This was the real establishment of the jury system whereby every man charged with a serious offence has the right to be tried by a jury of his peers."

How Jurors Selected.

Judge O'Connor explained how the grand jurors are selected under the Juror's Act. "You have been chosen because the heads of the municipality have confidence in you," he said.

"Your primary duty is to consider the criminal charges that may be presented. You are not trying the cases, merely reviewing the evidence presented by the Crown and decide if there is sufficient evidence to put a man on his trial."

"There has been a great deal of talk and criticism against retaining grand juries. I have always felt that the jury system as we have it should be retained. A man's liberty is a precious thing."

"Much might be said against the jury system. Some say it is expensive and are urging the cutting down of expenses all along the line but particularly in the administration of justice. They say we can get along very nicely without grand juries. Other critics point out that under the existing system we have magistrates who know their law, fair minded crown attorneys who have the interest of the accused person at heart, and also that a prisoner has the option to be tried by judge and jury or judge alone. This feeling of abolishing the grand juries seems to be growing and it remains to be seen if there will be any legislation passed."

"It is customary for the grand jury to inspect the county buildings. I might point out that this has been done twice already this year. If you feel the other grand juries have done a thorough job you may eliminate this part. You may make your own choice."

Pigeonhole Presentments.

"In my county any recommendations made to the county council by grand juries receive no attention. The presentments are pigeon holed and nothing is done. Committees are appointed to look after repairs and equipment and these buildings are inspected by government inspectors. You may spend money inspecting these buildings and the expenditure would not be justified."

He expressed pleasure at the fact there were only two criminal cases on the list.

The two civil actions listed for jury trial were settled by agreement. One was McManus versus Stevens and the other Whittington versus Lampman. Other non jury civil actions will be tried on dates to be set by the Judge.

The personnel of the grand jury is as follows: John Coons, Henry Wannamaker, Henry Weir, James Savigny, Bruce Gillespie, Chester Hamilton, George Humphries, Russell Little, D. G. H. Melton, Ray Moore, Fred Overend, Norman Patterson.

Berlin Press Brands Carol's Friend Lupescu 'Ugly Jew'

Berlin, Dec. 7 (AP).

PROPAGANDA Minister Joseph Goebbels' newspaper Der Angriff pursued its anti-Jewish campaign today by publishing a photograph of Magda Lupescu, close friend of King Carol of Rumania, only 13 days after the king was Chancellor Hitler's honored guest.

A front page picture of Mme. Lupescu and her father was captioned "Ugly Jews." The remainder of the newspaper's first page was devoted to "the story of a king and his Jewish lady."

As related by chief editor Kurt Kraenzlein the story was a modernized, Nazified version of the Bible book Esther. At its conclusion Kraenzlein averred "to anybody who can read between the lines, the book of Esther reads like an actual occurrence of our time." No modern name was mentioned however.

Bethany Auxiliary Elects Officers

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, Dec. 7.—The Women's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Anglican church held its meeting on Thursday afternoon at the rectory. Sixteen members and one guest were present.

Rev. A. R. Holden conducted the opening exercises. Mrs. A. H. Monk tendered her resignation as secretary which was accepted with regret.

The election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: President, Mrs. A. R. Holden; treasurer, Miss W. Nesbitt; secretary, Mrs. Roy James.

Committees for the different sections of the bazaar were named: Fancy work, Mrs. C. Reynolds and Mrs. Herbert Kennedy; staple goods, Mrs. Cairns and Mrs. Foster; Mrs. Porteous will look after purchasing of wool for knitted goods.

The sum of $50 was voted to wardens for immediate demands.

Mrs. McCartney invited the ladies to meet at her home for the January session. At the close of the meeting the hostess with assistants served tea..

Chinese Fliers Bomb Japs At Nanking

SHANGHAI, Dec. 7—(AP).—The Japanese Army spokesman said today extensive air raids against Chinese troop concentrations south of Lake Tungting, Huan Province, had shattered General Chiang Kai-Shek's attempt to organize a counter-offensive against the Yochow and Pinkiang sectors.

The spokesman reported the Chinese were digging in around Pinkiang in an effort to halt the Japanese drive.

Foreigners at Nanking confirmed reports a squadron of Chinese planes bombed Japanese military concentrations at the former Chinese capital Dec. 3 and 4. The amount of damage was unknown. This marked the first Chinese air raid against Japanese positions in many weeks.

A Domei (Japanese News Agency) dispatch from Hankow said Chi Kuo-Chen, chairman of the Japanese-sponsored local government, and his wife had escaped death at the hands of an assailant last night.

The assailant, taking advantage of the blackout caused by a stoppage of electricity, attacked the couple as they slept, stabbing both of them.

OBITUARY

MRS. ELIZABETH A. MONCRIEF.

The death of Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Moncrief occurred at her residence, 639 Charlotte street on Tuesday. She was in her 69th year and had been ill for a considerable length of time.

She had lived all her life in Peterborough county, having been born in Zion, Otonabee township, daughter of the late Adam Rutherford and Isabella Buttery. She was a member of Trinity United church.

Surviving are two sons, G. Norman Moncrief of North Monaghan and S. Earl Moncrief, Peterborough; one daughter, Mrs. Hazel Beatty, at home; also one brother, Sidney A. Rutherford of Zion.

The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late residence, Rev. G. S. Easton of Trinity United church, officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. HENRY BOOTHBY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

COE HILL, Dec. 7.—The people of Coe Hill and district regret the passing of one of their pioneers in the person of Mrs. Henry Boothby, lately of Trenton, who died last Thursday at the age of 80 years.

Mrs. Boothby, a former resident of Coe Hill, was born in the town of Darleston, in England, and was predeceased by her husband some years ago. Mrs. Boothby was an Anglican and took great interest in the Sunday School and church services when able to attend.

She leaves to mourn her loss four daughters and two sons: Mrs. C. Weatherell, of Trenton; Misses Anne, Violet and Myrtle of Cleveland, Ohio; Herbert of Brockville and Henry of Meadow Lake, Sask.; also six grandchildren, Reg Harrison, Marion, Alice and Jack Weatherell and Margaret and Norman Boothby. Other relatives present at the funeral were, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hanthorn, Mrs. James Wilson and son Frank, Mrs. Lillian Leveridge, Mrs. Gerald Frannce, Mr. Bert Walsh, Mr. Jack Walsh.

Floral tributes were many and beautiful.. The pallbearers were: Messrs. Albert Tiny, David Moore, William Hanthorn, Charles Muffitt, Thomas Hanthorn, W. N. Gilroy.

The cortege left the funeral home of George H. Cobley, Trenton, on Saturday at 10.30 a.m. and proceeded to the Coe Hill Anglican church, where the funeral service was conducted by Rev. A. Reeding, of Bannockburn at 2 p.m. and thence to the Anglican cemetery, where the remains were laid in the family plot.

Her Last Trip

SOUTHAMPTON, Dec. 7—(CP-Havas). — The 52,101-ton liner Berengaria, once the largest ship in the world, left Southampton Docks today for Jarrow, where it will be broken up.

The ship was bought by Sir John Javis, at a cost of £100,000 ($469,750), in order that the scrapping work might provide employment for men in the depressed area around Jarrow. The vessel has been out of service for about a year.

Nothing Sinister In War Register

LONDON, Dec. 7—(CP Cable). — Compulsory national registration is not necessary to fill gaps in the active and passive defence services of the United Kingdom, Sir John Anderson, Lord Privy Seal, told the House of Commons to-day.

He outlined the government's plan for a voluntary register, which could be changed suddenly to a nationwide compulsory register in wartime, or in anticipation of war. At the same time the Government plans an early drive to fill up the defence forces.

"There is in the register no sinister purpose, no ulterior motive," Sir John declared. "There is nothing to enable some future government to do something prejudicial to the interests of the community. I see no posibility of getting a united nation behind the compulsory system in peacetime, and there is no necessity for one."

Havelock Orders Its Main Street Decorated For Christmas

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Dec. 7—The Havelock municipal council met on Monday evening in the council chamber with Reeve Ernest Seeney presiding, and Councillors Squire, Chiles, Forde and Wilde present.

In the correspondence a letter was received from Mr. Sears of the provincial highway department, referring to the matter of the 40 per cent subsidy to complete the sidewalk at the east end of No. 7 highway in Havelock. This matter was left over for the January meeting.

A deputation from the Havelock Albion Club, headed by the president, Harry Ferguson, asked to secure the town hall for the Christmas dance, an annual club event for the past eight years. This year, unfortunately, the municipal nomination meeting, which by statute falls on the last Monday in December, comes on December 26th, the same evening as the club wished to engage the hall. The Reeve and Councillors expressed their desire to co-operate with the Albions and agreed to vacate the upper part of the hall at 8.30 p.m., at the conclusion of the nominations, and resume to the council chamber for the usual nominees' speeches. Wm. Akins, caretaker of the hall, promised that with the aid of a few club members, the hall would be in readiness for the dance by 9 o'clock, the usual period for the dance to commence.

The council decided to supply a cook again this year at Young's wood camp, at $40 per month, and engaged Henry Whitney for the job.

The reeve was authorized to purchase five cords of wood for use in the town hall, similar to that received before this year.

Councillor Wilde was placed in charge of the erection of the Christmas tree and to have same placed on the usual main corner and decorated with colored lights.

William Griffith addressed the council, suggesting that he would like to have his property, now in the village of Havelock, transferred into Belmont township, but no action was taken.

On motion of Councillors Chiles and Forde the relief officer's account and report were received and ordered paid: H. Hoard, $8.00; medical services and supplies 35 cents.

On motion of councillors Wilde and Chiles the following accounts were paid: W. J. Akins, salary and phone, $53.59; Bank of Toronto, hydro town hall, $15.47; R. Sanderson, wood for hall, $14.25; J. A. C. Allan, street and hall material, $19.54; village treasurer, pay sheet No. 117, $8.88; H. B. Puffer, postage and phone, $6.21; D. F. Miller, fees at judge's hearing, re Dr. Holdcroft, $25.00; County of Peterborough, grading, $2.50; Havelock Hydro commission, arrears left at hotel, $19.40.

Labor Charge Denied

OTTAWA.—Commissioner S. T. Wood of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police today denied that R.C.M.P. officers were "spying" in Canadian labor unions, as charged by R. B. Russell of Winnipeg at the Canadian Federation of Labor convention in Montreal yesterday.

Another Income Tax

TORONTO.—Toronto Board of Control today approved a proposal to ask the Ontario Government for permission to apply a civic tax to corporation incomes. Board members said they felt the tax should be province-wide. If the tax is applied, members said, it will mean about $3,000,000 additional yearly revenue for the city.

Home Instruction By Teachers For Invalid Children Is Being Considered By Board

Home education for children of public school age who are unable because of their physical condition to attend school may eventuate in Peterborough as the result of the decision of the Board of Education at its regular meeting Tuesday night to have the supervision committee investigate the possibilities of such a policy.

The matter was called to the attention of the Board by Inspector K. S. Wightman who said that he knew of two cases in which children were unable to attend school because of physical disabilities and who could be helped by teaching at home. He suggested that the Board might consider it advisable to have one of the supply teachers give some instruction to such children.

Mrs. W. R. Morris pointed out that home education in cases of that kind was furnished in Toronto. She moved that the supervision committee be instructed to investigate the matter and the motion was seconded by D. G. H. Melton and carried unanimously.

H. G. Walker, chairman of the property committee informed the board that the older portion of the Collegiate was badly in need of redecorating and he recommended that a considerable amount of this work should be done at once. It would provide employment for a number of men for some five weeks, he said, and could be done advantageously at the present time.

On motion of John R. Marshall the property committee was instructed to advertise for tenders for this work and to proceed with it as soon as possible.

Better Ventilation.

At the suggestion of Mr. Melton the property committee will also investigate the matter of better ventilation for the Collegiate auditorium. Mr. Melton declared the conditions required attention not only for the comfort of the pupils but for the health of the public which used the auditorium frequently.

A report was read from Inspector Wightman of a survey of dental work at the Central School showing 483 pupils out of 511 on the roll had been inspected and only 96 were found with perfect teeth. There had been 179 applications for free dental work and 142 of the requests had been granted.

Mr. Melton for the supervision committee paid a tribute to Inspector Wightman for his report and also for the saving of from $800 to $1,000 in the purchase of school supplies.

Dr. J. C. Green, school dentist, gave a report on dental work at the King George and Queen Mary schools which showed 68 out of 348 pupils at the former school and 107 out of 419 at the latter with perfect teeth. The report said that 80.2 per cent of the King George school pupils and 74.5 per cent of those at the Queen Mary school, required dental treatment.

The following report of attendance was given:

GLASGOW, Dec. 7 (CP Cable)—Although playing only 10 men throughout the second half, Scotland defeated Hungary 3-1 in an international match played before 20,000 spectators at Ibrox Park today. The Scots dominated play and led 3-0 at halftime.

An injured arm kept A. Black, heart of Midlothian forward, out of the game after the interval, but the home team proved the better eleven despite the handicap.

Two True Bills Are Returned Criminal Cases

True bills were returned in both criminal cases slated for hearing before Judge L. V. O'Connor in the Court Court and General Sessions of the Peace this morning.

The presentment was made at ten o'clock, when court resumed, by Fred J. Overend, foreman of the Grand Jury. The jury waived inspection of county buildings because this work had already been done twice this year.

They concurred unanimously in the opinion of His Honor Judge O'Connor, that the jury system be retained, and set forth their approval in the presentment.

"If all jupries would carry out their duties as you have done, no exception could be taken to them," said Judge O'Connor.

"I am happy to see that you concur with me, in that grand juries should be retained in our system. We should hesitate to get away from a system which has stood so long in the British Empire."

Murray Case First.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., asked that the case of Michael Murray, charged with driving a car while in an intoxicated condition, be taken first. The other case is that of Pierce Nicholson, who is charged with a serious offence involving his daughter.

Robert Hewett was the first witness. He explained that shortly after 12.30 on the night of June 26 last, he had been driving north on the Lakefield road. Miss Louise Hall was seated next to him in the front seat of his car, an open roadster, and J. D. Hall, his brother-in-law, was also in the front seat. After making the turn just south of the filtration plant, his car was struck by a southbound car driven by Michael Murray. The Murray car swerved from the right side of the road to strike the northbound car. Murray's car then turned upside down on the middle of the road, Hewett said. His car went into the ditch on the opposite side of the road to which he had been driving.

He said that with the assistance of other motorists, Mr. Hall and a boy named O'Toole, it was possible to lift the car and pull Murray out from under it. The car was a roadster. Hewett said he and Provincial Traffic Officer Lloyd McClure carried Murray to McClure's car and had him taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

He said he had to hold the accused because he was squirming and complained of pain in the back. J. D. Hall's evidence was substantially the same as Hewett's. Miss Hall was not called as a witness. Joseph and Gerard O'Toole, two brothers, who had been gathering dew worms on the grass at the filtration also testified, for the Crown.

Dr. Robert Nott told of examining Murray and finding absolutely no signs of external injury. He said Murray smelled quite strongly of liquor, his eyes were glazed, he babbled rather than talked and was quite belligerent. He explained that in his opinion Murray was not injured, but was under the influence of liquor.

G. N. Gordon, K.C., counsel for Murray, cross-examined Dr. Nott at length, and at one point of the proceedings Judge O'Connor intervened and allowed Dr. Nott to continue his evidence on why he attended Murray, when Mr. Gordon was intimating that it had been done merely for the benefit of Robert Hewett, the other car driver.

The witness said he had been called because the man was supposed to be injured. He knew nothing of the circumstances at the time, nor who the principals were in the affair, nor whether there would be any court action.

Lloyd McClure was the last witness for the Crown. He admitted that Murray had already been fined on a charge of reckless driving arising out of the same accident. His testimony did not vary greatly from that given by Mr. Hewett except that he said Hewett had been forced to scuffle with Murray because the latter wanted to fight and Hewett had subdued him merely by holding him.

The jury consists of Edward Murduff, David Lehman, Max Weir, Alfred Johnston, Roland Hunter, Albert Heather, Price Adamson, Gordon Girven, Stanley Walker, Allan Edwards, Sam Burke, and Kenneth Nurse.

Five Injured As Fire Truck Crashes Tram

Five persons were injured when a speeding fire truck collided with a street car in front of the City Hall in Hamilton, Ont. Occupants of the street car were trapped for a short time when the front door of the car became jammed as a result of the impact. A near panic was averted when a rear exit was opened. Four firemen were given hospital attention and a woman passenger of the street car received multiple bruises and lacerations. Other passengers aboard the car received a severe shaking up and slight injuries.

Hudson Grocery Store Robbed

The grocery of Gordon Hudson at Lock and Lansdowne streets was broken into during Monday night by thieves who got way with $50 worth of cigarettes and tobacco.

Entrance to the place was gained by forcing a cellar window and after obtaining their loot the thieves left by way of the front door. The open door was noticed by a passerby who telephoned Mr. Hudson arly Monday evening. He went to the store and locked the door, without discovering at that time that there had been a robbery. Later a police patrol found the open cellar window and the loss of the tobacco was noticed.

Presbyterial Head Addresses Y.P.S.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 7.—Miss Marion Armstrong of Peterborough, was the guest speaker before members of St. Andrew's Young People's Society here on Monday. Talking on her recent trip to Europe Miss Armstrong described the many delightful and historic places she had visited in both England and Scotland. Mrs. P. H. MacMillan presided for the opening of the meeting and extended a welcome to the speaker and to the large number of guests attending the meeting. Other numbers on the program included a vocal solo by Frances Hendy; instrumental duet by Wilsie Phillips and Jack Cassan; vocal trio, Josephine and Doris Locke and Susan Atkinson; piano solo, Mrs. M. McFarlane. Mrs. M. McFarlane and Miss Violet Patrick moved a vote of thanks to the speaker. At the conclusion of the program lunch was served.

Visit From Norham.

Norham Y.P.U. were guests of St. John's Young People's Union at a social evening. Nearly eighty members of the two organizations were welcomed by the president, Miss Ruth Palliser and both Rev. Mr. Plant of Norham and Rev. Harold B. Neal addressed the young people briefly. Miss Leatha Davidson received the prize for the lucky number.

Vera Plant contributed a vocal solo and Mrs. L. Evans offered one of the amusing readings for which she is noted. Following a period of games lunch was served and meeting closed with Auld Lang Syne.

Charles Shaw Is Quitting Board

The distinction of making the first definite announcement in regard to the local municipal elections goes to Charles Shaw.

At Tuesday's meeting of the Board of Education a letter was read from Mr. Shaw notifying his colleagues that he did not intend to stand as a candidate at the coming election. His communication said that he had enjoyed the work and appreciated the association with his fellow members but on account of his increasing absences from town he had decided that he should retire.

On motion of D. G. H. Melton and Dr. A. Moir, the letter was received with regret by the Board.

A COT PLEASE

Doomed to bed for weeks, maybe months, with a dreaded bone disease, a little girl of 11 lies upstairs alone all day. She has been out of school two months now and the use of a day bed which the parents with 12 of a family can't afford, would let her lie down stairs where she could have more attention, perhaps even take up some of her school lessons. If anyone would donate a cot phone 3306.

The suggestions arising from the discussion give assurance that in the future a Santa Claus parade will be a Peterborough institution which each year will attract more and more people to this Christmas city.

INQUIRY FROM NEW YORK

The fame of a Peterborough dog has travelled far and wide it would appear from a story being told by James Dutton, Jr., of Stock Bread Company. Jim is the owner of a valuable Irish setter. Jim's latest victory was won at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto—a second prize. This week Jim received a telephone call from one Rudolph Strass in New York city, who wanted to buy a pup from the prize dog. Unfortunately for the caller Dutton had disposed of his pedigreed puppies to a Toronto man who also came to get in touch with him through the Winter Fair.

UNABLE TO HEAT ROOMS.

A complaint from the city clerk in his capacity as returning officer in the municipal elections, that some of the rooms used in South Central school last New Year's Day as polling booths were cold was before the Board of Education at Tuesday night's meeting. H. G. Walker, chairman of the property committee informed his colleagues that only those rooms in the old South Central that were used by the Board were heated and that if the city wished to use any of the other rooms for election purposes, the heating equipment of the building was such that it would be impossible to heat them. The chairman will discuss the matter with the city clerk.

TWO CARS AND WAGON TANGLE

Two automobiles and a horse-drawn bread wagon were involved in a traffic accident on Dublin street on Tuesday evening in which no one was injured but all three vehicles were badly damaged. George E. Whipp, 205 Park Hill Road, was driving his car east on Dublin street between George and Division streets when it collided with a west-bound Purity Bread vagon in care of Clifford Clark, 623 Downie street, which was just passing a parked car belonging to A. W. Wray, 708 Elcombe Crescent. The left front wheel and shafts of the wagon were broken by the impact with Whipp's car which afterward came into collision with the parked vehicle which had its left rear door, fender and running board damaged. Whipp's vehicle damaged its right front fender and an axle in the two crashes.

Man Charged With Theft Of Lead In Court Is Later Found To Have Been Purchaser

A theft charge against Wilfred Schweier concerning a quantity of scrap lead soon petered out in police court this morning, when G. Smits of Toronto, the man from which the lead was allegedly stolen, stated in his evidence that he had sold the stuff to the accused.

Smits is installing stained glass windows in St. James' Church, and had a quantity of scrap lead which he wished to dispose of. He said that Schweier came to him and wanted to buy the lead and promised to pay two cents a pound. He had given a fictitious name and a false address and did not come back to pay for the lead.

"You can sue him for the amount in the Division Court," commented Magistrate Gee after the Toronto man had told of the sale, and Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr had intimated he would offer no more evidence.

It was revealed that the accused had sold the lead at two cents a pound, the price which he had promised to pay Smits.

Magistrate Gee told him that he should pay the complainant.

Parish Players Present Play At St. John's

"The only way to behave to a woman is to make love to her if she is pretty, and to someone else if she is plain," was one of the rain-pure epigrams of Oscar Wilde got off by the Parish Players of St. John's Anglican Young People's Association at the opening night of "The Importance of Being Earnest," last night.

"To lose one parent seems to be unfortunate, but to lose both seems to me to be sheer carelessness," was another. Then there was the remark of the play's rector: "—I would hang upon her lips," with the circumspect aside, "I spoke metaphorically." "He hasn't written a single book so you can imagine how much he knows," was another. And then there was "We live in an age of idealism—it is constantly being mentioned in the better monthly magazines."

"Land gives one a position and prevents him from keeping it up," was another, and there were a hundred besides, like "Whatever influence I had over mama vanished when I reached the age of three." There was the young man's remark to the butler: "You are a perfect pessimist," and the answer, "I do my best to give satisfaction, sir."

Reporters and others who are forced to attend one amateur play after another sometimes almost dread the approach of winter's harsh beauty because of those accompanying series of amateur performances. It was with very different feelings to these that this reporter went to see "The Importance of Being Earnest." Some days previously he had seen notice of the play and had rubbed his eyes in amazement. "It's plagiarism," he remarked to himself. Then he found the name of the author, Oscar Wilde, included in the advertisement and gave up in frank wonder, went to the city editor and asked to be allowed to "cover" the performance—an act almost of sacrilege in a newspaper office.

For he determined he should see for himself what group, and particularly what church group, should have the supreme audacity to attempt a play that won for its author a place among the first-rate comedy writers in the English language. He went to the play determined to overlook all its faults because he had only admiration for a group that could so fa rescape the usual "Over the Hill" type of melodrama as to launch into great comedy.

And he found that he needed to overlook nothing except the comparatively small audience. Perhaps some stayed away because they did not believe any church group could do justice to Wilde. But perhaps more stayed away because the thought of any church amateurs performing an unknown play called "The Importance of Being Earnest" was not attractive. Whatever the reason, many a person missed a chance for hilarious, spontaneous laughter, for the entire cast played well.

Undoubtedly one person excelled all others, and she was Mrs. W. P. Robertson as Lady Bracknell, who got off every sparkling epigram with a brittleness that snapped. You hung on her words, your mouth shaped for glorious, appreciative laughter, for her very tones told you that this was going to be wry, very wry. She was as accomplished, as genuine as an actress who had studied her lines through a theusand performances.

But sometimes you will find a play in which one actor or actress must have the ability to carry an entire cast. Such feat was not necessary here, for although some of the characters were noticeably inexperienced, the remarkable part of the play was that all seemed to have learned that essential "brittleness" of Wilde, all seemed to have taken to their parts with abandon, with sheer enjoyment. All of which reflected great credit upon the play's director, whose name was not mentioned on the program.

The complete enjoyment and appreciation shown by last night's audience augurs well for the success of tonight's showing, last to be given.

Cast of the play included Len Phillips, Griffin Young, Fred Hooper, Mrs. W. P. Robertson, Mrs. Ena Morley, Miss Florence Hutchinson, Miss Aileen Sisson, Lorne Galley and Gordon Clegg.

Dr. Joseph Holdcroft Wins His Appeal

The Appeal Court has granted an appeal made Dr. Joseph Holdcroft, medical officer of health in Havelock against the order of His Honor Judge Smoke, judge of the county court, made on Nov. 16, 1938, dismissing the appellant's motion to consider his salary as medical health officer of health as not having been made within the proper time. The appeal of Dr. Holdcroft, who was represented by W. J. Arthur Fair, was allowed with costs.

Dr. Holdcroft had appealed to the county judge to secure an increase in his salary and his motion was dismissed by Judge Smoke on the ground that it had not been made within the proper time. The appeal court has now reversed that judgment.

35-Cent Ride Costs Woman $99 In $100 Bill Slip

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)

SOMEWHERE in New York there is a woman who has $99 less than she thinks she has—and the police are looking for her with an idea of handing over the cash. A cab driver did it, with an unintentional short-changing act. The woman handed him a bill in payment of a 35 cent fare and he gave her 65 cents change. It was only after she had disappeared into a department store that he discovered she had given him a $100 bill. Then the driver, Philip Hilton, Negro, sped for the nearest police station.

New Firm Plans Open Plant In Campbellford

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 7. — Terms of the contract between the town and the Trent Dehydrated Products Limited were revealed at a special meeting of the Town Council held here on Tuesday night when a by-law validating a fixed assessment for the company was given its second reading and will be passed providing the ratepayers give their approval when the question appears on their ballots on January 2.

The agreement between the company which has already made application to become incorporated, and the town, was read by Councillor N. A. McColl, and the terms are as follows: (1) The corporation grants, subject to the approval of the ratepayers, a fixed assessment of $1,000 for a period of ten years; (2) the company will during four months of the year dehydrate alfalfa and during eight months treat sun-dried alfalfa and other associated products (dehydrated carrots, soya beans, etc., were mentioned); (3) the company will erect a plant and buildings which will not cost less than $8,000; and (4) agrees to employ a minimum of twenty-four persons during four months of the year and seven during eight months; (5) the corporation agrees to give a deed in fee simple to the company to Lot 26, Block C, Centre Street, for the sum of $100.

Mr. McColl stated the company would probably purchase up to $20,000 worth of material from the farmers of this district. He also asserted that all employees would be local residents except the plant manager and a chemist.

The town foreman will receive $25 for the use of his truck during the summer it was decided on the recommendation of the chairman of the Road and Bridge Committee. "Mr. Peake has saved the town more than that amount by the use of his truck," stated Councillor MacMillan.

Unable To Decide How To Plead

"I don't know how to plead," said L. A. Nixon of Toronto when charged in police court before Magistrate E. A. Gee this morning with having been drunk in the American Hotel last Saturday.

"I was upset and nervous that day," he continued.

"Then you're pleading not guilty," said the Magistrate.

"No, I am not," replied the accused. "I simply don't know whether I was drunk or not."

"We had better make it 'not guilty' and hear the evidence, then," commented the Magistrate.

Officer Archie Menzies and Inspector James F. Reid testified that when they arrested Nixon on a bench warrant on another charge last Saturday he was very drunk.

"I don't think the officers would come in here and lie," was the only comment Nixon made. "I don't recollect the circumstances myself so perhaps I was drunk."

"I will have to find you so on the evidence," remarked Magistrate Gee.

Judgment was to have been given today in another charge against Nixon of having beaten a $12.15 board bill at the Hotel Champlain but at the request of Chief Constable Newhall the accused was remanded in both cases until next Tuesday. "A few days on the hill will do him good," he commented.

"My information is," said F. D. Kerr, K.C., acting Crown Attorney, "that this man has been a good citizen but the drink habit has got the best of him."

Heavy Holdings Of Butter Keep Price Down

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 7.—Second grade cheese and its likely causes were the chief subjects for discussion here at the annual meeting of patrons and officials of the Ormonde Dairy. George Gillespie, of Peterborough, and W. J. Moore, government dairy inspector of Peterborough, were speakers of the afternoon.

Mr. Gillespie told the gathering that this section had held up well in quality and that better milk had been received compared to last year. "I am hopeful this coming year that the farmers, who can, will patronize cheese factories. It is the only way you can hope to carry on a factory," he declared.

Many apparently trivial things not known to the patron are believed responsible for lower grade cheese, he believes. The use of galvanized pails, for instance, in place of tin for conveying milk was condemned by the speaker. He pointed out that great care should be exercised in straining and cooling milk and of the first necessity is the using of clean utensils. "The organization has been very critical this past two years, and cheese factories themselves are going to be more strictly supervised," he declared. Mr. Gillespie said he did not think there was any better factory than the local one, and strongly complimented R. M. Montgomery, cheesemaker, for the results he had obtained.

Keep Price Down.

Mr. Moore said there were eleven million pounds of surplus butter in the Dominion today which cannot be disposed of for the present, and as a result butter prices are down. If patrons had continued to send milk to the cheese factories the surplus would not have been so large, he stated. First-class cheese has a ready market in England at the present, but butter has not and must be gradually absorbed. "I can't see why a man within reach of a cheese factory will send to a creamery and accept less money."

There are about five per cent. of patrons in this district who are not taking good care of their milk, he claimed. Three or four careless patrons to the same factory would result in second-grade and hence the majority of the patrons to the same factory are penalized for the carelessness of a few. Cheesemakers are not grading milk right, but under new regulations they are going to be checked much closer, he concluded.

Durham Boys Won In Grain Contest

Two Durham County boys won the Grain Club competition over competitors from all parts of the province at the Provincial Winter Fair at Guelph recently, by scoring the amazing total of 1,144 out of a possible of 1,200 points.

The boys were George Tufford of Port Hope, R.R. No. 3, and Alfred Allin of Bowmanville. The Durham Junior Club team of Glen Hancock and Marlow Hancock, brothers from Orono, was second, just four points behind the senior team. Halton County was third, and Muskoka and Parry Sound stood tied for fourth position. In the individual standing George Tufford was first, Glen Hancock was tied for second with Jack Van Goozen of Halton County, Alfred Allin was fourth, and Marlow Hancock was fifth.

Gives Shower

Mrs. W. Beggs of Driscoll Terrace entertained at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Thelma Bell, of Lakehurst, a bride-elect of this month. The evening was spent pleasantly in playing cards and a contest. Prizes for high scores at cards were won by Miss Swift, Mrs. N. Moffatt and Mrs. B. Hemphill. The contest was won by the guest of honor. After the games the highlight of the evening took place when a dainty pink and white basket full of beautiful gifts was presented to the bride-elect by the hostess, who helped her to unwrap the parcels and to read the accompanying cards with verses of good wishes.

About eighteen guests were present, and many more, who were unavoidably absent, sent gifts. Miss Bell very appropriately thanked her friends for their kindness. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Beggs, assisted by her mother, Mrs. G. Nimmons, and Mrs. W. Wiltshire.

"Older" Young Adults Are Entertained

A social meeting of the older young adults of St. Andrew's Church congregation, composed chiefly of younger married couples, was held in the school room on Tuesday evening.

Rev. G. J. Kelly of Lakefield led in a series of games, with Mrs. Kelly at the piano. In a brief talk during an interlude, Rev. Mr. Kelly spoke on recreation and games, and showed that a great change has come over the church in its attitude toward the people's amusements. He quoted from the minutes of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States one hundred years ago to show that at that time games of all kinds were forbidden. In recent times that same Conference wisely recognized the social and even religious value of games.

"One may sit beside a person in church for many years and not know anything about him," he said. "We get to know people when we play with them. Games are not to be regarded as strenuous contests, but rather as a means of bringing amusement and joy to burdened people. We should laugh as we play."

Jean Millard, a pretty little girl in Highland costume, entertained the large company with Scottish dance of olden times.

Refreshments were served by the Alpha Mission Circle, led by Miss Muriel Wilson. The president, Mrs. W. L. Hardwicke, Mrs. E. W. Young, Mrs. D. V. Ketchison, and Mrs. James Heffernan presided at the tables.

The thanks of the gathering for the fine leadership given by Mr. and Mrs. Kelly was expressed by Mr. Frank Kerr, Clerk of the Session, and Mr. Gordon Harle, president of the Young People's Union. It was decided to hold a similar meeting in the early spring.

W.A. Elects New Officers

A good attendance of members was present for the Christmas meeting and election of officers of the Women's Association of George Street United Church in the church parlors Tuesday afternoon.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. W. G. Harris, due to illness, Miss M. E. Elliott, vice-president, presided. The meeting was opened with the theme song, "Let the Beauty of Jesus Be Seen In Me," and the Lord's Prayer. The devotional period, conducted by Mrs. F. E. Latimer, included a Christmas hymn, a scripture reading by Mrs. H. Powers, and a Christmas story and prayer by Mrs. MacFarlane.

Several letters of appreciation for flowers which had been received were read by Mrs. W. K. McGee, who also reported on the letters of sympathy which had been sent during the month. For the look-out committee, Mrs. P. Hetherington reported 68 calls made; for the sick and visiting committee, Mrs. Sarah Armstrong reported 74 calls; Miss Lillian Morrow, flower convenor, reported 24 bouquets and flowers sent to the sick.

A very interesting feature of the meeting was a report by the leaders of the five different groups, into which the Society is divided, of the finances raised by them during the year, which amounted to well over five hundred dollars.

Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Baptist Church was special speaker on the subject "Is There A Santa Claus?" in which he remarked that although realism says there is no Santa Claus, idealism maintains there is. The speaker was accorded a sincere vote of thanks by Miss Ethel MacKay and Mrs. P. Hagerman, and a vote of thanks to Mrs. C. Renaud, who was heard in a beautifully sung Christmas solo, was moved by Miss Elliott. Mrs. Renaud was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. M. C. Parr.

Rev. M. C. Parr took the chair for the election of officers, which resulted as follows: Hon. Pres., Mrs. T. Mark; past president, Mrs. W. G. Harris; president, Miss M. E. Elliott; first vice-president, Mrs. H. McHoull; second vice-president, Mrs. H. Girven; third vice-president, Mrs. L. M. Richardson; recording secretary, Mrs. C. Staples; treasurer, Mrs. P. Hetherington; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. K. McGee; pianist, Mrs. M. C. Parr.

A splendid report of the recent Peterborough W.A. Presbytery, held in Millbrook, was given by Mrs. C. Staples. The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Do You Know?

Linseed oil applied with a soft cloth will remove rust from a gas stove? Sandpaper any spots that remain.

If an electric iron is rubbed over with paraffin (warm the iron so that the paraffin distributes thinly and evenly) and wrapped with paper, it will not rust when not in use?

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Bowed by the weight of centuries he leans
Upon his hoe and gazes on the ground,
The emptiness of ages in his face,
And on his back the burden of the world.
Who made him dead to rapture and despair,
A thing that grieves not and that never hopes,
Stolid and stunned, a brother to the ox?
Who loosened and let down this brutal jaw?
Whose was the hand that slanted back this jaw?
Whose breath blew out the light within this brain?

—"The Man With The Hoe."
By Edwin Markham.

Dear Friends:

Are you not glad that now there need not be types like this, and all because of education, yet what a hurricane arose when compulsory education came in force.

And without education, you would not be able to read your Peterboro Examiner, neither could you understand it. What I will never understand is in anyone letting themselves down until they become like "The Man with the Hoe."

For newspapers are an education in themselves, and anyone who thinks they are economizing by not getting their Peterboro Examiner all the time, are Penny wise, and Pound foolish.

I mean that, not because I work for the Examiner, but because of all the good you are missing, so very much for so little. Just think of all the brains which are at your disposal from your own newspaper. If you never read anything else, you are still getting the best knowledge that can be found.

What should we do if we could not read and write? The few who could would rule us, for we would not know what was going on. When I was a girl, many's the letter I wrote for those who could not write, and many's the one I read for those who had not that privelege.

Some I learnt, that life would be brighter for them. One wise old lady, who was too tired and too old to bother learning, said she got more from "the papers" than from anything else. She said, "Girl, study the papers, for that is where education really is.

Just the other day I heard a girl say with pride, "I never read anything but the funnies." She did not need to tell anyone, for her speech gave her away, and words of more than one syllable were like Greek to her.

So, she will go stumbling through life blaming all her misfortunes and mistakes on everyone but herself. What is so very annoying to any employer than having anyone like that around?

Read, and digest what you read. Don't just skin through your Examiner, for what you learn will not be a burden to carry around, and you never know what what you have read will be of the greatest service to you.

At one time, learning was just for the few, then there were many like "the man with the hoe." Now there is no excuse for the poorest not knowing world events as well as the rich.

No excuse for ignorance, for grammar of the highest is in your Examiner. There you can learn to write, to advertise, to cook, to think wisely. You know who is coming and who is going, who is sick and who is well, who have passed on and who are still with us.

Cannot afford it? You cannot afford to be without it, for you lose so much more than you gain in saving those few pennies. You help young boys to earn a living, and they in turn help their mothers, so that money circulates, and some of it comes back to you.

The two last things I would give up are my Examiner, and my telephone, for both bring things into my home which I can ill do without, in fact life would hold nothing for me if I did not have them. For, just as my 'phone brings the voice of my friends to me, my Examiner brings the voice of the world to me. 'Nuff Sed.

Your Friend, ROBERTA.

Over 150 Attend Get-Together Of Rebekah Lodge

An enjoyable evening was held in Golden Link Rebekah Lodge, No. 81, Tuesday night, when over 150 members of Peterborough District No. 26 held their annual get-together, with N.G. Mrs. Elizabeth McKinstry presiding.

Honored guests of the evening were Mrs. Betty Dundas of London, Warden of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario, Mrs. Mary Thomas, of Lindsay, Past President of the Assembly, and Mrs. Nellie Beatty of Peterborough, District Deputy President of this district. They were introduced by Miss Rose Sexsmith, Mrs. Louise Murduff, and Mrs. Gertrude Londerville.

A special feature of the evening was the exemplification of the beautiful teachings of the Rebekah degree by the Kawartha Rebekah Lodge No. 75 of Lindsay, under the capable leadership of the degree captain, Mr. Wm. Brown, when two candidates, Mrs. Grace Webb and Mrs. Marion Wood were instructed in the mysteries of this degree. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Brown and his degree staff.

On behalf of three members of Golden Link, Peterborough, Mrs. Elizabeth Hartley presented the Peterborough Lodge with a beautiful Bible marker, suitably embossed. Veteran jewels to those of fifteen years and over continuous membership in Peterborough Lodge were presented to Mrs. Hazel Stevenson, Mrs. Mabel Freeman, Miss Leona Wright, Mrs. Lottie Fletcher, Mrs. Susan Mealey, Miss Blanche Hamilton, Mrs. Mabel Watson, Mrs. Zetta Anderson, Mrs. Ethel Hall. Escorts who presented the veterans were Past N.G.'s, Mrs. Gertrude Londerville, Mrs. Louise Murduff, Miss Irene Throop, Mrs. Effie Morton, Miss Bella Brealey, Mrs. Lillie Wilson, Mrs. Pearl Jones, Mrs. Olive Price, Mrs. Elizabeth Hartley, Mrs. Betty Dundas, Assembly Warden, Mrs. Rita Holgate of Toronto, a former member of Golden Link, was unable to be present to receive her jewel.

Mrs. Nellie Beatty, D.D.P., on behalf of Golden Link Rebekah Lodge, presented Mrs. Betty Dundas, Assembly Warden, with a beautiful cream and sugar set on a silver tray. Greetings from Mrs. Martha Watts, P.P. of Assembly, who is a member of Golden Link, and spending the winter in Florida, were conveyed by Mrs. Londerville. Greetings were given by some members of each lodge present, which included Kawartha No. 75, Lindsay; Dorcas No. 98, Havelock; Golden Sheaf No. 176, Millbrook; Lock Lomond No. 248, Campbellford, and Queen Mary No. 302, Cannington.

At the close tea was served in the dining hall by Mrs. Gertrude Londerville and her committee, Miss Bella Brealey, Effie Morton, Alice Throop, Louise Zacks, Effie Rowe, Martha Martin, Mabel Watson, and Miss Olive Armstrong. The tea table was attractive with bronze and white chrysanthemums. Presiding at the silver tea services were Mrs. Palliser, Campbellford, Mrs. Bentley, Millbrook, Miss Williams, Havelock, and Mrs. Brandon, Cannington.

V.O.N.A. Branch Notes

CAMPBELLFORD BRANCH.

Nearly thirty-five members of the Anglican Young People's Association were guests of the Sterling branch on Monday evening of this week when they met the young people of both Sterling and Frankford for a social evening for which the visitors joined in presenting the program. Rev. Mr. McConnel of Sterling welcomed the guests from the visiting societies and following a splendid program refreshments were served and the young people spent the remainder of the evening in community singing and dancing. The program presented by the Campbellford branch included a violin solo by Jean Shaw; mouth organ solo, M. Robinson; tap dance, Roy Ramsden; highland fling, Yvonne Hollings. For their part of the program, Frankford supplied an interesting quizz contest, and the Sterling program included a vocal trio by Betty Conley, Molly Bellshaw and Jean Salisbury; monologue by Fred Howchin and George Wallace. Following brief remarks by Rev. T. S. Gault and Rev. McConnell the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

BABY'S STOMACH UPSET?

BABY'S little "Tummy" is often easily upset. It is easily righted again, too, if you know just how to do it. Let Mrs. M. S. Alway, of London, Ont., tell you: "No two babies are alike, yet Baby's Own Tablets suit them all. They are a great help at the first sign of upset stomach, during teething time or when a cold is coming on. They work quickly yet gently to carry away poisons and promote quiet sleep. Walking floors at night is unknown in our home."

Mrs. Harold Brown, of Owen Sound, says: "One of my three children has frequent sick stomach spells and Baby's Own Tablets are all I ever give him for relief."

Equally effective for diarrhoea, colic, simple croup, constipation and simple fever.

Sweet-tasting, easy to take, prompt in their action yet harmless. Can be given to the most delicate child. Analyst's certificate in every box.

Buy a box today for sickness so often strikes in the night. Money back if not satisfied. 25 cents.

To Relieve Bad Cough Quickly, Mix This at Home

Does the Work in a Hurry. Saves Money. Easily Mixed.

Here's an old home remedy your mother used, and, for real results, it is still a very dependable thing for distressing coughs. Try it once, and you'll swear by it.

It's no trouble at all. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed—a child could do it.

Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of really superior cough remedy—more than you could buy for four times the money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time.

This splendid home mixture has a three-fold action. You can feel it take hold at once. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. This explains why it gives such prompt, pleasing results.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine, in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

JOYS AND GLOOMS

MANY PEOPLE can safely drink tea and coffee. Many others—and all children—should never drink them. If you are one of these, try Postum's 30-day test. Buy Postum and drink it instead of tea and coffee for one month. Then, if you do not feel better, return the Postum container top to General Foods, Limited, Cobourg, Ontario, and we'll refund full purchase price, plus postage. Postum is delicious, economical, easy to prepare, and contains no caffeine.

FICTION AND FEATURES

ROMANCE INC.

BY OREN ARNOLD

Read This First:

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, creates a furor on the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, when she erects a sign in front of her cottage announcing "COUNSEL IN ROMANCE". Her plan is to help guide 100 student "members" in their social and love affairs for a small fee. Bob Towne, campus football hero, much attracted by Sara Sue, is the first to enroll. This enrages Peaches Pomeroy, a senior who regarded herself as "Bob's girl" the previous year. Worthington Gurley, unprepossessing freshman, provides another problem when it is evident he is interested in Sara Sue. The climax in her Cottage Plan occurs when sedate Dr. Thornton Holgate, new member of the faculty, begs Sara Sue to help him . . . then confides his love for Peaches Pomeroy. She does, and gives him his first lessons in "how to become more human". Then T. J. Sanders, a sports goods salesman, appears on the scene and seeks out Sara Sue to help him locate a pretty girl he had seen in the stands at a local football game. The girl, of course, is Sara Sue herself. Bob finds Sanders' dog at Sara Sue's and begins to suspect he has a new rival. Sanders, much taken by Sara Sue, takes her to visit some dog Kennels because she likes dogs, then makes other dates with her. Alone, she does some serious thinking about Sanders, Towne, Gurley and Dr. Holgate. Sara Sue gives Dr. Holgate more advice to help him with his courtship of Peaches. Inadvertently she tells him much about herself.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER 19

OLD MAN Walter Van Buren Pomeroy owns a mansion with eight bedrooms and eight acres on Houston's expensive Calumet drive. The eight bedrooms are quite enough to house his family, which consists of one overfed and adipose wife and one underfed and dissipated daughter.

The latter, however, is not without some physical charm. Youth can offset a deal of dissipation, for a while. Miss Geraldine danced too much, smoked too much, drank too much, and ate improperly, but her curves still had nice curves, and the best beauticians in Houston kept her face and hair in perpetual good front. When Geraldine happened to get two good nights sleep in succession, she could be downright beautiful. If, that is, her mood permitted her mouth corners to turn up.

This evening, though, she was short on sleep, and her rather large mouth drooped like that of a fish. (If this is inelegant, it is nevertheless accurate; the same phenomenon may be observed in other people.) Geraldine had not had a good day at Rice. A pop quiz in French literature 400 had left her helpless. English 410 had been spiced with questions which Dr. Montgomery had centered on her. And The Thresher, student weekly, had appeared with its Winchellian gossip column, including this:

"What erstwhile beauty page has been seen less and less of late with what handsome football star? Old songs, they say, are the best ones. Can the Merry Widow waltz be coming back into style?"

It was just plain enough to make people look at Geraldine and smile. One girl, a former rival, had chirped at her, "Oh, Pea-ches, they're picking on you, darling!" Peaches had pretended not to hear, which evoked a splash of laughter from at least a dozen boys and girls.

Peaches was sitting now in her room, glooming.

Definite point of the gloom was the freshman dance, set for tonight. Three men, including that new prof, Holgate, had asked to take her; but Bob Towne had not. Peaches was morally certain—hence furiously certain—that Bob would take the impossible Davis widow. Peaches herself had accepted a date with Charlie Bane, whom she did not like much, but who at least dressed well and danced smoothly, and who would watch any pace she wanted to set.

Her deductions as to Bob Towne had been wrong, of course. A very young man, somewhat resembling a headlight on a train, so brightly did his happiness beam, came in with the widow Davis on his arm. He was Mr. Worthington Gurley, and it quickly became apparent that he had managed a social coup. Boys instantly began to hang around Sara Sue, and Peaches learned later that some spirited buying and selling of dances with her had been done, sub rosa.

The inevitable stag line developed instance, was big Bob Towne, who openly admitted that Freshman Gurley had stolen his girl for the night. In it, too (at the insistence of Sara Sue Davis, Incorporated), was Thornton Holgate Ph. D., minus his spectacles, wearing his newest suit and shoes, looking altogether nice except for a strained expression.

"Relax," Sara managed to whisper to him once. "Smile at people. Cut in on all the dances you can."

Because Charlie Bane kept slipping outside for a drink, leaving Peaches momentarily alone, she also moved to greet the professor.

"Dr. Holgate, how are you?" she smiled at him. "So glad to see you here! "Whom are you dating?"

"Why—ah—how do you do, Miss Pomeroy? Yes, indeed!" She had accosted him unexpectedly, from his side, which flustered him as much as her prettiness did. Peaches, who had good eyes, turned their power on him; Peaches always acted on the unspoken theory that every man was made for servitude.

"Who " She asked again.

"Ah, yes. That is, I came alone. Just—ah—stagging, as we boys say."

That was quite a speech for him. He paused to swallow, then went manfully on, however.

"I wasn't sure that I could come at all, until the last minute. I hope I may have the pleasure of dancing some with you. You—ah—may I be so presumptuous as to say that you look charming this evening?" He bowed with that. Partly to cover the pink he felt darting up his neck.

"Thank you! Peaches smiled. She was in better humor now, with Bob Towne stagging.

Another man claimed her, then, and Dr. Holgate was content to look at her. Their brief contact had been most pleasurable. He felt that he could get up nerve enough to "cut in" on her for a bit of dancing later.

He was, however, by no means confident of his ability to dance well enough to please her. Obeying Sara Sue Davis, he had studied dancing with great care, had taken a number of private lessons, and was not quite so utterly lost when he had held a girl in his arms. But he had taken only the simplest steps. On one point, however, he did base a great deal of hope—he had learned to waltz reasonably well. the ONE-two-three, ONE-two-three of waltzing had come easily and pleasantly (as it has for many another man). It is relatively slow, is not necessarily cluttered up with tricky improvisations.

He wondered if he should ask Miss Pomeroy in advance for an opportunity to waltz with her. Then he remembered that this was a program dance. He had not even met her escort, and he felt that her program would be full anyway.

For want of something better to do—he could not force himself to be sociable with any of the other stags as yet—he spoke to some of the orchestra men.

"Will you have any waltzes?" he inquired of the leader.

"Hadn't thought," was the reply. "We'll work in a couple, if you think the crowd would like it."

"Oh. By all means. Yes, indeed!"

The enthusiasm was enough to convince the leader, so he arranged the program accordingly. "Third and eighth dances all right?" he asked. Dr. Holgate thanked him.

The embarrassment of being alone drove him from the ballroom during the first dance. He thought she looked heavenly. At a distance, and through prejudiced eyes, she did.

She encountered him back on the floor—he had retreated near an artificial plam—in the second dance, and she remembered that he had asked to escort her here. That caused her to appraise him.

"He's not particularly handsome," she told herself, "but he's not bad, either."

She caught his eye and winked at him, as if in comradeship. She was whirled on in the dance, though, and could not know that she had set his heart pounding.

He did waltz with her, toward the end of Dance 111.

He studied the collegians' technigue of "cutting in" and imitated it very well. Moreover, he waltzed well enough to cause no comment, at least, although he was tense from actually holding Peaches in his arms for the first time. He was very conscious of her perfume now. Also, in this physical intimacy, he observed the heavy makeup that she wore; ordinarily he did not approve of exaggerated rouging and eyebrow doctoring and such, had often said it was a form of dishonesty. Now, though, he could see nothing whatsoever to criticize.

She left him still glowing inwardly, after promising, at his brazen request, to dance all of Number VIII with him. "Paul Templeton has that one, but he can't waltz and he'll be drunk as a sailor by then, anyway," she informed him, rather surprisingly. "You can have all the waltz, Thornton."

A grand and glorious happiness therefore settled upon Dr. Holgate.

In the gay crowd he saw no more of her for a long while, nor did he try. He greeted a few other faculty folk, but mostly he stayed to himself. He was content to nurse the pleasures of anticipation. Also, he had to think of several items of conversation. He even took his tiny note pad out surreptitiously and jotted them down, to insure his remembering them when he should have Peaches to himself for an entire dance. He was determined to make the most of this opportunity.

Time from third to eighth dances, however, stretched into almost two hours. An unexpected floor show, with still more unexpected encores, added greatly to the evening's festivities, so that midnight had passed when the lights finally were dimmed again and the unmistakable rhythm of a waltz began.

All in an instant Dr. Holgate was frantic. The room was rather large and he could not find Peaches. He hurried into the adjoining lounge, though, and saw her at once, slumped on a divan.

"Ish Thornton," she told the boy beside her. "Shee 'im? Looking owl eyed at me, Paul. Shee? Ish he drunk too?"

Parents Can Help Children Financially Without Unduly Pampering Them; a Happy Medium Can Be Found That Will Insure The Child's Happiness

HOW much money should parents give their children? There are two schools of thought on this subject. One holds that Papa and Mamma should pamper their petted darlings and indulge them in everything they crave, while the other contends that Father and Mother have done their full duty by their offspring when they feed and clothe them up to maturity and give them such education as they will take. That then they should be chucked out into the world to sink or swim, without so much as a dollar for a life preserver being handed them.

The disastrous results of giving children too much money is continually brought to our notice. The papers are filled with the accounts of murders committed by youngsters in the high-powered automobiles provided by their parents. Every day we read of the scandals into which rich playboys and girls get themselves. We see the prodigal sons and daughters of self-made men throwing away in dissipation the fortunes their fathers earned in toil and sweat. We see the men and women, who all of their lives have been able to buy whatever they wanted, go down in utter failure when they desire the things which no money can buy or when they have to stand on their own feet.

So it is no wonder that we say that there is no curse so great that can befall a boy or girl as having too much money given them, and that many parents fearing to make this mistake with their children, go to the other extreme and are hard and penurious with them.

And which makes the greater error is hard to say. For if the overly indulgent father unfits his children for life, the miserly father deprives his children of all the gayety and softness and beauty that belong to youth. He makes life a rough and stony road for tender and inexperienced feet to travel.

We would be horrified if we saw a father and mother sitting down to a feast while their half-starved children gnowed at a crust. Yet this in effect is what those parents do who refuse to help their children get a start in the world and who let them suffer unnecessary deprivations and hardships.

Certainly a father is right in tightening his purse strings when a son who is idle and worthless tries to break into it for money to spend on wine, women and song. But why should he not loosen it for a son who is hard-working and industrious and ambitious and who could be saved so many years of heart-breaking climbing if only father would give him a boost up the ladder?

There are John and his wife. Such a fine young couple. Both doing their parts so gallantly. But on John's small salary they cannot live in the manner in which they were brought up or have the indulgences to which they were accustomed. They have had to drop out of their set because they can't afford to run with their old friends. John has to wear hand-me-down suits and Mary basement bargain dresses. How they are to get the money to pay the rent and the butcher's bill keeps them lying awake at night.

Why shouldn't the fathers of this young couple make them an allowance that will ease the strain under which they live and that will fill their world with comfort and security instead of the anxiety that now keeps it a place of gloom?

When a girl marries a poor boy, why shouldn't her father, if he can afford it, soft-pad the hard years in which a young couple are getting on their feet? Why shouldn't he give her the pretty dresses he has always given her, and a servant, or keep up her car for her, or give her a nice trip now and then, instead of expecting her to slave her life away cooking and washing and ironing and baby-tending because he thinks married people should work out their own salvation?

And why shouldn't parents, when their children have fallen in love with suitable mates, help them to get married? Why should they make them wait until all the bloom has gone off of their romance and the glory and the circling wings of young love are no longer about them before they marry, just because John isn't making enough to support a wife, when John's father is amply able to supply the deficiency and buy them the happiness they will never know unless he does?

Of course, the parents who refuse to help their children when they are young say that they will get the money when they die. True. But it is an awful thing to make children desire your death in order that they may have the things you could have given them and didn't.

Dress Up Your Chairs With Gay Slip Covers

Perk up shabby furniture with colorful new year-round slip covers.

Choose handsome linen with cheerful designs splashed against a background of burgundy, gray, green or deep blue.

Or for an air of homeyness use chintz with gay flowers on a light ground. Or add a modern note with smart gingham plaids, stripes or plain colors.

1. Begin by pinning your material to the chair. Cut, leaving a 1½-inch seam allowance. In this way the various pieces of your cover are shaped exactly like the original upholstery.

2. Take pinned slip cover from the chair and baste. Then try it on carefully.

3. Stitch it up on the machine. And you have a brand new dress for your chair!

Extra smart, if you finish seams with bright bias binding, or easier still, whip a two-colored cord right over the seams. Our 32-page booklet gives step-by-step directions and diagrams for making slip covers for chairs and sofas of every style. Details of measuring, pleating. Smart color suggestions for entire rooms.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of HOW TO MAKE SLIP COVERS to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of boklet.

Looking Back
On This Date

Twenty-one years ago today, the people of Canada, and the world, were reading with horror and sympathy the details of the havoc caused the previous day at Halifax, when, as the result of a collision between two munition laden ships, the greatest disaster in Canadian history took place. The story of the tragedy has often been told, but the memory of that day and those which followed will never be forgotten by those who were in its midst. Boys and girls have since grown to maturity, but will never forget the terror. Two thousand lives were lost; whole families were wiped out; the money loss exceeded $20,000,000. The work of restoration was soon begun; a new Halifax was constructed in the stricken area; but even today, after 21 years, one can find traces of the havoc of that day, for in some cases the sites were never rebuilt on, and in summer evergreens cover the gaping holes as yet unfilled.

To add to the misery of that occasion, there came on this date (Dec. 7) one of the worst blizzards in the annals of Halifax, covering several feet the ruins of the destroyed homes and factories and making the work of search for the victims hazardous and painful in the extreme. Today all over Canada and the United states, there will be found former Haligonians who will recall their experiences of 1917 and their share in the compassionate service which the disaster called forth.

The victims of that blast were just as much war casualties as if they had died in France. A majority of them lie buried in Halifax cemeteries, but the memory of their sacrifice will never die. Neither will the gratitude of the people of Halifax for the quick relief which was sent from outside, especially from Boston, the mecca of so many Nova Scotians. Special trains with food and needed equipment were on the way within 24 hours. This was distributed by a citizens' committee, which was proud to be able to say in later years that not one cent had been wasted.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, December 8.

All matters move at exceedingly high tempo on this day, according to the lunar as well as mutual aspects. It is a time of high tension in the direction of putting over large propositions and the happy fruition of long cherished goals. These goals may be achieved through the endorsement and substantial co-operation of important business interests or others of prestige and authority. But with all deal cautiously, with an eye to some sort of duplicity or intrigue which might offset financial gain.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of much high pressure activity. There may be definite advance on long-planned hopes and wishes of importance in expanding the life and attaining important objectives. In this they may have the support of influential persons. In all transactions be alert to craftiness or conspiracy.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, capable, constructive, and have high ambitions, which it may attain with the support of those in high places. However, it may also be subject to loss or detriment through deceit or subtlety.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

The other afternoon the children went for a walk in the park. Knarf and Hanid, who were the children's shadows, followed right behind them.

The children had bought a bag of peanuts, and soon they spied a squirrel.

"Squirrel—pretty squirrel — come here!" the little girl called. The little boy whistled. But the squirrel just stood looking at them from the branch of a tree. He didn't seem to understand them.

"I bet they understand shadows," said Knarf. With that he called out to the squarrel in his loudest voice: "Hello there, squirrel! Do you understand what the children are saying to you?"

"Why don't you come for it?"

The children didn't know that their shadow was speaking to the squirrel. But the squirrel heard Knarf very well.

"I don't exactly understand what they're saying," the squirrel answered, making little squeaking sounds. "But I think I know what they mean. They want me to come for a peanut, the one the little girl is holding in her hand."

"That's right. Why don't you come for it?"

"I was just making up my mind. I wanted to be sure they wouldn't try to catch me when I came near. But I guess they won't. I'll come and get that peanut." So with that it ran down the side of the tree, and when it reached a spot on the grass about two or three feet away from the children, it stopped and sat up on its hind legs, looking very inquisitively at the peanut.

"Well," said Knarf, "why don't you go closer?"

"I was just thinking," the squirrel replied to the shadow-boy, "that if I waited a minute or two longer, just like this, they would toss the peanut to me. Then I wouldn't have to go closer."

"But they'd like you to take it right out of her hand," said Hanid. "Please do it. They won't hurt you."

"All right," said the squirrel, "I'll take it out of her hand."

It darted forward, picked the peanut quickly out of the little girl's hand in its teeth, and rushed off as fast as it could.

"Wait a minute! Don't you say thank you?" Knarf and Hanid called after it.

"Oh! I forgot—thank you, thank you!" it squeaked cheerfully. Then it disappeared behind the tree to eat the peanut where it wouldn't be disturbed.

The two children walked off, very happy, with their two shadows in their footsteps. "Now wasn't that a fine squirrel?" the children said. "It understood every word we said to it." They didn't know, of course, how much their shadows had helped it to understand them. But we know, don't we?

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver 'as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c

GET COMFORTING RELIEF FROM Runny HEAD COLD

DO THIS: Put some Vicks VapoRub up each nostril and sniff well back. You'll feel better right away. Next, melt a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water; then breathe in the steaming medicated vapors for several minutes. This loosens phlegm and further clears the air-passages. At bedtime, rub VapoRub on throat, chest, and back so that its long-continued double action can relieve the misery of the cold while you sleep. VapoRub acts direct through the skin like a poultice; at the same time its medicated vapors, breathed in direct, bring comfort to the irritated air-passages. Try it.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 7.—Deputy Reeve William R. Ross was authorized to sign all cheques and documents by members of the Seymour Council, at their meeting held here on Monday afternoon, when it was revealed that Reeve Robert Innes, who was at present confined to the Belleville Hospital would be ill for some time. One township resident addressed the council requesting relief and Carl Sloggett protested to the council that he had suffered considerable damage to his stock by stray dogs. The councillors promised to look into the matter. Harry Nicholos asked for more explicit information regarding the road allowance. Following the passing of the account the counci adjourned.

GeorgiaColeman Preparing To Open Studio

NEW YORK, Dec. 7—(AP).—Georgia Coleman's health is back on the gold standard and the taffy-haired girl, who dropped from the secure eminence of an Olympic diving champion-turned pro into the dismal status of a paralysis victim a year ago, is returning to her role of swimming and diving instructor here.

A few weeks ago it was rumored the California water star would open an electrolysis studio on the west coast. This was proof that Miss Coleman had become well enough to be active, but by no means stood for the complete recovery necessary to her taking up her former profession of teaching.

Acquatics, however, always have been her greatest interest, and when a New York club sought her to take over the direction of its new acquatic department she decided she was fit enough for the job which starts next week.

The last year's chapter in the history of the United States' greatest girl diver is more of a success story than the famous ones that preceded it. She is the only girl who ever swept all United States and Olympic diving titles in one year (1932).

It took hard work through all the hours of seven months to bring Miss Coleman back from the ravages of a sequence of events that included overdieting with its cost of resistance, abscesses of the ears, exhibition diving while the ear-poison was draining down through her system, then influenza, pneumonia and a paralysis of arms and legs. From November, 1937, to June, 1938, the ex-Olympic stars fought back. Yesterday she looked pleasantly fit, fat and definitely on the happy side.

Russian Fans Rough It Up

MOSCOW, Dec. 7—(CP Reuters).—Unruly behavior of football spectators is providing Russian officials with a problem.

Under the heading of "Intolerant Manners at Soviet Soccer Matches," Komsomolskaya Pravada, official organ of the Soviet Communist Youth Organization, publishes reports of several incidents at recent matches. It demands punishment for the offenders.

During the games the visiting players constantly are abused by the home club's supporters, threatening with reprisals if they win and, in certain instances, subjected to manhandling.

At a match at Gorki a visiting team was leading 5-1 when a group of spectators invaded the field and attempted to maltreat the referee and the visiting players. At another match at Leningrad rival supporters engaged in a free fight in the middle of the pitch and a physical instructor was hurt badly.

13 Victims In Month

TORONTO, Dec. 7. — (CP). — Thirteen persons died in hospital here during November of injuries suffered in automobile accidents, chief coroner Dr. Smirle Lawson reports. Seven persons were hurt fatally within the city's boundaries and six were brought from outside.

SPORT SPICE

(By SID FEDER)

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (AP).—They wrapped up this town and handed it over to Davey O'Brien in a neat little package last night...The All-America kid from Texas wowed 'em at that Heisman trophy affair... Incidentally, Chicago pro Cardinals are after Davey's all-America mate, centre Ki Aldrich...And are likely to land him since Ki has made up his mind to play for at least a couple of years.

Davey, Ki and I. B. Hale, Texas Christians' big three, liked the way folks treated them here—but had the most fun hitting a couple of the spots...And Coach Dutch Meyer says the real ball of fire on this year's Southern Methodist freshmen isn't Maddox, as reported, but a back tagged Preston Johnson, who runs, kicks and passes...One of the Old Blues at the Heisman party was Pa Carbin, the centre who used to snap the ball with his foot on the great Yale team that featured Pudge Heffelfinger back in '88....He still looks as if he could give some of the boys a tough afternoon.

Taking a quick glance, it looks like Bill Terry certainly gave the Cubs a going over in that deal...The Giants lose just a shortstop—Leiber and Mancuso weren't much use to them last year...While the Cubs give away two regulars and a catcher who has the makings...And don't be surprised if Mr. Terry puts across a deal for a pitcher before the hot-stove firing ends.

Paul Mickelson, the mad maestro from Mankato, turned in his sports writing checks for an executive spot in the Mid-West today. After 10 years of blow-by-blowing...Well, so long—our loss is Kansas City's gain ...Babe Ruth was fitted for a pair of "specs" this week...Which, Jack Miley told him, makes the Bambino "old folks" now.

Chuck Crowell, the Pacific Coast heavy, is training with Tommy Farr at Pompton Lakes for his December 16 date with Jim Robinson of Philly.

Lindsay To Build Open Air Rink

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Dec. 7.—The municipal pot is commencing to simmer locally with the end of the year in sight, but it is not definitely settled whether Lindsay will see a municipal contest at New Year's. Four councillors, one reeve, two members of the Hydro Commission, one member of the Water Commissioners and three members of the Board of Education will have to be selected, and it is the belief in some quarters that these may be selected without a contest. There will be no mayoralty contest as Mayor Claxton was elected by acclamation for a two-year term.

The town council is going to sponsor an open air skating rink in Central Park this winter. The rink will be built by relief labor and its supervision will be in the hands of men on relief.

Ald. R. Butler informed the council last night that at present there are over three hundred on relief in Lindsay. There has been very little road work this fall and this has made the unemployment problem very acute.

Farmers in this district are becoming very uneasy as a result of the depredations of grain and chicken thieves. Reports are coming in to the police from many points and an effort is being made to run down the guilty parties. For the past couple of days officers are trying to solve the theft of a quantity of red clover seed from the granary of Harry Taylor, who resides near Bobcaygeon. Mr. Taylor was twice visited by the thieves. A car was used to carry away the grain, and it had to be carried some distance across the fields to the road. Several farmers have also suffered heavy losses in fowl.

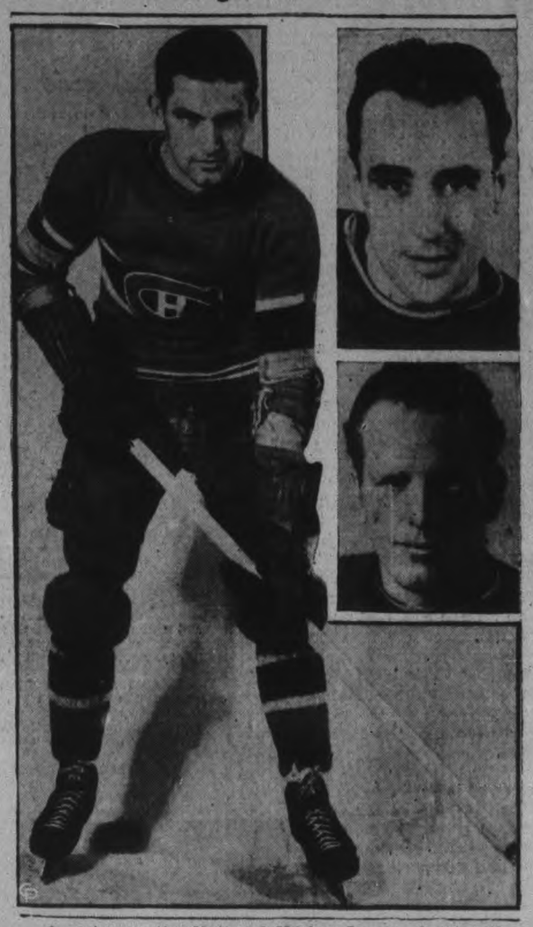
The Scene Changes



A sector on the National Hockey League front with a constantly changing scene is that of Montreal Canadiens, where Cecil Hart is striving desperately to make his machine function in the manner to which he would like to become accustomed. The three players above all vanished from the French scene within a very short space of time. Bob Gracie, LEFT, is now a Black Hawk, sold in the revamping process, while the two players at the RIGHT, Louis Trudel, TOP, and Cliff (Red) Goupille, were shunted down to New Haven in the Canadian-American League when Gus Mancuso and George Brown were brought up. Trudel was secured from Chicago just before the season opened in a trade for Joffre Desilets.

MUSSING UP THE MAPLES

S. S. Shaughnessy of the C.G.E. topped the list of 5-pin bowlers last night with a three game string of 259, 278 and 258 to total 795. Harvey of the Bankers' league wound up his night with a 322 single to score 708 and Freeman of the Merchants' group counted 702. Mrs. W. Jeffries led the ladies' section when she chalked up 536 in the Mercantile league, her last game being 234.

In the C.G.E. league, besides Shaughnessy's 795, Wade hit 677, R. Williams 657, S. James 626 (310), Harrison 24, Allison 623 and R. E. Layfield 620.

For the bankers Harvey's 708 was followed by Grieves' 666, Reid's 604 and Widdiss' 600.

In the mixed Mercantile loop K. Lee had 654, T. McArthur 650, W. Clark 646, J. Leith 644, W. Moorhead 631, C. Barber 631 (338), L. Raper 604, Mrs. Jeffries 536, Helen McFadden 529, Miss Parker, 496, Marg. Wyllie 465, Mrs. De Wolfe 439, Vera White 437, Florence O'Toole 422, and Mrs. Hendry 418.

The Merchants' group gave out Freeman's 702, L. Reid 674, S. Mein 659, J. Field 660, R. Penrose 654, J. Anthony 647, S. Trowbridge 647, B. Lewis 604, Mrs. R. Penrose 529, Miss Grant 432 and Miss Moore 404.

Butch Gainor's Fate Decided Tonight

TORONTO, Dec. 7 (CP).—The case of Martin (Butch) Gainor comes up for decision before the Canadian Rugby Union executive tonight and the result of the Dominion senior final here Saturday may hinge on the eligibility of the Winnipeg middle-wing.

Big Gainor is a defensive bulwark of the Blue Bombers, a powerhouse who might break up many of the plays in Toronto Argonauts' fight Saturday before they start. Until the C.R.U. has said finally whether or not he will play, betting on the second Argonaut-Bomber national final in two years will remain light.

Winnipeg was allowed to present its side of the Gainor case after the C.R.U. had ruled him ineligible on the basis of the residence rule. The Bombers claim he has been resident of Canada for more than the stipulated period and returned to the United States only for periods necessary to complete education that would qualify him as a physical training instructor in Winnipeg high schools.

Gainor continued to work out with the Westerners today at nearby Oakville. There was another worry in the Bomber camp, concerning a foot injury suffered by Greg Kabat, flying wing star. Kabat thinks he may have a broken bone in the foot, but Coach Reg. Threlfall is sure he will be ready to start and that no break will be disclosed in closer examination today.

The Argonauts, who suffered no new injuries in their eastern final victory over Sarnia Imperials here Saturday, will resume workouts tonight. But they have had their last practice scrimmage of the year and drills this week will be only light.

Barry Nearing Hockey Record

DETROIT, Dec. 7—(CP).—They are hailing Marty Barry, Detroit Red Wing centre, as the new iron man of the National Hockey League.

The rugged Montreal boy, who is playing his 10th Big League season, is following the tradition of Murray Murdoch, former New York Ranger forward. Murdoch played in every Ranger game for 11 years before dropping to the minors last year and then dropped out of hockey this year to coach at Yale.

Barry has participated in more than 500 exhibition, play-off and league games without missing a single contest. Thirty-seven of his games were in Stanley Cup play-off competition.

Although Barry played a month with the New York Americans in 1928 and then dropped to New Haven and Philadelphia, he started his near-record run of games with Boston Bruins in 1929. He came to the Wings in 1935 and the next year at Toronto came closest to breaking his run of games when he hurt his hip playing the Maple Leafs.

This season in Chicago he had six stitches taken in his throat, but three nights later took his regular turn on the ice. In 1933 he almost missed a game again when he rushed to his wife's bedside in a Montreal hospital on reports her condition was critical. She improved rapidly, so he was able to return to Boston just in time to take the ice for the game.

Twice Barry topped the old American division in scoring, once in a tie with Paul Thompson of Chicago. Barry has averaged 36 points a season, putting him in a prominent place among the lifetime scoring leaders.

Galento And Thomas Try 12 Rounds Tonight

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Two-ton Tony Galento, colorful Orange, N.J., bartender-fighter, meets Otis Thomas, Chicago negro, in a 12-round bout here to-night.

Galento, ranked as No. 1 heavyweight challenger to champion Joe Louis, will be making his second start since a critical siege of pneumonia last summer. His last win was over Harry Thomas. Galento was expected to weigh around 235 again 209 for Thomas.

'Quake Breaks Dishes

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7.—(AP).—The earth quaked in Los Angeles county last night but its only effect was to make dishes and chandeliers a bit jittery. An earth slippage, occurring about 10.40 p.m. E.S.T. was felt from Santa Monica Island as far as Pasadena. No damage was reported.

Terry And Gabby Try Old Gyp Racket As They Swap Six Men In "Gabfest" At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—The wind among the potted palms grew to a gale to-day as the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues opened its annual convention.

Vest button to vest button for two days now the big leaguers and the small ones, ex-players, managers, and owners, have made a few deals, but that didn't stop them. To all the talk, supposed to involve swapping and dickering, which came before the convention now will be added speeches and arguments over rule changes, plus the vest to vest business.

They were all there, or almost all, from old George Napoleon Rucker who pitched from the south side 10 years for Brooklyn in pre-historic times to Frank Frisch, former manager of St. Louis Cardinals' gas house gang. The overworked winds of rumor have Frisch, supposed to be looking for a job, located at one and the same time as new manager of the New Orleans Pelicans and coach of the New York Giants.

William Terry, Giants' manager and oil-man in his own right, was there. So was Clarence (Pants) Rowland who once managed Chicago White Sox. "Pants" said he got his nickname at the age of nine when his breeches fell as he ran home from third.

The First Big Deal.

As for deals, the biggest one so far was manoeuvred yesterday by the Giants and Chicago Cubs through their respective managers, Mr. Terry and Gabby Hartnett.

The Cubs swapped Shortstop Billy Jurges, Catcher Ken O'Dea, and Outfielder Frank Demaree to the Giants for Outfielder Hank Leiber, Catcher Gus Mancuso, and Shortstop Dick Bartell.

The Happy Hartnett said in language modified for reading purposes: "Terry thinks he gypped me, but I know I gypped him."

St. Louis Browns figured in the picture by trading, on undisclosed terms, Infielder Tom Carey to Boston Red Sox for Pitcher Johnny Marcum.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

THERE is a new game spreading through Northern Ontario, where loops are being formed, and threatening to catch on down this way. It is known as broomball and has its addicts already in places like Sudbury, North Bay and the Soo. Maybe the zoo, also! The affair is played in a hockey rink by men swinging brooms instead of sticks and shod in overshoes instead of skates. The puck is replaced by a football and you more or less make up your own rules from there on. Combination of hockey, polo, curling, snooker and Xmas shopping in the last week. May we submit this suggestion to the powers that be in rinkdom at the Rue Brock this winter that a wee bit o' broomball betwixt periods at puck tilts might enliven things considerably for the folks who pay the freight? Those 10-minute rest periods for the players oft spread out to 15 or so and the fans would enjoy some entertainment. Or maybe we're wrong as usual.

SPEAKING OF REST PERIODS for pucksters, 10 minutes is plenty for 'em and they are generally ready to resume iced warfare in less time than that—except where the footing is heavy and the bumping hearty. Pro tilts see a bare 10-minute intermission, so why not insist on it here? Some thought might be directed toward the chilled or frapped fans on a sub-zero eve, as comparatively few of em are near enough the rest rooms to drop in and crowd around the stove or tear out for a quick one. After all, the players are supposed to be in shape to stand an hour of hard play, but are the paying customers in shape to freeze at long intervals in maybe a listless fracas?

Ah, Yes, Artificial Ice

IT MIGHT be worth a reminder now, but is anything being done about an artificial ice arena in Peterborough for 1939? There was big talk last winter of a new rink for the season following this approaching one, but it seems to be a secret now. And Peterborough will never get anywhere in hockey till there is one. The thought can hardly be considered communistic or silly when other places, smaller than this, are digging up the dough one way and another—even in hard times—to build artificial rinks. Look at Owen Sound this winter. Look at St. Catharines. Look at Kitchener. And so on. Theyre all getting brand new rinks, so why not us? As we said eight years ago, the Brock St. rink is out ofdate for a city like this—unless maybe hoop skirts and the horse-and-buggy style returns.

WHILE our three leading scorers in senior "B" hockey last winter upped and left us flat for this season, our next three high snipers will be very much in evidence this winter when the Petes glide out on the frozen water in the Brock. Calladine, Barnes and Vitarelli are just local hockey memories now—out of sight, out of mind—but Eddie Starr, Shrimp McDougall and Bun Kingdon are ready to resume hostilities with the Belleville Redmen and the Trenton Fliers in O.H.A. battles. Starr had 12 scoring points in the 10 loop tilts last semester, which is a swell average, while McDougall and Kingdon were tied with eight apiece. Eddie had eight goals and four assists, with Shrimp tallying four and four, while Bun notched three markers and aided in five more. The rest of the gang were well behind.

Watch 'Em Breeze By

WE MAY BE WRONG—it's happened once or twice!—but we predict a big season for those two young chaps, Starr and Kingdon. What the veteran McDougall does remains to be seen. It takes Shrimp a while to get going but he is generally hot before the finish—and he went fine in the Falls last winter. But Eddie and Bun are younger and are now experienced in this class of hockey. They have much natural ability, fine condition and the will to win. We will be disappointed if they are not two of the local stars this year.

COACH CARLING-KELLY of Trenton Fliers isn't too tickled over a three-team senior "B" grouping, either, and he tried in vain to get the three Kingston clubs to join this setup. The Fliers will stage several exhibition jousts to make up for the runty grouping and they expect to get one with Ottawa Airmen, which team includes such ex-Trenton stars as Cowley, Lalonde, Ernie McNeeley and others. Looks like Eric McNeeley will remain with the Fliers. The latter team, like Belleville, isn't going so well in th VanHorne series, being last now while the Redmen are down in the third slot as Queen's and Garrisons show most strngth. Quinte crowd figures the Petes won't be so tough this winter—having lost a lot of their aces—so the Redmen are willing to risk a step up to the senior "B" class this year.

Peppery Junior Players

OSHAWA WRITER REMARKS that the eight-team Central Ontario junior group is a first-class one with competition wide open. Lindsay Midgets are bolstered with a couple of ex-Oshawa pucksters, while Whitby won honors in the group last year. Bowmanville may play some home games either in Orono or Oshawa, and the Motor City lads are practicing hard every second night on ice now. 'Tis thought down that way that Peterborough, with two junior outfits in, may not be quite so strong—but don't sell the locals short. Each team will have 14 games before playoff time, and it shapes up as a real revival in junior puck interest throughout this neck of the timber. Remember a few seasons back when our Colts had hockey fans here in a dither with their whirlwind style which carried 'em into furious playoff series against St. Mike's and the bold, bad Barrie boys? Yes, indeed.

"IT'S GENERALLY CONCEDED that Sarnia sent the team that lost to Peterborough in against Argos on Saturday," said Listening Larry, the super snoop of the Telegram. So we read in the Tely last eve, and we must say it sounds like a nasty slap in this direction. But hardly as caustic as that of Tatters Girard, grid umpire, who remarked after the game: "It was the worst game that I have ever seen the Imperials play. Even worse than their earlier effort against Peterborough." Seems the Sarnians blow hot and cold with the same consistency as a lass shopping for a new Easter bonnet. But local grid followers, who moseyed up to Toronto on Saturday to witness the debacle, insisted later that our Orfuns would have given Argos a better battle than the Imps. A funny game, football.

Watch That 76

When Toronto Argonauts handed Sarnia's mighty Imperials a humiliating 25-8 defeat in the eastern Canada rugby finals, Art West, ABOVE, was one of the winners' standouts. He counted their first two touchdowns, first on the end of an extension and then by receiving a pass, and his shifty-hipped running gained many yards during the afternoon. He will be the "Fritz Hanson of Argos" when he and his teammates meet Winnipeg Blue Bombers for the dominion crown.

New York Fans Going For Pro Football

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.— (AP).—New York fans, who looked upon pro football most of the season merely as a pleasant Sunday afternoon entertainment, have begun to get really steamed up about their Giants and next Sunday's playoff with the Green Bay Packers for the National League championship.

When the first batch of play-off tickets went on sale yesterday, about 300 customers already were standing in line, and the box office did a rushing business all day. In all about 10,000 tickets were sold the first day.

Meanwhile rain and mud kept the team from going outdoors to practice, so Coach Steve Owen held a prolonged backboard drill. Then the team voted to split its share of the gate receipts into 34 shares.

Since the Packers have had plenty of time since their last game, Nov. 20 and probably have given a lot of thought to their 15-3 loss to the Giants then, the New Yorkers figure they have a real chore ahead.

In their previous meeting, Green Bay outgained New York about 2 to 1 and had an edge in nearly every department of play. Six pass interceptions by the Giants, one resulting in a touchdown, and a 75-yard run by Tuffy Leemans gave the Giants the decision.

Egypt has adopted a program to improve the health of students.

Jack Henderson Heads Trent Hockey League

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 7.—Jack Henderson of Madoc was elected to head the Trent Valley Hockey Association at a meeting held in Stirling. Delegates from Brighton, Norwood, Madoc, Campbellford, Trenton Stirling, Tweed and Trenton Airport were present seeking admission to the league. Both Brighton and Trenton Airport were rejected by the former members on the grounds that an eight-team league would be too unwelldy and with a double schedule already in prospect it would cause considerable difficulty in arranging the necessary games. Other officers elected were C. H. Davidson, Campbellford, vice-president; D. Whittock, Madoc, secretary. Norwood will be the only new group in the line up and they will be entertained by Campbellford in the first game of the season as soon as some ice can be had in the local arena. The delegates from Campbellford were Messrs. C. H. Davidson Don Free and Donald Robertson. Others attending were Gerald Quinn, Tweed; Alex Kemp, Norwood; Harry Moore, Trenton; Earl Fox, Stirling; Morley Simpson, Brighton.

BOSTON BRUINS INCREASE N.H.L. LEAD BY BEATING THE HAWKS

Bruins Shut Black Hawks Out 2-0 With Brimsek Unbeatable; Bauer And Pettinger Both Tally

BOSTON, Dec. 7—(CP).—Young Frank Brimsek of Boston Bruins, second United States-born goaltender in the National Hockey League, may not be the rookie of the year, but he is letter-perfect when the opposition is Chicago Black Hawks.

Brimsek, who like goalie Mike Karakas of the Hawks came out of the midwest states, gained his second shutout in three nights over the Chicago club here last night, when Bruins scored a 2-0 victory. Winning, they took a three-point lead at the top over New York Rangers.

The only N.H.L. game of the night was Frank's first before a Boston crowd since Tiny Thompson, veteran goalie and a favorite in the hub, was sold to Detroit last week. The 12,000 customers preserved a hostile silence when he came out to play backstop for the team that had been served so well through the years by the ever-reliable Thompson. But Brimsek soon had them cheering his brilliant saves; at the finish he got an ovation.

No Score in First

The first period went scoreless and it was not until Earl Seibert was penalized in the second period that Bruins scored. Then Bobby Bauer started a play by passing to Milt Schmidt and took Schmidt's pass as he closed in on goal to put Boston ahead.

A five-man Hawk attack gave Bruins a break for their other goal and Gordie Pettinger capitalized on it with less than four minutes to play. The rest of the way Brimsek had to face heavy fire.

The win may have been costly for Boston. Defenceman Dit Clapper was forced out in the first period with an ankle injury and Bill Cowley high-scoring forward, left in the second with a wrenched knee. If they are lost, though, the Bruins won't be hit as hard as some clubs would be, for their Providence farm team is leading its division of the International-American League and any number of good youngsters are awaiting to be called to the parent club.

Conacher Ready About Christmas

DETROIT, Dec. 7—(CP)—Charley Conacher, the hockey world's champion tough-luck guy, will rejoin his Detroit Red Wings teammates around Christmas after a long layoff caused by a severe charley horse suffered Nov. 24, when playing the Chicago Black Hawks in a National league game here.

Conacher has been out for a time in every one of his 10 N.H.L. seasons. Despite his injuries, he has had a brilliant hockey career, scoring an even 200 goals in N.H.L. play and 14 in Stanley Cup competition. Twice he led the league in points and four times in actual goal scoring.

Toronto Maple Leafs sold Conacher this fall to the Wings on a unique basis. The Wings agreed to pay the Leafs $15,000 over a period of years, providing Conacher was able to play. If Conacher is unable to finish this season, it will cost the Wings only Conacher's salary, which in turn is based to a considerable degree on his ability to score points.

Bobby Bauer, Boston, got the first and winning goal in game against the Hawks.

Detroit Hopeful Of 1944 Olympics

DETROIT, Dec. 7—(CP).—Detroit sport, industrial and civic leaders were confident today this Motor City has the best chance of any north American city to stage the 1944 Olympics with London and Rome, reported the outstanding European competitors for the honor.

The American Olympic committee at New York this week endorsed Detroit's invitation to stage the world's greatest sport event here after the Detroit committee outlined plans for an Olympic village and a new stadium with a capacity of 110,000 spectators. The American Olympic committee will report the invitation to the international committee, which is reported to have made tentative promises to London to stage the 1944 Olympics there.

Kampman Latest Leaf Casualty

Plagued by injuries this season, Toronto Maple Leafs had two more names added to the casualty list in their game against Canadiens last Saturday, when Gus Marker suffered an injured knee and Bingo Kampman a severely cut calf. Kampman, shown ABOVE, got caught in a tangle 15 seconds from the end of the game and emerged with a gash on his leg requiring about 50 stitches to patch up. The Flying Dutchman will be lost to the Leafs for probably two weeks. He had been paired with Reg. Hamilton on the defence and Jack Church was brought up from Syracuse to take his place.

Kansas City Squad To Get Shaking Up

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 7—(AP).—Officials of the Kansas City hockey club of the American Association announced last night a general "shake-up" in an effort to strengthen the team.

The first move in revamping the club was signing of three new forwards. They are Sammy Godin, right winger, purchased from Minneapolis, Alex McPherson and Paddy Paddon, both free agents formerly of Wichita. McPherson is a centre and Paddon a left wingman.

All three players were among the five leading scorers in the Association last season.

GRANTED HIS RELEASE

CHICAGO.— Tony Lazzeri, the "Mystery Man" of Chicago Cubs, wired Owner P. K. Wrigley for his relase today and it was granted immediately.

"Swing" Cagers Gain Decision

ONEONTA, N.Y., Dec. 7.—The Hartwick College basket-ball "swingsters" staged a "jam session" on Alfred University's floor and emerged victorious to the tune of 33 to 30.

They changed the words of a current hit and hummed: "A tisket, a tasket, drop that ball in the basket." And everyone concerned agreed the idea was a huge success.

Said Coach Glen Johnson, of Hartwick, after last night's performance in rhythm against Alfred:

"Swing music has it all over fundamentals in developing a basketball team."

Johnson introduced an innovation this season by having his cagers time their basket shots and formations to the strains of snappy piano music during practices.

"Unquestionably," he said, "the game revealed that music helped to speed up the timing of our plays and this was noticeable with the football men who reported late.

"The newly acquired rhythm produced a smooth-working combination and brought out the coordination in the team's offensive drives. Any system that wins is a success and we consider the experiment worthwhile."

Southern Winner

Playing a sensational game during the last two rounds of the rich Augusta open, Craig Wood, ABOVE, thundered down in front of the rest of a starry field to capture the largest slice of the $5,000 prize money. While the galleries were keeping their eyes on other stars, Wood did the third round in 69 and the last in 67 to wind up the winner. The Augusta open is one of the most important winter golf tournaments.

Kilby McDonald Leads Pack With 23 Points

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 7 (AP).—There seems to be no halting of Kilby McDonald, Philadelphia ace, in his runaway race for the International American Hockey League scoring honors. The perpetual leader tallied five more times during the past week to compile a total of 23 points.

The best Norman Locking of Syracuse, McDonald's closest competitor so far, could do was add two points to trail him by six in the official figures released today.

Doran of Syracuse only was penalized once, but his previous margin kept him in front for the league's "bad man" title. He has 10 minors and four majors chalked up against him.

Y.M.C.A. Boys Plan Program

Parents and friends of the Y.M.C.A. boys will be guests of the boys' division on Saturday, December 10, when a mid-winter exhibition of the gymnasium and swimming program of the 'Y' will take place. The proceeds of this gathering will help to maintan the work of the Y.M.C.A. in India which is supported almost entirely by contributions from the boys' divisions of North America.

G. S. Rose, a native secretary of Tirupattur, North Arcot, South India, tells of the work of the Y.M.C.A. among low caste underprivileged boys in his district. Boys who have to sleep in the streets at night in the heavily populated areas of India find the friendly hand of the Association trying to give them some of the comforts which they would othrewise never know.

President Bill Loomis of the boys' cabinet is most anxious that the Peterborough boys' do not fall down in their support of this work. The cabinet has invited a team of older boys from Toronto West End Y.M.C.A. to participate in the exhibition.

A team composed of Reg. Land, Joe Stewart, Harry Martin, Jack Mortimer, Harry Currie, Jim Ferguson, Bern Hamlin, Barney Dundas, Bill Loomis and Gerard O'Toole will uphold the honor of Peterborough against the Toronto invaders.

Demonstrations of the activities of all boys' classes will take place with about two hundred boys participating. Swimming competitions between West End and Peterborough and an exhibition of the learn to swim class will take place in the pool. The program will commence at eight o'clock Saturday night in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium.

U.S. Athletes Seek '38 Award

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The Sullivan award committee of the National Amateur Athletic Union presented to the convention tonight a list of ten candidates for the 1938 award which is given annually to the year's outstanding amateur athlete.

The candidates whose names will be submitted for votes to sports writers throughout the nation are:

Charles (Chuck) Fenske, University of Wisconsin miler.

Joe Burk, of Philadelphia, national sculling champion.

Charles E. Yates, of Atlanta, British Amateur golf champion and Walker Cup team star.

Mrs. Katherine Rawls Thompson, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., swimming star.

Adolf Kiefer, Chicago, men's all-round swimming star.

Don Lash, former Indiana University middle and distance running star, who now is an Indiana State policeman.

Patty Berg, Minneapolis, national women's golf champion.

The winner will be announced about the first of the year. The trophy was won last year by Don Budge, tennis star. Winners are not eligible for consideration a second time.

Judge Samuel E. Hoyt, of New Haven, was reelected president of the union. Miami, Fla., was selected for the 1939 meeting.

NEW SNOOKER RECORD

LEICESTER, England—(CP). — Joe Davis set a new world snooker break of 137 here, beating his own record set last year by two points. His break occupied less than six minutes.

Gallacher To Stoke

Stoke City, English League first division football club, paid Sunderland $23,600 for this player, Pat Gallacher, clever inside forward, as the teams continued to strengthen for the drive for league and cup honors. Scottish-born Gallacher had been with Sunderland since 1927.

Bombers' Season Nets 199 Points

WINNIPEG, Dec. 7 (C.P.).—Winnipeg Blue Bombers, who face Toronto Argonauts in the Dominion football final at Toronto on Saturday, scattered their scoring thrusts among 12 men this year as they won 11 games and lost three. Bombers counted 199 points to the opposition's 99.

Although swivel-hipped Fritz Hanson missed the first seven games of the Bomber schedule and most of the eighth because of a pre-season ankle injury, he led the team in scoring with 37 points.

Hanson, fast, elusive halfback from North Dakota State College, scored six touchdowns and converted one in the last three games of the Western Interprovincial Union schedule to win the Union scoring title with 31 points. He added another touchdown and converted it in the playoffs.

Greg Kabat, former Wisconsin University captain and veteran of six years with bombers, kicked six field goals and two points after touchdown in the three playoff games with Regina and Calgary to wind up in second place on the team scoring list with 33 points, nine field goals and six converts.

Bombers played three exhibition games with United States college teams under American rules, touchdowns counting six points. Russ Rebholz and Bud Marquardt each scored two touchdowns under the American code and Eddie James and Percy Daigle one each.

Luckless Brants Break Their Jinx To Whip Falls By 7-5 But It Takes An Extra Period

(By the Canadian Press.)

It's taken a long time, but Brantford Red Birds have broken into the win column of the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior A Division, even if overtime was necessary to do it.

Niagara Falls Brights, with Mickey Roach making his coaching debut, were the victims. Brants defeated them 7-5 through two goals in an extra period last night at Brantford. It was a sad start for Roach, former National League League player and minor league coach.

The win was Brantford's first in six starts, but it left them mired in the cellar. Meanwhile, Toronto Goodyears increased their league lead with a 3-0 shutout over Port Colborne Sailors. The latter and Brights are tied for the second slot, each with five points. Goodyears, with four wins and no losses, have eight.

It was a ding-dong battle in Brantford, the Birds flying from behind to take a 5-3 lead entering the final period. But the Falls staged a great comeback to tie the score. Brants waited for the breaks in overtime and won through a pair of Jacks, Kelly and Webster, who scored one each.

Storor Scores Three.

Young Ossie Storor was the hero with three goals and an assist for the winners. Other Brantford scorers in regulation time were Edmison and Webster. Ted Beatty played his usual sparkling game in the Birds' nets.

The veteran Chester Steele, with two, Steak Morrison, Whip Shortt, and Jack Mason, each with one, were the Falls' marksmen.

Toronto found the going tough in the small Port Colborne rink, but backed up by Herbie (Sweets) Mortimer in goal, they showed speed and combination to whitewash the Tars.

George Imlach counted for Toronto in the first period, with Eddie King and Shorty Robinson netting in the third, after a scoreless middle session. The re-arranged Sailors' lineup failed to click as it did on Friday when the Tars whipped the Brants 9-1. Mortimer perfomed sensationally in the Toronto twine to keep the Ports off the scoresheet.

Second place is at stake at Oshawa to-night when the G-Men meet St. Catharines.

BOXING'S FINEST

CAPE TOWN—(CP).—Max Baer is the finest fighting machine Ben Foord ever came up against, declared South Africa's native son, returning home after holding the British and Empire heavyweight boxing crown.

Tiny Arrives

A cigar and a big grin were the chief features of Tiny Thompson as he arrived in Detroit to take over the netminding duties of Jack Adams' floundering Red Wings. Tiny was sold by Boston Bruins for a reported price of $15,000 and a rookie, and takes over from Harvey Teno, who had succeeded Normie Smith in the Red Wings' goal.

Old Otonabee Boy Dies In Wolseley

WOLSELEY, Sask., Dec. 7—(CP)—William George Bennett, 64, Conservative member of the Saskatchewan legislature for Wolseley from 1921 to 1925, died here last night.

Born in Otonabee township, near Peterborough, he came west in 1893, and settled at Indian Head. He came to Wolseley in 1921. A successful farmer, Mr. Bennett had been retired in recent years.

Havelock Home And School Group Present Piano To Trustees

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Dec. 7.—The Havelock Home and School Association met Tuesday evening in the High School, with an excellent attendance of sixty adults and eight children. The president, Mrs. Walter Nobes, took the chair for the opening exercises, commencing with the singing of "O Canada," and followed by prayer by Rev. Andrew McLauchlin. The treasurer reported a bank balance of $12.16, all expenses being paid to date.

The election of officers is to be held at the January meeting and a nominating committee was appointed, being composed of Mesdames C. Taylor, H. Pollock and Wm. Forsythe.

A special feature of the meeting was the official presentation of the piano, recently purchased by the Home and School Association, to the public school board of trustees and teaching staff. Principal Duncan, on behalf of the staff, and Trustee George Iles, on behalf of the school board, expressed the thanks of both.

Mrs. Brisbin, convener of the program next month, announced that the theme of the meeting would be education. The members will respond to the roll call with a "New Year's Resolution," and be prepared to enter a spelling match. Principal Duncan will speak on the subject, "The changing curriculum meets the needs of modern living."

The program began with the singing of two Christmas carols, "The First Nowell" and "Hark the Herald Angels Sing."

The story of "The Other Wise Man" was interestingly portrayed by Rev. and Mrs. Andrew McLaughlin.

Mrs. D. J. Holdcroft, Miss Bessie Thompson and Miss Margaret Jones sang as a vocal trio, "Silent Night."

The monthly presentation of the adult attendance shield was made this meeting to Miss E. Roberts' class.

The meeting concluded with God Save the King.

Manvers Council Asks For Highway

BETHANY, Dec. 7.—The Manvers council met on Saturday with all the members present.

The following communications were received: From sheep valuators, reporting losses of sheep killed by dogs. From deputy minister of health reporting one admitted to Kingston Mental Hospital in 1914. Clerk was instructed to write to the minister and report no one by that name was known in the township at that date.

From Inspector of School showing amounts of county school grants. From deputy minister public welfare as to persons on relief not to hold driving permits for motor vehicles.

A deputation of unemployed men appeared before the council and requested the council to ask provincial government to open up some work on the proposed highways through the townships, so that they might have some employment during the coming winter.

It was moved by Councillor Payne, seconded by deputy-reeve Boggs that the clerk be instructed to write the minister of highways and Cecil Mercer, M.P.P., urging them to do all they can to meet the wishes of the deputation.

Bylaw No 1149, to appoint deputy returning officers, poll clerk and to name the place for holding the next municipal election was passed.

Thugs Beat Chinaman Steal Ring But Miss $310

Toronto, Dec. 7 (CP)

A ROLL OF BILLS containing $310 lay unnoticed in a lane here last night after its Chinese owner threw it to the ground as a pair of hold-up men attacked him. The Chinese, John Sing Lo, was badly mauled and had to be treated at hospital. He said the men took a $100 diamond ring from him.

The robbers took his passport case, but Lo threw his bankroll to the ground where it was unnoticed. Police searching the area found it about an hour afterwards.

2,000 Fire Bombs Load For One Plane

LONDON, Dec. 7—(CP-Havas)—A large bomber can carry 2,000 incendiary bombs of the new "Kilo Electron" type and release 20 per second, each starting a fire over a large area, it was disclosed at a meeting of the Society of Chemical Industry.

Addressing a group of scientists and engineers, Arthur Ralph Astbury, technical adviser in the air raids precautions department of the Home Office, revealed details of the new incendiary bomb.

Twenty bombs released each second at a height of 5,000 feet over areas "containing 15 per cent buildings might be able to start a fire over 60 or 70 yards," Astbury said. The bomb gives off jets of flame throwing magnesium as far as 50 feet and burning for 10 or 20 minutes.

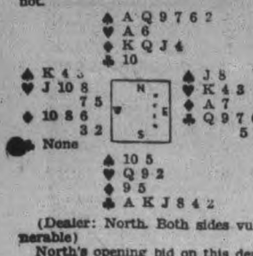
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T MIND SNEERS

PLAYERS WHO DO not understand the principles of fine bridge are prone to sneer at some of the best work done by their superiors on contracts which could be made by lazy declarers using very unsound tactics. Just because it turns out that a simple finesse would have worked is no reason for berating careful efforts to build up an air-tight lead-throwing end-play. The hardened campaigner must learn not to mind sneers at such work, for he knows he has made his contract sure, regardless of whether the finesse would have worked or not.



(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable)

North's opening bid on this deal was 1-Spade, to which South responded with 2-Clubs. After 2-Spades by North and 3-Clubs by South, North bid his diamonds and South went to 3-No Trump.

West led the heart J and East won with the K. He returned the heart 4 to dummy's A, and South then finessed the club 10, which held. Next came the lead of the diamond K and the diamond J. East took the latter with the A and led his last heart to South's Q. The Clubs A and K were cashed and East thrown in with the lead of the club J to the Q. After winning another trick with his club 9, South had East in the position where he had to give him a club trick or lead up to the tenace in spades. No matter what East returned, the remainder of the tricks belonged to declarer.

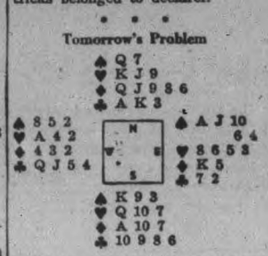
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable)

What is South's correct play to make his 3-No Trump contract, the spade 8 having been the original lead?

UNBOUNDED FAITH IN THE FUTURE AIDED FOLEY AND WILSON

Century Old Elm Trees Stand As Giant Sentinels Guarding Garage, Show Rooms

Century-old elms standing like giant sentinels, holding mammoth umbrellas aloft and a background of rich green spruce and pines form a setting of rare beauty for the new show rooms of Foley and Wilson at the corner of Reid and McDonnel streets.

Nature was lavish in her preparation for the building recently completed. The trees along the front of the business took at least a hundred years to grow, and the bank of evergreens pushing above the building in the rear form a back-drop that makes one think the building a cosy wayside inn, nestling among the pines in the Tennessee hills of the southern states.

The general color scheme of the building is restful. Orange and black trim reduce the brilliance of the white stucco, and the large windows of the show room at the eastern end of the building, fit into the picture nicely.

General Contractor.

Malcolm McIntyre had the general contract for the new building which consisted of a show room and large repair shop in the rear and to the east of the small building which was built about 1930. The overall dimensions of the structure are approximately 70 by 70, with a forty-foot frontage to the show room and plenty of depth, so that a number of new cars may be on display at the same time.

The alterations and additions were extensive in order that the structure would present a balanced picture and conform to the location, setting as it does diagonally across the corner in front of the bank of evergreen trees. A small barber shop which originally occupied a position close to the first building was moved some distance farther east to provide for a large area which will be required as a used car lot.

The roof of the old building was raised, and steel beams formed the framework for the show room addition to the east. Windows occupy the entire front of the show room and another large plate glass window was placed in the east wall to catch the sunlight in the morning and give customers and sightseers a better view of the cars from the side.

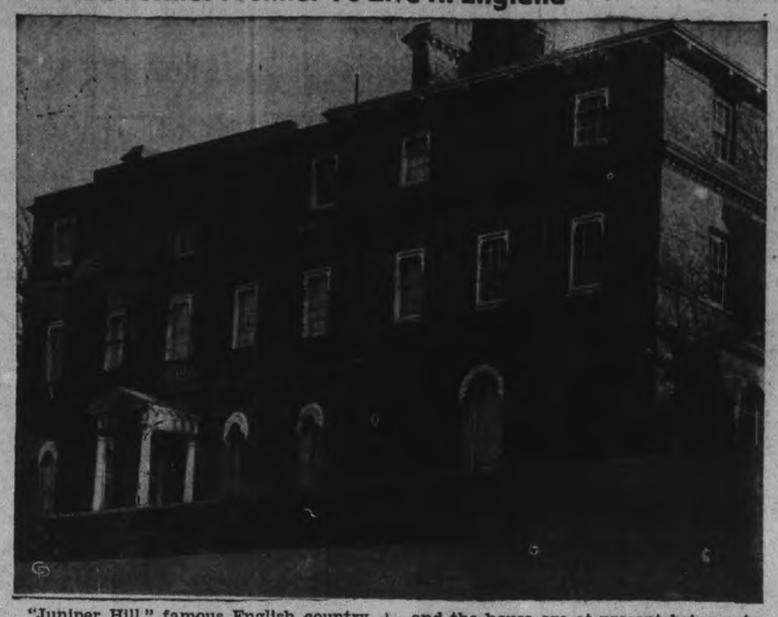
George Goodfellow, 466 Bonacord street, had the sub-contract for the cement work, and the cement floor which extends throughout the entire new wing and show room. This has been painted with a smart grey color that is recognized as most suitable for this type of floor.

W. Gordon Hall, 88 London street, and electrical contractor did the wiring and installed the fixtures. The lighting system is outstanding and the maximum in light values is obtained by white walls in the show room. P. G. Wallace, 187 London street, plumbing and heating contractor had both of these sub-contracts. The heating is a hot water system with down draft fans suspended from the ceiling, on the same plan as is followed in large industrial plants to-day. This type of heating system is regarded by experts as ideal for garages, show rooms or factories.

Disher Steel Company of Toronto supplied the structural steel, while Bains of Toronto supplied the reinforcing steel used in the concrete floors.

J. Wolstenholm, veteran plastering contractor, did the plastering and stucco work on the building, while Fred H. Rowan, 459 King street, had the sub-contract to do the roofing. He furnished Birds' Twin Shingles of asphalt, which are fireproof, and the color pattern in the roof is striking and attractive. H. R. Scott, Ltd., George street, supplied the lumber and millwork.

Canada's Former Premier To Live In England



"Juniper Hill," famous English country home, will shortly become the permanent residence of R. B. Bennett, former Prime Minister of Canada. The spacious grounds and the house are at present being extensively renovated before Mr. Bennett takes up residence. The estate is situated near Mickleham, Surrey.

Two Native Sons Made Good In Garage Business

Two native sons with unbounded faith in the future of Peterborough extend a cordial invitation to the citizens of the district to visit their newly completed show rooms on the north-east corner of McDonnell and Reid street on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The two, Reuben N. Wilson and William E. Foley, formed a partnership back in June of 1932 starting in a humble way with a small service station and repair shop. Last week contractors put the finishing touches to a $12,000 addition that is as modern in its appearance and construction as the 1939 cars, that now grace the show rooms.

Every person visiting the place of business on any or all of the three days will receive a door prize ticket and on Saturday at ten o'clock the draw for three valuable prizes will be made.

First prize is a handsome carving set, the second an electric toaster, donated by Walter Head, and the third prize, a pair of chrome plated auto horns donated by the Peterborough Automotive Sales. Tickets will be handed to everyone then they must be signed and dropped in a large box from which the selection will be made.

Born in City

Reuben Wilson was born in this city, and for many years was foreman of the repair shop at Gillespie's Garage. He is rated as tops by his colleagues and is a master mechanic on motor repair work. At the present time he is president of the local branch of the Garage Operators' Association. He directs the work of the repair shop and the staff of four mechanics, every one being a first class man, holds qualification certificates from the Department of Labor. The personnel of the repair shop is as follows, Ernest Turney, Tom Abraham, Roy Spinks, Everett Hales and Reuben Wilson.

William E. Foley, the other partner is also a native son. He is widely known through his business affiliations during the past fifteen years in the city. For some time he was sales manager for the Greene Music Company and later was special representative for the Heintzman Piano Company in Peterborough and district.

Salesman of the Firm

Mr. Foley is primarily the salesman, most of the repair work devolving upon Mr. Wilson. His friendly manner makes him particularly suited to the tas kof meeting the public, and he invite particularly all of his old friends to drop in during the last three tays of this week and inspect the new building and the new models.

In 1932 the partnership was formed and in 1934 they obtained the agency for Nash and Lafayette cars. Four of the 1939 models were brought down from Toronto and will be on display on Thursday.

Another member of the organization is C. C. McIntyre who is accountant.

The scope of the repair work is almost unlimited. The mechanics are qualified to make repairs to all types of cars, and in view of high qualifications of each man, customers may be assured of the finest quality workmanship, under the critical eye of the foreman, Reuben Wilson.

Roseneath Societies Combine For An Attractive Bazaar

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Dec. 7. — The annual bazaar sponsored by the W. M.S. and the W.A. of the United Church was held on Saturday afternoon in the Town Hall. The affair was a success financially and socially. The various departments with their wares attractively displayed, combined with the season's colors, formed a pleasing decorative scheme. Mrs. A. J. Campbell was convener of the home cooking department, her assistants being Mrs. D. Brisbin, Mrs. R. Crego, Mrs. A. Halstead, and Mrs. Charlton Grigg.

Mrs. Andrew Brown was convener of the farm department, assisted by Mrs. J. A. Nichol, Mrs. T. Carew, and Mrs. Alfred Braithwaite.

The needlework department was in charge of Mrs. L. Turner, the convener, and assisting were Mrs. C. W. Varcoe, Mrs. W. Smith, and Mrs. L. Brisbin.

The candy table in charge of Mrs. M. Davey, assisted by Miss Mary Braithwaite, and the fish pond with Mrs. L. W. Scott, Mrs. E. Braithwaite, and Mrs. A. Nill in charge, were rivals with the younger folk, as they patronized both departments generously.

Mrs. C. Sandercock, Mrs. S. Thackeray, Mrs. Arthur Braithwaite, and Mrs. E. Sandercock in charge of the tea tables were kept busy serving from four to six o'clock. Their menu, scalloped potatoes, salmon loaf, pickles, bread, butter, sandwiches, cake, pie and tarts, and tea, was served from daintily appointed tables, and those attending the bazaar, along with others coming in later, patronized this department.

Rev. L. W. Scott opened the bazar at three o'clock, when the ribbon was cut allowing the patrons admission to the tables.

Personals.

368 Traffic Deaths In Eight Months

OTTAWA, Dec. 7—(CP)—Growth of highway traffic accidents engaged the attention of a conference of Dominion and Provincial Health Ministers here to-day. Regarding the toll of life exacted in highway crashes as an important public health factor, the conference decided to take steps to co-operate with Provincial Highway Departments in an effort to reduce loss of life.

The Provincial Ministers and the Dominion Council of Health met under the chairmanship of Health Minister Power. They agreed that accident prevention propaganda nad failed to affect any material decrease in fatalities.

For Ontario's Health Minister, Hon. H. J. Kirby, the Provincial Chief Medical Officer, Dr. J. T. Phair, presented a memorandum showing there had been 368 killed and 7,185 injured in Ontario for the first eight months of 1938. This had prompted the question whether official interest in the prevention of accidents was a Health Department responsibility.

Mr. Power thought it was. The conference thereupon decided to appoint a sub-committee to study the problem with a vie wto suggesting some method of dealing with it.

Kingston Re-elects Mayor Stewart

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 7—(CP). —Dut to an error in compilation, it was announced to-day that Dr. A. E. Ross, who was listed as unsuccessful aldermanic candidate in Ontario ward Monday had been elected.

A mistake of 100 votes was made in adding up totals.

Dr. Ross is a former Conservative Member of Parliament for Kingston. He had a total of 505 votes. Ald. H. C. Nickle was also elected, with 463. Two other candidates in the ward, Ald. A. E. Harbeson and Ald. H. N. Robertson each polled 451 votes, thereby creating a tie for the third aldermanic position in the ward.

There will be a recount by the returning officer and, if a tie still exists, the returning officer will cast a deciding vote.

Mayor Dr. H. A. Stewart was re-elected over Dr. W. W. Sands, former city clerk by 4,525 to 2,456.

NEW ADDITION IS ADDED TO FOLEY AND WILSON GARAGE

Bill Foley Sees Building Up Along Number 7

William E. Foley, partner in the firm of Foley and Wilson, who will throw open their new show-rooms to the public on Thursday, predicted today that if Peterborough continues to grow as it has during the past few years, the long hill on the Chemong Road will become the most desirable suburban residential area in the district.

He explained that the tendency today is to build homes on high ground, not only because it affords plenty of sunshine and good drainage, but because invariably smoke from factory stacks follow the valley. This can be noticed any day if one is to stand on any of the hills which flank the city.

Fine Building Sites.

Mr. Foley contends that No. 7 highway, which is paved, running north out of the city, passes exceptional building sites on each side of the road as it slopes up to the top of the long hill just north of the city's northern boundary. He believes that wealthy people will soon start building homes in that district, the same as is taking place to the west of Highway 28.

The location of the service station and show rooms at the corner of Reid and McDonnel Streets was chosen because it is in the centre of a new business section which is growing each year west of Aylmer Street as the city expands to the west. They were influenced considerably by the fact that No. 7 Highway coming from Lindsay and Chemong cut down through the city at this point, following Reid Street.

McDonnel Street will serve the same purpose to the north of Hunter Street that Charlotte does below, that is, be a main traffic artery to the western part of the city and No. 7 Highway. This highway also marks one of the gateways to the Kawarthas and the Haliburton highlands and a few far-sighted men claim that some day the route across the Chemong bridge will lead to Huntsville.

Practical Men.

Mr. Foley and his genial partner, Reuben Wilson, have confidence that Peterborough will steadily grow, and both are blessed not only with the courage and ability that marks the business man, but with unbounded optimism and humor. Both are practical men, thoroughly fitted to serve the public in the capacities they now enjoy, and their many friends wish them continued success in the new building.

Quebec Goldfields Asquire New Railroad Line

The rich gold fields of Northwestern Quebec acquired direct transportation with the opening of a new railroad line between Senneterre and Rouyn. The new branch line was officially opened by Hon. Onesime Gagnon, Quebec's Minister of Mines, who is shown RIGHT, assisted by S. J. Hungerford, president and chairman of the Canadian National Railways, cutting the golden ribbon to open the line. The traditional gold spike, to mark the completion of the line, was driven by Hon. C. D. Howe, LEFT, Federal Minister of Transport.

Labor Advocates Better Army For Dominion

MONTREAL, Dec. 7—(CP)—The Canadian Federation of Labor today discussed its executive's report which ridiculed both the policy of "passive resistance to threats of armed aggression" and the proposal of a war plebiscite It urged extension of Canada's armed forces and their better equipment.

The executive board said that Canada's defences are "utterly inadequate" for the protection of the country against foreign military aggression. "In the opinion of the board the aim should be to enrol a citizen army on a part-time basis," the executive board reported, adding "it is believe that there would be no lack of volunteers if reasonable allowances were paid and if such elementary provision were made as the equipment of the men with boots and winter clothing."

The board also urged coordination of Canada's two railways and of its road and water transport so as to eliminate duplication. It said the solution of the railway problem is "imperative" if Canada is to escape national bankruptcy.

No Immigrants

Other recommendations of the board urged government financial assistance to encourage house-building and other private construction; solution of the unemployment problem before imigration is again facilitated my the state or permitted on a large scale by other agencies; federal regulation of working hours by amendment to the British North America Act; legislation compelling registration of unions as in British Columbia; compulsory insurance against unemployment and amendment of existing provincial laws regarding freedom of association so that workers "could enjoy the heritage which is theirs."

The federation was reminded in an address prepared by W. M. Dickson, federal deputy minister of labor, that it was "only under democracy" that labor leaders were free to do their work The address, read by R. H. Riggs of Ottawa, director of the Employment Service of Canada, urged the delegates to use arbitration methods, not strikes, to settle industrial disputes He said strikes and lockouts placed democracies at a disadvantage to dictatorships where workers were regimented and no economic waste such as a strike was permitted.

Buyer Fingers Drapes As Wife Rescues $1,000 Rings In Seam

San Francisco, Dec. 7 (AP)

AN EXCITED WOMAN rushed into the Salvation Army salvage shop. She wanted to see window drapes. Her husband, she told Brigadier Joseph Sturm, had just given their discarded drapes to the Salvation Army. Sturm found them—in the hands of a prospective buyer. The woman felt along the seam — and found two platinum rings set with diamonds. "They're worth more than $1,000," she said.

Euchre Party Held By St. Mark's Guild

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Dec. 7. — The fortnightly euchre party sponsored by the St. Mark's Ladies' Guild was held on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Will Davis. About fifty guests were present, including visitors from Springville and Lakefield, and a very enjoyable evening was spent. There were eight tables of progressive euchre, Mrs. Donald Davis taking the ladies' prize, Will Hawthorne of Lakefield the men's and John Payne capturing the consolation award. Following the card games, a social hour was spent and lunch served, the evening ending with a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Davis for her hospitality.

Guild Meets.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Guild of St. Mark's was held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Robert Tighe, with a fair number of members and visitors present. The meeting opened with the Lord's Prayer. Mrs. V. Jackson gave a Scripture reading from St. Matthew, and Mrs. E. Cooper read a short Christmas story. Finished quilt blocks were handed in, and various other items of business disposed of. The winner of the lucky cent jar was Mrs. Carl Cooper. After a discussion on the next euchre party, it was decided to postpone the affair till after the Christmas season. The meeting closed with a hymn. After the hymn a social hour was spent, and a delightful lunch served by Mrs. Albert Cooper, assisted by her two daughters-in-law.

Rev. J. W. Wilkinson gave his second talk on the Life of Christ last week. He made it so interesting that after the lesson closed nearly everyone remained to talk and ask questions. Some do not yet know about these studies. They are non-denominational. Rev. Mr. Walker is taking the study of the Old Testament, Rev. J. W. Wilkinson of the New Testament, and Dr. Munro of the Life of St. Paul. There is no charge, not even a collection. These gentlemen take turns on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the United Church Sunday School Room.

W.M.S. Meeting.

There was a good attendance of members of the United Church W. M.S. on Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. Allan Taylor in the chair. After opening devotions a pleasing financial statement was given. Both the quilt and wool comforters were sold. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson gave a synopsis of next year's study book, and also spoke of the splendid work of the president and of the executive. Mr. Wilkinson took charge of the nominations and election of officers for 1939 as follows: President, Mrs. G. G. Taylor; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Allan Taylor; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. David Miller; recording secretary, Mrs. Harold Payne; treasurer, Mrs. Wilkinson; associate helper, field secretary, Mrs. Wilkinson; assistant, Mrs. Roland Payne; press secretary, Mrs. D. Miller; strangers' secretary, Mrs. A. Edwards; literature secretary, Mrs. Roland Payne; peace and temperance, Mrs. Robert Moore; expense, Mrs. Stuart Clysdale; pianist, Mrs. Wilkinson; assistant, Mrs. R. Payne; auditors, Mrs. Allan Payne, Mrs. A. Edwards. The meeting closed with a hymn and prayer.

The wiring of the parsonage was completed within the past week.

Land Formed Part Dumble Property

Probably few pieces of property changed hands less than the land now occupied by Foley and Wilson's service station and show rooms at the intersection of McDonnel and Reid streets.

The property was part of the old Dumble estate and for years the late David Dumble, magistrate occupied the house at the top of the hill directly north of the service station. Following his death the estate was disposed of, Braunds buying the house and land immediately adjoining while Bradburns purchased the lower portion.

About 1926 C. Hughes built a small service station and erected a single gasoline pump on the corner, but sold out in 1932 to Foley and Wilson. They made some improvements in 1932 when they first occupied the premises but more recently put their business on a par with the large repair shops in the city with the addition of a large one storey repair shop, and a one storey show rooms to the east of the small building that was first built.

Omemee Veterans Hold Banquet

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, Dec. 7.—The war veterans of Omemee held a banquet in Coronation Hall, when a goodly number of veterans with their wives and friends enjoyed a most sumptuous dinner, prepared by the ladies of the Women's Institute.

Following the banquet Frank Brown, president, acted as toastmaster.

The president proposed the toast to the British Empire, which was responded to by Rev. F. G. MacTavish. The toast to Our Guests was proposed by L. M. Curtis and responded to by Reeve Guiry, of Emily and Reeve Harry Endicott of Omemee.

L. Brooks led in community singing, accompanied on the piano by Miss Bernice Northey.

The remainder of the evening was spent in card playing and dancing.

Mrs. Lorne Middleton (nee Alta Magee), Mrs. Morgan Bigelow (nee Hilda Magee) were guests of honor at a social evening held in the Parish Hall Thursday evening by the members of Christ church, Omemee.

After an enjoyable program of contests and games, Mrs. Bigelow and Mrs. Middleton were asked to come forward. Miss Caroline McQuade read an address and Miss Mildred Jones presented each of the ladies with a lovely woollen blanket.

Mrs. Middleton and Mrs. Bigelow thanked their friends for their thoughtfulness.

Lunch was then served by committee in charge.

Christmas Bazaar Is Held In Lakefield

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 7.—The annual Christmas Tea and sale of Fancy Work and Home Cooking arranged by the Women's Auxiliary of St. John the Baptist Anglican church, Lakefield, was held in the Parish Hall here on Thursday last and was most successful.

The Christmas colors, red and green, were used in a tasteful decorative scheme. The candy looked particularly attractive, cotton wool to represent snow, being combined with touches of green in a most effective arrangement. A lighted candle on each of the tea tables lent warmth and charm to the scene. Mrs. B. Q. Dench, president of the Auxiliary, was in charge of the service of afternoon tea. Mrs. Percy Hill and Misses Kathleen Mose and Ruby Marsden served. Mrs. O. A. Langley and Mrs. W. J. Todd presided at the fancy work table. Mrs. H. J. Stuart and Mrs. J. Twist were responsible for the home cooking table, and Miss Hazel Crawford and Miss A. Atwood were in charge of the candy booth. Mrs. Geo. Hutt presided over the fish pond.

The association is indebted to Mrs. (Rev.) H. R. Howden, Miss Hazel Crawford and Miss Elizabeth Twist for the tasteful decorations.

Quebec Slide Kills 7 Down Mine

Dynamite Explosion 2 Hours Earlier Blamed For Tragedy

THETFORD MINES, Que., Dec. 8—(CP).—A rock-slide two hours after a dynamite blast in the Bell asbestos mine here brought death last night to seven miners who were buried alive. Early today three of the bodies had been recovered.

The men were only 20 feet below the head of the shaft, clearing away debris from the blast, when the sudden slide occurred. One body was recovered last night, another about midnight and the third early this morning. Two men escaped uninjured in the slide.

Names of the dead were given as follows: Joseph Perron, Edmond Emery, Ludger Aubut, Louis Nadeau, Donat Gregoire, Albert Lemieux and Adolphe Theberge.

The bodies of Perron, Emery and Aubut were recovered.

First reports said the nine men were clearing away loose rock in the mine after the dynamite blast about 5.40 p.m. yesterday. About two hours later, without warning, a pile of rock swept down on the working men.

Workmen from the Johns-Manville plant here and the Asbestos Corporation immediately set to work with employees of the Bell Mine clearing away the rock.

Perron's body was the first to be recovered, not long after the slide occurred. After several more hours of feverish work the searchers found the crushed body of Emery. Throughout the night they worked, finally coming upon the body of Aubut.

Manager O. C. Smith of Bell mine said all the men were married and all had been employed at the mine "for some years."

The mine is controlled by the Keasby-Mattison Corporation, a Pennsylvania firm.

Without warning, the entire wall of the Bell-Johnstone mine collapsed about 25 feet from the mouth and down an incline of about 100 feet.

Manila Typhoon Takes 19 Lives

MANILA, Dec. 8 (AP).—A typhoon swept over several provinces southeast of Manila today, leaving thousands homeless, causing floods over a wide area, and disrupting communications. Meagre reports listed 19 dead.

The storm passed south of Manila, hit Northern Mindoro Island and swept into the China Sea. All sectors reported heavy damage to private and public properties, and to crops.

A typhoon signal, indicating the centre of the storm was over the region, was hoisted in Sorsogon, Albay and Camarines Sur Provinces. Masbate, Romblon, Marinduque, Leyte, Samar and South Tayabas Provinces also were hit hard.

Communication lines in 15 provinces were damaged.

As the centre of the typhoon passed over the Sorosogon region of Southern Luzon Island, one of the lowest barometric readings in the history of the Philippines — 28.50 — was registered.

Eighteen dead were reported on Samar Island and one in Camarines Sur Province.

The city of Legaspi reported the strongest typhoon in many years. Two dredge boats worth $100,000 were sunk in the harbor there.

Last Minute News Flashes

TORONTO — The Ontario Conservative convention opened this afternoon with about 800 delegates in the hall.

The credentials committee had not completed its work. Another 700 delegates were expected before the convention closed.

Every precaution had been taken to assure a fair and honest convention, said Cecil Frost, Lindsay, president of the Ontario Conservative Association, and convention chairman pro-tem.

Convention proceedings were interrupted by the arrival of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson who received a prolonged ovation.

DETROIT — Father Charles E. Coughlin, pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower, filed a suppressed suit for $2,000,000 against the Detroit Free Pres in Wayne County Circuit Court today, charging libel.

"Press" Minister?

U.S. Army, Navy Tighten Lid On Secrets

New Rules Safeguard Forts, Warships, Planes After Recent Spy Scare

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—The Army and Navy are quietly tightening the lid on military secrets, in preparation for the speeding up of the United States' defence program.

New rules to safeguard forts, warships and planes, indications of a closer tab on aliens in aircraft plants, and a recent hint by President Roosevelt that more funds would be sought from Congress to combat spies gave evidence to-day of increased caution.

Military circles heard that regulations were nearing completion to "keep unauthorized map makers and photographers away from army posts, naval vessels, and aircraft. Congress authorized the step early this year.

Some aliens on whom suspicion rested have been discharged in recent months or transferred from plants making warplanes for the Army and Navy, informed persons said.

The new military regulations about photographs are based on an Act which authorized the President to define vital military and naval installations where it should be illegal to make any photograph or drawing without permission and censorship.

Army and Navy officials have been defining the "vital" areas, ships and planes. Penalties range up to $1,000 fine and a year's imprisonment even to give away an unauthorized photograph.

Marler Action Is Dismissed

TORONTO, Dec. 8 — (CP). — Mr. Justice W. D. Roach dismissed in weekly court to-day an action brought by Leonard Marler for $300,000 against his father, Sir Herbert Marler, Canadian Minister to Washington, and Dr. George H. Stevenson, superintendent of the Ontario Hospital at London.

Mr. Justice Roach, deciding on an appeal by the Ontario Attorney-General, ruled the action could not be brought against Dr. Stevenson without consent of the Attorney-General because the hospital superintendent was in the employ of the Ontario Health Department.

Young Marler charged he was wrongfully committed to the London hospital to prevent his marriage to Janet White of Syracuse, N.Y. Sir Herbert Marler was not represented by counsel in the motion for dismissal.

Four Are Injured

COBOURG, Ont., Dec. 8 (C.P.).—Four people were taken to Cobourg Hospital last night following a motor collision near Grafton. Said to be the driver of one car, Clinton Davis of Belleville suffered minor bruises. Driver of the other car, Court Smith of Oshawa suffered chest injuries. His wife suffered a broken knee cap and a niece, Mrs. V. Winfield, also of Oshawa, suffered scalp lacerations. Provincial Constable H. McKellar of Port Hope investigated.

Boasts To Girls Of Coming Wealth Boomerang On Youth In Holdup

CALGARY, Dec. 8.—(CP)—A tale of story-book plot to rob a bank and boastful hints to girl friends of impending "big" events was told in police court yesterday before Magistrate D. C. Sinclair ordered three 19-year-old Calgary youths be tried in the Supreme Court of Alberta on charges of assault with intent to rob and conspiracy to rob the Dominion Bank here Nov. 15.

James Kirley was committed for trial on one charge of assault with intent to rob. Leonard Hargreaves, charged with conspiracy to rob, and Leonard Hogarth, accused of assault with intent to rob, were remanded for trial on bonds of $1,000.

Two girls testified at the preliminary hearing that Kirley had hinted about wealth for himself, or possibly disaster.

C. W. Jones, Dominion Bank manager, Thomas Easton, teller, and other employees stated Kirley gained admittance to the bank prior to opening time Nov. 15, and that Kirley held his hand in his coat pocket, suggestive of a gun.

But when Kirley tried to enter the teller's cage, Easton who was behind a pillar, fired two shots. Jones, and Reg Mawer, junior clerk, overpowered Kirley, according to evidence.

Detective Malcolm Boyd of Calgary police force said Kirley had given him a statement, admitting plans of bank holdup and conspiring with Hogarth and Hargreaves to rob the Dominion Bank.

Tips Germany, Italy Uniting On Rome's Demands Give France New Scare

Hitler Reported Calling Meet At Munich To Determine Next Move Of The Flaunted Rome-Berlin Axis

By Charles Foltz (Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

PARIS, Dec. 8 (AP).—Concern spread in France today on reports from the Spanish frontier that Italian troops were concentrating in insurgent Spain within easy striking distance of France.

These reports, which lacked official confirmation, said the Italian troop movement had begun November 22 and was still incomplete. Reports also spread that Germany and Italy were uniting to enforce Italy's territorial demands on France.

Thousands of students, demonstrating against the Italian clamor for Tunisia and Corsica, battled police in Paris streets.

President Albert LeBrun unexpectedly summoned Premier Daladier for consultations on developments in the increasing strain on French-Italian relations.

Cries of "Venice for France' and "Ethiopia for the Negus" were raised by the students as they paraded before the Pantheon and along Boulevard Saint Michel in the Latin quarter of Paris.

At the corner of Boulevards Saint Michel and Saint Germain the students hurled themselves against police lines and were thrown back by police reinforcements.

Trouble In Tunis

TUNIS, Tunisia, Dec. 8 (AP)—Police clashed with hundreds of Italian citizens and arrested scores in this French protectorate today when the Italians attempted to demonstrate in support of Fascist claims on Tunisia.

Among those arrested was Ubaldo Rey, head of the Italian war veterans in Tunis, president of the Fascist Dopolavoro Society and a leader in the Italian community in Tunisia — numbering 94,289 at the last census.

Italy, Germany Uniting?

PARIS, Dec. 8 (AP)—France was shaken by reports today that Germany and Italy were uniting on Italian demands for more power in the Mediterranean at the expense of France.

As German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop ended his Paris visit, which resulted in the signing of the French-German war renunciation pact, the political writer Pertinax wrote:

"Germany conspires against the French empire at the very moment when she promises to respect her continental frontiers."

A number of French observers reported Chancellor Hitler would call an Italian-German conference at Munich to determine the next move of the Rome-Berlin axis.

The conference, they said, was decided upon after a reported demand by Premier Mussolini that Germany support Italy in her campaign for Tunisia and Corsica.

These reports weakened in some quarters and strengthened in others Premier Daladier's reported plan to use the international situation to obtain a favorable vote.

Farmer And Son Doomed To Be Deaf

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Dec. 8—(CP).—Condition of Richard Fleming and his son Percy, West Huntingdon township farmers injured Monday when a blast of dynamite exploded, was reported as "fair" last night.

"Both will be deaf, that is certain," Dr. J. H. Forester, eye specialist said. "Their ear drums were blown out by the force of the explosion. It is still doubtful whether either man will be able to see again."

The accident occurred when the two were blasting large stones in a field on their farm. They set off two sticks of dynamite. One stick exploded. The second exploded as they went to investigate its lengthy delay. Chips of stone struck them in the face and about the body.

Movie, Radio Stars In Smuggling Case

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (AP). — A United States Federal prosecutor said today that several movie and radio stars had received goods smuggled into the United States by Albert Chaperau, self-styled Nicaraguan commercial attache and cosmopolite.

The same grand jury which voted smuggling indictments against Chaperau and Mrs. Elma Lauer, wife of a New York State Supreme Court justice, has called for testimony Katharine Hepburn, George Burns, Jack Benny, Wallace Ford, Joseph Moskowitz, movie executive, and Ralph Hitz, hotel magnate.

Joseph Delaney, assistant United States district attorney, said the witnesses had received smuggled articles of clothing or jewelry from Chaperau, and he wanted to give them an opportunity to explain their possession.

"They can be prosecuted under the law but we do not wish to do that if proper explanations are given," he said.

Chaperau is accused by the government of using diplomatic immunity to bring in the smuggled goods. He was held in default of $20,000 bail.

The government has asked Canadian, British, French and Australian authorities for any records they have on Chaperau.

Ireland may tax foreign games.

Stabs Sweetheart "No Reason At All"

OAKLAND, Calif., Dec. 8 (AP).—Police reported today a young railway clerk confessed that "for no reason at all" he fatally stabbed Leona Vlught, 19, former University of California student, as they sat in his parked automobile in the Oakland Hills after a 2 a.m. "date."

The clerk, Rodney Greig, 21, of Berkeley, was being held on an open charge.

Inspectors Lucien Jewell and Tom Duffy said Greig told them that he and Miss Vlught drove into the hills and parked at a spot known as "Lovers' Lane."

Jewell quoted the clerk as saying he gave Leona his hunting knife and told her she didn't have nerve enough to use it. She gave it back to him.

"Then, for no reason at all, I let her have it," Greig was quoted.

150 Officers Jailed In Plot To End Soviets In Ukraine

Paris, Dec. 8 (CP-Havas)

THE PARIS-MIDI today published a report emanating from Riga, Latvia, describing the discovery of Soviet military authorities of a conspiracy to destroy Soviet rule in the Ukraine and establish an independent state there.

The report said 150 Red army officers, including 25 colonels, had been arrested in connection with the plot, which was said to have been arrested in connection with the plot, which was said to have been financed and otherwise aided from abroad.

The plot included plans to assassinate Soviet leaders in the Ukraine, to organize a nationalist movement among the peasants, and create an autonomous regime, the dispatch said.

Rawdon Farmer Feared Lost In Moira River

Wife Is At Home In Bed With New-Born Babe Searchers Comb District

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Dec. 8. — Fears that James Bronson, 52-year-old Rawdon township farmer had perished in the Moira River near Madoc were entertained by a tired posse of police and farmers who have searched in vain for 24 hours over a large area.

The man suffered a heart attack on Tuesday morning, and in the early part of the afternoon left to walk to his brother's farm, a mile north of his own home. He has not been seen since. The river is about a mile west on a straight line running north and south between the two farms.

Bronson had wanted to go to Madoc village six miles distant to transact some banking business but his car had broken down, and he hoped to have his brother Albert drive him there. Enquiries at the village revealed Bronson did not arrive there, nor did he arrive at his brother's home.

Provincial Constable Arthur Dymond, of Madoc with town constable Danford organized a large posse when the alarm was raised over the farmer's continued absence. The neighbors and police lined up fifteen feet apart equipped with flashlights and carefully searched a wide area between Bronson's farm home and that of his brother. They found nothing.

Dog Remains Near River

Fears that he may have perished in the Moira River are entertained because a large collie dog owned by his brother Albert, persists in remaining near a deep hole in the river and on three or four occasions since the men have been there has jumped into the water and swam around whining at this point. The search party have obtained a boat and dragging operations on a small scale have been attempted but this effort has also been without any result.

Provincial Constable Dymond who was reached by telephone this morning and who with many others had searched all through the night says the district offers many spots that are dangerous. He says there are several abandoned mine pits north of Albert Bronson's home in any of which the unfortunate man might have fallen if he strayed a mile out of his course.

Wife Is Ill

The missing man's wife gave birth to a baby less than four days ago, and is still quite unwell. She continues to ask for her husband and neighbors are attempting to assure her that everything is alright and that he will return in a few days. They are keeping their fears to themselves because of Mrs. Bronson's condition. This rather pathetic angle spurred the searchers to the point of exhaustion last night but all returned this morning with unfavorable reports.

Mr. Bronson has been in rather poor health recently but otherwise is said to be a cheerful type of man and a good provider. He has a wife and five children, four boys and a girl.

Town Of Whitby Hires Woman As Auditor

WHITBY, Ont., Dec. 8 (C.P.). — For the first time in its history Whitby has a woman municipal auditor. She is Mrs. George D. Astley, who since the death last summer of her husband, who was one of the auditors, has been carrying on. Mr. Astley was associated with C. S. Trueman as auditor of the town's books.

Last night the Council passed a by-law appointing Mrs. Astley and Mr. Trueman auditors for 1939. Each will receive $175 for their services.

Council endorsed a resolution from Stratford City Council asking the Provincial Government to impose a further business tax on chain stores and on department stores which have no branch in the municipality. Some members of Council took the view that the chain stores in a place at least paid taxes indirectly through rentals and employed local labor.

The four main lines of railways in Great Britain will relay 406 miles of track during 1939.

Rebuff By Slain Vom Rath's Mourning Father Spiked Hitler Giving Funeral Oration

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(CP).—The Anti-Nazi Social Democratic paper Neue Volkeszeitung, published here, said to-day the reason Chancellor Hitler failed to deliver the funeral oration for Ernst Vom Rath, Germany Embassy secretary assassinated in Paris by a Polish Jew, was that Vom Rath's father berated Hitler for speaking of revenge as they stood beside the youth's bier.

The newspaper said Hitler arrived at Duesseldorf the day of the funeral and was introduced to the elder Vom Rath, mourning at the bier. Hitler tried to console the father, the newspaper said, told him the whole German nation would avenge the youth's murder.

The father was said by the paper to have replied he did not want any talk of revenge over his son's grave and that the assassin had been driven to the act by love for persecuted relatives.

Thereupon, the newspaper added, Hitler walked away after ordering Joachim Von Ribbentrop, Foreign Minister, to deliver the funeral oration in his place.

Tour Of Germany, Poland, Balkans Shows Hitler Ready For Move On Ukraine—In Spring?

By Dewitt Mackenzie (Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer.)

PARIS, Dec. 8—(AP). — French speculation that Joachim Von Ribbentrop while here sounded out France's attitude toward a German drive for the treasures of the Russian Ukraine would, if well founded, tend somewhat to confirm belief in eastern Europe that Chancellor Hitler intends to move in that direction soon.

I have just finished a tour of Germany and all the countries from Poland and down through the Balkans and the general opinion among observers was that this would be the Nazi chief's next big activity.

Many thought he might act in the spring. But all agreed this master opportunist would proceed as in the past and be governed by circumstances. The important thing in their minds was that he was set to go at the right moment.

This would mean a Russo-German conflict, barring a miracle. However, the way matters stand in Europe's tangled affairs, this need not cause a general fight. Man ybelieve it could be kept to eastern Europe, though there would be the possibility of Japanese action against Russia in the Far East.

Some Questions

The prospect of Hitler attempting to achieve his long cherished ambition of bringing the Ukraine under German control naturally gives rise to these pertinent questions:

1. How would Hitler account for his promise at the time of the Czechoslovak crisis that his demands represented his last territorial claims in Europe?

2. How would Germany get at Russian territory since Polish and Rumanian soil intervenes?

3. What about the Franco-Russian defensive alliance which was to take care of just such a contingency?

4. Would Hitler try to annex the Ukraine, thereby creating a minority problem by trying to absorb this fiercely independent people?

Answers For All.

There is an answer to each of these. Let's take them in turn:

1. I heard Hitler's impassioned speech in which he declared he had no further European territorial claims. The moment he said this it flashed across me that he very likely was excluding Russia mentally when he spoke of "Europe."

I put this to other observers and they agreed that this was a likely explanation since it was wholly im-

Housekeeper Demands What Most Wives Think Of As "A Dream"

Kansas City, Kas., Dec. 8 (AP)

A LOCAL RESIDENT of moderate circumstances advertised for a housekeeper. The first applicant asked in a letter if the advertiser had: A modern home, private room, private bath, telephone and extension line, a nurse, a chauffeur and a secretary. "If you have such," the writer said, "You might send your chauffeur by and I'll come look the place over." A newspaper still carries the ad.

Red Police Head Yezhoff Steps Down

MOSCOW, Dec. 8.—(AP).— Removal of Nicholai Yezhoff from the post of Commissar of Internal Affairs, which includes the political police, was announced officially today.

Lorenti Beriya, former party secretary in the Russian State of Georgia, was appointed to succeed him.

The announcement said Yezhoff was "relieved at his own request" of the Commissariat of Internal Affairs, but retained the Commissariat of Water Transport.

Such gradual withdrawals from office are not uncommon in Soviet affairs.

Yezhoff's predecessor was Genrikh Yagoda, relieved of the police commissariat in 1936 and made Minister of Posts and Telegraph. Yagoda was sentenced to death for treason last March, one among those caught in the great purge of enemies in which Yezhoff had an active part.

Beriya was relieved of his post of Party Secretary of Georgia last August, but it was made clear then that he was being groomed for promotion. His work in Georgia for Stalin was eulogized, especially his ruthless elimination of "enemies of the people," asserted Trotskyists, counter-revolutionaries, and others. Chile fears a new drouth.

Elkton Puts Brake On Marriage Mill Lovers Must Now Wait 48 Hours

ELKTON, Md., Dec. 8 (AP)—At one minute past midnight tonight, legal brakes will be applied to Elkton's famous marriage mill, which for the past 25 years has freely ground out ties for couples who wanted to marry in a hurry.

The state's new marriage-delay law, providing a 48-hour lapse before applicants for a licence can wed, goes into effect at 12:01 a.m., and a restraining shadow will be cast acros sthis "Gretna Green's" place in the sun.

After today, most of the "marrying parsons" will close their parlors, the "marriage without waiting" signs will come down and the clerk of the court's office no longer will swarm with altar-bound couples as it did in the "no-questions-asked" era.

Pessimistic over the outlook, the half-dozen "marrying parsons" who have made a comfortable living here in recent years are planning for the future, and three of them are leaving town.

Rev. Edward Minor, 81-year-old Baptist minister barred by his church from performing marriage rites, said he would move his business to Alexandria, Va., and probably hire "two or three assistants" to conduct ceremonies for him.

Alexandria Uneasy

This move added to the anxiety of Alexandria officials who had feared that town might succeed Elkton as a "Gretna Green" because of its proximity to Washington and Maryland and because Virginia lacks a marriage-delay law.

In Alexandria couples can get a license in about five minutes, stroll a half block to a justice of the peace, and be wed in about a minute.

The marrying record for an Alexandria justice of the peace has stood for years at 55 seconds. However, in nearby Arlington, Va., a justice of the peace has raced through the ceremony in 35 seconds.

Drew, Lawson Seen Going To Final Vote

Major Speculations Centre On Rowe's Remarks About Drew

TORONTO, Dec. 8 (C.P.).—Delegates to the Ontario Conservative Convention, opening here this afternoon, generally expected the final ballot for the Leadership to be between Col. George Drew and Hon. Earl Lawson.

Rev. Norman Rawson, Hamilton, and Wilfred Heighington, Toronto, were still in the race and both confident they would be important factors in the battle.

All morning delegates arrived by train and motor car. Formal proceedings were to get under way at two o'clock with an address of welcome by Mayor Ralph Day. Appointment of committees was scheduled next and then will come addresses by Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Dr. John Robb, Dominion Conservative organizer, and Hon. Earl Rowe, retiring Leader.

Lobbies of the hotel in which the convention is to be held were jammed to-day. Leadership candidates' committee rooms, also in the hotel, were busy places as final assessments were made of the support to be expected.

Chief speculation on to-day's proceedings attached to what Mr. Rowe might say concerning Col. Drew. The latter whe nhe resigned as Ontario organizer urged Mr. Rowe to enter a Coalition with the Liberals.

Home Secretary Denies Press Censored

LONDON, Dec. 8—(CP).—Charges that the Government used its influence—and censorship—to obtain favorable reaction in the press and news films, raised in the House of Commons last night, were denied by Sir Samuel Hoare, Home Secretary, and rejected by the House on division.

Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, declared newspapers were asked by the government in the September crisis and six months before, at the time of the German absorption of Austria and the Anglo-Italian negotiations, to avoid expressing opinions that might harm the government's position.

Sir Samuel declared: "There never has been any suggestion of the government exercising censorship either upon the press or upon films," and that there was no justification for the suggestion that the government "wish to suppress the expression of opinion that does not support the Government view."

The House approved, by a vote of 171 to 124 an amendment by Alec Beechman, National-Liberal, which stated the House was satisfied the British tradition of liberty of expression and opinion had been maintained unimpaired by the government.

It was an amendment to Mr. Mander's motion asking the House to state it would deplore "any action by the Government of the day which tended to set up any form of political censorship or which exercised pressure, direct or indirect" upon editorial policy.

Mander's Charges

There was a sharp clash between the Home Secretary and the Liberal member.

Mr. Mander said Sir Samuel had told Lord Southwood of the Daily Herald that "it would be of great assistance if air raid precautions were not attacked and if a certain line were taken upon foreign policy." He further stated the Home Secretary had advised one editor it would be fatal to advocate resistance to Germany "because we were in no position to resist."

Sir Samuel stated the remarks were without any foundation and the member should "not pay attention to irresponsible gossip."

Mr. Mander said he was informed that at a prive foreign office conference Viscount Halifax appealed to editors last March 8 to refrain from commenting on Anglo-Italian conversations until the results were known.

Beaten By Bridge

PORT ERIE, Ont., Dec. 8 (C.P.).—Donald Larose, 13, of Welland, is safe back home in that city to-day after a brief absence. Defeated in his efforts to cross the Niagara border here, young Larose was turned back to Fort Erie last night by the United States immigration service at Buffalo and taken into custody by Fort Erie police. The latter notified the lad's parents, who came to Fort Erie for the missing youth. The runaway desired to see the world, he told police here.

Cabinet Advances Justice C. P. McTague To Ontario Appeal Court And J. G. Kelly, Toronto, To Replace Him

OTTAWA, Dec. 8 (CP).—After making two judicial appointments yesterday and hearing a plea for admission into Canada of selected European refugees, the Cabinet was scheduled to meet again late today for the third Council this week.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King told a press conference yesterday after a Cabinet meeting that Mr. Justice C. P. McTague of the Ontario High Court has been appointed to the Ontario Appeal Court and that J. Gerald Kelly, Toronto lawyer, has been appointed to the High Court to take Justice McTague's place.

Justice McTague fills the vacancy on the Appeal Court created by the death of Chief Justice F. R. Latchford. The title "Chief Justice" will no longer be used in the Ontario Appeal Court.

The new Appeal Court Justice is 48 years old, and a native of Guelph, Ont. He was called to the bar in 1920 and appointed to the Supreme Court in 1934. Justice Kelly was born in Charlottetown 41 years ago, and has practised law in Toronto for some time.

The Prime Minister would not indicate when a successor would be named to replace Hon. Newton V. Rowell, who resigned as Chief Justice of Ontario due to poor health.

Post For Mulock?

Speculation on a possible Cabinet appointment was stirred when Col. W. P. Mulock, Liberal member of parliament for York North, conferred with Mr. Mackenzie King. It ha been rumored that Mr. Mulock will replace Hon. J. C. Elliott as Postmaster-General. Mr. Elliott has been in ill health for nearly a year and has been unable to attend to his Parliamentary duties.

Representation was made to the council on the refugee question by the Canadian National committee on refugees and victims of political persecution.

The committee, sponsored by the League of Nations Society in Canada, urged that certain refugees be admitted and that the government contribute to the cost of repatriating refugees in other countries.

The Prime Minister thanked the committee on their submission but made no disclosure of the policy the government might adopt on the matter.

The committee proposes to launch a campaign for funds to assist in the work of rehabilitating European refugees and to organize a campaign against anti-semitism in Canada.

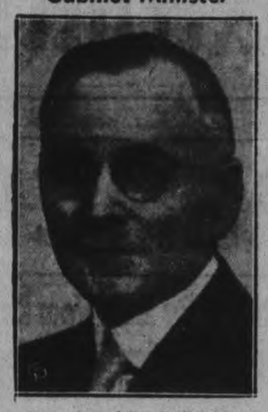
Second Birthday

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 8.—Members of the Campbellford Youth Group will hold a birthday party to mark the second anniversary of their organization, it was decided at their weekly meeting, at which Mrs. A. Forde, the devotional convener, presided. The program for the evening included the reading "Little Boy's Idea of the Church"; a Bible contest; choruses and a hymn. Betty Bennett pronunced the benediction.

School medical services in the Transvaal have been officially pronounced inadequate and will be improved.

Cabinet Minister



A member of the Saskatchewan legislature since 1934, A. T. Proctor, Moosomin lawyer, has been appointed minister of highways by Premier W. J. Patterson. He succeeds C. M. Dunn, who was twice defeated in by-elections.

Steamer Saves Two Of 12 In Plane Crash

TOKYO, Dec. 8 (A.P.). — The steamer Miyako Maru radioed today she had rescued two of the 12 persons on board a Japanese passenger airliner which was forced down this morning near Okinawa Island.

The message said the bodies of two others had been found floating near the scene of the landing, midway between Formosa and Kyushu, southern-most island of Japan proper, but did not state whether the plane was afloat.

Airplanes and other boats were searching the area.

An official report said the airliner developed engine trouble shortly after leaving Formosa, but continued with one motor in an effort to reach Okinawa. Eight passengers and four crew members were aboard.

BOCHUM, Germany. — (CP). — Taking part in a swimmnig fete in this Ruhr city, the water polo team of London's Otter Swimming Club played a Western Germany side.

Suspect, $4,922 Nabbed In Timmins Job

TIMMINS, Ont., Dec. 8—(CP).—Neill Donovan, alias Austin Craft, faced today a charge of robbing the Timmins branch of the Bank of Montreal of $4,922 in cash. Donovan was arrested last night as he left the Palace theatre, several hours after the holdup during which an unmasked bandit escaped unharmed when two revolver shots were fired at him.

Police said they found $76 in Donovan's pockets and another $3,000 in a satchel in a room allegedly engaged by the prisoner, a native of New Brunswick. Police were waiting for him in the room, where they found a revolver they said was handed by the bank teller to the bandit during the robbery.

Remainder of the money, according to police, was recovered at Schumacher, where Donovan, who lost his job five days ago, was taken after his arrest. Police chief Gagnon had obtained work for Donovan in October.

The bank was held up just after the noon-hour rush. The bandit held his hand in his pocket as though it held a gun and he walked out with a black valise filled with money that teller John Norman had given him.

As he walked toward the door, Miss Pauline Mullen, the ledgerkeeper, grabbed a revolver and fired two shots at him but they were wide of their mark.

The bandit turned at the door and said briefly to the staff: "Even Kingston is better than the way I'm living."

Bandits Are Chased

TORONTO, Dec. 8 (CP). — A bottle of "health salts" worked an unexpected cure last night when two bandits tried to hold up Leslie Gainer, clerk in a Bloor Street drug store. They demanded the money in the cash register and Gainer picked up the bottle and started after them.

The men left hurriedly, with Gainer and the bottle behind them. He chased them as far as the door, then called police.

Slaying Planned

A plot by a band of Croatian terrorists to assassinate Prince Paul, Regent of Jugoslavia, was reported in the London press during the prince's visit to the Duke of Kent. According to reports, Scotland Yard was "tipped off" to the alleged plot by American authorities, who claimed the terrorists were en route from New York to London under oath to assassinate Prince Paul.

Stands On Defence Issue.

The Premier's associates said he had staked the life of his government on the national defence issue.

He was prepared, his friends said, to remind parliament that the Italian anti-French campaign began last week just as the general strike was developing in France. Parliament will convene today.

"What would Italy have done if the strike had been successful and the government powerless?" one Daladier supporter asked. "What would Italy and Germany do if parliament overthrew the Daladier government now?"

Although even pro-government observers gave Daladier little more than a 30-vote majority a few hours before the Chamber of Deputies convened, they said the international situation might increase his support.

Daladier appeared to have been strengthened by strike developments of the past 24 hours.

The liner Paris sailed for New York from Cherbourg with naval officers and men filling out the strike-riddled crew.

Crews of the liner Cuba and the Fort De France which arrived at La Havre yesterday voted overwhelmingly against a strike. Several vessels of smaller lines left port during the day, although the crews of the Normandie, the Paris and other French line ships remained on strike.

The strike of metal workers in the north collapsed.

Support in Colonies.

Daladier found plenty of support both at home and in the colonies for his defence of France's empire.

Few well-informed sources were inclined to take the Italian demands for Tunisia and Corsica seriously, but many believed they were the opening of a campaign for other demands that would get official Italian sanction.

The demands so far have been voiced by the press and by demonstrations, which brought a protest from Paris. Counter-demonstrations have been staged in France and by French sympathizers in Tunisia and Corsica.

Students of Toulouse University marched through the streets of Toulouse yesterday carrying huge placards labelled "we want Sardania, Sicily and Tripoli"—Italian possessions.

At Tunis, Tunisia, 1,000 railroad workers marched from the Central station to the nearby Italian consulate and smeared the building with red, white and blue—the colors of France.

probable that he had abandoned a hope so great and of such long standing. Hitler thus far has pursued inflexibly every major item of the program he laid down for his party years ago.

2. It is not improbable he has in mind trying to draw Poland in as an ally, thereby creating a gateway and providing able assistance. The quid pro quo for Poland, in event of victory, would be a slice of Russian territory.

When I was in Warsaw recently I was much interested to find a considerable group of young army officers, and another group of young politicians, advocating an alliance between Poland and Germany for this very purpose. That doesn't prove a thing, of course, but it was noticeable that the government apparently was not doing anything to keep this youthful ardor in check, despite the seriousness of its nature.

The French Action?

3. France found it impossible to go to the aid of her ally—one might almost say foster-child—Czechoslovakia, and the consensus seems to be that an attack on Russia would not provide the French with any greater motive to go to war. By similar token there would not seem to be a first call for British intervention.

4. I haven't yet found any expert who believes Hitler intends to annex the Ukraine. He is too smart to create such a minority problem. He presumably would set it up as an autonomous republic, but bring it under the absolute domination of the Reich. He doesn't need to annex it to obtain all the benefits.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Dec. 8 (C.P.). — An export of 500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat together with strong, unexpected support, boosted Winnipeg wheat futures prices fractionally higher early to-day and gains were held most of the way. Final quotations were ⅝ to ¾ higher, December at 60¾, May 62⅞ to 63, and July 63¾ to ¾ cents.

Greater part of export shipments were made out of Vancouver although some moved out of Atlantic ports.

Southern buyers took the bulk of offerings with some local support in evidence. Offerings were credited to the Canadian Wheat Board.

Trading thinned after a brisk opening and for lengthy periods during the day operations in the pit were at standstill.

Duchess Of Atholl Loses Opponent

PERTH, Scotland, Dec. 8 (C.P.-Havas). — After conferring with Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal Party Leader, Mrs. C. A. Macdonald to-day announced her withdrawal as Liberal candidate in the by-election in Kinross and Western Perth on December 21.

This leaves two candidates in the field, the Duchess of Atholl, who resigned the seat in order to re-contest it as an Independent after the local Conservative organization had repudiated her, and W. MacNair Snadden, Conservative.

The Duchess' differences with the Conservatives arose over questions of foreign policy. She is an active opponent of the Government's policies toward Spain and Central Europe.

Labor Shies Off Any Stand On Rail Issue

MONTREAL, Dec. 8 (CP)—The Canadian Federation of Labor unanimously reaffirmed yesterday that it was taking no stand regarding co-ordination of Canada's railways be co-ordinated.

R. B. Russell of Winnipeg drew attention of delegates yesterday to two conflicting reports of Tuesday's action. Both reports were carried by The Canadian Press. One report stated the matter of co-ordination had been shelved. The second report, in the form of a correction of the first, stated the delegates had agreed with the principle of co-ordination but had decided not to work actively for it at present. This report followed a complaint by Secretary-Treasurer L. T. Burford that the first report was wrong and the correction was based on information supplied by Mr. Burford.

"We shelved the executive board's recommenation as stated in the first story," said Mr. Russell. "The second story that we concurred in principle is incorrect. It is not the decision of this convention.

"We have resolutions from railway workers expressing opposition to amalgamation or co-ordination of the railways. Rather than split the convention on the matter we decided to leave the entire matter in abeyance, we decided to do nothing about the matter.

First Article True Report

"Our position is that there must be a contradiction of the second article. The first article is a true report of the convention. This convention is against making any stand on unification or co-ordination until after the conference in January by certain unions having contracts with the railways."

Mr. Russell read a resolution asking that the executive request a correction be made where necessary.

The delegates approved Mr. Russell's motion and Secretary-Treasurer Burford stated: "The first report is the correct report." He referred to the report that delegates had shelved the recommendation.

President Zenon David in a statement to The Canadian Press said: "The Canadian Federation of Labor has left in abeyance until after January consideration of any recommendation or action regarding the co-ordination of Canada's railways. In the meantime the C.F. of L. makes no recommendation regarding co-ordination."

Miss Evelyn Stotts has been visiting relatives in Toronto during the past week.

Heirs Pull Fortunes Out Of Hat

To save heavy litigation costs, the heirs of the late David Lesseur, New Bedford, Mass., millionaire, who died without leaving a will, agreed to draw their respective shares in the $137,500 fortune in real estate from a hat. The monetary residue having been split-up previously. First the fortune was divided into five lots as nearly equal as possible. Sylvia and Rosario Lesseur, nearest of kin to the deceased, each got one of these envelopes. The contents of the remaining three envelopes were then divided into 23 shares, to be drawn by children of dead sisters of the deceased, as shown here.

Anderson Wants Road Allowances

COTTESLOE, Dec. 8.— Dummer township council met in the town hall at Warsaw Monday with all the members present.

Reeve W. A. Anderson, chairman of the county reforestation committee, interviewed the council asking that the road allowances in the area be turned over to the county. The council promised to give the matter consideration and if a satisfactory agreement arrived at, the necessary by-laws will be passed.

Among the correspondence was a letter from W. L. Winters, one of Stoney Lake's summer residents, commending the council for improvements made on that part of the sixth concession leading to Stoney Lake.

Mr. David Miller asked the council to consider the matter of looking after the village fire equipment as the committee experienced difficulty locating a suitable place to store it.

A report from the tax collectors showed that while there are yet some arrears there has been a marked improvement in the last two years.

Held In Fraud

William P. Buckner, self acclaimed fiance of film star Loretto Young, is pictured here in a New York police station as he was booked on a charge of using the mails to defraud. Orange Veteran Of 54 Years Wins Tribute

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, Dec. 8.—The annual meeting of L.O.L. 64 was held on Monday evening with W. Bro. William Henry in the chair.

Gratifying reports were received regarding the past year's activities.

Wor. Bro. James Howe, a veteran of some 54 years in the order was honored by being made an honorary member.

Short addresses were given by many of those present and regret was keenly felt in the passing of the late Wor. Bro. Ernest Hill.

Refreshments concluded the meeting.

Dressmaker Had To Quit Sewing

Hands Swollen with Rheumatism

Pity this poor dressmaker! Nine-tenths of her work consists of sewing—and she was not able to sew. Rheumatism in the hands was her trouble, and she tried any number of remedies. But nothing helped much—until she came to Kruschen.

"Three-and-a-half years ago," she writes, "I had a violent attack of rheumatic pains. My feet and hands were swollen. The pain was terrible. I was really quite crippled and helpless.

"I tried many remedies without success. Then I started on Kruschen Salts, and after one month, I could stand up again. Then, I walked with a cane. In three months, I was quite well again. As I am a dressmaker, you can imagine what it meant to me not to be able to work my sewing machine. What a treat to be able to walk to work, and to be free from pain."—(Mrs.) E.S.

The stabbing pains of rheumatism are often caused by needle-pointed crystals of uric acid lodging in the joints. Kruschen brings relief because it helps to dissolve those troubling crystals and to expel them from the system.—advt.

Apsley W.I. Members Bring Gifts For Christmas Distribution

Heads Refugees

Rev. J. D. Ostermann, executive director of the American committee for Catholic Refugees from Germany, has revealed that the work of his committee has increased 500 per cent. in recent months. There are 500,000 Catholics in Germany and Austria in urgent need of aid as a result of Nazi anti-religious laws, Father Ostermann declared.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, Dec. 8.—The Apsley Women's Institute met for their monthly meeting on Thursday at the home of Mrs. John Walbridge with fourteen members present, three new members joining at this meeting.

The roll was called and each member answered with a Christmas gift. The banquet committee reported it was a great success and proved a very enjoyable time. The library committee gave its report and informed the meeting that Rev. F. Mulken had donated all the books in the church library to the Institute library. The quilt committee reported one quilt had been completed. It was then decided to send the usual number of Christmas boxes and cards to the sick and shut-ins. The boxes will be packed at Mrs. Roy Brown's on the night of December 15, all members to bring donations. Three members, Mrs. Simon Winsor, Mrs. Hugh McColl and Mrs. J. Downing were made a committee to obtain donations of fruit, etc. for the Institute Chritmas cake, which will be sold by the pound, Mrs. Wellington Lean and Mrs. C. Smith to make the cake.

The class for the care of clothing was left over for the January meeting. This brought the business session to a close. Mrs. Charles Smith, who was delegate to the Central Ontario convention held in Toronto, gave an interesting report in part. The second part will be given at the January meeting. Mrs. Roland Tucker gave current events. The draw for the exchange of gifts was then made.

The meeting closed with God Save the King and Mrs. J. Wallbridge and Mrs. Wellington Lean served a dainty lunch, after which a social hour was spent, with Mrs. Harry Reed telling of fortunes in the tea cups.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith gave a reception and dance in the St. George hall, Apsley, on Friday evening in honor of their eldest daughter, Rosalie, who became the bride of Mr. Chesel McColl on November 12. The bride and groom received their guests at the door. The bride wearing her bridal dress of white satin and wreath of flowers in her hair. Dancing was greatly enjoyed to music provided by the Leahy brothers orchestra.

At midnight a lunch was served by the bride's parents and helpers. The bride and groom passing the weding cake. After supper the happy couple, in a few well-chosen words, thanked the company for beautiful and useful gifts received and hoped they would visit them in their home. Dancing was then resumed.

Out-of-town guests for the reception were: Mrs. Walter Chappell and son, George and daughters, Elsie and Alice of Lakefield; Mr. and Mrs. Puffer, daughters, Ruby and Ruth of Paudash; Miss Buell of Owenbrook; Miss Muriel McColl of Colborne also Mrs. Walter Winsor of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. R. McDonald of Cottesloe visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs Dan Whitmore on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Freeburn and Mr. and Mrs. Knox were Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. N. Stephens.

Little Misses Doreen and Norma Hales were in Peterborough to see the Santa Claus parade on Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Tanner and Mr. and Mrs. Skelchor motored to Peterborough on Saturday.

Rev. F. McMulken and Rev. C. A. G. Spence motored to Toronto on Friday.

Miss Helen Wilson left on Saturday for a visit to her sister Mrs. Joseph Woods, Havelock.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunford of Douro were Sunday visitors to Mr. and Mrs. W. Everett.

Banting Praises Research Work

CALGARY, Dec. 8—(CP). — Sir Frederick Banting of Toronto, co-discoverer of insulin, praised last night the medical research work being carried on in Canada in the face of existing handicaps.

Sir Frederick, chairman of the associate committee on medical research of the national research council of Canada, arrived here last night with Dr. C. B. Stewart of Ottawa, committee secretary, and today they are investigating Calgary research facilities. The two men are conducting a nationwide survey of facilities available for medical research, and will leave tonight for Regina.

In an interview, Dr. Banting praised the research work being carried on by the University of Alberta. Dr. Stewart said "we want to help young doctors with ideas who have no funds to carry on experiments."

Dr. Banting declined comment on reports of a new substitute for insulin, an extract from cabbages, made by doctors at the University of Manchester.

"I haven't touched any work pertaining to insulin since 1934, and I don't feel qualified to comment," he said.

Hope They Mean It

A document was signed in Paris in a room where many similar papers have been signed, but this time it was a deal between the foreign ministers of France and Germany. They actually promised to behave as good neighbors, vowed to respect each other's frontiers and stated they would try to settle any future disputes by consultation. In years gone past in that same room Napoleon III's foreign minister informed the Prussian minister to Paris that the French had declared war on Prussia, and there also in 1914 notice was served that the German Empire had declared war on France.

We hope these two people mean what they say because if there are two nations in the world which ought to be forsaking the path of age-long hatred and international nonsense those nations are France and Germany. Openly or secretly those people have little use for each other; they live again the wars of other years and stew in the hatred and prejudice and suspicion which one entertains for the other.

There have been times when it seemed there was nothing to do but allow those two people to go to it and fight to the point of exhaustion or termination. Their chief joint pleasure has been in adding strength to their boundary fortifications, building not far above ground but tunnelling far beneath it, and in so doing they have bled themselves financially white.

They have glorified and perpetuated the memory of past wars; they have sought to build strength on the expectation of wars to come. Now that they have inscribed accredited names on a piece of parchment announcing a desire to try the good neighbor idea, we can only add a fervent hope that they mean what they say. Their past record for years has been nothing short of a pain in the neck for the rest of the world.

A Point Well Taken

Ald. Glover raised a pertiment point in connection with the transient traders by-law when it came up for discussion at the meeting of City Council. The report was to the effect that a fee of $250 should be required of any resident of Peterborough who desired to enter business in the city, bringing him in the same class as transient traders who might desire to locate here for only a short time.

Ald. Glover's contention was that no such thing should be done, and we believe he was right. The $250 fee is imposed for the purpose of establishing the fact that the individual intends to remain in business, but it is quite possible to conceive of a situation where the paying out of that much money might mean an impairment of available capital and constitute a good enough reason why a beginner could not remain in business. The Council was right enough when it decided to send the report back for more consideration, and in the process of consideration that tax of $250 for a local man desiring to enter business should be eliminated.

Hard To Realize

The tragedy at Sydney Mines where 19 men were killed is something people living in our district find hard to understand. They can read the reports and learn what survivors have to say; they may follow through investigations and find that a great cable broke and allowed cars loaded with men to run away down an incline. But they will not understand what it means because so few of our folk have lived in coal mining communities.

One of the women standing near the mine entrance remarked to a reporter: "We live with the fear of this before us every day. . . . Every time the men go down we wait . . . and now it has happened." That's it exactly. Each working day living in dread of something happening. Glad and relieved when the men come off shift and fearful again when they go on.

The runway into the Princess Colliery has a length of 10,000 feet and the working areas are actually out under the ocean. When tragedy strikes in a mine the relatives of the men who are on shift at the time know it at once, and they also know there is not a thing they can do. Right there is the high mark in the feeling of abject helplessness. All they know is that their men are "in there" and they may be injured or dead or all right. They cannot see them, cannot go to their assistance; they can only stand outside and wait. When at last they begin to bring out the dead and the injured no one knows in advance which home has been struck. So they just stand there and wait. Children clutch the skirts of mothers; the men who are not on the working shift at that hour stand there too, as helpless as the women and the children. All they know is that there has been an accident some place, perhaps some thousands of feet away, down where it is dark and difficult to remove injured ones rapidly. And not a thing the watchers can do. Just wait.

Dropping The Hero

Col. Charles Lindbergh is taking his bumps in the land which made a popular hero of him only a few years ago. When he returned to New York after making his memorable trip to Paris by air the country was his. Instead of looking for notoriety he seemed anxious to avoid it.

He was loked upon as No. 1 airman of United States. He was named director of this and that company and technical adviser to others. Literature and time tables of Transcontinental and Western Air Inc., carried the slogan "The Lindbergh Line." Within recent days new literature and new time tables have appeared and the slogan has been dropped; there is no reference at all to Lindbergh.

There is no official explanation but the Kansas City Star says the change was made because of the mounting complaints about the decision of Lindbergh to go and live in Germany." So the hero of 1927 becomes the deposed hero of 1938.

He Has No Good Claim

Wilfrid Heighington, K.C., was a speaker at the annual banquet of the Association of Toronto Hotel Proprietors. A report of the event says Mr. Heighington was applauded when he stated:

"The liquor legislation of the province should be broadened. The Government should not have the right to revoke a man's license, representing considerable financial outlay, without compensation."

We doubt whether that claim would be generally applauded outside of the particular auspices under which this meeting was held. When an applicant receives an authority for operating a beverage room he knows as well as any person can know that there are certain regulations with which he must comply. He is also fully aware that his authority can be revoked if these regulations are not observed. He is not entering upon a venture of which he is ignorant and all the rules of the game are before him.

If he operates his place properly his business will remain. If he does not, then the understanding is that he will have to go out of business. The Government did not urge him to make any financial outlay in order to go into the business; he did that on his own initiative and he can protect that investment by operating his place as it should be done. He has no reasonable grounds to ask for or expect compensation if he loses his authority to operate by infringing the law.

They Want To Meet Hitler

In press reports it is announced that a trio of Pennsylvania's Quakers have started out for a trip to Germany, and if they can arrange it they will see Hitler personally. They want to see if they can do anything to better the position of the Jews and alleviate the sufferings of other minorities. The trio appears convinced if they had opportunity to explain things to Hitler from their point of view he might see things in a different and a better light.

Often enough we refer to these people as Quaker, but they are actually members of the Society of Friends, of whom there are some 20,000 in the United Kingdom and 120,000 or more on the North American Continent. They were first heard of about the middle of the 17th century and there was no intention then to start a new sect, but their desire was to cause the existing churches to feel that a revelation from God was the thing most needed in life. They met with persecution which eased somewhat after the passing of the Act of Toleration (1689). In their meetings they have no minister, and they will often sit in silence for some time until a member feels he has been divinely moved to speak or pray. Their marriage service is much the same; bride and groom accept each other in the presence of God, and divorce is unknown.

The Society of Friends is opposed to war, because it is contrary to the spirit of Christ, and also because it is unnecessary. This feeling was tried out in a practical way when the Quakers made their first settlement in the state of Pennsylvania. They had no armed defence against the Indians, and it is recorded that the Indians never raided their settlement.

With such a background the three emissaries from the Society of Friends have good enough reason to speak with Hitler—if and when they get the chance. Whether he could be persuaded that such a method of life and living is possible is another matter. It might be a good investment of his time to listen to what they have to say.

Beating The Inspectors

St. Catharines had an odd case in court where a charge was laid that a radio owner was operating his machine without a license. When he appeared in court he had the license.

When an inspector called and found the radio owner had not paid his fee he made out a charge against him, naming the 20th day of the month as the date of the offence.

Then the radio owner went out immediately and purchased his license, the date on which showed him to have been in possession of one on this same 20th of the month.

Counsel for the Department of Transport which operates radio in this country, admitted that unless each day were divided into several parts it would be difficult to enforce the law or secure convictions. If after a visit from an inspector the owner of a set immediately secured a license, then it would be hard, if not impossible, to prove he did not have the necessary paper on the day in question. Nice point there, and it shows you can always trust the courts to turn up a new one.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The thing becomes serious when a fellow finds there are only three pay days between now and Christmas.

Tillsonburg had a baking contest and there were 543 entries. Not all 1938 model brides either.

Mr. Duffus is inclined to believe that there will not be an election next year. It will be easier to predict, of course, after the next budget is brought down.

Kentvale correspondent of the Sault Ste. Marie Star offers congratulations to a couple in the district "on the birth of a young son." We had a suspicion that the little fellow would be about that age.

Peter Laing was elected mayor of St. Thomas and he is a former Ontario amateur boxing and wrestling champion. We suspect when his worship gives a ruling it will stay ruled.

Hon. Harry Nixon says the radio tax is a nuisance and radio inspectors are snoopers. Of course, Mr. Nixon can speak freely on that point as radio tax is a federal matter.

The annual meeting of Ontario hockey referees took place in Toronto, and an effort was made to secure a wholesale price on the season's supply of arnica.

After making comment on the outcome of civic elections, the Kitchener Record gives notice of its general anticipation and writes: "All together for tax reduction."

Astrologers gathered in New York predict better times for U. S. because Jupiter is now on the eastern angle of the U. S. chart. In Spain and China they are bothered at the moment with shooting stars.

Women's hats now being sold in London bear the names of Chamberlain, Daladier and Mussolini, indicating that the international situation has gone to the people's heads.

Figures show that the Sudeten vote went 98.9 per cent. for Hitler, and the size of that figure makes the whole thing look silly beyond words. There is not a free people in existence who could agree to that degree about anything.

Owner of a race horse in Toronto is planning to get a glass eye for his horse. We suspect we bet some money on a horse once that had two of them as he never did seem able to see how far the others were ahead of him.

Western Ontario paper prints a picture of Premier Aberhart and his mother taken when he was visiting at his old home in Seaforth. The heading says that Mr. Aberhart is shown explaining Social Credit to his mother. Beats all what the boys will talk about when they come home from the West.

Voters in London, Ont., were willing to reduce the size of council from 12 members to 8, but declined to give up the ward system in favor of election by a city-wide vote. As long as a city can keep on attracting good men to municipal service the method of electing them is secondary.

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When it comes near election time, my Cousin Ezra feels his spine, the first thing to be done; and then he'll talk it with his wife, about him tackling public life, and then he'll want to run.

¶ From what he says I must believe, that he would like to be the reeve, on that he won't report; if he could edge inside the ring, I think he'd run for anything, a job of any sort.

¶ He has a platform well prepared, some planks that no one ever dared, a list of things he'll do; he'd pasture cows along the street, they'd keep the grass cut low and neat, he'd knock tax bills in two.

¶ He has some civic pride he claims, he likewise says he's got the brains, proclaims that with a shout; if comes his turn to rule the place, he'll risk defeat or yet disgrace, to put the robbers out.

¶ But Ezra's not so very clear, I think he has a little fear, he don't know how to start; his platform stuff ten times I've heard, he knows it every single word, can say it off by heart.

¶ A deputation he desires, of leading business men and squires, to urge that he will run; and Ezra says that would be swell, and then again he knows right well—that they will never come.

Seek To Escape Terror At Home

NEW YORK—The little old man in the shabby green coat was crying into his beard.

It was not soft weeping, and it made the small girl who was watching him uncomfortable — she who had seen so many of her elders in silent tears.

It was the hard, uncontrollable weeping of nerves frayed beyond the breaking point.

"All right, Pop, take it easy—" a uniformed attendant in the refugees' quarter at Ellis Island patted the old man's shoulder.

The old man stared at him. Then, in a torrent, he burst out: "They can't send me back! I can stand no more! I'll die! They'll kill me if I go back—the guillotine!"

"Easy, Pop," the attendant said gently. "We're looking into it. We're not going to let them do anything to you."

✧ ✧ ✧

"NO MATTER."—Old "Pop" drooped back on a bench and buried his face in his hands. "No matter," he mumbled, rocking back and forth. "I go home, I die. I stay in American, I am shot by gangsters. No matter... No matter..."

The attendant did not laugh. It was not a new story. By the hundreds, human flotsam cast up on the shores of this country by the political storms of central Europe come with fantastic ideas of life in America.

"Their European education has taught them that we are a nation of gangsters," said Dr. Morris E. Siegel, director of New York night schools.

"They fully expect to see gun battles, lynchings and wild Indians on every street corner."

Dictator controlled press propaganda, seeking to show the peoples of the so called "totalitarian" states how well off they are—even under such belt buckling slogans as "More guns, less butter" — paint an astounding picture of conditions in the United States.

✧ ✧ ✧

200 PER CENT. — And the bewildered refugees, now flooding through the portals of Ellis Island by the thousands, are incredulous at the humane treatment they receive.

"They quickly become 200 per cent Americans," said Dr. Siegel.

In cases such as the old man who believed it would mean his doom to return to his native land, an immigration official said:

"When they claim they will be executed for political offenses, we investigate. If we learn in fact that they will be persecuted and killed in their native country, they are permitted to stay. We hear a lot of it now."

With the fiscal year not yet half done, immigration quotas for Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia are already filled—mostly by Jews fleeing from racial pogroms or from clashes with Nazi political doctrines.

Hereafter, arrivals from those countries will only be permitted to enter the United States on visitors' permits, good for six months.

✧ ✧ ✧

CAN'T WORK.—"Extension of stay granted to temporary visitors does not carry with it permission to take employment in this country," he said.

The newcomers are so well treated and well fed on "the Island"—the little rock set in the middle of New York harbor, with the green tinted figure of the Statue of Liberty rising against the skyscraper background of Manhattan—that they often shake their heads in blank disbelief.

The windows are barred and the doors kept locked, but the great recreation hall and the dormitories are warm, clean and light.

In the big dining room, the linen is clean, the silver polished bright.

Over in a corner, removed from the milling crowd, an aged refugee peasant was being put through an elementary literacy test by his 9-year-old daughter.

He had never learned how to read or write, even in his native language. He had to know, now, to qualify for admission. Slowly, with tongue twisting difficulty, he labored over the simple A-B-C's.

FARMER ESCAPED.

THE GOLCHESTER correspondent of The Amherstburg Echo tells of one of the perils of farming:

George Birch, one of the best known farmers in the township, had a terrifying experience with their bull the other day, and can thank his stars that the bull which attacked him had its attention attracted just at a time that it was proceeding to maul Mr. Birch in a way that would surely have been fatal. Seeing that the animal had got loose and was in the yard near the barn, Mr. Birch undertook to drive the bull back to the stable, when it turned on him and before he realized what was going on, had him down, straddled him, and was pawing at him, and trying to gore the man with its horns. Mr. Birch managed to get hold of the ring in the bull's nose and stopped the onslaught for a short time, but was again thrown to one side, just when the attention of the frenzied animal was drawn away, and Mr. Birch scrambled up and made his getaway. No matter how valuable an animal it was, it is going to the cannery.

BRITISH MOTORS.

(Industrial Britain)

THE MOTOR SHOW concluded last month at Earls Court, London, has focussed attention upon the magnitude of the motor industry in Great Britain. Today the industry is one of the largest in the country, since it produces about half-a-million vehicles each year, of which nearly 400,000 are private cars. In the course of 20 years it has multiplied its output 50 times, and now provides employment for 1,300,000 workpeople.

The industry consumes annually a million tons of steel, 27,950 tons of non-ferrous metals, 11,000 miles of cloth, 5,500 tons of glass and 2,610,000 gallons of paint. The British motor movement can now muster 2,800,000 vehicles which provide annual contributions to the national revenue in direct taxation and fuel tax amounting to £80,000,000, and consumes, 1,422,467,000 gallons of petrol each year.

• He Can Talk Freely In Canada

GODERICH — "If I talked in Germany as I am talking now I would be taken outside the courthouse and shot," said Frederick Werner, Centralia barber, applicant for naturalization to Judge Costello in county court and several sessions.

Werner, 42, an artillery officer in the German army 1913-1919 and a native of Baden, had just told the court that he had no good to say for Hitler or his policies.

"Do you know when or why this anti-Semitic campaign started?" asked his honor, stating that he was glad to hear Werner voice his opinions so frankly.

"Right after the war," said Werner, "I was recalled to the colors to protect Jews against oppression in the early 20's, when Germany was a democracy. I fought with Jews and I found them as loyal as other Germans. In civil life, they paid their taxes and conducted themselves as good citizens should."

Werner said it was suggested to him in 1928 by German authorities that he emigrate to Canada, where there was plenty of work. "Every day I thank the Lord that I came and I never want to go back. I fought four years for the Vaterland, but after demobilization, they never looked after us. They cut off my pension of $20 a month because they couldn't afford to pay, they said. Frequently I was told 'we should have won the war, and then we could afford to pay'."

• There Are No Jews In Japan

(By H. B. ELLISTON)

AN ITEM from Japan the other day excited my risibilities. And I seemed to hear the reverberation through the spheres. For the item contained a cosmic joke. Very solemnly it stated that the Japanese had joined the Italians in adapting Nazi anti-Semitism as a national policy.

For purposes of commentation I take the report at its face value. The problem for Japan will be to find some objects for their new parallel line policy. For there are no Jews in Japan, at least Japanese Jews. There is, I believe, a Jewish publisher in the American colony. But I doubt whether he is shivering in his shoes, for any move against him would involve international policy. The Japanese decision, on the contrary, is a step in national policy. Accordingly, the humorless Japanese policemen will now have added to their perennial job of examining the thoughts of the people for "dangerous" ones, the much heavier burden of examining their blood for a Semitic strain. It is going to puzzle them a lot.

They might be comforted to know that the ethnologists would have precisely the same difficulty. These scholars have been trying for decades to find the racial roots of the Japanese people.

One thing only is clear from their researches. The Japanese are much less Nordic than the Germans. Indeed, I don't think there is a single trace of Nordicism in Germany's Eastern ally. There's a lot of Mongolian, the bearers of it having originally come south and east from Korea. Some scholars think that this strain intermingled with a Malay infiltration from the South.

Such a theory has some logic in it. All the virile peoples of the world have owed their biological and anthropological persistence to mixing. In Japan, however, there is a third element in the population, though it has never been properly fused. This is the indigenous Ainu, who probably was part of the Red Indian stock.

The Jews never got to Japan—that much, also, is clear. In their hegira after the Babylonian persecution they got as far as China, but no farther. A small colony is still extant at K'aifeng, in Honan Province. Otherwise, China absorbed them all, as she habitually does all intruders, whether they be refugees or conquerors. There is a biological metabolism about the Chinese which, given time, will swallow anything and anybody. (In these days of rapid communication, however, this must not be interpreted as the logical end of the Japanese conquerors.) So is was with the Jews, biologically persistent though they are; except for the K'aifeng remnant.

Even these few seem just about to be absorbed into the Chinese lake. Not one of them can read Hebrew; the synagogue is no longer in existence, neither creed nor ritual is maintained. It won't be many years before they are all Chinese.

SO THEY CAN'T COOK?

(Letter in Regina Leader-Post)

SIR.—would you please allow me space in your paper to answer a statement of Miss Helen G. Campbell's of Toronto. She speaks of present-day mothers being so much smarter than their grandmothers as to cooking and housekeeping and business in general. She speaks of present-day mothers being so superior as cooks. Well, when did you ever see so many eating at restaurants to get a fill-up?

When did you ever see so many can-openers? Mothers nowadays could not cook a meal without a can-opener. When did you ever see so many cigarettes used as by present-day mothers?

Mothers and grandmothers of my day had no time to sit all afternoon and evening at the show and the balance of the night at the card table, and sleep until noon while husband dined at a restaurant.

TAMED BY A WOMAN.

(Exchange)

ALFRED STAPLES, the 65-year-old man who has spent other winters living in a cave on the Blue Mountains minus underwear, has delighted to gambol nude in the snow, and swim in the icy Georgian Bay, has married and settled down. He is not the first cave man who has been tamed by a woman.

Poor Alfie! Now he has to wear store clothes like the rest of us, although his spouse has relented enough to let him do without underwear if he really wants to. He has to use a towel, however, and he is wearing oxfords and a wrist watch for the first time in his life.

Well, Alfie, we sincerely hope you find it's worth it.

ROAD SIGNS.

Two travellers, returning home late on night, lost their way.

Said one: "We are in a cemetery; this is a gravestone."

"Whose is it?" asked the other.

The more sober of the two, having struck a match, said, "I don't know, but he seems to have lived to a good age—175."

"See can you read the name," insisted his companion.

Another match having been lit—"I don't know him, some fellow called Miles From Dublin."

SLOTHFUL STUDENTS.

(Detroit Free Press)

WE SEEM to have heard of the scheme before, nevertheless Colorado University "has something" in its plan to assess students who "funk" courses $3 a credit hour in addition to regular tuition.

President George Norlin, explains that the extra charge represents the cost to the State of the course in which there has been a failure, and says it isn't fair to ask taxpayers to stand the added cost of repeated courses."

The extra charge also is apt to represent an incentive to a slothful student to get busy and do some studying, particularly after the man who "pays all the bills" has said his say about things.

BECAUSE OF KISSING.

(The Commentator)

IN THE SUMMER TIME, Boston and Maine week-end trains are frequently 10 to 15 minutes behind schedule because of kissing.

The trains start for the city on Sunday night and maintain their schedules for two or three stops.

Then they come to a resort station where 50 to 100 passengers are waiting, most of them fond fathers.

The trains stop and, like a well-drilled company, the fathers turn around and start kissing.

Now when there's a wife and three or four youngsters to each family, and when you multiply this sum by 50 fathers, and multiply this total by half a dozen stops—then you've got something!

NO BEAUTY QUEEN.

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

CANADIAN university students have just acted in exactly the opposite way to that in which American university students would have acted in similar circumstances. The question is, Why the difference?—and it seems to present a neat problem.

At McGill University an attempt to select a beauty queen for a student social function was laughed off the campus. When the ballot boxes were opened they were found to contain plenty of votes for Hitler, Mussolini and some of the veteran professors, but not one vote for any co-ed. At American universities, on the other hand, the election of beauty queens is almost a serious matter of routine.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

THEN PETER opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him.

The word which God sent unto the children of Israel, preaching peace by Jesus Christ: (he is Lord of all:) that word, I say, ye know, which was published throughout all Judea, and began from Galilee, after the baptism which John preached; how God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost and with power: who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the devil; for God was with him.—Acts x. 34-38.

To The Editor

IT IS BEING DONE

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I would consider it a great favor if permitted to extend my hearty congratulations and best wishes through the medium of your paper to "Mr. 81 and a Believer" in reaching his eighty-first anniversary. Why he should camouflage his name by signing himself so on this occasion I can't understand as he does not do this when commenting upon the topics of the day.

In wonderment he asks the question, "Has the church lost its power to make people repent?" "Mr. 81 and a Believer" has dropped into the same rut as many others have done. Why not apply the same law to the church as that of other necessaries of life. There is still in Peterborough people weeping their way to the penitent form, kneeling, repenting and praying for guidance. If your church seems more ornamental than it's useful, don't let the funeral be yours. Go where you can get most food for the soul.

ALEX MURRAY.

FATE AND ISADORE.

(Toronto Star)

ISADORE EDELSTEIN must be wondering about things.

Edelstein was sentenced in 1938 for looting 15 Spokane vaults of $30,000, but was freed on parole in 1934.

In 1936 he was again back in prison for burglary and assault to kill; was released this week on his promise to leave the United States.

At liberty, he took a 'plane for Los Angeles to see his parents before departing for Honolulu. The 'plane made a forced landing in the Pacific ocean. Of its seven passengers, only two survived. One was the pilot. The other was Edelstein. They were hauled up a 500-foot cliff to safety.

What does Edelstein think about it all? What, for that matter, can anyone think about it? Will he consider that he has a charmed life and therefore continue in his evil ways and "get by"? Or will he consider that he has now had three warnings—two terms and a 'plane crash—and had better not tempt fate further?

NEW-CAR BUYERS.

(Marketing)

RALPH L. LEE public relations division of General Motors, points out the small percentage of new-car prospects every year. Research has discovered, he says, that of every 1,000 people 160 are car owners, but only eight buy new cars. They purchase new cars every four years, however, so that each year only twenty out of 1,000 people are prospects for a new car. The average new car buyer starts to shop only about two weeks before making an actual purchase, thereby complicating the selling job, says Mr. Lee.

A Bit of Nonsense

Very Strange

It was Sunday morning and a villager was going to church limping badly. The vicar overtook him and remarked: "I'm sorry to see you so lame, Giles. What is it—a corn?"

"No, no," replied Giles. "It's a bunion."

"Well, well," smiled the vicar. "How strange that a bunion should impede a pilgrim's progress."

Agents Of R.C.M.P. In Every Union Labor Congress Is Informed

MONTREAL, Dec. 8 — (CP). — Means of healing the breach between the all-Canada Congress of Labor and the Canadian Federation of Labor, each of them a group of national Canadian unions, were studied today at the federation's convention here. The two groups were formerly one but split two years ago.

Members decided to discuss the matter informally today before phrasing a resolution of conciliation. The first proposal tabled was that the C.F. of L. and the A.C.C. of L. reorganize together under the name of the federation and on a basis whereby the executive of both bodies resign and refrain from holding office for the next five years. Zenon David of Montreal heads the federation and A. R. Mosher of Ottawa the all-Canada congress.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police agents are members of every union and every union local in Canada, the federation was told yesterday by R. B. Russell of Winnipeg, delegate of the One Big Union.

Secondary Police

"The Royal Canadian Mounted Police are recruiting a secondary group of police from among the employees of large stores in Winnipeg where unions are not permitted," he said. "They are each paid $2 a night and are being taught the methods of the R.C.M.P. which are not the glorious, rough-riding band which helped settle our country but a group which has become a law unto themselves.

"There is not a union, not a union local in Canada but has Royal Canadian Mounted Police in it. They are all through the country, spying and reporting."

Mr. Russell was condemning a recommendation of the federation's executive that, because Canada's defences are "utterly inadequate," the government enroll a citizen army on a part-time basis with reasonable allowances and provision of boots and winter clothing provided the volunteers. Decision on the recommendation was deferred.

"Our youth should be taught how to defend this country from an aggression," said Allan Meikle, Winnipeg.

A Nice Club.

"You already have an example of that teaching in the militia," said Mr. Russell. "It's a nice club for them, where they have lot of fun and drink a lot of beer."

"The militia is not provided with boots," said Secretary L. T. Burford of Ottawa.

"They are in Winnipeg," said Mr. Russell. "They buy boots out of the profits on the canteen where they sell the beer."

The delegates concurred in their Executive Boards recommendation that Canada's railways be co-ordinated and that other transport services on road and water be co-ordinated in order to eliminate duplication so far as possible. The delegates decided to defer formal action until after the railway unions consider co-ordination proposals in January.

The Executive Board told the Federation: "The alternative to co-ordination so far as railway workers are directly concerned is the continuance and the extension of the present process of staff reduction. With part-time employment and generally depressed wage standards for those who remain in railway service. During the last seven years more than 50,000 railwaymen have lost their employment through piecemeal measures of cooperation. These workers have received no compensation whatever for the loss of their jobs, whereas in the United States and Great Britain railway co-ordination has been carried out with full provision for all the employees concerned.

Yesterday's Deaths

New Orleans—Joe Cattarinich, International race-track operator in Canada and the United States and once part owner of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

New York—Martin Egan, 67, former noted war correspondent and associated with J. P. Morgan and Company for the past quarter century.

London—Charles Donaldson, 68, chairman of the Donaldson Shipping Lines.

New York—Epes Winthrop Sargent, 66, a veteran of the Staff of Variety, New York's slangy theatrical weekly.

Executive To Name New Society Heads

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, Dec. 8—The regular meeting of the Y.P.U. of Trinity United church was held Monday evening. The meeting opened with the Doxology. The business period was conducted by Dick Vaughan, vice president.

A nominating committee consisting of last year's executive, Art Weir and Mary Faulkner, were to meet and appoint the new executive.

The worship service was in charge of Miss Verna Gardiner. A hymn was sung after which the scripture was read by Arthur Weir. In two or three statements Mrs. Bill Weir and Miss Mary Faulkner gave ideas of what "Peacemakers" are. Prayer was then led by Miss Gardiner. The offering was taken by Ronald Pogue. Miss Marion Rea then gave a reading "Charity." A hymn was sung which closed the worship period.

Miss Gardiner then gave an interesting study on the book of Hosea, her theme being "Love is the law of Christian living."

From Nazi Prison

Harry Dick, American citizen and a Jew, pictured as he arrived in New York after being held in a Nazi prison for six months on charges that he had planned to smuggle gold out of Germany. Dick went to Germany as a 'cellist aboard the U.S. liner Washington and was arrested at Hambourg.

Cardinal Transferred To Tug

His Eminence Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, is shown here being aided from the S.S. Conte Di Savoia, to the tug Eugene F. Moran, when he arrived in New York harbor from Rome. Cardinal Mundelein went to Rome to report on the Eucharistic Congress held several weeks ago in New Orleans and was honored by becoming the first American prelate to be permitted to celebrate a solemn Pontificial Mass at Beatification services. The Cardinal was so honored at the Beatification ceremonies for Mother Cabrini.

H. B. Smith Is Re-elected President Of Marmora Laymen's Group

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Dec. 8. -- The annual meeting of the St. Paul's Laymen's Association was held in the Parish Hall on Wednesday with the president, H. B. Smith, in the chair.

The meeting opened with the singing of "Fight the good fight" and prayer by Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell. After Glen McColl had sung two songs to his guitar accompaniment, R. D. Underwood spoke briefly on the work of the Kinsmen's Club with which he had been associated in Montreal.

W. J. Cottrell then sang "The Eternal Pearl," with Rev. W. Stocks as accompanist.

The retiring president gave his report, thanking the executive and members for their support, and referring to the splendid meetings and other attainments of the association during the past year. In the absence of the secretary, he also reported the financial condition of the Association as being good. Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell then took the chair for the election of officers.

Officers Chosen.

The officers for the ensuing year were chosen as follows:

President, H. B. Smith (re-elected); vice-president, H. R. Pearce (re-elected); secretary-treasurer, W. J. Cottrell.

S. T. Leggott of Belleville, president of the Laymen's Association of Hastings and Prince Edward District, spoke on the deliberations of the recent Diocesan Council attended by him and gave encouraging remarks for the welfare of the Marmora Association.

He was followed by Rev. W. Stocks rector of Hastings, who with the aid of a splendid series of lantern slides, took his listeners on an imaginary trip through the Canadian Rockies. The guest speaker also complimented the association on the nice atmosphere of its meeting. A vote of thanks to the lecturer and President Leggott was then carried, Past President C. H. Buskard making an able speech in moving the vote of thanks.

A motion was also carried that the Association attend St. Paul's in a body at Evensong on Sunday.

Following benediction by Rev. W Stocks, refreshments were served.

Two hundred men will work two years at Jarrow, England, breaking up the old liner Berengaria.

Tells Mother Of His Hopes

Visiting his mother at her home in Seaforth, Ont., for the first time since 1935, Premier Aberhart, of Alberta, explained some of the Social Credit plans to her. The Premier is shown here with Mrs. Aberhart who is 89 years old.

Dawson Retires As Y.P. Head

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 8.—The executive of the Young People's Union was entertained at the parsonage for its regular meeting this week, with nineteen present, and the retiring president, Mr. B. B. Dawson, in the chair.

The conveners of the various committees made reports covering their activities for the year, these being: Missionary, Eleanor Bigelow; Christian Fellowship, Della Mae Sisco; Cultural, Esther Might; Citizenship, Earl Edworthy; Dramatic, Jean Burnham; Recreational, Ken Kidd.

The Cultural convener reported that the local society has won two in the Presbyterial series of debates, by default, Fairmount and Ebenezer failing to appear on the appointed dates.

Mr. Dawson gave his farewell address, before vacating the chair for the new president, Earl Edworthy, thanking the executive for their loyal support during the years he has held this office, and turning the gave lover to his successor. Discussion centred round plans for the January meeting, the matter of the New Year's Eve party and Watch Night service being left in the hands of a committee. One more regular meeting will be held prior to the New Year, the new officers to assume their stations at the initial gathering in 1939.

Following the close of the business and devotional session, a social hour was enjoyed, a delicious lunch being served, buffet style, by Mrs. A. L. Sisco, assisted by her daughters, Misses Della Mae and Dorothy. The hostesses were warmly thanked by the guests for their hospitality before leaving for their several homes.

CENTRETON

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Brewster are closing up their home for the winter and moving to Cobourg to reside with her sister, Miss Johns.

The Y.P.S. held a citizenship meeting on Tuesday night. It was decided to discontinue meetings until December 27, when the election of officers will be held. Readings were given by Mrs. Bromwich, Ona Stewart and Mrs. Johnson McKenzie. Mabel McKenzie contributed a solo. The topic was given by Mrs. F. Birney. The usual social period was then enjoyed.

Mr. F. Birney spent a couple of days the first of the week in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Etcher and Miss M. F. Leming were in Cobourg on Thursday and spent part of the afternon with Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Flint and Mrs. William Flint.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. John Macklin on Monday, a son.

Mrs. John Baxter is visiting for a time with Mr. and Mrs. John Macklin.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Prettie and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sherwin and family, Fenella.

Mrs. William Score is visiting at the home of her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. Turk.

Mr. William Etcher, Bethel Grove, spent the dinner hour on Sunday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Etcher.

Mr. and Mrs. James McKenzie spent Sunday with Toronto relatives.

Mr. Claud Richardson has returned home after working eight months on a lake boat.

Mrs. O. Richardson and Frieda and Donald visited Mr. Richardson, who is still very ill in Belleville hospital.

On Friday night George Staples of Haldimand township, returning from Colborne with his two daughters, who were attending school there, upset his car in passing Fred Britnell of Colborne coming from the opposite direction. Mr. Staples' hand was cut when he broke the glass in the car door.

BELLEVILLE REDMEN GET TWO HOCKEY PLAYERS PASSED

Blue Bombers Will Need Strong Defence

By Central Press Canadian

TORONTO, Dec. 8.—When Winnipeg Blue Bombers, triumphant from a gruelling campaign on the prairies in which they proved masters of the best grid forces that could be assembled in Calgary, Regina or Edmonton, clash with Argonauts here on Saturday, they will be meeting a team as versatile on the attack as any grid squad Canadian fans ever had a chance to see.

The outstanding feature of the Scullers' march to their second consecutive eastern Canada crown has been the variety and potency of their attack. Through the line, around the ends or in the air they have shown class with a capital C. It is in the latter two departments that the defending dominion champions are greatest, but too often have the opposition and the fans underestimated the strength of the line. With steady, dependable veterans holding down most of the front positions it has proved anything but an easy task for the foe to gain much ground by attempting to hammer the line into submission.

Let's take a look at the manner in which Lew Hayman's band has counted the points in the games that led to their present position, just one step away from their second successive Canadian title. Their own league, the Big Four, was in actuality the Big Two. Hamilton Tigers and Montreal Cubs with young untried squads, proved no obstacle in the champions' path, although the Tigertown team gave them a couple of stiff battles. But it was expected before the season got under way, and it turned out to be correct, that the Big Four would be a struggle between the fast-stepping Argos and Ottawa's powerhouse Rough Riders.

Three Out Of Four

The two highly-favored teams met four times during the year, twice in league games and twice in playoff struggles. The results were the same as in 1937, three wins for the Toronto team, one for the Riders. The first game this season resulted in a 10-6 win for the Haymanites in Toronto. Ottawa held a 6-3 lead with but four minutes to go, when Doug MacPherson, plunging back faded back with the ball and heaved a 30 yard pass to Annis Stukus, who galloped half the length of the field for a touchdown. The same Stukus (there are three on the team) converted, kicked a field goal for the first three points and marked up another single when an attempted field goal was wide of the mark.

Argos suffered their only loss of the season in the second game and again the name Stukus was to the forefront, this time two of the brothers hitting the headlines as their team was nosed out, 15-13. Six points came from the toe of Annis as a result of field goals. Youngest brother Frank hit the Ottawa line from five yards out for a major, and the remaining two points came from a safety touch, evidence of the hard-charging line that's been bothering opposing kickers and quarterbacks in every game.

Came the crucial struggles, the two playoff games with the same "tank corps." Looking at a statistical table of the games one would be immediately impressed with the power of the Rough Riders. But Lew Hayman never has relied on figures. He's quite willing to let the other team roll up the first downs and yards from scrimmage—where it doesn't count. Lew will take one touchdown play against any number of impressive gains made in the centre of the field.

Always Shooting To Score

In the first of the home and home series, Annis Stukus again came to the fore with a placement field goal, and when the opposition was expecting Argos to coast, content to enter the second game on foreign soil with a three-point lead, back went Bill Stukus, who shares the quarterbacking duties with brother Annis to heave a pass to Doug McPherson for another five points. Convert by Bill Stukus.

The second tilt resulted in a narrow 5-3 win on the game but an easy win on the round. Three points on a field goal were again recorded by Annis, "Big Stuke." The other two came from the toe of Bob Isbister, who booted two to the deadline. Isbister has long been recognized as one of the country's best hoofers, but this year hampered by a leg injury, he was slow striking his stride and those points were the first he had scored all year. But he's in the groove again now and the Bombers will be hard-pressed to match his mighty kicks.

Ottawa passed, Argonauts were in the eastern Canada finals against what, up till then, had been the "mighty Sarnia Imperials." The game, played last Saturday is too recent to need recounting. The Imps, with Bummer Stirling, their big gun spiked offensively never got started, and the champions never slowed up. Two touchdowns were marked up via the pass route, Bill Stukus to speedboy Art West, and McPherson to Annis Stukus. The third touch the winners counted was also credited to West as he went over on the end of an extension play with Bill Stukus and Isbister. Six points came from various feet, Annis Stukus getting a field goal and a convert, brother Bill two converts, and Bob Isbister a couple more singles.

Have To Watch 'Em All

That's how Lew Hayman's versatile band have counted how they've made those last few yards. Between the final effort and their own line their plays have even been more assorted. Any one of three Stukuses, Isbister, MacPherson, Red Storey or Earl Selkirk all may fade back and heave a pass. Or any one of the same parties is liable to skirt the end, alone or with a teammate or two. The veteran Teddy Morris is still effective at picking holes in the opposing line, Doug MacPherson has been doing a high class job as plunging back, and Bob Isbister is back sending the ball for long rides on his kicks. All that added to a strong defensive line and the greatest tackling brigade in the land spells trouble for the Blue Bombers as they attempt to reverse the result of last year's classic.

No one in the east is underestimating the strength of Reg Threlfall and his western monarchs; in fact there are plenty of fans willing to snap up any offers to put a little on the Bombers, but it's easy to string with the champs after seeing them in action this year... a team good enough for the dominion crown in 1937 and greatly strengthened in many positions since.

Sportsman Dies

Joseph Cattarinich, executive officer of the Montreal Canadiens Hockey club and race-track operator of the United States and Canada, died suddenly while undergoing an eye operation in New Orleans. In his 58th year at the time of his death, Mr. Cattarinich formed a partnership with Leo Dandurand nearly 30 years ago which quickly won a prominent position in sport promotion in Canada and the United States.

Bears, Ramblers Eagles Tally Victories

(By The Canadian Press.)

As far removed as the North and South Poles are the styles of play of Hershey Bears and Philadelphia Ramblers—but both are effective.

The Ramblers go after goals in big bunches, and have got them so far to the tune of 70 tallies in 12 games. All along the Ramblers have kept up a consistent average of about six goals a game, and it's not hard to understand that a team won't drop many games at that rate.

On the other hand, although they certainly are not second-raters when it comes to pushing the puck behind opposing goaltenders, the Bears feature an air-tight defence. In 14 games, 10 of which they have won, the Bears have been scored on only 27 times. In addition, they specialize in the winning games by one-tally margins.

Both systems proved good last night, as the Bears whipped Pittsburgh Hornets 3-2 and the Ramblers stormed to a 7-2 victory over Springfield Indians in International-American Hockey League play. In the other game of the night New Haven Eagles romped to a 5-0 victory over Providence Reds.

Bears Six Up.

Victory put the Bears six points up over Syracuse Stars for leadership in the Western division, and 10 points ahead of the third-place Cleveland Barons. Philadelphia's victory brought Ramblers to a tie for first place in the Eastern section with the Reds. However, the Ramblers have three games in hand.

Hugh Gustafson scored twice for the Ramblers, while Joe Cooper, Joe Krol, Babe Tapin, Bobby Kirk and George Allen got singles. Adelard LaFrance and Jimmy Orlando scored for Springfield.

Larry Aurie and Don Deacon scored for Pittsburgh in the first period, but in the same session Sammy McManus tallied twice for Bears to tie the score. Red Hammill tallied the winner in the second period.

The loss of Providence was their first in the last eight games. Bob McCully, a former Providence player, scored twice for the Eagles while singles went to Louis Trudell, Tremblay and Coach Pete Leptne.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

A hobby with many athletes, pro and amateur, is rolling the bones. Dice or crap, in other words. This is an amazingly popular pastime on trips, when athletes have to sit around waiting for an hour or two ere going on the ballfield, gridiron or ice. It may be a regrettable thing—and we're not condoning it—but the fact remains that the athletes love the galloping dominoes almost as much as a coon relishes the cubes. With a pair of dice there are 36 combinations and the wise gees have the percentages of these number combinations down to a science. Thus it is a good bet to wager six to five against a roller coming out with a six or eight. While there are six ways of getting a seven, there are but five to shoot a six or eight—hence the six to five odds. On a certain roll, the odds may be as high as 35 to one against getting the point, so the greenhorn wonders at his consistent poor "luck" when betting against an expert. Possibly some of the amateurs would toss the cacklers less if they knew the odds.

The U.S. is not a hockey country and local lads who wended their ways across the border to play will miss the puck-packed pages in the sports section of the newspaper. Aside from N.H.L. centres, the American papers pay scant attention to the ice sport, so far as we can discover. For instance, the Baltimore Sun's sport sheets are filled with football, baseball, racing and boxing right now, and hardly a hockey mention—despite the fact the Orioles are second in their hockey group. The boys will miss their Peterborough publicity, eh?

Beef On The Hoof

Pro rasslin' will be revived in a big way here next spring, we are informed—but that's when we go fishing. The merry matmen have more wrinkles than a 96-year-old Indian squaw, and we note another one that's worth a laugh. Seems Promoter Nick Londes of Henryfordstown had lined up a mat match betwixt Man Mountain Dean and the New Man Mountain, two Georgia hulks who scale around 350 pounds each. Some argument developed between these gargantuan grunters as to their respective weights, so Nick allows as how he will settle it by trucking both bruisers down to a meat provision house and getting 'em weighed on a cattle scale! It was great publicity, as the ring had to be reinforced, too, for the fray.

Let us skip lightly over the main changes in the hockey rules this winter for the benefit of the folk who slip their shilling through the barred window en route to a privileged pew. Goal crease is decreased this semester and the goalie will now have to watch out or he will have some bohunk tread upon his toes when taking a shot. To balance this, there is no minor penalty for a goalie—only penalty shots—and the net custodian can clip, rap, trip or look mean as much as he likes and escape a trip to the cooler. Penalty shots now may be taken from centre ice and shooter is allowed to skate over the red line after flipping the disc—this no doubt making for a more graceful finish in case his gal is in the stand. There is a minor penalty for any but the goalie who freezes the rubber along the boards unless he is being checked by a rival—but this will take about two Philadelphia lawyers to figure out. And the goalie must not hold the puck more than three seconds, not even if he swallows the darn' thing!

Customer Is Right

We sincerly trust that these rules will be studied by the frantic fanatics at our hockey frays this coming chilly season. But we have our doubts. We still expect the fans to figure their own rules out and discover by some amazing matter of mathematic that the breaks are all being given to the visiting club by the villainous referee while the poor locals are getting the spoiled side of the stick. Just as sure as you're gonna have to sweat blood to balance the budget this Xmas that is what'll happen. And who can blame 'em? The customer is always right.

Plans are going right ahead for a good district intermediate hockey circuit and a meeting in Omemee may be called early next week to organize. Lindsay, Millbrook and Omemee already are willing to join up, while Keene, Norwood and Peterborough have received invitations. Westclox will not likely operate an ice squad this winter, but no doubt one or two other local entries will apply. Otherwise a flock of good Peterborough puckists are gonna be plumb outa luck for hockey during the 1938-39 season. Local squads interested might write this week to Art Williamson in Omemee or 'phone him there any night at 70-W. A four-team group will be lined up anyway, and maybe six clubs will organize a good league. The Frost Trophy is being put up for competition—and this is the executive of the Omemee Black Hawks: President, Larry McQuade; vice-prexy, Fred Parsons; and secretary-treasurer, Bill Stephenson..

Two Dream Teams

All-star Can. Press grid team for Eastern Canada is announced this way: Flying wing, Morris of Argos; halves, West of Argos, Ferraro of Nats, Stirling of Sarnia; quarter, Stukus of Argos; snap, Willis of Western; insides, Herman of Ottawa, Reid of Beaches; middles, Sprague of Ottawa, Clawson of Sarnia; ends, Cutler of Argos, Thornton of Argos. The second team has Hempey, Westman, Isbister, Griffin, Box, Moynahan, Fleming, Fraser, Burns, Wadsworth, Reynolds and McCarthy. Both are good clubs, and we had a fair average on voting. A game between these all-star firsts and seconds would be something to toss a rave over, what?

A fair turnout of swim fans at the joint Y.W. and Y.M. aqua exhibition in the Y.M.C.A. pool last gloaming. Some excellent work shown, both in the competitions and in the showmanship of the mermaids and men swimmers and divers — plus a few laughs to keep the customers entertained. Miss C. Littlefield and Gord Minty, respective swim coaches, are doing a lot of fine work with the water-inclined youth of the city and they will put on more such exhibitions from time to time. The ornamental floating figures of the Silver Finettes are tops in our opinion. Following the dips and dives in the pool, the gang staged a jitterbug jamboree in the gym.

Picking 'em off the grapevine: Puck executive meets at eight in Duffus tonight to name delegates for Belleville on Sunday and Port Hope on Tuesday.... O.H.A. group schedules will be drawn up at these times.... Meeting of the gals' basketball executive and the coaches will be at seven this e'en at the Y.W.C.A.... Pat Hayden is planning a party for his Westclox men softball champs before Xmas.... Kawartha Motorcycle Club met last night and elected 1939 officers.... Omemee rink has installed a large automatic clock for the winter.... Who is the Petes' puck coach this winter?.... Jack Jopling, local ex-junior, had a goal and an assist last eve as St. Mike's trimmed Marlboros to cop the S.P.A. title.... Orfuns' gridders should hold their cleanup meeting soon in order to get the decks cleared for next year's work.... Our Colts and Lindsay's juniors will have somewhat similar uniforms this year.... Oshawa GM-men lost another one last p.m., this time to St. Kitts.... Fliers are crying for a stronger defence whilst the Redmen need a coupla wingmen; the Petes dunno what they want yet!.... A 19-year-old Western lad lives here now, and 'tis rumored he's a good puckist.... S'long.

Jack Skitch Prexy Motorcycle Club

Jack Skitch was elected president of the Kawartha Motorcycle Club last night at the annual meeting here. It was a well-attended affair with nearly a full turnout of 1938 members on hand. The 1939 slate of officers named included: President, Jack Skitch; vice-president, Sam Carewe; secretary, Harry Bass; treasurer, Harold Choate. The latter was returned by acclamation as a tribute of appreciation for his excellent work during the past year.

Various reports were presented to the gathering at this open meeting, and a fair bank balance was reported. It was pointed out that this ever-growing club had a highly successful season during the past year, and ambitious plans are afoot for the 1939 season.

Definite plans and arrangements will be made at an executive meeting to be held in the near future, possibly next week. After the meeting, members last night adjourned to Payne's Cafe for refreshments.

Badminton Club Has Social Eve

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 8.—Following the usual evening's play at the Millbrook Garrison Badminton Club on Monday night, the monthly social gathering was enjoyed, the hostesses being Mrs. J. W. Wright and Miss Jean L. Burnham.

The table, in the club room upstairs, was lovely with lace cloth and service of silver, a Christmas atmosphere being introduced by the tiny holly wreaths, silver reindeer, and clusters of silver grapes on the central reflector, which was wreathed on the outer edge with English ivy, and had tall red candles burning in silver holders at its four corners.

Assistants in the service were Miss Thelma Ball, Mrs. F. H. Stinson, and Messrs: Ivan L. H. Graye, Geo. Ellsworth, and H. A. Kerr. The evening was unanimously voted one of the best so far this season for the monthly social occasion.

Maranville Out In Harness Again As Albany Senators' Pilot

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—(CP).—Walter James (Rabbit) Maranville, the up-and-down man of baseball who last season lost his job as boss of Montreal Royals has come out of his hole again to tackle the road to baseball prominence, this time as manager of Albany Senators in the Eastern league.

Announcement at the baseball meeting at New Orleans yesterday of Maranville's appointment to Albany for 1939 meant the start of another comeback, at the not-so-tender comeback age of 47, for the shortstop star they wrote off the slate of major league performance in 1926—much too soon as he proved.

Waived out of the majors at that time by Brooklyn Dodgers, he played with Rochester in the International league and bounded back into the big time in 1928 to earn a regular job with St. Louis Cardinals and play in the world series. Later he went back to Boston and managed the club in 1929.

So it was that the rabbit, who had played 15 years of major league ball for Boston, Pittsburgh, Chicago and Brooklyn, re-established himself until a broken leg during Boston Braves' 1934 spring training caused him to cash in his big-time playing chips for good.

True, he tried a second comeback in 1935 with Boston but found the going too tough and in 1936 took a position as player-manager for Elmira of the New York-Penn. league (now the Eastern) where he batted .323 in 123 games and fielded well at second base.

That was where Montreal's big wigs picked him up for the 1937 season. Maranville, nursing big-league managerial ambitions, jumped at the chance to guide the Royals, only to see it fizzle when he became an ex-manager in the middle of last season.

MUSSING UP THE MAPLES

Bill Prest of the Drafting Room league was in fine form last night at Duffus Academy when he headed the parade of bowlers from the C.G.E., Bankers, Quaker Oats, Westclox Office and Automobile leagues. Prest's count was 777. Three others also swung high, M. Caccavella of the Quakers crashed off 755; Gray of the Bankers 716, and Alex Watson of the Motor League 700 even.

The first group of Westclox trundlers gave out Orville Martin's 691, G. Millen 653, Russ Kitchen 638, S. Pammet 631, D. Ackford 463, G. Pakenham 436, V. Martin 445, M. Johnson 472.

Dave Grant's 692 followed Prest in the Drafting Room, F. Hickey 652, S. Valentine 649, M. Metheral 644 and A. Roake 641.

When the Quaker Oats gang finished Caccavella had 755, A. Guerin 652, W. Howes 646, G. Jefford 630, F. Innis 629, P. Henrickson 622 and C. Jensen 604.

The Peterborough Automotive team gave up first place in the Motor League for the first time since the season started when they dropped 6 points to the Chrysler's, 4 pins in the first game saving them from a whitewash. Hudson's stepped into the top position when they held Ford to a tie. Olds took Nash for 6; Buick smothered Pontiac for 8, and Chev put Dodge back in the cellar when they took 6 points out of 8. Ten men bettered the 600 mark: A. Watson 700, E. Robinson 656, E. Nickson 648, R. Wilson 640; V. Fitzgerald 619, G. Copping 611; C. Curtin 609, F. Stanley 605; J. Woods 604, and H. Minton 600.

D. H. Parshall Retains Crown With 49 Wins

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 8—(AP).—Dr. Hugh M. Parshall, 40-year-old harness owner - trainer - driver, of Urbana, Ill., stood out today for the 10th straight year as the United States pacing and trotting victory king.

Parahall's red, white and blue silks flashed across the line in front 49 times during 1938 — the greatest number of first places racked up by any driver on the hoof-torn ovals.

Back in 1929 "Doc" romped in with 55 victories and no one has caught him since. In his decade of supremacy the Urbana star has chalked up 688 victories, his best year being in 1930 when he earned 76 first places. His toughest season was in 1935, but even then his 46 victories put him ahead of the pack.

NOTED CANADIAN SPORTS PROMOTER DIES IN NEW ORLEANS

Chief Sponsor Of Canadiens In Balmy Days

MONTREAL, Dec. 8—(CP)—Death in New Orleans Wednesday of "Joe" Cattarinich removed from the Canadian sports world one of the outstanding promoters. It brought to a close the career of a man who started with little and built a modest fortune.

It was back in 1920 that Cattarinich and his partner, Leo Dandurand, obtained with Louis Letourneau the interest in Delorimier Park, Montreal race track now abandoned. The park was old and finally was dismantled. But it gave Leo and "Catt" the start in a campaign which finally gave them ownership of several outstanding tracks and other sport ventures.

One of the promotions for which Cattarinich was best known to the public was his support of the Canadien hockey club which introduced to the National Hockey League such players as the peerless Howie Morenz, Aurel Joliat, Albert "Battleship" Leduc, George Hainsworth—all of whom have passed from the bigtime picture—the Mantha brothers and little Johnny Gagnon.

Was 57 Years

Cattarinich, who was 57, suffered a heart attack while under the anaesthetic for an eye operation.

He was in this city in connection with his racetrack interests. In addition to his Canadian holdings, Cattarinich was part owner of the New Orleans, Collinsville and Aurora (Ill.) tracks.

He was born in Quebec of Italian and French-Canadian parentage and nearly 30 years ago formed a partnership with Leo Dandurand which soon won a dominant position in the field of sports promotion.

The partners were the chief backers of Montreal Canadiens during the Morenz era, when the Flying Frenchmen won recognition as the most colorful team in the National Hockey League.

In 1901 he married Miss Emelda Veermette and they had two daughters.

Ace Lacrosser

Prior to his financial interest in sport, Joe earned himself a reputation as one of the best lacrosse defencemen in Canada. That was the game holding his main interest and he and his partner were credited with introducing box lacrosse to Canada. He also played goal with several hockey teams.

Once Joe completed his personal participation in sport he became more of a legend to sports followers. They came to know less and less of the man himself because of his taciturnity which brought him the sobriquet of "Silent Joe." It was only when they read brief newspaper announcements that they learned he was gradually acquiring one of the greatest holdings of any one man in various race tracks.

Big Stockholder

At one time, he was the greatest stock holder in the rich Arlington Park, partially owned by Major Fredrick McLaughlin, present owner of Chicago Black Hawks in the N.H.L. He also held interests in many other parks, most important of which was Fair Grounds at New Orleans, where he died while undergoing an eye operation. For the last three years or so he has been in ill health and lately had been suffering from eye trouble A few months ago he found it hard to recognize any one by sight.

Cattarinich was president of the Province of Quebec Racing Association. That was one of the few association offices he ever held, though he was affiliated with everything else from strong-man contests to dog racing, walkathons and professional baseball.

Battle Array of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Western Canada's Hopes For Canadian Grid Crown

Lined up in battle array are Winnipeg Blue Bombers, rugby champions of Western Canada, who meet Toronto Argonauts in Toronto on Saturday in the annual battle for Dominion honors. The Bombers, coached by Reg. Threlfall, are putting in a week's practice session at Appleby College, Oakville, Ont., not far from Toronto, where they are rearranging their plays to conform with the eastern and C.R.U. regulations, after playing all season under their own code in the Western Conference. This is the way they will appear when they line up for the first scrimmage in the battle for the Grey Cup. The front line is the same that faced Argos in last year's final with the exception of Marquardt Gainor, middle wing, and Mel Wilson, snap. Last year Bert Oja held down Gainor's berth, with Lou Adelman doing the snapping. On the backfield, Bill Boivin and Andy Bieber, the two Winnipeg youngsters are newcomers to the team that was barely nosed out by a 4-3 count last December.

Galento Kayos Thomas In 9th Round

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Beer guzzling Tony Galento set up renewed howls today for a chance at "that bum," Joe Louis, heavyweight champion of the world.

That was despite "the toughest fight I ever had," last night's knockout victory over Otis Thomas, rising young Chicago negro, in the ninth round of their scheduled 12-rounder.

"Two-ton" Tony almost lost to Thomas on fouls. Three rounds went to the Negro on low blows from Tonys sledge-like fists—the first, seventh and eighth.

Referee Walter Heisner held up a warning finger in the seventh, and halted the bout in the eighth, threatening to award it to Thomas. Tony Tomacci, the Negro's trainer, said Thomas would continue, but that a fourth unethical punch would not be forgiven.

A tremendous left hook to the solar plexus sent Thomas down after one minute and 35 seconds of the ninth. He was counted out on one knee. Galento weighed 227 to Thomas' 208.

Max Baer will be Tony's next major opponent, Matchmaker J. Jacobs confided. Galento has signed to meet the former champion Feb. 21 in Atlantic City, he said.

Argos Get 5 Men On All Star Outfit; Ottawa Features 2nd Squad; Stirling Is Ace Of The Season

By Sydney Gruson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Dec. 8 (CP).—It has been several seasons since eastern football observers have been taken with one team as they are with the 1938 edition of Toronto Argonauts turned out by Lew Hayman.

Slow to warm to the club, observers watched them become better each time out until they reached a peak in drubbing Sarnia Imperials 25-8 for the eastern championship last Saturday. Argos will enter the national final against Winnipeg Blue Bombers here Saturday with five of their regulars on the all-eastern team.

Sports writers and coaches, 25 altogether, selected the team with an alternate 12 for The Canadian Press, which announced the selections last night. The Interprovincial Union placed seven men on tht first team, the Ontario Union getting four spots and the Intercollegiate one.

Five Ottawans dominate the alternate team which has such stars as Ernie Hempey, Murray Griffin and Bob Isbister, selected by many as good enough for the first team.

Ted Morris, Art West, Annis Stukus, Wes. Cutler and Bernie Thornton were picked from the Argo team for all-star recognition. Cutler and West, outstanding in their respective outside and half positions all season, were second only to Hugh (Bummer) Stirling of Sarnia for the leading individual vote.

The Bummer, a 200-pound kicking, passing and plunging back, was given 24 votes. Such recognition was tantamount to being selected as the outstanding player of the season over stars like West, Dave Sprague, Cutler and Griffin. Stirling was held in the same high regard last season when he drew 23 of a possible 24 votes.

Ottawa's representatives on the first team were Sprague, chosen for the sixth time in seven years as a middle, and the giant Tiny Herman. Bob Reid of Toronto Balmy Beach, a rising star, was named to the other inside position with Herman, while Mike Clawson of Sarnia got the call over Bunny Wadsworth as the second middle.

Completing the first team, George Willis of University of Western Ontario got ranking recognition for the college union for the first time in two years by winning the snapback job over such established centres as Curly Moynahan and Dave Ryan.

Following is the complete vote for first and second teams, by positions:

First Team (25 Ballots):

Virginia Back Wins The Furlined Nose Guard For Season's Goofiest Performance

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (A.P.). — Upon sober reflection, the Associated Press has decided to make its annual award of a fur-lined nose guard for the season's "oddest" football performance to a nameless but spirited member of the West Virginia University backfield.

There were plenty of others that rated high, and for a time it looked as though Referee John Getchell, who got seriously mixed up in the Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech game, might force our mountaineer hero to a photo finish for the prized trophy. But there was a dream-like quality to the tableau at Morgantown that finally swayed the judges.

The nomination was made by members of the Michigan State team, who, like all the others, were asked to name their goofiest memory of the dying campaign. They told it thus:

"When a West Virginia backfield player in our game at Morgantown apparently overheard a derogatory remark from the stands, he raced off the field during play, dashed into the stands in search of his critic, swatted him ,took a poke at a policeman on his way back, and continued play without remark."

Getchell, the runner-up, will, of course, be remembered as the luckless arbiter who told the Carnegie Tech quarterback it was third down, when it was, in fact, fourth down. Notre Dame promptly took over the ball and scored the touchdown that deprived the Tartants of an undefeated season. Getchell at least qualified hands-down as the season's "goat."

Five-Hour Session Fails To Decide Gainor's Fate With Bombers; Depends On University Intentions

TORONTO, Dec. 8 — (CP).—The committee-room battle to decide Martin Gainor's eligibility for the Canadian football championship final Saturday has advanced another stage with the Winnipeg middle's status still not definitely decided.

A five-hour meeting of the Canadian Rugby Union executive ended early today with a statement officials of Winnipeg Blue Bombers had been asked to furnish the C.R.U. with certain assurances regarding Gainor's stay at the University of North Dakota this year. Until they have been furnished, the executive decided to withhold a decision.

Specifically, the statement said the C.R.U. wanted satisfactory assurance that Gainor "has established his continuous residence in Canada by reason of a position he has been promised as a physical director and that his absence from Canada was to finish his course and obtain the necessary qualifications to accept that position."

Gainor was ruled ineligible by the C.R.U. Sunday because he spent part of 1938 at the University of North Dakota, his Alma Mater, where he completed a course qualifying him for a physical instructor's job at a Winnipeg high school. The C.R.U. residence rule specifies a player must be a continuous resident of Canada for one year prior to Oct. 1 of the playing year.

Big Shots Present

At the request of Winnipeg officials the case was re-opened at the special meeting last night, attended by President George Ballard of Hamilton, Ont., John DeGruchy, third vice-president, W. C. Foulds, chairman of the rules committee, and secretary R. W. (Bobby) Hewitson. President Les Isard and manager Joe Ryan of Blue Bombers attended long enough to present their argument, then left.

C.R.U. executives said Gainor would be declared eligible for the final against Toronto Argonauts if, and when, the Winnipeg officials gave satisfactory assurance that the position was available to Gainor providing he had the necessary university degree.

Apparently an aftermath to the Gainor trouble, and presaging another battle of words for the life of the intersectional final, the C.R.U. statement added, without amplification:

The East-West Playoffs

"The meeting gave definite instructions to the secretary (Bobby Hewitson) to place on the agenda for the next annual meeting of the C.R.U. the matter of continuing or discontinuing East-West playoffs.

"Several members definitely took the stand that such games were not feasible in view of the fact that differences exist in the east and in the west regarding the matter of United States players coming to Canada."

Ryan's comment on this was: "It is the privilege of any member of the executive to suggest matters to be put on the agenda."

Agitation for elimination of the national final has cropped up several times in the last few seasons. It came to a head at the C.R.U.'s annual meeting last year when Western delegates succeeded after a long fight in hoisting until 1940 a resolution that would have ended the finals, if passed.

Fish And Game Revenue Placed In Consolidated Fund Sportsmen Of District Told

Members of the Peterborough Fish and Game Association holding their annual meeting Wednesday night heard one of their number protest that the Ontario government has appropriated to its consolidated revenue fund more than $300,000 received from the sale of licenses this year.

James Gravestock of Lindsay made the protest, claiming that such funds should have been returned to the department of game and fisheries for expenditure in restocking waters with fish. Wilbert Fee, of Fee's Landing said he had returned to the government more than $600 from sale of licenses this year, and claimed that thousands of dollars had been secured by the government from Peterborough and district. In spite of that, he said, nothing of a concrete nature is being done to maintain good fishing in the Kawartha district. Members of the association were aware of the appropriation, published in the annual statement, but were opposed to its continuance.

Mr. Gravestock issued a challenge to the department of game and fisheries, offering to pay the expenses of an independent investigator to go to the State of Minnesota in order to prove to the government of this country that maskinonge can be raised to maturity in captivity.

The Ontario department claims, he said, that lunge cannot be raised economically past the fry stage. He claimed that in Minnesota at least 100,000 lunge had been raised to full growth. If his statement should prove true, he felt the government should pay the expenses of the investigator, while he was willing to bear the cost should he be proven wrong.

The criticism of the meeting was directed at the government and not at the department of game and fisheries. Mr. Gravestock paid tribute to the deputy minister, D. J. Taylor, and Chief Biologist Mackay, and Chief Hatchery Officer Macleod. These men hold the respect of all outdoor sportsmen in Ontario, he said, claiming their work is receiving a set-back because the department has been robbed of revenues it should have received and that it requires to run efficiently.

The association decided to make immediate efforts to unite all fish and game associations in the Kawartha lakes' district with the possibility of re-establishing maskinonge fishing in this district and taking the matter up with the Minister and Deputy Minister at Queen's Park at an early date, urging upon the department the seriousness of the matter to this area in relation to tourist trade.

The meeting was of the unanimous opinion that small hatcheries spread out at strategic points throughout the district could restock the waters of the Kawartha lakes at little expense. Members criticised the present method of transporting spawn from Pigeon lake to Belleville to be hatched, and then returning the fry to this district.

Fred Marshall Re-Elected

Fred C. Marshall was returned by acclamation as president of the association for this second term. Others named to the leadership of the organization were Clinton Heath, 1st vice-president; Wallace Harvey, 2nd vice-president; Stan Shields, secretary-treasurer. Members of the executive included the following: J. Geraghty, Chris Graham, A. R. Kennedy, Charles Kingan, E. A. Outram, H. R. Scott. The entire masthead of the association was reduced from twenty-five to ten members this year.

The association passed two resolutions that will be forwarded to the provincial government for their consideration. One requested that the fishing season for bass and maskinonge be not opened until July 1. The present law permits lunge fishing now as early as June 20, with the bass season opening on July 1. One argument members of the association advanced in favor of opening the fishing for both fish at the same time, was that no fisherman can avoid hooking a bass when he is fishing for lunge.

The other resolution asked that fishing for pickerel from boats with natural bait in the Kawartha lakes and in Rice Lake be not permitted until the opening of the bass and lunge seasons.

The annual meeting of the association followed a banquet in the Legion hall, at which about seventy members and friends were present. A brief program was presented following the dinner and before adjournment to the auditorium. Morley Plunkett led a brief period of community singing. J. J. Duffus, M.P., spoke, congratulating the association on its work in preserving wild life. The government could undertake no enterprise that would be so important as the conservation of wild life, he said, because of its bearing on tourist trade. "Tourist trade is rapidly becoming Canada's biggest industry," he said. "Every person in the country down to the boy who shines your shoes or sells you your newspaper gets something out of the tourist trade."

Visitors Welcomed

Ald. R. M. Cotton, representing Mayor Hamilton, welcomed visitors to the city at the opening of the annual meeting in the auditorium, and lauded the association for its conservation work.

A suggestion that this province should be zoned north and south instead of east and west during the duck shooting season was made by Sid Black, in the course of a report on wild birds. He criticised the method now employed, by which the season opened at Rice Lake some time later than in the western part of the district. He said there were more ducks this year than for many years, but that they were harder to shoot. One reason for this, he volunteered, was that grain fields had been continually flooded and ducks had fed there in place of on the lakes. Far more hunters shooting this year he cited for another reason. Wallace Harvey, reporting on big game, found they were "fairly plentiful." He dismissed the subject of hunting with dogs with the remark that the present goverenment "is strongly in favour of dogs" and that argument with them about the subject is useless.

Record Membership

Clinton Heath, membership convener, reported the association has 260 members, the highest number in its history. F. C. Marshall paid tribute to Mr. Heath's work, said he has sold more than half the memberships. Secretary-treasurer Stan Shields reported the highest year's take in the history of the organization, receipts totalling $379.62. The association boasts a balance of $206.09 at present.

A new name for the association, the "Kawartha Conservation Association," was proposed in a new set of bylaws and a new constitution, read to the meeting by the secretary. It was not voted on last night. Drawn up by Frank Barrett, Stan Adamson, and F. C. Marshall, it will be voted on at a later date. During election of officers James Gravestock was appointed chairman by Mr. Marshall.

Testifies Before Monopoly Committee

Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor Co., is pictured here as he testified before the Federal Monopoly Committee, in Washington. He testified that his firm pursued a virtually wide-open policy with regard to patents, licensing those it owns to other manufacturers when requested to do so, and aiding independent inventors in the production of their own devices, rather than trying to gain control of the inventions.

Miss H. Collins Heads Group

HASTINGS, Dec. 8. — Trinity United Church Young People's Society held their anual meeting for the election of officers on Monday evening.

The following were elected: President, Miss Helen Collins; vice-president, Miss Rhea Preston; secretary, Miss Claudine Hoard; treasurer, Mr. Cecil Oliver; Christian Culture convenor, Mrs. Grant Sine; assistant convenor, Miss Margery Scriver; missionary convenor, Miss Ruby Fleming; assistant, Miss Irene Oliver; Christian Fellowship convenor, Miss Frances Hoard; assistant, Miss Ruth Lucas; Christian Citizenship convenor, Miss Ruby Preston; assistants, Miss Pauline Scriver and Mrs. Alton Thompson; recreation, Mrs. C. M. Baker; assistant, Mr. W. W. Knight; pianist, Miss Margery Scriver; assistant, Miss Elleda Buck and Mrs H. Edwards; worship convenor, Mrs. F. W. Newell.

Following the business a mystery play was introduced which resulted in a debate, "Resolved that the year should have thirteen months instead of twelve." Miss Helen Collins and Mr. Marvin Preston upheld the affirmative side and Miss Jessie Lamb and Miss Rhea Preston upheld the negative side. The debate proved humorous and caused great laughter. Miss Marjorie Scriver, Miss Claudine Hoard and Mrs. H. Edwards were judges and decided in favor of the affirmative side.

Lunch was served and an enjoyable half-hour was enjoyed.

"Work" Role In Play Gets Prince In Jam

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—(CP).—In a huff at his noble colleagues who objected to his playing the role of the Soviet Commissar in the musical comedy, "Leave It To Me," Prince Alexis Obolensky has resigned as president and given up his membership in the Russian Noble Associates, it became known to-day.

While off stage at yesterday's matinee the Prince said: "I hope time will smooth this thing out."

A group of the Noble associates, of which there are 190 members, suggested he had better resign when the play was in Boston, the Prince said. And he did.

"But I would like to say this," he said, "that I am not in sympathy with their point of view. It is not alive. I think people should look forward instead of back."

Under the stage name Alexis Bolan, the Prince has been playing the Commissar nightly, neatly foiling the whimsies of the befuddled United States Ambassador, Alonzo P. Goodhue (Victor Moore), who saved the commissar from assassination by unwittingly shooting to death his lunatic assailant.

It seems the Noblemen regarded this as work. It was not right, they thought, that their president should engage in such a lowly endeavor, and, of all things, accept the part of a Soviet official—a boiling idea to a White Russian.

Baldwin Entertains King

LONDON, Dec. 8.—(CP-Havas). The king was guest of honor last night at a private dinner given by Earl Baldwin at his home. A number of Opposition Members of Parliament were present.

20 Million Boost To National Income Seen If Canada Ran Lottery

MONTREAL, Dec. 8 (CP) — A government-operated lottery would add annually more than $20,000,000 to the national income, enable the undertaking of more public works and would relieve Canada's unemployment problem, Senator Arthur Marcotte of Ponteix, Saskatchewan, said here last night in an address before the Club Canadien.

The senator said Canadians every year spend $15,000,000 on the Irish Sweepstakes. "And if this sum is spent on a lottery which under federal law is illegal," he said, "can you imagine how much more they would spend if a legalized lottery was operated by the government for a purpose which the Canadian people would benefit directly?"

Lottery money was sent to many other countries besides Ireland, while profits of lottery-operation were evidenced by the fact that police court records showed many operators were not discouraged after being penalized.

Senator Marcotte believed tickets in a national lottery could be sold at post offices like "postal notes or money orders."

"This would mean the elimination of fraudulent operators," he said, "as the forging of one of the tickets would become a criminal offence, punishable not by a fine but by a prison term."

Carden Farmers Plan Wolf Hunt

LINDSAY, Dec. 8. — At the General Sessions of the Peace yesterday Donald Mackin of Oshawa, and formerly of Lindsay, was arraigned on the charge of seduction of an 18-year-old Lindsay girl in August last. Appearing before His Honor Judge Coleman of Whitby, who is presiding, the accused pleaded guilty after a Grand Jury had returned a true bill against him.

Wolf Hunt Coming.

Farmers of Carden Township, Victoria County, are organizing a hunt to destroy wolf packs which have become a menace in the district. Ex-Warden McGillivray is behind the movement. A large number of sheep have been destroyed in the township by wolves. Dixon Jewett of Cannington is authority for the statement that wolves have been seen in the vicinity of Cannington, Pefferlaw, and Wilfrid. He believes that the Government will have to increase the bounty on wolves to $20.00. Then the farmers will get out and hunt them down, he declared.

Settled Out of Court.

At a session of the Surrogate Court Thomas Hamilton of Gelert sued E. Dodgwick for a sum of money which, he claimed, was owing to him on the haulage of logs from Minden and Morton's bush to Gelert. However, no contracts were signed. "Why do men do business in this way—no contracts—no receipts. It is one man's word against another. The claim is small, and you better get together and settle the matter." This was done. "In future have a regular contract drawn up," remarked His Honor.

Urges Proper Wills.

"There are too many of these kind of cases. It is to bad that people do not make proper wills," remarked His Honor Judge McGibbon yesterday when hearing a Surrogate Court case in which Alfred Campbell brought action against the estate of the late Colin Campbell of Bolsover. Campbell took over maangement of a ranch owned by his father on the assumption that he would be willed the property. The son kept up the repair of buildings. With the death of Colin Campbell, however, it was discovered that the ranch was not left to Alfred Campbell. Written arguments will be handed in by the counsel representing the parties interested.

Mrs. F. B. Carley of Bolton visited her son Oakley and Mrs. Carley over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Coulter and family of Lindsay visited Mrs. Keegan on Sunday.

Eye For Sale

Because he needs the money to support his wife and their 12-year-old daughter, Wilbur F. H. Radeline, 36-year-old $13-a-week truck driver of Los Angeles, has offered to sell one perfecty good medium blue eye for $1,500. Radeline points to the eye he is willing to sell.

Town Douses Lights On Full Moon As Economy Move

Woburn, Mass., Dec. 8 (AP) IF THERE'S a full moon, Woburn doesn't need street lights. That's Mayor William Kane's new rule to save money, he put it into effect last night, telephoning electric plant officials to "put 'em out." Officially, his explanation was that the combination of street light and full moon caused a glare hazardous to motorists.

Farmers Resumed Fall Plowing

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 8.— A truck loaded to capacity with Christmas trees and parked on the main street here last night provided a striking contrast to reports from the rural section of this district. Farmers have resumed fall plowing operations and it was very much in evidence, so stated J. L. Doherty of this town. He had returned from a business visit in Seymour township yesterday where he said a good many farmers had started to plow following the freeze-up. Herman Johnston, Percy township, was also out with his plow yesterday.

Brought Shovels Along.

Clarence Battler, Kitchener truck driver, arrived here last night prepared for any emergency with snow shovels but there was no snow to be seen. When he left Kitchener in the morning, snow was falling heavily and he said he expected to find it in large quantities here, from previous experiences.

Indicted On Smuggling Charges

Albert N. Chapereau, self-styled attache of the Nicaraguan Consulate, LEFT, and Mrs. Elma N. Lauer, RIGHT, wife of a New York State Supreme Court judge, have been indicted on charges of having smuggled approximately $1,800 worth of goods into the United States.

Wrist Dislocated.

Vernon McMillan, young son of Mr. and Mrs. John McMillan, suffered a dislocated wrist Monday at school when a chum accidentally knocked him off a high fence.

Taken To Hospital.

James Fairman, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fairman, was removed to Cobourg hospital yesterday, where he was operated on for appendicitis. He is reported improving.

Lakefield Girls Attend Service Of Communion

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 8—The 'Teen-age girls' branch of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican church attended the early service of Holy Communion held at 8 a.m. on Sunday. Following the service, the group breakfasted at the parish hall with members of the local branch of the A.Y.P.A.

In the evening, eighteen of the girls of the 'Teen-age group attended the evening service when Rev. Mr. Howden's message was directed particularly to the young people of the church.

Rev. Mr. Howden in his sermon, mentioned that the young people, through their faith, should choose the upright path in life, thereby becoming living examples of christianity and missionaries of the church in their own homes and abroad.

New Waiting Room Used First Time

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec 9.—The initial event to be held in the new community waiting room, generously provided for the village by Mr. F. C. Scott, took place on Saturday when the Women's Association of St. Andrew's church sponsored an afternoon tea and bazaar, the amount realized being something over sixty dollars.

In charge of the nicey-decorated table where fancy work and aprons were for sale, were Mrs. F. L. Edworthy, Mrs. J. McKnight, Mrs. W. H. Barringer and Mrs. H. W. Johnston; at the "Country Store" where vegetables, fresh eggs, baking, etc., found a ready patronage, were Mrs. F. J. Smith Mrs. T. Douglas and Mrs. W. E. Ball.

The fish pond had a variety of many-shaped and intriguing parcels, Mrs. J. H. McKnight looking after the wants of the "fishers." The afternoon tea tables were dainty with lace or linen cloths, and fine china, and each centred with a lighted red candle in silver holders; the tea hostesses were Mrs. W. R. Howard, Mrs. W. C. Fallis, Mrs. W. Barringer and Mrs. H. A. Fallis.

Other assistants included Mrs. J. A. Brown and Mrs. J. W. Hamilton, while the president of the Association, Mrs. P. I. Bentley, had general oversight of the whole event. The large room, heated, lighted, and completely furnished, lent itself particularly well to the tea and sale, and will be used frequently for such occasions throughout the winter months.

Where 18 Died In 'Plane Pyre

First arrivals at the scene of the tragedy are shown standing around the blazing wreckage of the air liner that crashed into the mist-enshrouded side of Mt. Dandenong, Australia, while on its way from Adelaide to Melbourne with fourteen passengers and a crew of four. All aboard died in the crash or the holocaust that followed it. The airliner was the Kyeema, of Australian airlines.

RED CEDAR POPULAR

WINNIPEG—(CP). — Canadian red cedar is becoming popular as a decorative wood in England, H. T. Ripper, British wood-manufacturer who introduced red cedar there, said on a visit here. "We treat it so as to look like old pine panelling," he said.

Power Purchase Wins Approval Millbrook Voters

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 8.—The regular meeting of the municipal council of Millbrook was held on Monday evening with all members except Councillor D. Sheppard present and Reeve W. E. Ball presiding.

The result of the power purchase bylaw vote held on Saturday, December 3, was given by the clerk; for the bylaw, 127; against 27.

J. J. Clarke, relief officer, made report of relief dispensed during November amounting to $51.05; for North Monaghan, $16.97.

G. F. Burton, assistant tax collector, reported $567.15 collected in November.

A committee fro mthe Community Band waited on council asking for a grant, and was granted $25.

Drunken Driver Gets 30 Days; Suspend License

Michael Murray was sentenced to thirty days' imprisonment and his driving license was suspended for six months by Judge L. V. O'Connor of Cobourg at the December sittings of the County Court last night. He was found guilty of operating a car while intoxicated by a jury who deliberated for two and a half hours, bringing in their verdict at 6.30.

The jury attached a rider to the finding recommending leniency, and Judge O'Connor, commenting on the young man's previous good record and the character evidence given, imposed the minimum penalty for an indictable offence under that particular section of the Criminal Code. The maximum is three months.

The charge arose out of an accident on the Lakefield Road near the filtration plant on June 26th last. At that time Murray's car collided with another car driven by Robert Hewett of this city ,then turned upside down on the middle of the road. Both vehicles were extensively damaged. Murray was previously convicted of reckless driving under the section of the Highway Traffic Act in connection with the same accident.

Dice Is Loaded.

"A man loads the dice against himself if he takes liquor before driving a car," said Judge O'Connor when he addressed the jury earlier in the afternoon.

During the course of his remarks he voiced a warning to all motorists that drunk driving must be curbed, and said a motor car while being a great convenience could be an instrument of destruction in the hands of an intoxicated driver.

"A motor vehicle requires constant and diligent control and if a car operator is careless or does not give the proper heed, serious accidents may occur. A man must give the public the benefit of all his faculties while he drives. In the taking of liquor a car driver becomes a menace to public safety and should be convicted of driving while intoxicated."

Point Is Argued.

During the trial the jury was excluded while Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., and G. N. Gordon, K.C., counsel for Murray, argued on the admissibility of a statement said to have been made by the accused to Provincial Traffic Officer Lloyd McClure directly following the accident. McClure while in the witness box said he asked Murray where he had obtained the beer, and Murray answered the question. Judge O'Connor ruled the evidence was not admissible, because the officer was in uniform, the man had not been arrested and the question struck right at the heart of the charge.

Dr. J. M. O'Brien was the only witness called by the defence. He described an examination which he made of Murray after the latter had been brought from the hospital to the police station, which resulted in ordering Murray back into the hospital. He said the man had a bump on the back of the head, injuries to the breast bone, and to the ligaments in the chest wall.

Milo Heath, Oswald Corkery, Roy White, George Goodwin and Frank Asta all testified to the good character and reputation of the accused.

A Serious Offence.

Wilmott Gordon is defending Pearce Nicholson on a serious charge involving the accused man's daughter. It is Mr. Gordon's first jury trial and he is acting at the request of the court. Late Wednesday afternoon a jury was selected and the trial started at ten o'clock this morning. Judge O'Connor ruled that the public would be excluded at the trial, and granted a motion by Mr. Gordon excluding all witnesses during the hearing.

The personnel of the jury is as follows: William Shearer, Otonabee; J. D. McIsaac, 58 Victoria Avenue; William Kelly, Douro; Clinton Matthews, Douro; Gordon Wood, Otonabee; Thomas McManus, Douro; Harry Armstrong, Lakefield; Kenneth Robinson, 149 Maria Street; Henry Mills, 77 Parkhill Road; John Drummond, 421 Water Street; Melville Scott, Asphodel, and Samuel Marchen, 611 Stewart Street.

A Hairless Horse

HIGH RIVER, Alta., Dec. 8. — (CP). — A nine-year-old hairless horse will soon leave John Elves' farm at nearby Cayley for a fair in San Francisco. The filly, which began to shed its hair eight months ago, will be a "freak" attraction at the fair. Veterinarians in Alberta could find no cure for the animal.

Turkish Women Mourn Their Emancipator

Weeping unashamedly, Turkish women mourn their emancipator as the body of the late strong-man Kamal Ataturk, is borne through the streets of Ankara in funeral procession. His reforms made possible their veil-less appearance in public and their participation in outside activities. But for his modernization and reforms the women on the LEFT would be peeping from behind a carefully closed lattice and the girls, at RIGHT, would not be allowed in public unveiled.

Amateur Dramatic Club's Show Proves Real Hit In Havelock

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Dec. 8—The initial appearance of Havelock's recently organized amateur dramatic club was made last night, when local amateur talent presented an entertaining program in the Havelock town hall, before a capacity audience. Rev. Andrew McLauchlin of Havelock United Church very capably acted as chairman for the evening.

The event proved a complete success from the opening curtain to the finale, uncovering in the process some fine talent, which is the main purpose of the organization. All proceeds of the night will be handed over to the village relief committee to provide Christmas cheer boxes for families in need.

A varied program was presented consisting of three very amusing short codedies and a minstrel show, interspersed with vocal, instrumental and dance numbers.

"The April Fool," a comedy in two acts had in the cast Miss Dorothy Davidson as Cherry Lincoln; Clifford Kennedy as Jud Morgan, D.S.O., M.C.; Jesse Anderson as Colonel James Driscoll; Miss Madeline Armstrong as Mrs. Lncoln; Charles Taylor as Mr. Lincoln; and Bert Haryett as a reported. All roles were portrayed in an excellent manner, with Jud the bashful lover finally winning Cherry for his bride.

Miss Minerva Isaac, playing the title role in "Bridget's Investment," a one-act comedy, displayed a genuine Irish brogue and was ably assisted with a cast composed of Mrs. D. F. Miller as Mrs. Morgan, her mistress; Stephen Deline, a peddler boy; Harold Hunter, a gentleman; and Herbert Hoard, a tea salesman.

Another Hit

A rollicking one act comedy entitled "Married In Haste" concerning the adventures of a newlywed couple provide quite a hit. Miss Mary Anderson as Barbara Baker, the bride known as Bobs, and Edward Williams, as Lewis Baker, the groom, handled the roles of the newlyweds with ease. Miss Cordie McColl as Marion Moore, Bob's friend and D. F. Miller as Richard Ayers, a young doctor were also good, as was Jim Watson, in the role of a negro servant, called James Washington Lincoln Moses White.

"Uncle Joshua and His Frogtown Minstrels" proved a great attraction, providing twenty minutes of songs, and music interspersed with humorous stories and jokes told in the regular darkie style. Clifford Jamieson acted as "Uncle Joshua" and the rest of the cast included Kenneth Buchanan, Thomas Sarginson, Paul Voyer, Everard Chiles, Gordon Young, William McBurney, Wallace Buchanan, Ted Yeo, Wesley Wildman, Doug Hill, William Platt, George Brooks, Bill Woodbeck and Wallace and Wayne Young.

During the minstrel show the Young twins contributed a step dance and a quartet composed of Messrs. Chiles, Brooks, McBurney and Wildman sang.

Specialties between the acts were provided by Florence Bertrand, of Campbellford, who did a novelty skipping rope tap dance, and by Vaughan Beatty, of Campbellford who did a toe dance. Miss Minerva Isaac also contributed a very beautiful vocal solo entitled "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes."

Necessary Support Seen For Daladier

PARIS, Dec. 8—(AP).—Premier Daladier, continuing his strong action to halt strikes by manning the liner Paris with navy men, today prepared demands for parliamentary approval of his administration.

"You wanted a strong government —you've got it," will be the essence of his words to the opening session of parliament tomorrow.

Political observers said the premier stood a good chance of receiving from the chamber of deputies a margin of 100 votes in favor of his regime, which he has pledged to the rehabilitation of a weakened French economy and the strengthening of armaments. The senate appeared to be almost unanimous for him.

Rain, Wind Storm Rakes Maritimes

HALIFAX, Dec. 8—(CP)—Nearly two weeks after a blizzard lashed the Maritimes, the seaside provinces recovered today from a rain and windstorm that played havoc with power and communication wires and caused scattered property damage.

Standing to lose heaviest in the storm were south shore lobster fishermen. Yarmouth reports said fishermen there feared for the safety of the $1,000,000 lobster industry. They said the storm threatened valuable lobster traps and gear placed in the water since opening of the 1938-39 season six days ago.

The temperature reached 54 degrees in Prince Edward Island and was a few degrees lower on the mainland. Several telephone lines and electric light wires were blown down in island districts.

Derailment of a Canadian National Railways train near O'Leary, about 65 miles from Charlottetown, was believed due to a washout. Engineer Harold Moore and fireman Bob Bell were taken to hospital suffering scalds. No passengers were injured.

A two-hour gale buffeted Pictou County in northeastern Nova Scotia. Trees were damaged at New Glasgow.

Million For Roads "Belated Gesture"

TORONTO, Dec. 8—(CP). — The Federal Government's decision to spend $1,000,000 on the relief of unemployment in Northern Ontario is regarded as "just a belated gesture" by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn.

Yesterday's agreement between R. M. Smith, Deputy-Minister of Highways for Ontario, and Hon. Norman Rogers, Federal Minister of Labor, with regard to the expenditure of $2,000,000 on a works program in Northern Ontario, Mr. Hepburn said could not be considered as "any indication of a reapproachment."

Mr. Hepburn explained that he took the position that the Federal agreement to the plan was "little enough" in view of the fact that Ontario spent upwards of $26,000,000 for roads in Northern Ontario while at the same time the Federal Government had contributed only about $850,000 for relief.

"Our agreement with the Federal Government is no indication of any reapproachment," the Premier said. "We are only getting what is our due. It's just a belated gesture. That's all it is."

$10,000 Given Ratepayers In Campbellford

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 8—The present year was the most successful one the board has seen since he had been a member J. O. Benor, chairman of the water and light commission said at the regular meeting held here Wednesday. "We have seen the consumption of power go up and the revenue increased and have accomplished something for the town that hasn't been done in the past thirty years, when we succeeded in bringing a new industry here." It was the last meeting until December 16th when the board meets to wind up the business for the current year and on motion of Commissioner Davidson and Benor a further grant of $2,000 was given the corporation making a total of $10,000 handed over to the taxpayers by the utilities commission for 1938.

This additional grant which had been intimated earlier in the year as a possibility will in all probability leave the council with a balanced budget with which to face electors in January according to Mayor F. F. Long. At the present time anticipated tax receipts to the end of 1938 would probably leave the town in the red about $3,000 declared the mayor but with the grant of $2,000 authorized by the commission he felt that the remaining thousand might be collected by the tax department and thus justify the fifty-one mill rate set last spring.

Other business transacted included the signing of an agreement with the Canadian National Telegraph Company whereby the Commission agrees to carry the Company's wires on certai nstreets within the corporation at a fee of $1.10 per year.

Following reading of the commission's monthly financial statement, chairman Benor remarked that domestic consumption had for the past several years been increasing on an average of $500 per year.

Want to Remove Tree

The large elm tree located on the Plumpton property, Inkerman street, will be removed by the utilities commission provided the owner will give assent. The request of James Wilson to have power lines removed so that he could fell the tree was not agreeable to the commission.

"These are all new wires and the cost of cutting them together with the inconvenience to our customers is not warranted. It would take two days to remove these wires and replace them again without cutting," claimed Mr. Denyes.

REGINA—(CP).—Cost of operating the 40,000 feet of piping in Regina's Stadium's new $25,000 artificial ice plant will be only $1 an hour, officials have announced.

Imprisoned In Car

TORONTO.—For two hours late here yesterday a two-year-old girl was imprisoned in a car, while hundreds watched efforts to release her. The child's father, Walter Ferguson, parked his car and left it for a moment. The child apparently fastened the safety catch on the door lock.

Schools Are Closed

Santa Claus Is Coming On Christmas Eve

Santa Claus has not got his wires crossed he will arrive Christmas Eve which is Saturday night September 24th and not the following night, even though Christmas is being observed as a holiday on Monday, December 26th.

Parents throughout the city are unanimous on this point although at times it has been heard that some families intended to have Santa arrive Sunday night instead of Christmas Eve. Such a plan would distress the children.

For instance if children from two families attended the same Sunday school and if Santa Claus came to one family Saturday night and not to the other, and this fact became known to the second family at Sunday school, there would be some heart broken kiddies. However, it is reasonably certain that the old bewhiskered gentleman has his plans complete to come Saturday night, Christmas Eve as he has been doing for centuries.

Expressions of opinion on this point which may appear trivial to the adult but if of great importance to the children were obtained by an Examiner reporter this morning and they follow:—

Rev. E. W. Young, minister of St. Andrew's United Church — "The coming of Santa should not be obscured because Christmas falls on Sunday. Christmas stands for God's great gift to the world, and our giving of gifts has its inspiration in that original gift from God. Christmas Day marks a great epoch in the Christian religion and any observance of Christmas which would emphasize its special nature, such as the arrival of Santa should be observed even though Christmas falls on Sunday."

Mrs. D. Donoghue, 449 Rogers street—"It doesn't make any difference whether Christmas falls on Sunday or not, Santa Claus will be here Christmas Eve."

Miss Irene Ruth, 688 Water street —"I think he should come both nights and bring a big load each time. The children would not want to wait any longer for his arrival than is necessary and they would be disappointed if Santa did not come Saturday night which is Christmas Eve.

Mrs. C. M. Scott, Stewart street—"Christmas is remarkable for the happiness it brings into the world, particularly to children and I feel they would be disappointed if Santa Claus did not arrive on schedule."

Mrs. C. Lacheur, 550 Gilmour street—"I do not think it would be right to make any change even if Christmas falls on Sunday."

Mrs. S. O. Shields, 562 Bolivar street—"Christmas Day is Christmas Day regardless of what day of the week it falls on. Santa Claus should come Christmas Eve."

Mrs. Roy White, 408 Monaghan road — "I don't see any need to change from the usual custom. Saturday night is Christmas Eve and that is when Santa Claus should arrive."

Mrs. J. A. Dorris, 189 King street —"It would be unfair to the children if Santa Claus changed his plans and came Sunday instead of Saturday."

Dan Douglas, 549 Bethune street —"Santa Claus pays no attention to the laws of the country regarding holidays, he will arrive Saturday night and won't disapoint the kiddies, even though the holiday is being observed on Monday."

After all these expressions of opinion there is no doubt whatever but that the merry old fellow with his leigh load of toys and candies will arrive on Saturday night, and on Sunday morning when the youngsters rush downstairs, they will not be disappointed.

Inspection Is Made Of Federal Works

An official visit of inspection to the work that is being done at Little Lake here and the project at Lakefield where the water is also being improved was made on Wednesday by J. M. Wilson, chief engineer of the Department of Public Works for the Toronto division, the assistant chief engineer T. Jeffrey and resident engineer McArthur. The engineers inspected both undertakings closely and were delighted with the progress of the work and the improvement that has been made. The new wharf at Little Lake was pronounced one of the best of its type in the country.

The Rambling REPORTERS

GETS INTO WRONG SEAT

When Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., got through with the informations that had been laid before him in police court this morning he was surprised to find there was a young man seated in the prisoner's dock for whom no information was available. An inquiry revealed the fact that the youth was in court merely as a witness. "Get out of there," exclaimed the magistrate. "That place is only for the prisoners."—C.

A PENNY A DAY

The Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association really put on a drive for membership this year and secured more members and more funds than they ever had in their entire history. The zeal with which the association followed prospective members was related by President Fred Marshall Wednesday night. He told that one prospect felt he could not pay the necessary dollar and so the membership chairman took a penny each day in payment. "Our new member was cautious, too," said Mr. Marshall. "He demanded, and got, a receipt for each penny."—P.

Private Session

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 8 (C.P.)—Deliberations in connection with the first Provincial Council of the Ecclesiastical Province of Kingston continued yesterday in private. Deliberations will not be made public until they have been subjected to the Holy See for official approbation.

Sessions opened on Monday and will conclude to-day following a Solemn Pontifical Mass and a council meeting. His Excellency Most Rev. R. H. Dignan, Bishop of Sault Ste. Marie, will preach the sermon for the closing.

Bounty Claimed On Four Wolves

Stories brought back to the city by deer hunters indicating that wolves were plentiful in the northern parts of Peterborough county are substantiated by the fact that within a month four men have claimed the bounty for wolves at the County Court House.

Charles Allen of Rockcroft, 23-year-old woodsman and trapper, on Wednesday brought in the pelt of a large timber wolf. Joseph White collected $15 on November 21, and on November 19, Elmer J. Crough produced the pelt of a wolf which he killed a few days before. All of the three were large animals. One other man claimed the bounty at the close of the deer hunting season.

Reports from the district north of Apsley and east nearer the Hastings county boundary reveal that settlers and lumberjacks have heard the cry of wolks packs on the hunt several times during the past few weeks. One man claims the lonely howling of the animals can be heard almost any night in the week. Recently the carcass of two fawns were found partially eaten on Star Lake and Long Lake, and the wolves are blamed.

Remand Is Granted In Boy's Interest

Ernest Travies, the youth who pleaded guilty a few days ago to the theft of a motor car from Thomas Hughes, North Monaghan and who was remanded until this morning heard Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court today order another remand until Thursday of next week at the request of Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C.

"This is really in your interest," the Magistrate told the accused. Crown Attorney McElderry wants to make certain representations to the Attorney-General in your case."

The situation is that Travies, having pleaded guilty to the theft of an automobile, must be sentenced to at least a year's imprisonment, No suspended sentence is possible and in view of the circumstances the crown authorities here are asking the Attorney-General to authorize some other disposition of the case.

W. R. Philp is acting for Travies.

Youth Faces Charge Of Theft Of Tire

Harold Coons, 19, of R.R. 1, Lakefield, pleaded not guilty when he was arraigned before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning on a charge of stealing a truck tire and tube from Elmer Worr, on or about October 29th. Coons said that he was ready to go on with his trial but after a consultation Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., announced that a witness material to the case was absent and he would have to ask for an adjournment.

Magistrate Langley set Thursday next as the day for hearing the case.

OBITUARY

MRS. HELEN TAYLOR BLACK

A former resident of this city, Mrs. Helen Taylor Black, died in Hamilton on Thursday. She was the widow of Alexander Black.

Surviving are four daughters, Mrs. R. Veitch, Mrs. Janet Thorne, Mrs. Bruce Clark, all of Peterborough; and Mrs. H. Seymour of Hamilton. Two sons, Robert Black of Albany, N.Y., and Alexander Black of Peterborough, also survive.

The remains will arrive by train in Peterborough on Friday at noon and will rest at the funeral home of A. Comstock and Sons, 305 Water street. The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon from Knox United Church, at 2 o'clock, and interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

Rising In Power

Lavrenti Barea, pictured above, formerly chief of the Georgian secret police, has emerged as the third most powerful man in Russia. It has been learned that Barea has been confirmed as acting assistant to Nikolai I. Yezhov, commissar for home affairs. His appointment makes him logical successor of Yezhov, who is gradually relinquishing many of his duties. Barea, who has emerged from comparative obscurity, is best known for his success in purging Georgia. He is expected to wipe out enemy nests reported to have sprung up in the far east, and to liquidate alleged dissidents in Moscow and Leningrad.

Merchants Confidently Predict Steady Increase In Business

A hasty survey of downtown stores, convinces the Examiner that the spirit of Christmas has begun to weave its magic spell around retail business in Peterborough, and local trade, a short time ago currently reported as being somewhat in the doldrums has begun to swing it. With Christmas now only fourteen shopping days away the majority of the merchants questioned were in a most optimistic mood, confidently predicting that from now on there will be a steady increase in the volume of business until the final returns will show last year's totals left behind. And last year, be it remembered, was a good Christmas from a retailer's standpoint.

J. H. Jamison, manager of the Canadian Department stores had a rather unexpected explanation for the boom that has begun in Christmas trade. To the Examiner he pointed out that while the mild weather had cut down the volume of fall trade, the retailers were now beginning to cash in on that unusual situation.

"Folk did not buy some of the things this fall they usually buy at that season of the year," he said. "and the result is they now have more money to spend on Christmas things. And they are spending it."

"The last two weeks," continued the C.D.S. head, have been ahead of our totals for the same two weeks of last year and we expect that condition to prevail for the rest of the Christmas season. Business is really showng up well and I have every confidence in that the total volume will be entirely satisfactory."

C. E. Saunders, head of Richard Hall Limited, was equally as optimistic. "The Christmas trade has been opening up well," he told the Examiner, "and the whole outlook is most gratifying. Right at the moment Toyland is well filled and other departments have fine quotas of customers. We feel sure that from now on there will be plenty of Christmas business; everything points to it."

"Very good," was the emphatic reply of D. J. Fitzgerald, manager of Zeller's Limited when the question "How is Christmas business," was fired at him "I cannot see any reason," he continued, "why we should not finish away ahead of last year. With us November made a better record than the same month of 1937 and December has opened out in fine style. People are buying and the prospects are most encouraging."

Arnold Deyell of Soden's Bookstore added his quota of optimism to the confident chorus. Christmas buying, he reported, had started with them some time ago and the tempo was increasing with the drawing nearer of the Yuletide season. "Every bit as good as last year, if not better," was his summary of the situation.

"I am hopefully looking forward to good Christmas business," said R. J. Goring of Robert Fair and Company. "Business has definitely started to pick up and the last four days in particular have been noticeably good. The increase should be greater from now on."

BANK CLEARINGS

An increase in the clearings passing through the Peterborough Clearing House for the past week as compared with the same week one year ago was reported today. The past week's clearings totalled $660,607 while the same week a year ago they amounted to $635,086.

HOEING HIS GARDEN.

Prime unusual occupation for the month of December goes to Bert Arnott, North Monaghan market gardener. This morning, December 8, passers-by were amazed to see him at work in his garden—not shovelling snow as one would expect in this month of winter, but hoeing.

SEED STOLEN

Thirteen bags of clover seed were stolen from the barn of Harry Taylor, in Harvey township during the last few nights, the thieves taking ten bags on one occasion and the remainder on another visit. Provincial Constable David Silvester is investigating the case.

EPIDEMIC SUBSIDES

Dr. Murray Fraser, Medical Officer of Health states that the mild epidemic of chicken pox which interferred somewhat with school attendance during November and produced a total of 50 cases is apparently subsiding. There have been no new cases this month.

RECOMMENDED.

Walter Zirofas of Lakehurst, a native of Pittsburg, Penn., and a resident of Canada for the past six years, had his application for naturalization recommended before Judge L. V. O'Connor this week. Ted Borbridge, of the law firm of Peck, Kerr, McElderry and Borbridge, placed the request for naturalization before the court and examined the applicant.

MUST GO ON

William Miller, Louis street, charged with illegal possession of liquor was not ready to go ahead with his case in police court this morning. The crown was in the same situation so another adjournment was granted until Thursday of next week. There have been several all ready and today Magistrate Langley warned that the case must be disposed of one way or another next week.

RETIRES ON PENSION

The Times House Journal, office news bulletin issued by the London Times, tell of the retirement from the staff of the night composing staff of that great newspaper of G. C. Rogers. Mr. Rogers, who retires on pension after a connection with the Times dating back to 1916, and who was presented with a fountain pen and a Rolls razor by his fellow workers, is a brother of Mrs. Wm. Gray, Murray street and Joseph Rogers of this city.

BLIND GALLERY.

Spectators and other attending the court sessions at the County court house often wonder what is behind the large maroon curtain which drapes the gallery. The gallery was never finished. It has no seats, nor has it even a stairway leading up to it. The only way a person could get behind the curtain would be with a step ladder. The curtain was put up to improve the appearance of the court chamber.

DUCK YOUR HEAD.

The new style of hats for women may look smart but many women complain they have had to replace the tall feathers two or three times since purchasing the bonents. The feathers are so stiff and high that when a women steps into a closed car she invariably forgets the hat and smashes the feather against the top. Even when the women are seated in the cars the feathers touch the roof. Others have the feathers so arranged that they may be slipped out of the hat and carried while car riding.

RABBITS PLENTIFUL.

Hunters report that swamp rabbits, better known perhaps by the name "snowshoe" rabbits are plentiful this year. Moreover the lack of snow makes them easy targets for the hunters as they have turned almost pure white. Cottontails are not so numerous this year, according to the fellows who regularly enjoy an afternoon hunting the animals, but the jack rabbits are increasing rapidly particularly in Smith township and North Monaghan.

IRISH PREDOMINATED

Michael Murray appearing in country court this week came before another Irishman, Judge L. V. O'Connor, V. J. McElderry, K.C., the prosecuting attorney was also a son of Erin. Provincial Constable McClure claims Irish ancestry. He laid the charge. Two of the witnesses for the Crown were named O'Toole and a defence witness was an O'Brien. Two of the reporters covering the case were Irishmen, and the jury according to the list of names were preponderantly Irish. They found the prisoner guilty and he got thirty days.

A VERY OLD DOG.

Peter, the grey whiskered airedale which may be seen almost daily snoozing in the hall of the County court house, is said to be about 13 years old. He was first owned by the late Judge Huycke and with another airedale, the same age, visited the court house regularly with the Judge. About ten years ago when a few dogs in the district had rabies, the two airedales were allowed to run at large inside the jail wall. Peter stayed a month and when he was taken home turned around and came back to the jail. He has been a star boarder ever since.

Constable Interrupts Party In Woodyard; Three Men Given Seven Days In County Jail

The untimely arrival of Constable C. J. McGillen completely spoiled a Yuletide wine party that was being staged in a local woodyard Wednesday afternoon. The guests had only got half-way through their schedule when the law arrived in their midst for only one bottle of made-in-Ontario wine had been consumed and the second was just ready to be served.

On motion of the officer the party was immediately adjourned to the police station, and this morning the three guests, gentlemen of the open road, who gave their names as John Cameron, George Murray and George Wilson, were lined up in a row in police court before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., and charged with consuming liquor in a place other than a residence.

All three pleaded guilty and all three with evident sincerity pleaded with His Worship to be "as lenient as possible."

They will be out of the Bastille in plenty of time for Christmas as Magistrate Langley made the fines $10 and $3 costs and, vastly more important from the viewpoint of the three offenders, named seven days in jail as the alternative for non-payment of the official levy.

Wolf Battles Two Hounds

(Examiner Correspondence.)

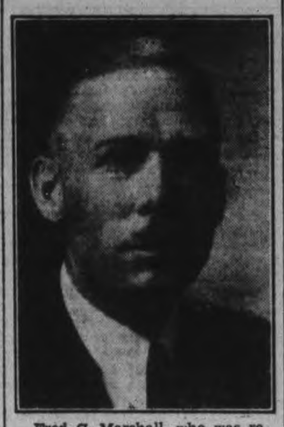
TRENT RIVER, Dec. 8—A battle royal between a large brush wolf and two hounds ended in victory for the wolf Wednesday afternoon but the marauder died a few minutes later from four bullets fired at fairly close range, by H. Revoir of Trent River.

The wolf was first seen on the farm of John Scott on the edge of the hamlet. H. Revoir and W. J. McLaughlin immediately set forth in pursuit of the animal with two hounds doing the tracking. The wolf headed in an easterly direction towards Mud lake. It had travelled about a mile when a hound owned by Revoir overtook it and gave battle. The wolf showed no fear and in a few minutes had both dogs bleeding. As the two hunters came in sight of the battle they saw the wolf hurl Revoir's hound about eight feet in the air, badly lacerating the dog's head and jaws. The other dog was limping from wounds already received. Revoir opened fire as soon as the wolf was clear of the dogs and four bullets struck the animal before it collapsed.

The wolf when examined was found to measure four feet, eight inches from tip to tip and weighed well over a hundred pounds.

Considerable excitement prevailed in the little community when the story of the hunt became known, as it is the first time in a number of years that a wolf has been noticed so far south. Mr. Revoir will receive $15 bounty for killing the wolf and will also obtain a price for the pelt which the department permits the hunter to sell.

Is Re-elected



Fred C. Marshall, who was re-elected president of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association at the annual meeting Wednesday night. His second year in office, he leads an organization whose membership has jumped under him to the greatest membership in its entire history.

Rifle Club Plans To Train Recruits

The first general meeting of the newly organized Red Patch Rifle Club (Prince of Wales Rangers) was held in the recreation room at the Armouries Wednesday night, with the president, Major H. K. Clifton, M.C., presiding, and plans were made to carry on an active rifle club, with shooting in the indoor range of the Armouries each Monday and Friday, commencing December 12 next at 8 p.m. There will be a series of matches for prizes with a handicap system that will give all those interested in this great sport a chance against the best shots in the city.

One of the activities of this club will be the training of young men in the proper method of target shooting, and any male over 16 years is welcome to become a member, with the lowest membership cost of any such club in the province, due to equipment transferred by the old club for the use of this new organization.

James McGrath as captain and Dave Clements as vice, two of the finest shots in the city, have offered their services as instructors, and the club has challenges already from various groups both here and out of the city.

The club invites all who are interested to be at the initial shoot on Monday next in the Armouries miniature range.

Swimming Meet Is Held In Y.M.C.A. Pool

Before an interested audience of over two hundred spectators, the joint swimming Meet of the Y.W.C.A. against the Y.M.C.A., held Wednesday evening at the Y.M.C.A. pool, was a fine exhibition of aquatic skill.

Some fine ornamental swimming, fancy floating and diving exhibitions given by the Silver Finettes of the Y.W.C.A. were well applauded, as was the splendid swimming and diving technique displayed by the men. The judges were G. H. Roper, R. Thompson, and M. Harding, Secretary Physical Education, National Council of Y.M.C.A.

Al. Marshall, Y.M.C.A. Breast Stroker, lowered his own record of 2 minutes 50 2-5 seconds for the 200 yard distance by 3 4-5 seconds, setting up the new record of two minutes 46 3-5 secs. Marshal is only 12 secs. from the Canadian record for the event, and is cutting his time down quickly.

Results were as follows:

Senor Girls' City Championship —First, Ethel Barnes, 295 pts.; second, Shirley Zacks, 280 pts.; third, Ruth Dalliday, 248.5 pts.

Junior Men's 40 Yds. Free Style—First, Jib Brown; second, Len Smith; third, Gerrard O'Toole. Time 23 1-5 seconds.

200 Yds. Breast Stroke—New record, 2 mins. 46.3-5 secs., made by Al. Marshall.

Long Plunge—First, Hazel Bradley, 49 ft.; second, Stan. McBride, 43½ feet; third, Shirley Zacks, 41½ feet.

40 Yards Free Style—First heat, George Watson, first; Bill Wildman, second; Wallie Farr, third. Time, 23 1-5 seconds.

Ladies' Life Saving Race—Won by Hazel Bradley and Ruth Dalliday.

Second Heat, 40 Yards Free Style —First, Stan McBride; second, Ted Clarke; third, Al. Marshall. Time, 20 and 2-5 seconds.

Divers—Bill Wildman, Jim Hardy, Wally Farr, Tom Macdonald, Stan McBride. Clown Diving—Gerald Corbett. Nightmare Brigade, ornamental swimmers, Jim Hardy, Wally Farr, Stan McBride, Ed. Prete.

A feature of the evening was the presentation of Y.W.C.A. Junior Trophies for 1938 by Mrs. E. E. Harvey, as follows: Wood Trophy, Baby Cup—Margaret Currie; Gordon Trophy Life-saving—Helen Currie; Hamilton Trophy, Junior Diving—Joan Foster; Comstock Trophy, Intermediate Diving—Jean DeCarlo; Public School Competition, Cruikshank Trophy, Shuttle Relay Cup—Queen Alexandra School; Littlefield Trophy, Diving Cup— St. Mary's Convent.

Among the 'Y' Silver Finettes who took part were: Hazel Bradley, Mrs. H. Forbes, Isabel Young, Shirley Zacks, Lily Long, Mrs. V. Currie, Peggy Lawless, Ethel Barnes, Ruth Dalliday.

Following the Meet a happy hour of dancing was enjoyed to music played by Mrs. I. Quinlan (piano), and Miss Mickey Foster (saxaphone).

TO HOSPITAL IN PRAM.

LONDON—(CP).—Ill in her home 25 miles away, Mrs. Edward Burrows insisted she would go only to Queen Mary Hospital here. Her husband took her all the way in a perambulator and at the end he was treated for exhaustion.

ROMANCE INC.

BY OREN ARNOLD

Read This First:

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, establishes herself in a cozy cottage near the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, hangs out a sign which reads "COUNSEL IN ROMANCE", and inaugurates a novel plan to help guide 100 student "members" in their social affairs for a small fee. Bob Towne, campus football hero, much attracted by Sara Sue, is the first to enroll, and this enrages Peaches Pomeroy, who had regarded herself as "Bob's girl" the previous year. An unprepossessing freshman, Worthington Gurley, enrolls and also displays an interest in the pretty young widow. Then Dr. Thornton Holgate, new member of the faculty, brings the Cottage Plan to a climax when he begs Sara Sue to help him and confides his love for the Pomeroy girl. Finally, T. J. Sanders, a sports goods salesman, drops into town and falls in love with Sara Sue at first sight. After Sara has given Dr. Holgate several lessons in "how to become more human", he becomes frantic at the freshman ball when he comes upon Peaches badly intoxicated.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER 20

"WE'LL BE singing in the spring-time,
We'll be singing in the fall,
We'll be singing all the year round
Be-cause Rice con-quers all-l-l-l-l!
We'll be marching on the gridiron,
Running, fighting, tearing through;
Victory is our goal line—
All hail the gray and blu-u-u-ue!"

They reached a high note on the final "blu-u-u-ue" and ended the song in a burst of exhuberant shouting. The words may have been exaggerated a bit, but the tune was fast and swingy. "EE-YEA-A-A-A-ho' YOW!" exploded the yell leader, and bedlam shook the dance hall.

The orchestra didn't have a chance against the mass vocal competition. The waltz therefore evaporated, while the brasses swelled into blaring accompaniment of the singers. The crowd had just about forgotten dancing anyway, and had gone in for impromptu fun. Somebody shoved Sara Sue Davis into the centre of the circle, and she obligingly sang the second stanza alone, leading the crowd back in on the chorus.

Blue-and-gray balloons that had boiled in air fountains all evening were released now. Green paper streamers speared the air from every direction—green for freshmen. Cellophane bags were distributed, their glisting beauty enchanced not by conventional confetti, but refrigerated rose petals to be used as such. Not only was the great ballroom a melange of color and action, therefore, but the hilarity was further heightened by delightful fresh rose perfume. The freshmen had, indeed, "gone to town" in staging their ball.

Dr. Thornton Holgate had edged out of the lounge in rather a pitiable state. First he had stared at Peaches—had held out a hand as if in supplication. No doubt, too, he did stare owl-eyed at her, as she drunkenly informed the drunk young man who was her companion. She had offered him a drink from the young man's bottle, but Thornton had only stared—owl-eyed.

When Peaches and her man began a silly simpering at each other, Thornton Holgate could only turn and move away, dazed. This was an experience utterly foreign to him. He knew, of course, that some young people drank and caroused. He had read—but discounted—reports of ribaldry in colleges, but he had never been exposed to any. He did not countenance intoxication, ever. He could have forgiven Peaches if she had slapped him, or spit on him. But to be drunk—

He hastened out onto the main ball floor.

"We'll be singing in the spring-time,
We'll be singing in the fall—"

Happiness there was in crescendo, obviously. Had he been in analytical mood he would have discerned American youth en mass at its gayest. He would have known that they, not the lamentable minority given to dissipation, represented the nation's real strength.

But etched on his mind at the moment was the silly, half-leering, simpering face of Peaches Pomeroy, its animation sagged by alcohol, its makeup spoiled by neglect. Dr. Holgate was devastated. He sought to push through the throng toward a door. Unfortunately, Sara Sue Davis spied him.

"THORNY!"

She shrieked above the bedlam.

He turned and saw her, and felt hysteria seize him. He knew that Sara Sue, loyal tutor, would not understand his feelings now, but would try to make him one of the gang. It was a loudable endeavor, one that he had earnestly sought, but at this particular moment—

"THORNY! Come and sing! Thorny Holgate! Bring him in, boys—Dr. Holgate has a marvelous baritone!"

"Holgate, Holgate, Holgate Holgate Holgate Holgate, we want Holgate!" Some of the frog-voiced freshmen began a chanting, more joining, until the attention of the entire room was centered on him. Sara Sue had come to his side now.

"Thorny, come on!" She commanded, sweetly reproving, smiling in good fellowship.

Then all at once she saw the misery, the utter terror in his eyes.

"I can't—I CAN'T!" His voice was a rasping, a sob. Tears glistened in his eyes.

Sara Sue, not understanding, nevertheless saw his condition. "Why, Thorny—!"

She would have sympathized, offered helped, anything. But he ducked then and plowed his way on through. He almost ran through the door, down the beautiful stairway to the ground floor of the hotel, and out into the street, forgetting entirely his coat and hat checked upstairs. He sank into a taxicab as if recoiling from some grave danger.

No greater cruelties have been inflicted on mankind than those unintentionally given. No men have emotional souls who are by birth keyed to high sensitivity.

Thornton Holgate would have passed at casual glance for a he-man anywhere. He had excellent health. His prowess as a swimmer had been a source of mild pride to him. He played good tennis on occasions. But the good qualities in Thornton Holgate were not surface ones alone. Inside him was a spiritual grandeur which few persons, not even he, himself, had ever suspected. His mother had known it—she had seen to it that his education was the best possible. One or two of the professors he had encountered as a student had discovered it. But few others had been privileged to know him intimately.

In the solitude of the taxicab he, of course, calmed down. Embarrassment still lingered; but, he reasoned, correctly, he had actually done nothing that would cast shame or slight on him. More poignant in his heart was the hurt there. It not only lingered, it grew.

He went to his room in faculty tower, removed his nice clothes and relaxed in a lounging robe. Even though it was now past 1 a. m., he had no thought of sleep. His ordered mind was no longer in frenzy, but he had much thinking to do. A veritable montage of pictures formed in it—Sara Sue and Peaches and balloons and orchestra leaders and Peaches and jumbled faces and Sara Sue, Peaches and Sara Sue, Peaches' bleary, sickening face; Sara Sue's lovely, quizzical, sympathetic eyes.

He did not want to read, did not try. He had two hundred or more books at hand. Some priceless volumes on mathematics. A dozen or more, favorites, in Italian. Several in German. Dr. Holgate had never found foreign languages difficult. And there, too, were some of the classics of literature. Macaulay's Essays. Tartarin de Tarascon. Stevenson's Vaillima Letters. The Bible. Mackail's Latin Literature. Schiller and Addison and Maurois and Mark Twain and Thoreau and Poe and Lawrence.

In them, many a time, he had found surcease from mental distraction. In them, he knew, waited the sagest advice and comfort of all the ages. But he was in no mood for them now. He felt, instead, that he wanted action rather than advice, and he had nowhere to turn, nothing to do in the still darkness of early morning.

At 2 a. m. he was, therefore, writing poetry.

Moreover, it was beautiful poetry, if somewhat abstract. He had written such on occasions before. He knew its power. He knew the tremendous influence of its creation, knew that any creative endeavor is likely to be potent spiritual dosage. He never published his poetry, rarely even showed it to anyone because mathematicians theoretically "deal only in figures". But that didn't matter. He got its worth. His rather cloistered mind could appreciate and enjoy its beauty.

At 3 a. m. he was still writing poetry, deep and vibrant.

Toward 4 a. m. he tired of it. He sighted heavily then, wished to himself that he was not such an utterly lonely man, and slowly went to bed. The south Texas air, heralding dawn, was gentle and cool and very peaceful, so that he slept now, instantly and well.

DOROTHY DIX

Relinquishing a Man To His Wife Is The Same As Returning Stolen Goods; The Husband Belongs To The Wife And No One Has a Right To Take Him

DEAR MISS DIX—I am 22 and deeply in love with a married man fourteen years my senior. He has been married thirteen years, has children and up to now has been faithful to his wife. He says he loves me, but that he also loves his wife. Can this be true? Can a person love two totally different persons at the same time? Now the question is: What shall I do? Shall I give him up and relinquish all my rights to happiness so that his wife may be happy? Has she any right to ask this of me? We have kept our affair secret. Should she know about our love? What should I do? L. S.

ANSWER:

The only decent, honorable thing, and the only thing that you can do that will secure your future happiness, is to give this man up and let him return to his allegiance to his wife.

If he is dividing his affections equally between you and his wife, neither one of you are getting much. Perhaps he hasn't much love to give anybody; but anyhow, if you look the matter squarely in the face, you are bound to realize that you are no grand passion with him. It is just another case of a middle-aged man being flattered by a young girl having fallen in love with him.

You see, he had thought that he was done with romance and had forgotten his technique of love-making and that women had ceased to look at him, and when you threw yourself at his head it made him feel that he was young again and a devil among the ladies, and he simply couldn't resist the temptation to do a little sidestepping.

But his heart isn't really in it. He doesn't expect you to take it seriously. He doesn't have the slightest intention of breaking up his home and divorcing his wife and jeopardizing his place in the business world by getting into the mess of a divorce scandal.

Girls who are trying to take married men away from their wives always think that they have an invincible weapon in their youth, but this is not always the case. A man may be dazzled by the beauty, the freshness, the slimness, the vivacity of youth, but if he is middle-aged or over he soon finds that he has nothing in common with it and that in a little while it gets on his nerves and bores him. He can't dance the rhumba like a boy. He can't giggle over nothing any longer. He doesn't desire to rush from one activity to another. And the woman he really enjoys being with is not the pretty girl young enough to be his daughter, but his wife who is his age and who wants to do the things he wants to do.

So there you are. Your middle-aged lover has enjoyed his little affair with you, but he doesn't want to marry you and he doesn't intend to marry you. The sooner you realize this and break off with him, the better. There is nothing for you to look forward to except the hopeless waiting that will burn out your youth and make you an old woman before your time, that will shut the door to marriage for you and leave you a lonely and embittered woman.

You ask why you should relinquish this man to his wife. For the very obvious reason that you should return stolen goods. Her husband belongs to her and not to you, and you have no right to try to take him from her. And believe me, my dear, no woman can build her house of happiness on the wreck of another woman's home.

• • • • • •

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—John and I have been going together for eight years. He has asked me to marry him time and again, but much as I love him I feel that I cannot marry him under present conditions. If we marry we shall have to live with his father and mother and two small children who are brats, because John has to support his family. His father is too old to work and his only business is to wander around the house sticking his finger in everybody's pie. The mother is a hateful, selfish hypocrite who thinks it is John's duty to slave for his family. She is extravagant and wasteful and runs up grocery bills higher than John's pay check. And she doesn't attempt to control the children. This condition of affairs is bound to go on indefinitely, and the question is: What must John and I do? We love each other devotedly. Should I marry him in spite of everything, or keep on waiting? A. N. A.

ANSWER:

If you have any intelligence whatever you will never go to live with John's people. Such a household is a hell on earth, and to enter it would be to go to purgatory before your time. But all that you and John need to solve your problem happily is to use a little common sense and a few inches of your backbones.

First of all, John must realize that he is taking a maudlinly sentimental attitude toward his family by letting it enslave him. There is no reason on earth why he should put up with his mother's extravagance and work himself to death to gratify her demands. Nor is he called upon to sacrifice his whole life to his parents and his brothers and sisters.

He should figure out a budget on which his family can live plainly and make them understand that they will have to make that suffice; that he is going to marry and set up his own home and will need his earnings for that. Of course, his mother will raise ructions and accuse him of being ungrateful and a bad son, but hard words break no bones, and it is better to stand a little unmerited abuse than for him to lose the woman he loves. And inasmuch as John's income will be cut in half, you should keep on with your job and help support the home that you will establish together, and in which I doubt not you will be very happy.

• • • • • •

DEAR MISS DIX—My brother of 24 is going to marry a widow, with two children, who is fourteen years older than he. He won't listen to us when we warn him against it, but he doesn't seem very cheerful over the prospect of the marriage. What do you think? M. H. A.

ANSWER:

I shouldn't think he would be cheerful. There is nothing to laugh over for a boy of 24 in marrying a widow who is almost old enough to be his mother and who has a ready-made family. His guardian angel certainly must have been taking a holiday when he got himself into a mess like that.

Suit Talk to the Occasion

Wherever she is, Jane says the charming, graceful thing.

Easy to sail right through any conversation, if in advance you take on a cargo of good phrases, timely topics.

In front of the fire with your best beau, talk lightly on casual subjects. Say, "That jolly song we heard in 'Spawn of the North' keeps running through my head."

Someone brings up a serious subject? Don't brand yourself ignorant, stupid by giggling, "That's too much for my little brain." Answer intelligently, "Yes, I think housing's important, too." Or show your interest by, "Do tell me about it."

Introduced to a new man? Awaken his interest by bringing an I-You note into the conversation. Say, "It's nice to meet a friend of Jack's—are you as much of a football fan as he is?"

An important interview? Be dignified, brief. Say, "I called at Dr. Jones' suggestion to ask you to speak at our alumni banquet."

Talk well in every situation. Our 32-page booklet gives helpful instructions in gracious phrases, repartee, small talk. Tells how to cultivate a charming voice.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of SECRETS OF GOOD CONVERSATION to The Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, December 9.

An interesting and eventful day is forecast by the lunar transits. But it may be one that it not entirely free from anxiety, disappointments, and other adverse circumstances. The latter situation seems to involve or be at the behest of elders or old attachments. The emphasis of the day is found in social, domestic or romantic affiliations, which have surprising or unexpected denouements. Change, travel, and new contacts are involved, with benefits arising from unaccustomed sources.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a very lively and eventful year, in which the accent seems to be on the social, domestic, sentimental or romantic interests rather than strict business. However, in the latter there may be advantages in change, travel or fresh contacts. An elder is involved and not with notable benefit. Be prepared to cope with some delays, disappointments or obstacles.

A child born on this day may be talented in some peculiar line, being fond of strange matters, new faces, and probably peculiar avocations.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

For quite a long while Hanid and Knarf, the shadows with the turned-about names, hadn't visited their good friend, Mr. Worm. Mr. Worm, you know, lived in a curious house; it was all underground. His front door was just under the little white rock at the end of the garden.

Well, Hanid and Knarf decided to pay a visit to their friend.

"You know," Hanid said, "I'm very worried about Mr. Work. He must be cold in his house."

"I have a good idea," Knarf said. "Let's bring him a lot of wood. Then we can build a fire for him."

So they both hurried around the garden, picking up as many twigs as they could. A harsh wind was blowing and the sun was hidden behind heavy clouds. Finally, when they both had plenty of twigs, they went to the little white rock and rapped on it.

"I've just been taking a nap."

They heard a sleepy voice saying: "Who's there?"

"It's Knarf and Hanid!" the shadows called down. "May we come down and see you? We've brought you a surprise."

Invited Inside.

"Come down!" Mr. Worm answered, still in a sleepy voice. "The front door's open. Mind the steps. They're slippery."

The two shadows squeezed themselves under the rock (shadows can squeeze themselves under almost anything), but when they tried to drag the twigs with them — alas! they wouldn't fit. There was nothing to do but to leave them outside.

They walked down the steps into Mr. Worm's parlor very sorrowfully. They were surprised to see him all curled up in his bed.

"Ah! I'm glad to see you both," Mr. Worm said, yawning. "I've just been taking a nap. Aren't you cold, standing up like that? Why don't you get in bed and stay there until it gets warm again?"

"Oh! we're not cold!" Hanid exclaimed.

"But we were sure you'd be," said Knarf. "And we were going to build a fine big fire in your fireplace. Only we couldn't get the wood down here."

"Fire? I don't need a fire. I'm fine and warm. I don't go around much in the wintertime. I just get in bed and stay there until it gets warm again. And....if you don't mind....I'm going....back to.... bac kto sleep . . . good-night."

And with that he turned over and didn't say another word.

Looking Back On This Date

DECEMBER 8.

One hundred years ago today (December 8, 1838) the execution took place at Fort Henry, Kingston, of Niles Gustaf Schobiewiskki von Schoultz, the Polish gentleman, who had been misled by American enemies of Great Britain to head a force of raiders into Canada at Prescott on November 11.

He had been given fair treatment by his British captors, having been tried by court-martial and defended by a then unknown young lawyer named John A. Macdonald, who had been admitted to the bar of Upper Canada in February, 1836. Von Schoultz recognized from the first that he must pay the penalty of the leader of a lost cause. In a letter to a friend he acknowledged the kind treatment he had received at the hands of the officers and men at the hands of the officers and men at Kingston, and in his will, of which John A. was the executor, he left £400 to be distributed among the widows and families of the militiamen killed in the battle of the windmill. Most especially Von Schoultz repudiated having had any share in the shameful treatment of the body of Lieut. Johnson of the 83rd Foot (it had been stripped of its clothing, mutilated and then hung on a post, as "a warning to others.") His last letter to the brother of his betrothed, Emmeling Green, of Salina, N.Y., speaks much for his character:

"When you get this letter I am no more . . . I have been informed that my execution will take place tomorrow . . . May God forgive them who brought me to this untimely death . . . I forgive them. If the British government will permit it I wish that my body may be delivered to you to be buried on your farm. I have no time to write long to you because I have great need to communicate with my Creator and prepare for His presence. My last wish to the Americans is that they may not think of avenging my death.

"Let no further blood be shed and believe me from what I have seen that all the stories that were told of the sufferings of the Canadian people were untrue. Give my love to your sister and tell her that I think of her as on my mother."

The body of the Polish count was buried in the plot of Mr. Cicicari in his private cemetery (now part of Frontenac Park) but was later transferred to the Roman Catholic cemetery. Ten others who participated in the raid were later hanged at Kingston. Eight of them had never been in Canada before; only two were Canadians. Yet the names of the whole ten have been preserved for posterity in memorials at both Niagara Falls and Prescott as "Canadian patriots."

NO MORE PILES

Get Quick, Pleasant Relief

Probably not one person in ten knows the cause of piles is inside—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about piles and is the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give more than temporary relief—they do no remove the cause.

Your piles an not be relieved until you have corrected the condition which causes them. That is why an internal medicine like HEM-ROID should be used.

HEM-ROID is the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, who early in his professional life made many tests to relieve piles by correcting the cause. His medicine succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, eases the pressure of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and helps to heal and restore the sore, tender parts.

So if you have failed to get the relief you want from your sore, painful piles, and would like to give HEM-ROID a trial, you have our promise to return your money, if just one bottle of this prescription does not give results. McDermid and Jury and Bond's Drug stores or any druggist can supply you with the genuine HEM-ROID.—advt.

Millbrook Junior Girls' Club Holds Initial Meeting Of Season

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 8. — The initial meeting of the Junior Girls' Club for the current season was held on Saturday afternoon, Mrs. W. C. Thorndyke kindly giving the use of her home for the gathering.

The leader, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, took the chair, the first item of business being the election of officers, the slate including: President, Ruby Fallis; vice-president, Margaret Smith; secretary, Ethel Belch; recording secretary, Dorothy Smith. The membership list for the new year shows the following enrolled: Margaret Foster, Wilma Armstrong, Henrietta Wood, Ruby and Vera Fallis, Pearl and Dorothy Challice, Ethel Belch, Dorothy and Margaret Smith, Lola and Florence Gardiner, Loreen Henderson, Luella Kennedy, Isabel Aiken, Vera Challice, and Martha Bech.

The project for the current year is "Cotton Accessories for the Club Girls' Bedroom" and the leader asked the girls to think of a suitable name for their organization for this season; last year it was known as The Kilm Club, when milk and its uses was studied in detail. The suggested names are to be brought to the next meeting, when choice will be made.

The leader gave a talk on the year's subject of study, stressing the arrangement of furniture in a girl's room, and pointing out that its choice and placing are an expression of personality. At the next meeting the girls are to mention "one accessory that my bedroom needs"; are to describe their individual rooms, if possible to bring a drawing of same, in order to stimulate discussion of how improvements may be made. They are also to begin record books at once.

Club Requirements.

Some requirements of membership in the club were noted: 1, to attend every meeting; 2, to participate in the club activities; 3, to make a survey of her bedroom and again at the completion of the year's work; 4, to make choice of two or three bedroom accessories as set for the club's objective; 5, to keep a record book, and to attend Achievement Day, when it will be exhibited.

A talk on cotton accessories brought out many details likely to be worked out practically during the year, and for a demonstration Ruby Fallis and Ethel Belch made a waste paper basket, the need of such an article in every bedroom being stressed. The leader also pointed out that even a rusty sap bucket might be used for this purpose, and gave directions for removing rust, painting, and otherwise preparing the container for the use indicated. Cardboard is also effective, covered with wallpaper matching the room and shaped according to pattern.

Mrs. H. J. Armstrong invited the girls for their meeting on Saturday, December 24, the assignment being "What use of cotton accessories I plan to make."

Demands Recount

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 8—(CP).—Application for a recount will be made by Ald. A. E. Harbeson, he announced this morning. In the elections on Monday Ald. Harbeson and Ald. H. N. Robertson were tied with 451 votes each in Ontario ward. Casting the deciding vote, city clerk Wyatt declared Ald. Robertson elected. Application for a second count must be made to the county judge within 14 days after the election.

Big Wheat Crop Mixed Blessing For Ebbing Year In Canada

OTTAWA, Dec. 8—(CP). — The wheat problem, never absent from the minds of cabinet ministers during the past eight years, assumed a new form in 1938. For the first time it became directly related to governmental finance with the prospect of a Wheat Board deficit estimated variously up to $50,000,000.

This arises from the fact Western wheat growers receive a fixed minimum price of 80 cents per bushel basis No. 1 northern at Fort William, and the market price during most of the autumn was about from 15 to 20 cents less.

The Canadian Wheat Board must buy all wheat offered on the basis of 80 cents and sell on the open world markets at the prevailing price. The difference must be made up out of the federal treasury.

In former years the problem was more one for farmers and western economy in general than for the Dominion government. There were years of either short crops or low prices or both. This year the crop was of normal size, 324,000,000 bushels for the three prairie provinces, but the price is low and it is the Dominion treasury which must bear the loss.

The vast drought area in southern and central Saskatchewan, southern Alberta and southwestern Manitoba where crop failures have been the order for several years disappeared in 1938. The greater part of the area received normal rains and produced a crop. Some drought was experienced farther north.

But bumper crops were the order in nearly all wheat-producing countries and as the 1938 harvest advanced, prices declined. Early in August, under the Wheat Board Act, the government set 80 cents as the price the board should pay farmers for their crop.

In addition the farmers received participation certificates entitling them to share in the board's profits, if any. Unless prices improve during the winter the board will have a loss which has been estimated as high as $50,000,000. Premier John Bracken of Manitoba placed it at $40,000,000.

The high fixed price tended to speed up deliveries of wheat from the farms to the elevators and early in November approximately 80 per cent of the crop had left the farms. Exports during the first three months of the crop year, August, September and October were brisk, particularly in October, aggregating 46,500,000 bushels. The carryover at the start of the crop year, Aug. 1, was small—23,000,000 bushels.

This compared with 88,000,000 bushels at the same time in 1937 following the small crop of that year. Should exports continue at the same rate as in the first three months of the crop year a total export for the crop year of something over 160,000,000 is indicated.

This would leave a carryover into the new crop year as of July 31, 1939, of approximately 100,000,000 bushels. While this would be considerably higher than the 1938 or 1937 carryovers, it would be much less than in preceding years when difficulty was encountered in finding markets for the Canadian surplus.

Charge 2 West Coast Labor Heads Out To Overthrow U.S. Regime

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—(AP)—A Portland, Ore., police officer told the congressional committee on un-American activities yesterday Harry Bridges and Harold Pritchett, west coast labor leaders, were attempting through their organizations to overthrow the United States government.

Captain James Keegan, chief of Portland detectives, testified evidence in his files "supports this statement absolutely."

"Do you say that their real purpose is to overthrow this government by force and violence?" representative Starnes (Dem.-Alabama), a committee member, asked.

"Yes, sir," was the reply. "They are moving through their labor movements and anything else open to them. We have in our files ample information to prove these statements conclusively."

Bridges, a native of Australia, is west coast Congress of Industrial Organizations maritime director and Keegan identified Pritchett as president of the Lumber and Saw Mill Workers' Union.

He further described Pritchett as a Canadian and a Communist party leader.

Keegan read to the committee an affidavit over the signature of John L. Leeche, a painter. The document said Bridges was a Communist and that Leeche had attended meetings where Bridges was elected to a state office of the Communist party in California.

The affidavit added that Bridges had been a Communist party member since 1934 and in 1936 had made a report to a Communist party meeting as to the party's "position" in an impending maritime strike.

Keegan said an investigation by his department developed that Pritchett described as a former resident of Vancouver, "took an active part in recent political activity in Oregon." He said he was unable to testify as to whether Bridges engaged in similar activity.

Havelock Junior W.I. Plans "At Home"

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Dec. 8.—The Havelock Branch Junior Women's Institute held their December meeting on Monday evening in the Albion Club rooms with the president, Miss Irene McKay in the chair. There was a very good attendance, the members responding to the roll call with donations of Christmas gifts for children, to be distributed to families in town.

The meeting opened as usual with the Institute Ode, followed by a period of general business. Plans for the annual "At Home" which the Institute generally hold each year on St. Valentine's Day were discussed.

Miss Bessie Thompson as program convener for the evening, then took the chair. Christmas carols were sung and a very lovely vocal solo rendered by Mrs. D. J. Holdcroft. "The Care of Woollens" was very expertly demonstrated by Miss Iva Smith.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting by the lunch convener, Miss Irene McKay.

Kingsway Workers Sponsor Yuletide Tea

The Kingsway Workers held a very delightful and successful Christmas Tea at the home of Mrs. J. H. Vernor, 320 Boswell Avenue, on Wednesday afternoon. The president, Mrs. Gordon Matthews, received with the hostess.

The tea table was covered with an embroidered Chinese cloth, and in the centre sprays of silver flowers and leaves rose from an oval nest fashioned of layers of scarlet cellophane and dripped silver vines gracefully over the side. The Yuletide spirit was further carried out in the buffet arrangement, where a tall silver Christmas tree was decked with holly berries, and flanked by stately scarlet tapers in crystal holders. Presiding at the silver tea services were Miss Margaret English and Mrs. A. H. Stratton. Mrs. A. L. Killaly, assisted by Mrs. W. M. Cruthers and Miss Mary Mulholland, was tea room convener.

In the drawing room a miniature Christmas village nestled in a drift of snow on the mantelpiece, and lights glowed through the windows of tiny houses that were sheltered by snow-sprinkled evergreens.

At the Touch and Take table, which was convened by Mrs. L. W. Scott, assisted by Mrs. V. M. Eastwood, the first lucky draw was won by Mrs. C. C. Graham, the second by Mrs. J. H. Jamison.

The Homecooking table was in charge of Mrs. B. B. Gillespie and Miss Elizabeth Scott, and the Christmas cakes, mincemeat and puddings in charge of Mrs. Gerald Wood.

Tickets on a bedjacket of soft, pink wool were sold by Mrs. A. Howson, and it was won by Mrs. Paige Howel. The door prize went to Mrs. D. T. Diplock.

Mrs. Gerald Wood was treasurer, and wa sassisted by Mrs. F. L. Roy.

McAdam—Burkitt

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, Dec. 8. — A very pretty wedding took place at St. Mark's Anglican Church, Bonarlaw, on Saturday, at three o'clock, when Gladys Kathleen Burkitt, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burkitt, Bonarlaw, was united in marriage to Harry Fair McAdam, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl McAdam, Mount Pleasant.

The bride was a picture as she entered the church on the arm of her father, in a toe-length gown of princess blue taffeta trimmed with Sweetheart roses and wearing a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses and maidenhair fern.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Swayne. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Canon W. G. Swayne, rector of St. Mark's Church, in the presence of the immediate relatives.

The happy couple left by motor for a brief honeymoon in Toronto and western points. The bride travelled in a brown satin dress with matching accessories. Upon their return they will reside at Mount Pleasant.

Cottesloe Personals

Mr. and Mrs. William Forsyth returned home on Sunday after spending two weeks with friends in Toronto.

Mrs. Ditcham left on Monday to attend the funeral of the late Edward J. Simond near Belleville. Mr. Simond was killed by an automobile while crossing the highway from his house to the barn.

Miss M. Webster, Pleasant Plains School, spent the week-end at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Knox, Mr. and Mrs. L. Freeburn, Mr. and Mrs. R. McDonald spent Sunday with friends at Apsley. Mrs. McDonald remained for a few days.

TAKE THE LEAD OUT OF YOUR LEGS

Get Oxygen in Your Blood and You'll Get the Pep that Sends You Bounding Up the Stairs

People who smother to death die because oxygen has been completely cut off from them. Just as surely you are slowly smothering if your blood lacks red corpuscles. Red corpuscles are your oxygen-carriers. They carry the oxygen you breathe in to every part of your system. Without enough oxygen-carrying corpuscles, your kidneys, liver, stomach and bowels slow down. Your skin gets pale, flabby, often pimply. Your nerves may become jittery — you tire quickly — feel depressed.

What you need is Dr. Williams Pink Pills. These world-famous pills help make more and better red corpuscles and thus increase the oxygen-carrying power of your blood. Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today at your druggist. See for yourself how quickly this time-proven blood-builder will help give you back your pep. Copr. 1938, G. T. Fulford Co. Ltd.

Old English Plum Pudding For Christmas Dinner

(By MARY MOORE)

We have given you your Christmas cake and cookie recipes, and most of you have probably made them and have them stored away for the festive season which is rapidly catching up with us.

I have been hoarding these few recipes for you since summer, a rich plum pudding and one rich and one economical recipe for mincemeat.

While it is still a little early to make your almond paste for the Christmas cake you must clip this recipe now while we have space to print it.

Old English Plum Pudding

Three-quarters cup sifted flour, 1½ teaspoons salt, ½ nutmeg grated, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, one-third teaspoon mace, one-third teaspoon cloves, ½ pound seeded raisins, ¼ pound dried currants, ¼ pound dates, 2 oz. each citron and orange peel, ½ pound fine bread crumbs, 1 cup hot milk, ¼ cup sugar, 4 eggs, separated, ½ pound fresh beef suet ground, ½ cup boiled cider. Mix and sift flour, salt and spices and stir in the fruit. Soak crumbs in milk 10 minutes. Beat sugar into well beaten yolks, then add suet and soaked crumbs; stirf this into the flour and fruit mixture. Add cider and mix well then fold in stiffly beaten whites. Turn into greased pir moulds (3) or into 1½ quart mould (the smaller moulds are preferable), and cover tightly and steam 3½ hours. These amounts will serve 12 people.

Mince Meat

(High quality, contains a little sherry).

Two cups minced beef, 4 lbs. minced apple. Drop these immediately into the 2 lbs of sugar, 2 lbs. seeded raisins chopped, 1 lb. chopped citron, 1 lb. finely minced suet, 1 freshly grated nutmeg, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon cloves, 1 cup jam (strawberry, blackberry or raspberry are preferable), 2 lbs. clean currants, ½ lb. lemon peel, ¼ cup grated orange rind, 1 cup orange juice, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 5 cups sherry (these are optional, but if they are not used boiled cider or fermented strawberry juice can be used in its place). Mix all ingredients except sherry if used, and cook 1¼ hours slowly. It is best if placed in large roaster and cooked in the oven standing on centre grate. This eliminates stirring and all danger of burning.

Mock Mince Meat (No Meat)

One peck green tomatoes, or 1 peck finely chopped apples, 3 lbs. brown sugar, 2 tablespoons each cinnamon, cloves, allspice, 2 lbs raisins, 2 tablespoons nutmeg, 2 tablespoons salt, 1 cup vinegar, 1 cup lemon juice, ½ cup grated lemon rind. If green tomatoes are used wash them and cut out hard parts, put through food chopper and heat through, when boiling point is reached drain off juice and measure. Discard the juice and add the same amount of water and bring to boiling point. Repeat this procedure but second time add only half as much water as there was liquid discarded. Add all other ingredients except lemon. Boil until thick, about 35 minutes.

NOTE: If tomatoes are used 2 cups apple must be added to every 4 cups of this mixture when pie is made, as you will see it contains no apple when tomato is used.

Almond Paste

While this paste may be made ahead of time it should not be placed on cake and frosted until 2 or 3 days before Christmas. This mixture may be used for making marzipan candies, flowers with petals of the paste, angelica for stems, cut up cherries for centres, etc.

One-half pound blanched almonds, 2 egg whites, 1¼ cups confectioners' sugar, a little more may be required. Grind nuts in finest knife of food grinder at least 4 times to make them very fine. Beat whites of eggs until foamy, then sift in the sugar gradually, then add the ground nuts and knead with the hands until mixture is very creamy, adding sugar if needed. If paste seems too stiff lemon juice or orange flower water may be added 1 drop at a time until right consistency is reached. Let stand at least 24 hours before using. It should be wrapped in wax paper, then in clean cloth, then stored in covered dish. A clean lard pail is suitable.

Almond paste is delicious rolled into balls, then rolled in grated chocolate.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by Mrs. MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Some time ago I saw mention of a book of economies in cooking—I believe it was called "How We Do It." Would it be possible for me to obtain it and what would the charge be. I believe it was compiled from information and recipes received from women cooking on relief allowances. Though not on relief I feel sure there would be much in it for me on a limited budget. I find your page a real inspiration and really have learned to cook by studying it weekly. My choicest recipes have come from it. May you continue your good work.—Mrs. A. D. A.

ANSWER: Thank you for your considerate letter.

The booklet entitled "How We Do It" may be purchased by addressing F. R. Clarke, Protestant Employment Bureau, 1027 St. George St., Montreal. They cost 25 cents each. This bureau will send out copies to those sending money for them as long as their supply lasts. It was compiled by women on relief to help one another.

QUESTION: I have been a reader of your page for many years and have used many of your recipes to good advantage. Now that Christmas will soon be upon us I am planning on my Christmas baking. For many years my favorite cookies have been the fig bars commonly purchased in our grocery stores—the kind that have a rich soft cookie outside and a fig filling. Have you a similar recipe in your files? Also in the West here the grocers sell what they call "—— Cookies" and —— Cookies made I believe with cocoanut and rolled oats. I would appreciate having a recipe that would produce a cookie something like them.

If it isn't too much trouble I would like an absolutely fool proof recipe for Yorkshire Pudding sometime soon. I have eaten it in homes of friends but my efforts have always been dismal failures.

Here's wishing yourself, husband and those two youngsters the very happiest Christmas ever.—Mrs. G. L. S.

ANSWER: Thank you for your kind wishes.

A recipe for Fig Bars is hard to find but I do have a good rich soft cookie dough that could be rolled very thin and placed on cookie sheet and spread with Fig Filling and covered with thin sheet of cookie dough and filling.

Fig Bars

Soft Cookies (For Filled Cookies)

One cup sour cream, 1 cup sugar, 1 well beaten egg, 4 cups pastry flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon each salt and soda. Mix the cream, sugar and beaten egg. Sift the dry ingredients and add to the first mixture. Add 1 teaspoon lemon extract if desired. Chill, roll very thin and if to be used for round cookies cut out. If to be used for fig bars or other filled cookies roll out in sheet and spread thinly with fig filling (see below). Cover filling with second sheet of thinly rolled cookie dough, press down and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 10 or 12 minutes.

Fig Filling: Chop ½ lb. figs, add ¼ cup water and 2 tablespoons sugar. Boil to a paste while stirring. Cool to spread.

We have been asked before to analyze the cookies to which you refer, but since they are commercially made it is impossible to turn out a product very similar because of the conditions under which they are baked being so different from a home kitchen oven. However the following recipe contains most of the essential ingredients.

Oatmeal Cocoanut Cookies

Mix 1½ cups brown sugar with 1 cup half and half butter and lard. Add 2 slightly beaten eggs, 2-3 cup sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 cups flour, ½ teaspoon cinnamon (or more of other spices if desired—we like mace) 2 cups fine cocoanut (not shredded), 2 cups fine or coarse rolled oats, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Roll out, cut out with floured large cookie cutter and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. until golden.

Yorkshire Pudding

One-half cup flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 2 eggs. Mix flour and salt and stir in the milk slowly to form a smooth paste. Then add the eggs which have been very well beaten, and beat the whole mixture well with a rotary beater. It is best to bake Yorkshire Pudding in two hot bread pans which have been well greased with drippings from roast beef. Pour batter into pans one-half inch deep. Bake in oven of 450 deg. Fahr. and bake 20 minutes decreasing heat as the baking is accomplished. Cut in squares for serving. It is customary in England for cooks to baste Yorkshire Pudding, but this makes it soggy rather than

We hope you like these recipes and that we can help you again.

GLOVES —BUT SMART!

By ALICE ALDEN

PARDON my glove — if it isn't a novelty affair with three-dimensional specifications, missing fingers or all sorts of glitter or fur trim. On every hand there are smart gloves, if a trifle nutty. Some revolutionary gloves evolve from the fertile brain of ... parelli. The gloves with the fingers missing, above, is one of the ideas of this madcap modiste. The really lovely evening gloves, right, are of black net with glittering black sequins.

Whether you make candy to pack into Christmas gifts or want it stored away for Christmas holiday entertaining you will love this:

CHIFFON FUDGE.

One-half cup milk, 2 cups confectioners' sugar, ½ cup heavy cream, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Combine milk and sugar and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until sugar is dissolved and mixture boils. Continue cooking to 225 deg. Fahr., mix in cream and butter and cook, without stirring, until small amount of mixture forms a soft ball in cold water 238 deg. Fahr. Turn into cold dry crock or earthen bowl and let stand until cold. Add vanilla and beat until mixture is thick and spongy. Scoop out on greased pan, press flat and cut into squares. This fudge requires long beating but has a creamier, fluffier texture than regular fudge.

Four New Members Added To I.O.D.E. Chapter

With the regent, Mrs. H. Keefer, presiding, the December meeting of the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. was held at the home of Mrs. S. J. Graham, Geraldine Avenue, on Wednesday afternoon.

A most encouraging report of the Christmas tea held last Saturday was given, and the regent expressed her appreciation to all who had contributed towards its splendid success. Four new members were brought into the Chapter.

The business included the voting of donations to the Childhen's Aid Society, Salvation Army, Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion, St. Vincent's Orphanage, Red Cross Society, Canadian Institute for the Blind, Navy League, and Peterborough Health Association. Other donations to be sent to the Provincial treasurer included contributions to the endowment fund, St. Helena's I.O.D.E. School in India, a Queen's University scholarship fund, and the vincial educational relief, and the Coronation bursary of the I.O.D.E.

It was also decided to send I. O. D. E. calendars and an extension to the library of the northern school adopted by the Chapter, Mrs. Keefer and Mrs. S. G. Graham reported regarding the kitchenette at the Y.W.C.A. which the Chapter is equipping.

After the business was concluded, Miss Edith Young gave a very interesting paper dealing with the hospitals of Great Britain which she visited while taking a course there recently. A vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Miss Mabel Paterson.

Mrs. George Northey's group was in charge of refreshments, and the appreciation of the Chapter members to the hostess, Mrs. Graham, was expressed by Mrs. Hamley.

DINNERS OF THE WEEK

SUNDAY (Guests)
Tomato Juice
Baked Devilled Ham Slice (see note)
Baked Spanish Onions
Fluffy Mashed Potatoes
Blanc Mange With Apricot Sauce
Coffee

NOTE: Some of our readers tell me they have trouble making Baked Ham Slice moist and tender. Try this method: Mix 2 tablespoons brown sugar with 2 teaspoons dry mustard, and rub into a slice of ham 1½ inches thick that has been gashed lightly. Mix 2 tablespoons vinegar and ½ cup water. Pour over the ham and bake rather slowly in greased pan about 45 minutes. This must be watched carefully as it tends to burn. Delicious and tender.

MONDAY
Piquant Ham and Mashed Potatoes (see note)
Mixed Carrots Strips and Peas
Buttered Waldorf Salad
Open-face Cherry Pie Coffee

NOTE: Grind leftover ham (if any) and mix with hot mashed potatoes and hot milk, flavor with 1 tablespoon chopped onion and some parsley (if you have any leftover egg whites they could be beaten stiffly and added). Bake in casserole until heated through and golden.

TUESDAY (English Oven Dinner)

Funeral from Knox United Church, Peterborough, Saturday, December 10, 1938, at 2 p.m. Interment in Little Lake Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

McPHERSON,—In fond and loving memory of our dear son and brother, Curtis McPherson, who died from results of an accident on December 8, 1937.

We think of him in silence,
His name we oft recall.
There is nothing left to answer
But his picture on the wall.
—Ever remembered by Mother and Dad, Sisters and Brothers.

CARDS OF THANKS

On behalf of friends and relatives residing in Campbellford and community, to whom our memorial tenders such significance and renders ever fresh the memory of our beloved ones who gave the supreme sacrifice during the Great War, may we, as mother and brother of one who fell in battle, extend our sincerest appreciation and deepest thanks to Mr. McKeel and all who so kindly gave donations for the improvement of the cenotaph at Campbellford.—Mrs. Walter Bateson and Robert A. Bateson.

Mr. F. Stedman wishes to thank the attending doctors and nurses and the many friends for their acts of kindness and their sympathy during his recent sad bereavement.

GOOD PAY
WHILE YOU'RE YOUNG.

Why wait years to earn good money? You want it now—while you're young. And you can get it in a Radio Expert.

We train ambitious, mechanically-minded men, over 18, to rebuild, repair and adjust radio sets. Expert knowledge in this growing field earns real money. Our special training course takes only a few months of home-study, if you will really work hard at it.

Let us show you how we can help you become your own boss. Why earn two dollars for someone else in order to get one dollar for yourself?

We give you easy terms, and the cost is reasonable. For free advice and full details, write to

Successful Play Held At Zion

ZION, Dec. 8—The Young People of St. Mark's Anglican and Zion United churches presented a three-act comedy entitled "The Adventures of Grandpa," in Zion hall, Friday evening, November 25. Proceeds were for the benefit of St. Mark's cemetery fund.

The cast was under the capable direction of Miss Madeline Charlton, teacher at Zion school. Mr. Harold Dixon acted as chairman. The Rev. Mr. Floyd, St. Mark's new minister, addressed the gathering.

Between acts, Mrs. Ross McIntyre gave a reading, and Mr. Clarence Swan sang a solo, both were well received.

The cast was as follows: Monte Ray as "Grandpa's grandson," Lloyd Crane; Tod Hunter, "a young dancing master," Harold Dixon; Lucy Hunter, "our little wife," Alice Burns; Otis Hammerhead "Grandpa," from Yellow Bud, Ohio, Gordon Robinson; officer McCormack, who seen his duty and done it, Raymond Robinson; Dorothy May, just out of college, Alma Robinson; Miss Pansy Hopscotch, fair, fat, and forty, Marion Beatty; Marie Ribeau, the girl from Paris, Beverly Stewart; Kloompy, just twelve days from Copenhagen over, Sadie Robinson. Mr. Harold Nurse played for the dancing in the play.

Lunch was served to the cast by the ladies of the community, which was heartily appreciated. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

Lifford Couple Hosts To Friends

LIFFORD LINE, Dec. 8.— Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lathangue and son Earl entertained about forty of their friends and neighbours recently.

The early part of the evening was enjoyed by playing a series of progressive games of euchre. The winners were Mrs. Lawrence Staples and Mr. A. B. Sisson who were presented with a beautiful glass bowl in attractive colouring and a handsome necktie respectively.

Following this a tree and flower contest was sponsored by the host and much enjoyed by all. The winners in this were Mrs. Harvey Grey and Mr. Walter Neale.

A sumptuous luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by Miss E. Lathangue. A social hour was spent by all at the close of the happy evening.

Among those present were Miss Irene McGill and brothers of Janetville, Mr. John Henderson and Kenneth, Mr. E. Lathangue, Miss E. Lathangue, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Preston and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Staples and son, Thos. and Offa Staples, Mr. and Mrs. Gervin Mulligan and son. Miss Harper, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Staples, George Tims, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Strachen and Vera, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Neals and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Neals and sons, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Sisson and Clare, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Gray,

Rewarded For Drama

CHARLOTTETOWN, Dec. 8. —(CP).—Charles Jenkins of Charlottetown, was awarded a Canadian drama award by the Community Drama League of British Columbia, it was learned last night. The award is conferred for outstanding work in Canadian drama.

Jenkins has been active in little theatre activities here during the last three years. He directed the play "In the Zone" that was awarded first place in the Prince Edward Island drama festival last year.

Janetville Lodge Holds Meeting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, Dec. 8—The regular meeting of "Silver Jubilee" L.O. B.A. was held on Monday evening with several members of Orono present as welcome guests.

W.M. Sister Luella Bradburn was in the chair and during the business session it was decided to postpone the celebration of the third birthday anniversary from December 9 to January 9 owing to the recent death of a valued member.

Speeches were given by the visitors and lunch and a social hour were enjoyed at the close of the meeting.

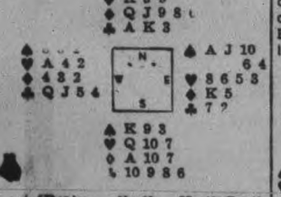
SEIZING THE BREAKS

MOST OF THE FINE football games in recent years have been decided by one factor—ability to seize upon a break when it comes. It is so with plenty of bridge hands. One side could win the hand by perfect play, but makes a single little slip. That offers the opponents an opportunity, by wideawake work, to turn the tide of a battle which otherwise would have been lost.



(Dealer, North. North-South vulnerable)

One Diamond was North's first bid on this deal, which East overcalled with 1-Spade. South bid 1-No Trump, North 2-No Trump and South 3-No Trump.

In response to East's bid, West led the spade 8, on which the 7 was played from dummy. East covered with the 10 and South allowed the trick to hold. East, instead of cashing his A and returning a small spade to clear the suit, played a small spade to the second trick with the hope that if West held the heart A, he would still retain one spade to come back to East.

Declarer won the second trick with the spade Q and ran five diamonds and two clubs but failed to make his contract because of East's defense. However, had he played the Q on the first trick, he would have won two spade tricks if East decided to hold off and in any event could have blocked the suit for East by not winning the second lead.

What is South's best play to make 3-No Trump after the lead of the heart Q?

Subsidized Nazi Cars In Africa Arouse Britons

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Dec. 8—(CP Cable).—A special report for the Board of Trade is being prepared on German attempts to capture the South African car market with subsidized cars.

The investigation is understood to form part of a larger inquiry into the whole subject of German commercial competition through subsidized exports and the blocked marks system of imports, which is making serious inroads into British trade in many countries, particularly in Central and Southeastern Europe.

In the background is the possibility of a trade agreement between Germany and Great Britain covering all world markets. It is understood unofficial negotiations along this line were started months ago with Germany stipulating any agreement must be limited to trade between the two countries.

According to British car manufacturers Germany is selling light cars in the South African markets at £199 ($935) while the comparable British car retails at £234 ($1,100). The German dealers' cost price is reported to be £164, the British £180. South Africa has no tariff preference for British cars.

It is generally understood the British government is giving its tacit approval to a financial gang-up of British industries against their German competitors as the surest way of smashing Germany's trading methods, which the government regards as unfair and unethical. The British government refuses to give subsidies.

German Tactics.

In the House of Commons recently R. S. Hudson, secretary for overseas trade, recounted instances of Germany exceeding world prices for wheat, barley, eggs, cotton, hides, poultry, mohair, and cereals in in Central and Southeastern European markets. Payment was made in blocked marks which could be used only in payment for German goods. The effect was to dislocate orderly marketing and transfer the flow of trade from Great Britain and other countries to Germany.

Germany had a treaty with Poland, selling Poland large quantities of machinery and taking in exchange farm products over a nine-year period at prices above the world market. In addition Poland has been given goods on credit with low interest rates.

Mr. Hudson described this sort of arrangement as an "uneconomic stranglehold" for Germany. We said the best method of meeting it was for British industries to organize as units and make price arrangements with their German competitors, or, if rebuffed, fill up a war chest, slash prices, and "beat the Germans at their own game." Several agreements have already been made, Mr. Hudson said, and others are progressing.

To understand the Government's attitude it is necessary to know that in Britain basic industrial policy is the exact opposite of Canadian in relation to combines, trusts, cartels, and price fixing. Industrial agreements of this sort are encouraged although outlawed in Canada.

There is no question of withdrawing favored nation tariff concessions from Germany as the United States did. Germany does not discriminate against British goods in its own markets as it did against American goods. Hence, even if Britain wished, she has no grounds to withdraw the favored nation tariffs.

Reduce Varicose or Swollen Veins

This Easy Way Prove It At Small Cost

Swollen veins may become dangerous and sometimes break. Sufferers should get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at McDermid and Jury or any pharmacist and start to reduce the veins and bunches at once with this healing oil. A small bottle will last a long time because it is very concentrated and a little goes a very long way. Apply night and morning with a soft brush or finger tips as directed until the swelling is reduced. So effective is Emerald Oil that it is highly useful in reducing troublesome simple swellings due to strain and hastens their disappearance.—advt.

Lakefield Choir Elects Officers

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 8.—Mr. A. E. Higgins was re-elected president of the choir of the Lakefield United church when they held their annual business meeting and election of officers.

Rev. G. F. Kelly presided for the election of officers.

On motion by Mrs. Moore and Rev. Mr. Kelly, Mr. A. E. Higgins was re-elected as president. Miss Eva Hendren was re-appointed to her post as secretary-treasurer, on motion of Mrs. MacMillan and Mrs. J. R. Hull.

The gift committee will be composed of Mesdames J. R. Hull, Wm. Millage and Miss Elsie Kidd. Mr. G. E. Renwick made the motion. It was seconded by Mr. E. Hill.

The flower committee will be made up of Mrs. G. E. Renwick and Miss Clarice Kidd. Mrs. Moore and Mr. Hill made this motion. Mr. W. W. Yale was appointed librarian for another term and Mesdames H. E. Moore, Wm. Millage and Mrs. Dora MacMillan were named on the visiting committee. Both these motions were made by Messrs. A. E. Higgins and Clayton Bullock.

Mrs. H. E. Moore and Mr. A. E. Higgins moved that the social committee be made up of Mrs. Butcher, Mrs. W. W. Yale, Mr. E. Hill and Mr. C. Bullock.

Rev. Mr. Kelly made the suggestion that new male members be invited to join the choir, in order to balance the choir more evenly. The members were unanimously in favour of this idea.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mrs. H. E. Moore, choir leader and organist, treated the members present to fruit and candy.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Moore by Mr. Higgins and was seconded by Miss Clarice Kidd.

Unauthorized Strike Feels Martin's Wrath

DETROIT, Dec. 8—(AP)—Homer Martin, president of the United Auto Workers, a Congress of Industrial Organizations union, called to-day upon every officer and member to take an uncompromising position against unauthorized strikes.

Every local in the big union was advised by letter of the procedure to be followed henceforth.

Martin's action was understood to have complete endorsement of C. I. O. advisers and is in line with C. I. O. policy shaped at the recent convention in Pittsburgh.

In the strongest statement yet made by Martin on the subject he said:

"Unauthorized strikes will not be tolerated under any conditions. It is the duty of every international officer, local officer, and member of the union to take a position without question against unauthorized strikes. Any officer or member of the union who failed in this duty will be held accountable for his action.

"Whatever measures are necessary to enforce this policy will be taken without respect to persons."

Martin assured members that authority for strike action could be obtained quickly "on legitimate and just grounds."

Sprackett Carries Tudor And Cashel

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Dec. 8.—In a spirited election on Monday, reminiscent of earlier days, former Reeve James Sprackett of the United Townships of Tudor and Cashel started a successful battle to regain the seat he relinquished a year ago, to defeat Reeve Roy Armstrong by a close majority of twenty-nine out of 328 votes polled.

Reeve-elect Sprackett represented his township for a number of years before going down to defeat last year at the hands of Reeve Armstrong.

The new council consists of Messrs. Cecil Armstrong, Jack Wilson, James McLeod and Bert Dafoe. Three councillors were re-elected with Mr. Dafoe being the only new face.

Found guilty on five charges of issuing worthless cheques, James White, eighteen year old Bancroft youth, was given a three-year suspended sentence by Magistrate Lloyd of Northbrook, on Monday, in Madoc Police Court.

White issued the cheques to Walter Brett of Madoc and several service stations. He told the magistrate he issued the cheques because he wanted a car.

George Shorey and J. Collins of Cannifton pleaded guilty to charges of carrying firearms in a section where deer are found, without a license. They were fined $20 and costs each.

Hastings W.A. Christmas Bazaar Attracts Splendid Patronage

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 8—The annual Christmas sale of the Women's Auxiliary of St. George's church held on Saturday afternoon, proved most successful. Lynch's large hall made an attractive picture with gay colors as charming decorations.

The booths arranged against the wall on either side contained a great assortment of articles suitable for Christmas gifts. Near the entrance the Junior Auxiliary girls, under the supervision of the superintendent, Mrs. William Stocks, had a sale of candy and work done entirely by the little band of workers. A fish pond also attracted the little ones who were eager to fish and examine what was in each parcel. Those in charge of the junior work were Amy Sargent at the fish pond, Joan Scriver, fancy work; Pauline Killingbeck, samples and Evelyn Chamberlain, candy.

The Senior Auxiliary had four booths. Miss D. Plant had the sale of lovely fancy articles in cut-work and embroidery, also novelties which attracted many buyers. Mrs. J. Dainard sold knitted mittens and socks, babies' jackets and bonnets. Mrs. R. King sold aprons and ready-to-wear and Mrs. Thomas Curel sold home cooking ,candy, chickens, eggs, etc.

Mrs. E. Radford, Sr., Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. William Gillespie supervised the afternoon tea served in the dainty tea room, where the four individual tables were attractively arranged with their embroidered cloths and pink and white serviettes.

Mr. Alex Wilson, confined to his bed since September, on Sunday celebrated his 83rd birthday and received birthday cards, congratulatory letters and visits from old friends. Mr. Wilson is Hastings oldest business man and one of the oldest citizens of the village.

Friends of Mr. John Beamish, Percy township's second oldest resident who is in his 88th year, will be pleased to hear he has somewhat recovered from his recent illness.

Mrs. George Jeffries of Belleville spent Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kirk.

Mr. Willis Preston of Peterborough spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Preston.

Mrs. Charles McKelvie returned to Campbellford after a visit with Mrs. A. German and Miss A. Hermiston.

Mrs. Fred Morrow, rushed to Nicholls Hospital last Wednesday, is slightly improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Beavis and family visited Mr. and Mrs. James Webb of Roseneath who on November 25 celebrate their silver wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Iden Bonds, Sr., Mrs. A. Thompson, Mr. George Bonds and Mr. Lynn Hill, returned from a visit to Pittsburgh, Penn., and Rittman, Ohio.

Col. R. Birdsall, Mrs. E. Birdsall and two daughters were in the village on Saturday and attended St. George's bazaar.

New Idea Broadcasts Whole Newspaper

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 8—(AP). — An experimental radio fac-simile station operated by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, to-day inaugurated the world's first regular broadcast on ultra high frequency of specially prepared facsimile newspapers.

No. 1 of Vol. 1 of the Post-Dispatch's first radio edition consists of nine pages, each 8½ inches long and four columns wide, using the newspaper's regular seven-point type. It takes 15 minutes to transmit the page.

The range of Station W9XZY, using 31,600 kilocycles, is from 20 to 30 miles. The broadcasts will be continued daily and Sunday at 3 p.m. E.S.T.

At present, 15 receiving sets have been placed in the homes of members of the station's staff. The manufacturer expects within the next month to be able to supply receivers at a cost of about $260.

Charles Dixon, a clerk, was fined at a ball in London.

PLAINVILLE

At the regular weekly meeting of the Y.P.S. of the United Church, about fifty young people from St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Cobourg, were guests and put on both an inspiration and entertaining program. After the program Plainville members provided recreation and lunch.

On Friday evening the Men's Association of the Gore's Landing charge held their first meeting of the season at the United Church, Gore's Landing. Dr. Robertson of Cobourg was the special speaker, and spoke on "Recent Advances in Medical Science." A number from each of the three appointments was contributed to the program, and lunch was served at the close.

Saturday afternoon the Victor Mission Band met at the home of Ronald Murray and Garth Manley with twenty members and visitors present. Audrey Wilson, president, was in charge of the program, and the leaders, Misses Lucy Lander and Grace Dines contributed readings and study. There was the election of officers, and after a short period of recreation lunch was served by the hostess.

Among those from this community in Peterborough on Saturday were Mr. and Mrs. George Kent, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Butters, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. Milford Tucker.

Mr. Frank Westington and his mother, Mrs. L. Westington, spent Saturday and Sunday in Toronto.

Mrs. Jack Millar and her brother, Hilton Morton, spent Sunday in Bowmanville with Mr. Millar and his parents.

Omemee Council Will Debate Beer Vote Issue

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, Dec. 8.—Omemee councillors will vote shortly on a bylaw that would, if passed, place before electors the question of beverage rooms in the village. Following a recent petition from ratepayers, who asked that such a vote be taken, the council at its last meeting instructed the clerk to draw up the bylaw. If the bylaw meets with the approval of the council, the entire matter will be submitted to the voters.

Nomination day was fixed for December 26, at seven o'clock in the evening, at Coronation Hall.

The council met in the town hall with Reeve Endicott presiding. Councillors Parsons, Burgess, Stephenson and Bent were present. On motion of Councillors Stephenson and Parsons, it was decided to write a letter to the Hydro Commission asking that street lights be kept lighted from dusk to dawn.

FOUR TORY CANDIDATES GO TO BALLOT

Banker Is Shot $2,500 Lost At Pt. Credit

Move Towards Gun Gets Accountant Bullet In The Arm

PORT CREDIT, Ont., Dec. 9—(CP).—Three armed men robbed the Port Credit Branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce today and one of them shot a bank accountant, R. A. Bryan, before escaping. Port Credit is 10 miles west of Toronto.

Bank officials estimated $2,500 was stolen.

They said the three men carried out the robbery quickly and efficiently. One of them fired at Bryan when the accountant made a move that the robbers believed was towards a gun. Bryan was wounded in the arm and his condition was not serious.

Armed and masked, the three robbers held up the bank staff and two customers. F. Clark of Port Credit was cashing a cheque when the holdup took place and Miss Hilda Bloor entered the office while the robbery was in progress.

Miss Bloor was ordered to raise her hands and was sent into the manager's office. Two bandits kept the staff covered and the third entered the teller's cage, stuffing his pockets with bills.

Harry Clarke, son of one of the customers, sat in a truck outside the bank and did not know a holdup was taking place until the trio fled in a truck stolen earlier from B. Stannah of Long Branch

100 Arabs Jailed In Roundup

JERUSALEM, Dec. 9 (A.P.).—The British Army struck against Arab rebels to-day in a series of dawn raids.

More than 100 were arrested, including several wanted by authorities on charges of terrorism. Eleven Arabs also were seized last night in the Haifa area and five members of a "rebel military court," the third of its kind broken up recently, were arrested near Jerusalem.

Deny Brutality.

LONDON, Dec. 9 (C.P.-Havas).—The Colonial Office issued a vigorously-worded statement to-day reiterating its denials of brutality by troops and police in Palestine, and pledging immediate inquiry into all cases of irregular conduct called to its attention.

"The Government have already emphatically denied the accusations of systematic misconduct and brutality alleged by certain sections of the foreign press against British troops and police in Palestine," the statement said.

"The allegations appear for the most part to be derived from propagandist sources in the Near East. Every allegation of irregular conduct is made the subject of immediate inquiry and the Government will not hesitate to take action in any case where circumstances require it.

"A particular instance in which serious allegations have been made against four members of the police force has been brought to notice and the individuals concerned are being prosecuted before the courts."

DETROIT, Dec. 9 (CP).—Kenneth Durie, hailed by Orchestra Leader Benny Goodman as the world's fastest shag dancer, was held pending psychiatric examination today after he appeared in traffic court here, charged with eight traffic offences. He got eight tickets in seven days while working in an automobile factory days and doing jitterburg dances in theatres and beer gardens at night.

Bullet In a Letter Sent Laguardia With Nazi Warning

New York, Dec. 9 (AP)

MAYOR Fiorello Laguardia yesterday received a bullet in a letter warning him: "You will get this if you continue to attack the German Nazi party."

A swastika was the signature.

Departing from his usual disregard of threats, the mayor immediately asked Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine to investigate. Postal authorities also were informed.

The package was sent to police headquarters for examination of fingerprints and other clues.

A clerk opened the letter. The mayor snatched it from his hands to prevent obliteration of fingerprints.

The script was bold and upright in heavy pencil or crayon.

4 Slide Victims Remain Hidden In Debris

By William Stewart
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

THETFORD MINES, Que., Dec. 9.—(CP).—A mass of debris blocking the mouth of an asbestos-mine tunnel still concealed today the bodies of four men buried by a rock fall that took seven lives here Wednesday.

Wearied search crews, who yesterday had pulled the mangled bodies of three of the miners from the pile of rock and dirt, continued digging into the jammed tunnel entrance.

Mining experts in charge of the search, already 36 hours old, said there was "no chance" any unlocated man might have survived the accident.

The avalanche of asbestos rock and earth had crushed down without warning on the handful of miners cleaning out the tunnel-mouth.

Two of the party of nine, working just inside the entrance, escaped. In open air, just a few feet away, a dozen other miners witnessed the fall.

Though the fall was outside the tunnel, the brittle mass of serpentine rock piled up outside the "portal" and swept in on the men inside "like sugar would spread," witnesses explained. In the act of loading a string of cars which were to have been pulled up the 1,500-foot inclined shaft from the deep pit to the Bell plant yards, the victims were caught without time to save their lives.

Killed were: Albert Lemieux, 37-year-old town councillor; Adolphe Theberge, 35; Edmond Emery, 43; Donat Gregoire, 42; Ludger Aubut, 46; Louis Nadeau, 54; and Joseph Verron, 44. The three bodies recovered were those of Aubut, Emery and Perron.

The two in the tunnel who escaped were Phillippe Nadeau and Rerard Morin. Morin, crew brakeman, survived by good fortune of being under one of the cars at the moment of the fall.

Dublin, Ireland, is completing the installation of traffic signals.

Opposition Fears Just One And That Man Is Drew Says Colonel's Proposer

'Will Be Advised By Those Who Know'—Drew; 'Man Of Experience'—Heighington; 'Unity'—Lawson; 'Unfettered'—Rawson

TORONTO, Dec. 9 (CP).—Ontario Conservatives were ready this afternoon to elect a leader to succeed Hon. Earl Rowe, the feast of oratory by the four candidates being finished when the luncheon recess was reached.

The four candidates are: Col. George Drew, Toronto; Wilfred Heighington, Toronto; Hon. James E. Lawson, Toronto, and Rev. Norman Rawson, Hamilton.

Balloting started at three o'clock. Elaborate precautions to ensure its fairness were outlined to the convention.

Nominations of the four in writing were handed to the chairman before the opening of the morning session. A five-minute space was given for additional nominations but none was received.

Mr. Heighington and Mr. Rawson protested the pledging of delegates in favor of certain candidates. The delegates should decide only after hearing the aspirants.

Beverly Matthews, chairman of the elections committee, said the lowest candidate on each ballot would be dropped from the next. If on any vote more ballots are cast than are issued by the elections committee, that entire ballot will be voided.

"We've done our best to anticipate anything that might be unfair and to stop that sort of thing," said Mr. Matthews.

"The primary need of the Conservative party in Ontario is unity," said Chairman Frost, exacting from the delegates a standing pledge to support the chosen leader. From the candidates then was taken a pledge to support the victor.

Case of Common Sense

Mayor Morrison, moving Col. Drew's nomination, said his candidate could go into any riding and fight his own fight. He had a chance to win Ontario. It was not a case of friendship. It was one of common sense.

"There is only one man the opposition is afraid of," said Mr. Morrison. "That is the man we want. We don't want a man the opposition wants. This man who is claimed to be disloyal went to the front and was wounded for his country and loyalty."

Mayor Morrison held up an anti-Drew pamphlet distributed to the delegates which, he said, questioned Drew's loyalty. It was the "last-minute, dying kick" of the anti-Drew element, he said.

Col. Drew said there was no magic for the solution of economic and social problems. They all traced to unemployment. Jobs took care of everything.

Prosperity could come only if the Ontario Government was made up of competent executives. Some had the opinion the best qualifications

No Let-up Likely In Italy's Land Agitation

ROME, Dec. 9.—(AP)—A new series of demonstrations against France led diplomatic circles to predict today that the Italian agitation might continue until Italy obtained "concessions" in French Tunisia.

Exactly what Italy wanted was obscure but foreigners thought it likely one objective was control over Tunisians of Italian blood, estimated at from 94,000 to 120,000.

Such control would be a matter of high importance in European eyes, since the country exercising citizenship rights over them might conscript them in time of war.

The demonstrations the past 10 days, called "vibrant manifestations of solidarity" by the Fascist press, have emphasized a cry for possession of Tunisia. They continued last night on the Italian mainland, the island of Sardinia, and the African possession, Libya.

Diplomats here however, were convinced both France and Great Britain would oppose any Italian attempt to acquire any part of the African possession since with fortified Pantelleria Island it would give Italy a firm position on either side of the Mediterranean—French shipping route and the gateway to the East.

Foreign observers reasoned then that citizenship control of the Italian Tunisians, a share in control of the Suez Canal, and perhaps control of the Djibouti-Addis Ababa railroad were more likely specific goals, although the Italian Government has taken no official action in line with the demonstrations.

The semi-official Italian news agency, Stefani, reported growing ill-feeling among Italians and Moslems in Libya, and said that "aggressions suffered by compatriots in Tunisia" aroused such indignation that in Tripoli the Government posted troops guards at the French Consulate.

The city of Tripoli is barely 100 miles from the dividing line between Tunisia, which France has administered since 1881, and Libya, where a border incident at this critical time might have the gravest consequences.

The Italian announcement of mountain anger of the people followed demonstrations in Tripoli last night in which young Fascists and a crowd of foreign and native population marched through the city singing patriotic songs and cheering Premier Mussolini.

Girl Identified

TORONTO, Dec. 9 (CP). — A woman found in a dazed condition in a downtown lane Monday by police, was identified at hospital last night as Rose Brisbiou, 26, Montreal.

Identification was established by Constable Thomas Nimmo who visited the hospital and recognized the girl as one he had given a night's lodging at the station last September. He said she told him at that time she had a sister in St. Catharines.

St. Catharines police are being asked to attempt to locate Miss Brisbiou's sister.

HELP FOR YOUNG DAD

LONDON—(CP).—A 16-year-old boy who stole a bicycle to use to look for work told the court he was a husband and father. He was discharged and received two offers of work and financial help.

Contenders Delegates from every part of the province gathered in Toronto for the Ontario Conservative convention, during which a new leader for the party will be selected. Observers predicted a bitter battle would be waged by aspirants seeking the leadership office, which was left vacant by the resignation of Hon. Earl Rowe. The three leading contenders for leadership post are shown here, LEFT to RIGHT, on the opening day of the convention: Hon. Earl Lawson, Col. George A. Drew and Wilfrid Heighington.

LESS REAL ESTATE TAX IS TORY PLEA

Attack On Tunis Unlikely France Thinks

PARIS, Dec. 9 (AP) — Sources close to Premier Daladier said today France would fight, if necessary, to defend Tunisia but claimed that Italy's military chances of attacking and seizing the colony from Libya or from the sea were "zero."

These sources viewed the Italian campaign for the French protectorate as simply a "propaganda advance guard" for other and more temperate demands converning the rights of Italians living in Hunisia.

Reports that Italian troops were massing in Insurgent Spain near the French frontier, however, were said to be receiving the closest attention of the war ministry.

The French view appeared to be that the troop movements in Spain were concerned only with a future Insurgent offensive against Catalonia.

France took no chances. French military sources said that if the reports were confirmed the defence ministry might increase Pyrenees fortifications and take additional precautions by strengthening troops in that region.

French military sources, scornful of Italy's chances of seizing Tunisia, pointed out that Tunisia had been the eastern outpost of France since 1883 and, as such, had long been well-protected.

Too Well Fortified

A line of fortifications modelled after France's famed Maginot line covers the flat approaches to Tunisia from the seacoast to the rise of the desert plateau. Beyond the "African Maginot line" southern Tunisia's eastern frontier is well spotted with block houses manned by some of France's finest native and continental troops.

On the other hand, Italy's adjoining colony of Libya was said by French military experts to be particularly vulnerable from Tunisia.

Northern Tunisia, including the capital, has its coastal flank protected by the foothills of the Atlas mountains. Libya, however, has no such natural defences, the French said, and would be easy prey to mechanized and horse units of France's North African forces.

A high source said every French military man, including Premier Daladier who long has been minister for national defence, believed that "until France is ready to surrender her African and eastern empire" Tunisia must remain French.

"That time has not yet come," this source said.

Tunisia in Italian hands, he pointed out, would give Italy complete domination of the inner Mediterranean.

More Help Proposed For The Farmers In Tory Resolution

TORONTO, Dec. 9 — (CP). — A system of provincially-owned cold storage warehouses in which farmers might store their perishable products until market conditions are right was advocated to-day in a resolution passed at the convention of the Ontario Conservative party.

The resolution also deplored the "present condition" of agriculture in Ontario, advocating it be given greater governmental assistance than it receives at present. Governmental assistance in establishing co-operative selling associations in Ontario and in obtaining increased markets for agricultural products was urged.

In another resolution, the convention urged that real estate be relieved of taxation for social services including unemployment relief, hospitalization, health and secondary education. The cost of these services should be borne by the Dominion and Provincial governments, the resolution said.

Amendment of the Assessment Act to provide that the "Revenue-producing ability of real estate be the basis of taxation" was proposed in the resolution:

The Seaway Stand.

A resolution on the St. Lawrence Seaway, also approved, read: "While recognizing that the St. Lawrence Seaway, as such, is the concern of the Federal authority, the Conservative party of Ontario pledges itself to the preservation for the benefit of the people of Ontario of provincial power reserves in connection therewith, and is prepared to co-operate with the Dominion Government to that end."

Other resolutions pledged the party's co-operation to a scheme of Federal unemployment insurance; urged further governmental encouragement of the mining industry; the processing in Ontario of the province's timber and other natural resources; establishment of medical and dental examinations for school children, an encouragement of voluntary health insurance plans.

A resolution which said the party "views with alarm the threat to national unity involved in the present disputes between Federal and Provincial governments," was also adopted.

The resolution added that the party "believes that as the senior province of Confederation, Ontario should take the lead in promoting constructive co-operation amongst all parts of the Dominion."

Address for Bennett.

The executive committee of the Ontario Conservative party was authorized to prepare a "suitable address" for presentation to Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, former national party leader, who will take up residence in England early next year.

The address will express to Mr. Bennett the Ontario Association's "deep sense of the loss which this Province and Dominion will sustain."

Housebreaking Gang?

TORONTO, Dec. 9 — (CP). — Three Toronto youths were arrested on charges of housebreaking last night and a fourth was charged with retaining stolen property. Norval McIlvena, 17, and Morris Ellison, 18, face three charges of housebreaking, and Solly Rosenthal, 17, one charge of housebreaking. Walter Gora, 19, is charged with retaining. Arrests followed break-ins of three Toronto homes.

3 Drown In Car As Driver Misses Curve

COTEAU DU LAC, Que., Dec. 9 (CP).—Inquest will open today into the drowning of three young men in the Soulanges Canal near this Upper St. Lawrence River town last night.

Albert Leger, 22; Tolen O'Shea, 22, and George Chevrier, 18, died in the icy waters when the automobile in which they and three companions were driving plunged over a bank after Leger, the driver, had missed a turn from a sideroad onto the highway, and continued down to the canal.

Wilfrid Villeneuve, 20, his brother, Ernest, 15, and Lawrence St. John, 19, reached shore in safety after they had freed themselves from the sinking vehicle. Ernest through one front door, Wilfrid and Lawrence through the rear window. The others were trapped in the car and their bodies were not recovered until several hours after the accident.

The youths were on their way to Cedars, Que., home of Chevrier, from St. Clet, Que., when they missed the turn onto the highway in the gathering darkness, heightened by a heavy rain. The front of the car was tilting into the canal before young Ernest, in the front seat with Leger, saw disaster ahead and shouted a warning. The next instant the car was under water.

All were from Apple Hill, Ont., near Ottawa, with the exception of Chevrier, whose home was in Cedars, but who had worked in Apple Hill for some time.

Ernest Villeneuve fought his way to safety through the right front door of the car. Pressure of water slammed the door after him and his brother, in the back seat of the two-door sedan, was unable to open it again. He crashed his foot through the rear window, and he and St. John worked their way through the opening to safety.

The three who drowned were all good swimmers, the survivors said, but apparently they had had no chance to escape from the car.

Bandit Denies "Casing" Peterboro'

Never Got His $1,300 Back From Police Campbell Reveals

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 9 (C.P.). — Raymond (Dolly) Quinton, 41, of Windsor was branded "yellow," and a man who "practically quit in front of the bank" by an alleged former confederate. When he went on trial before County Judge Joseph Wearing and a General Sessions of the Peace jury to-day, on a charge of armed robbery of the Royal Bank at Mount Brydges on October 13.

C. C. Savage, defence counsel, renewed a fight started on Tuesday to have the case adjourned. He said new information had come to him from Ottawa which indicated "it might be of vast importance." Judge Wearing refused to allow a delay.

Melville Campbell, 37, who is under nine years' sentence for his share in the bank robbery, went on to the witness stand to tell his story of the holdup.

He said that in September, six weeks before the robbery, he, Harold Moore, under 10 years' sentence for robbery, and Quinton, had reconnoitered the Mount Brydges bank. Two days before the robbery, he said the three of them started on a trip in a stolen car which carried them east to Peterborough and Rideau River districts looking for places to rob.

The night before the robbery, back again in Middlesex County, Quinton left the car and went back to Windsor, and he and Moore carried out the robbery alone, he said.

Didn't "Case" Peterborough.

Campbell denied "casing" Peterborough as a likely robbery place, or having knowledge that there was a lot of currency in Peterborough at that time. He admitted "looking over a few other places," though.

"In any of this discussion, did Quinton say 'deal me out,' as far as banks are concerned?" asked Mr. Savage.

"He wasn't fussy about going for a bank."

"Are those the words he used, 'deal me out'?"

"I guess so."

"Didn't you and he have some words about him being yellow and wouldn't do a real job?"

"No."

"That was your impression of him?"

"It was when we got back to Mount Brydges. He practically quit in front of the bank."

"You told him he was yellow?"

"No."

"You thought he was?"

"That was my impression. If you want the real expression for that, I'll give it to you."

After he and Moore got back to Windsor after the robbery, each man gave Quinton $100, Campbell said, because Quinton needed the money to get bail for a partner of his.

Drove For Two Days

Mr. Savage suggested the trip they took looking for a place to rob covered 2,200 miles. Campbell didn't know how far they went. He said they took sandwiches and a bottle of whiskey, and drove almost continuously during the first two days.

Campbell said he had about $1,300 of his own before the robbery, and that it was seized along with his share of the loot by the police.

"They gave it back to you?" asked Mr. Savage.

"No."

"I'm afraid my friend has been reading the newspapers," interjected Crown Attorney Newton. (A few weeks ago, the story was printed quoting Mr. Newton as saying part of the money had been handed back.)

"Haven't you any idea where your money is?" pressed Mr. Savage.

"I think some of it was turned back to my solicitor," said Campbell. "Some is being held by the courts."

Judge Wearing announced he would not allow the jury to separate until the conclusion of the trial. Officials were preparing for a night session tonight.

Hepburn 3rd Candidate In Windsor Teacher Discovers

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 9 (CP)

MISS GLADYS WOOLLEY gave her second grade students a civics test and questioned one student on who the mayoralty candidates were in the recent civic election. "Mr. Croll, Mr. Wigle and Mr. Hepburn," answered the child.

It was probably the child's mother who expressed great surprise to see Roy C. Haight's name as the third candidate in the same election. "I heard people talking about Haight, but thought they were describing the feeling between two candidates, Croll and Wigle," she told City Treasurer Cock.

TORONTO, Dec. 9—(CP)—Thieves ran wild throughout Ontario County last night, carrying out swift robberies of garages and stores in Port Perry, Whitby, Caesarea Blackstock, Uxbridge and Bowmanville.

They were interrupted at work three times during the night and escaped with police bullets whining around them. One was believed to have been wounded as the gang fled after a $3,000 robbery at Uxbridge.

Police pursuit was only seconds behind the fleeing gang's car at times during the night, which was unequalled for crime in the history of the county.

Provincial Constable D. P. Morris and Chief Syd Venton, of Bowmanville, were close behind the thieves chasing them at 70 miles an hour, when their car slid off a greasy dirt road into the ditch.

At Uxbridge the thieves smashed their way through the front door of the J. F. Brownscombe department store and escaped under a hail of bullets. They took more than $3,000 worth of men's suits, coats women's stockings and other wearing apparel.

Discovered by Nightwatchman Joe Murray as they left the store, the three robbers jumped into their car, waiting at the entrance with the engine running, and drove west. Murray phoned Chief Constable Wm. Vesey, who lost the trio on the outskirts of the town.

Think One Wounded.

He notified County Constable William Miller at Claremon, who flagged the car to stop as it sped through the town limits. Instead of slowing up, the car increased its speed. Miller fired three shots,

Grafted Skin Fails To Hide Swastika Band On Jew's Arm—Penalty Of Defying Nazis

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 9 (AP)—Even grafted skin has failed to erase the Nazi swastika brand on his right arm, burned there while he was in a German concentration camp, Ronis Schlerman, 33, Jewish refugee, said here today.

Schlerman said he was forced to leave Berlin University, where he was a professor of botany, sell his valuable home, from which he eventually receive but $3.

Schlerman said he was sent to a concentration camp, where he and other Jews were offered water from officers' wash basins to drink and frequently were made to get down on their knees and lick up dirt.

He was stabbed with a bayonet, he said, when he refused to help bury other Jews who had died in the camp, and the Nazi swastika was burned into his flesh.

He was rescued by a group of American friends who had attended Berlin University.

Farmers Defeat Own Best Purposes By Link With Capitalist Class, Pastor Charges

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 9 (AP)—A clergyman called upon the church today to readjust its position within the capitalistic economic system, and to join with the farmer and the laborer in a "reform" of the world's economic structure.

The speaker, Rev. Mark Dawber of the federal council of churches' home missions council, urged better understanding of the labor movement on the part of farmers, who, he said, "defeat their own best purpose" by Allying themselves with the capitalistic class."

"The church as now constituted," said Mr. Dawber in a panel discussion at the council's biennial meeting, "is inextricably involved in this capitalistic economic system.

"The church should read the handwrting on the wall and set its house in order. If it does not do so, then mighty processes over which it has no control will compel the issue."

"The conclusion of which is," he added, "that organized religion as it now exists will pass with the passing of the capitalistic system, unless it separates itself from this partnership and declares for an economic morality that is better qualified to interpret the spiritual values."

"Can Repeat 1923 Victory, Hang Government's Hide On Fence"—Ferguson

Rowe Pledges Support For Party Choice, Has Little To Say In Criticism Of Col. Drew And Coalition Issue

TORONTO, Dec. 9 (CP). — Ontario Conservatives today will elect a leader to replace Hon. Earl Rowe, occupant of that post since 1936, who yesterday delivered his valedictory at the opening session of the two-day party convention.

Four candidates were lined up at the barrier. They are Col. George Drew, former Conservative organizer; Hon. Earl Lawson, M.P. for Youth South; Wilfrid Heighington, former Toronto M.L.A., and Rev. Norman Rawson, Hamilton United Church clergyman.

Delegates considered Col. Drew and Mr. Lawson the ones that would be in at the finish though the other candidates may have considerable strength. Real election campaigns — committee rooms, badges, literature—were being waged by the Drew and Lawson committees. Balloting for the new leader was set for 2 p.m.

In the hotel at which the convention is being held there was great activity last night. Convention committees were meeting and delegates were being beseeched for this or that candidate.

It is expected 1,500 or more delegates will ballot. Great care is being taken to prevent all but delegates from getting on the convention floor. Alternate delegates will be in a roped-off section.

Ferguson Hailed

Loudest cheers yesterday were for Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, former leader and premier, who announced he was going to renew political campaigning in Ontario and then proceeded to wade into the Hepburn government record.

In 1920 he started out as Conservative leader with nothing but a shot-gun and a few shells, said Mr. Ferguson. But in 1923 he had the government's hide on the fence. "We can do it again," he proclaimed.

Mr. Ferguson pleaded for support fo rthe leader to be chose ntoday. Differences should be sunk after he is chosen.

Mr. Rowe delivered his valedictory as provincial leader. He said he lost an election but saved a party. He pledged his support to the leader to be chosen. Canada needed a united Conservative party.

"The same party that united Canada in the last century, can reunite it in this. But if we are divided against ourselves, how can we?"

Mr. Ferguson, not quite so vigorous a speaker as when he retired as prime minister in 1930 to become Canadian high commissioner to London had the delegates cheering his good-natured sallies. In an extended criticism of Premier Mitchell Hepburn's administration he called him "Mitch" every time.

"I ask you as retiring leader that to-morrow no matter who you may select, you join with him to keep the Conservative party a great united force in Canada," Mr. Rowe said.

There was an expectation among the delegates that Mr. Rowe would say something about Col. Drew's candidature. The latter resigned as Conservative organizer just ahead

Newshound Ties Weatherman As A 'Guesser'

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (CP)—The Brooklyn Eagle has reverted to scientific weather reports, although a reporter of the newspaper, relying on twinges from his corns and joints and the naked eye, tied with the city's official prognosticator in a three-week forecasting contest.

The score at the end of the contest showed each had 16 correct answers and five incorrect ones for a batting average of .762.

The city editor of the Eagle, announcing he would rely on official forecasts in future, said there was no profit in "a just-as-good forecaster, and anyhow the reporter was sick and tired of being continually on the qui vive for body twinges."

"The Canadian challenger with 87 right in 100 forecasts is the real champion," he added.

He referred to Frank O'Donnell of the Dominion meteorological service at Toronto by challenging the reported to start over again and make it an international tussle.

Easy in Canada.

TORONTO, Dec. 9 (C.P.).—Declared "real champion" of weather forecasters by the Brooklyn Eagle, Frank O'Donnell of the Dominion Meteorological Bureau here said last night it was "just nothing at all."

"Of course, it's nice to get a pat on the back once in a while," the official weather prophet said. "We can call the weather right for two weeks and nobody ever says thanks. But when there's a quick change in conditions and we go wrong, they all criticize us."

There are "six or seven fellows around here" who can bat in the high .800's on forecasting, O'Donnell said. He has a mark of .875 over a period of years.

Farmer Fatally Kicked

COLLINGWOOD, Ont., Dec. 9 (CP.).— Howard Smith, farmer of Rob Roy, near here, died in hospital today from a double fracture of the skull, suffered when kicked by a horse. Smith was hitching a team to a ditched truck when one horse became startled and reared. Smith stumbled into the path of the front hoofs.

8,000 Extra Jobs In Post Offices At Christmas

OTTAWA, Dec. 9 (C.P.). — The postman's bag grows heavier each day as Christmas approaches and the Post Office Department announced to-day there would be plenty of help for him within a few days.

The week preceding Christmas will see about 8,000 extra employees hard at work in post offices across the country speeding Christmas cards and gifts through the annual rush.

The extra help to be taken on this year shows an increase of about 500 compared with 7,594 "supernumaries" of last Christmas. They will work approximately from December 20 to December 26, and the temporary jobs will bring them a Christmas windfall averaging about $20 each. Total cost last year was $171,000 for the extra help, apart from such items as overtime pay cheques for the regular staff.

The carriers, the men who trudge wearily from door to door at Christmas time almost obscured by a mound of parcels and letters, number 3,300, and they will be augmented by a large share of the "extras." The post office staff is composed of about 45 per cent. returned

2 Barns Are Burned In Tweed District

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Dec. 9.—In attempting to drive some cows from a spare barn on the property of Frank Tracey, situated two miles east of Roslin, the structure was destroyed by fire, when the lantern which someone was carrying, was accidentally upset. A small quantity of hay, and some machinery was lost in the blaze. Mr. Tracey carried but little insurance on the building, as it was used only for a spare barn. The barn near the dwelling was saved by the heroic work of a volunteer fire brigade.

Second Barn Burns.

A small barn on the property occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John Tompkins, Frankford, was destroyed by fire on Wednesday, and for some time the large canning factory in the village was threatened. The wind, blowing from the west, assisted the local brigade in confining the blaze to the barn. A small quantity of wood was lost in the fire. The loss is estimated at $1,000 which is partly covered by insurance.

Seek For Body Of Farmer In Moira River

from the Moira river to-day as police and farmers pushed their search for the body of John Bronson, who disappeared from his home Tuesday afternoon and is believed to have drowned in the shallow stream.

Bronson, 52-year-old Rawdon township farmer is well and favorably known throughout the entire district. He suffered a heart attack Tuesday morning and early Tuesday afternoon started to walk to his brother's farm a mile distant. He did not arrive and has not been seen since.

Provincial Constable Arthur Dymond of Madoc learned as he investigated the various angles to the case, that Bronson had purchased a small quantity of chloroform a short time ago.

Led Posse to River.

A collie dog owned by Albert Bronson, brother of the missing man led the posse to the Moira river, where the dog plunged into a deep hole in the river three times, finally having to be pulled to shore by the search party. The peculiar actions have led the men to believe Bronson may have perished in the stream.

Some of the farmers turned their attention to-day to several abandoned mine shafts north of Albert Bronson's farm near Madoc village, in the off chance the sick farmer might have toppled into one of them.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 9 (C.P.). — Strong export buying and uneasiness over the European political situation were given by Winnipeg traders as reasons for a firm trend by wheat futures prices to-day. Values here jumped into an early gain on reports of a 1,000,000 bushel export business yesterday, and higher levels were maintained. Closing prices were ⅝ to ¼ higher. December at 61⅛b, May 63⅝ s, and July 64b.

To-day's export figures were estimated by traders anywhere from 750,000 to 1,250,000 bushels, with the United Kingdom believed a heavy buyer. Shipments were made out of both Atlantic and Pacific ports.

The session was fairly active throughout, although prices were erratic at levels fractionally higher than yesterday's close. Offerings by the Canadian Wheat Board were well absorbed.

What has mining to do with STARTING YOUR CAR?

ONE of the most important operations in a mine is hauling. Far underground, the old mule is becoming a thing of the past and trainloads of coal are drawn by electric locomotives propelled by Exide Batteries. Operators know of Exide dependability from many years' experience. They have found that Exides mean efficient hauling and freedom from wasteful interruptions. Their low operating cost, their tremendous, tireless power and long, trouble-free life are features of vital importance.

These features are equally important in a battery for your car. Perhaps you feel that buying a battery is guesswork—all batteries look so much alike. But the experience of the mines is proof that you take no chances with Exide — proof that Exides are unfailingly dependable. Is there any other automobile battery which so thoroughly merits your confidence? Exides are priced for every car-owner. Look for the Exide sign—symbol of honest service.

Trenton Driver Gets Six Months For Fatal Crash At Stoco

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Dec. 9.—Appearing before Magistrate Lloyd of Northbrook in the township hall, Tweed, Thursday, Gerald Wycott, of Trenton, was sentenced to six months in reformatory on a charge of criminal negligence in the operation of a motor vehicle which resulted in the death of his companion, Kenneth Moore, also of Trenton, on the evening of October 20, on the 8th Concession of the township of Hungerford, east of the village of Stoco. Moore was instantly killed when the car, loaded with wood, fell over the enbankment on him as he was attempting to balance the load which had become top heavy.

The first witness on the stand, Dr. G. M. Dales of Tweed, testified that he was called to the scene of the accident at 7.30 p.m. He attempted to hoist the ca roff the body and straightened the body of the victim. The clothing of the victim were torn, there were abrasions across the chest from the weight of the vehicle. The imprint of the car handle was visible on Moore's neck.

At the inquest into the accident, the jury returned the verdict that Moore came to his death from hemorrage, shock and ruptured lung when pinned under the vehicle driven by Gerald Wycott, who was under the influence of alcohol. When Wycott was interviewed in the surgeon's office following the accident, it was alleged he was under the influence of liquor.

T. C. Swartman, of the Department of Highways appeared on the stand, and presented evidence as to the condition of the roads in the vicinity of the accident, and detailed information as to skid marks of car, which skidded 20 feet before overturning on the soft shoulder of the road.

Mr. Scott, staff photographer, presented pictures and gave details concerning the accident.

Leo Cassidy, of Tamworth, beverage room operator stated that the two men were in his hotel about two to two-thirty p.m. and consumed a small quantity of ale, and left in good condition.

Horace Whittle, bar tender of Erinsville, testified that the accused and his companion consumed a quantity of ale at the Lakeview Hotel, and after being refused a fourth helping of ale, they commenced to use profane language, and were requested to leave the premises by the proprietor.

Heard Fatal Crash

Thomas Doyle, of the township of Hungerford, stated that he heard a crash between 7 and 7.30 p.m. on the night of the accident on the main road. He went out and saw a car in the ditch, and heard Wycott say "bring all the help you can." Doyle called neighbors, who responded with Chief Constable Hayes from Tweed. Wycott, on the arrival of the police, was very civil, and assisted in removing the car from the body of Moore, who was dead when examined. Wycott stated that he struck loose gravel on the edge of the ditch.

Farmers in the vicinity of the accident, were called to the stand, and testified to removing the wood from vehicle and hoisting the car from Moore's body.

Chief Constable Clair Hayes of Tweed, the main witness, stated that he was notified of the accident at 7.10 p.m. by telephone from Mr. Doyle. He proceeded to the scene of the accident, 3 miles east of the village of Stoco, where he found a 1924 sedan lying on its side, with a man underneath. He attempted to lift the car, but could not move the vehicle with the load of wood. He looked through the glass and saw a man pinned under the side of the car. He had the load of wood removed from the car by local farmers who had arrived at the scene of the accident. At the time of his arrival, the driver of the car, was very much under the influence of drink. Dr. Dales, coroner, arrived at the scene twenty-five minutes after the accident occurred and pronounced Moore dead. Wycott informed Constable Hayes that he had consumed ale at Erinsville and Tamworth.

Took Blood Test

When taken to the office of Dr. Dales, Wycott at first refused to have a blood test, and then consented. During the interview the accused demanded a lawyer and was removed to Belleville goal.

Constable McBrien of Belleville was called to the scene at 9.15 p.m. and after reviewing the evidence, laid a charge of criminal negligence.

Considerable evidence as to Wycott's condition at the time of the accident, and as to weather conditions were introduced at the trial, by local residents, who noticed the accused with the police after he had been brought into Tweed.

When Wycott was brought on the stand, he described the purpose of their trip through the county of Lennox and Addington in selling apples for their employer, and of their visit to the two taverns, and pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Lawyer Pringle presented his case for the accused, and stated that the victim came to his death through his own negligence and not from the fault of the accused in driving the car.

Constable McBrien presented facts similar to the statements made by Constable Clair Hayes.

Wycott, in his evidence, attempted to state that he had not received fair treatment from Constable Hayes and contradicted evidence submitted by the various witnesses. However, he told his story very favorably, and stood up well under the cross examination of Crown Attorney Donnan of Belleville.

From the evidence submitted, Magistrate Lloyd passed sentence of six months in the Ontario Reformatory to date from time of arrest, it being definitely concluded that Kenneth Moore came to his death by reckless driving by Wycott, while under the influence of liquor.

Wycott also faces two other charges, reckless driving and being intoxicated while in charge of a motor vehicle. These charges will be tried upon completion of the term on the first count

Diminishing Foreign Markets For Canadian Wheat Forcing West Into Dairying

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 9—Hon. P. M. Dewan has issued a warning to Ontario Agriculture. In an address delivered before farmers at a rural night staged by Campbellford Rotarians, the Minister of Agriculture declared that diminishing foreign wheat market would compel the western farmer to turn to dairy farming. This, he claimed, would have a serious effect on eastern agriculture.

Addressing nearly two hundred farmers in the crowded banquet hall at Petherick's Corners the speaker said that the future prosperity of the agriculturist depended upon his ability and determination to help himself rather than upon doles or bonuses. "It is cooperation and organization among the farmers themselves that is needed, together with the cooperation of the government with the farmer and of the urban dweller with the farmer.

"A few years ago there was a none too generous attitude on the part of the urban dweller towards the farmer but today there has taken place a great change as it is realized the farmer merits the sympathy and understanding of those in other walks of life. A fairly general interest created between the business men of our country and the men on the land and it is a more complete understanding between these two which is necessary before the problems of the farm can be solved. Intelligent people are today realizing the necessity of an enlightened and progressive rural people. It is the primary necessity of our nation to have a healthy and verile rural population. The present moving trend in the province of Ontario is adequately disclosed by the fact that while only thirty-nine percent of the urban dwellers ever move to the country there is a distinct trend toward the city with the latest available figures placing it at sixty-one per cent. However were it not for this constant influx the city, where families have but few children, would soon deteriorate."

Believer in Big Families

"I myself am a believer in large families and am a little inclined to wonder as I see farm after farm being taken over by foreigners, and by foreigners I mean people who are not of Teutonic or Anglo Saxon blood. And when these same farmers seem to prosper more than we it is probably because we are not quite so thrifty or industrious."

Referring to the characteristics of the early Scotch settlers whose family worship and Bible reading were institutions which should be preserved in the home and are in fact easier to preserve in the rural home the speaker claimed the farm family offered one of the "finest examples of true cooperation you can find anywhere."

"To preserve a high standard in our country we should try to maintain the splendid tradition and characteristics of the early settlers as is found in the farms here," Mr. Dewan said.

Modern comforts on the farm are much more common than they were a few years ago. Particularly is this true in the province of Ontario. In Quebec the farmer has not adopted such a high standard as we have here but the standard is far above what is was twenty-five years ago. Today there is the difference between two and three hundred and six hundred and seven hundred dollars spent for added convenience to farm life. Those few hundred dollars which father would have put away as part of profit for the year are being spent in modern conveniences such as hydro, automobiles and so on.

"Although the farmer's present average mode of living costs much more than it did twenty-five years ago prices for his produce are very little better than they were in 1913.

"Using that year as a basis the cost of living is up thirty-two per cent on an average and the cost of one item—an eight foot binder, is 85 per cent higher. According to figures for the United States, (figures are yet not available for Canada) the rate of pay for urban workers has increased 91 per cent during the same period but this is offset to a vast extent by the fact that they have not steady work."

Only One Answer

"There is only one answer to the situation. There are bound to be more farm mortgages and failures to pay off existing mortgages. The 1931 census showed that of the farms where there were resident owners 40.8 per cent were mortgaged a total of one hundred and eighty million dollars. It is now reasonable to conclude that they are in a worse position now than they were in 1931.

Issues Warning

HON. P. M. DEWAN

Ontario's Minister of Agriculture who in his address at the rural night held in Burnbrae by the Campbellford Rotary Club, warned agriculturalists of Ontario that they must watch closely their dairy markets. Foreign markets for wheat are diminishing hence western Canada is turning to dairying, the minister said.

Last year chattel mortgage by Ontario farmers amounted to sixteen million dollars. This cannot continue. What is the solution. It is more government control and regulation. If it means the entry of the government into business to raise the prices in farm commodities I am opposed to it. We have already been a little too fraternalistic with our Western wheat bonus. Premier Bracken claims that it wa sa necessary move without which the West would have found itself faced with an impossible situation. Frankly I don't think the idea is sound for what will happen as year after year some other product in some other part of the Dominion has to be bonused."

Improving Position

The farmers of Ontario can improve their own position by one thing, he emphasized, and that is by organizing and staying organized. Recalling the period of twenty years ago when the farmers' movement was at its height the Minister of Agriculture claimed that it was the application which was at fault and not the principal. It was attempted without sufficient study before organization and a lack of education. "These co-operative organizations can be built up by the farmers but there must be determination on the part of the individual to stick together," he maintained.

"There is a changing attitude towards the value of cooperative enterprise among the farmers." In conclusion the speaker stressed the need for urban dwellers to help those on the land.

A vote of thanks was moved to the speaker by Rotarian N. Alex McColl. President of the club, Rev. Harold B. Neal, presided during the meeting and banquet was provided by ladies aid of Zion United church. Also assisting on the program were James MacDowell, who favored with two mandolin solos and Miss Evelyn Barnum, who gave a reading entitled "The Old Soldier." In expressing his thanks and appreciation to the speaker, the president commended Rotarian Harold Carr, M.P.P., through whose efforts the speaker was arranged for.

Among the guests at the head table were Mayor F. F. Long of Campbellford, Deputy Reeve W. Ross and Councillors M. Wight and R. W. Bateson of Seymour township.

Both Father and Son

There are a good many farms where father and son work together—generally a happy and an ideal combination and a very natural one. That was the condition on the farm of Richard Fleming in the Belleville district. He and his son Percy worked together.

They were cleaning out some large stones and making use of dynamite. One stick exploded as expected, but the other seemed to be long delayed, and finally they went to investigate and were close up when the explosion registered.

Reports from Belleville say that, although father and son will probably recover, neither will ever hear again as the ear drums were blown out, and it is doubtful if either man will ever see.

When father and son return to the farm home it will mean the beginning of a new and a strange life indeed. They have been accustomed to guidance by sight and assistance by sound, and now both of these priceless faculties have been taken from them. They will neither see each other nor can they converse one with the other. In the strange new experience which confronts them they may be even drawn closer together by similar affliction.

Taking Lunge Too Soon

Peterborough Fish and Game Association do not favor continuance of the present staggered dates for fishing for bass and lunge. As arrangements stand at the moment the lunge season opens on the 20th of June and the bass may not be taken until the first day of July.

When an individual goes fishing for lunge there is no way by which to guarantee that a bass is not going to strike and be taken. A fisherman of the real sporting type will throw the bass back and try to injure it as little as possible. To what degree he has actually injured the bass is something on which there is no agreement. The fisherman who is not of the sporting variety may conclude he can get away with it and keep the bass he has taken.

If fishing for lunge and bass is to remain our chief tourist attraction—and it will—then it is not good business to expose the lunge to attack ten days in advance of the bass. Lunge do not propagate nearly as rapidly as do bass and their spawn is not more than five per cent. productive. The tourist season does not get under way until July. That is why the Fish and Game Association regard the 20th of June as a mistake for taking lunge. And so do we.

Is U.S. In Danger?

Some United States speakers and newspapers complain rather bitterly that U.S. Ambassador Kennedy in London is becoming too much like a blooming Englishman. They fear when he returns to his own land he may have an umbrella over his arm.

There is something else right now that is also worth noticing. The National Association of Manufacturers of United States is holding its annual meeting in New York and the usual banquet at the Waldorf Astoria is the high spot. There have been 4,000 reservations for places in the main dining room, and plans now are for four large overflow gatherings in other dining rooms with radio service from the head table in the main hall. We learn also that reservations are still pouring in.

And who is to be the guest speaker at this banquet, the attendance at which is going to break all known records?

None other than Anthony Eden, another blooming Englishman.

Not Much Free Trade

The Examiner has a short letter from a reader who protests about high tariffs, although he does not mention those to which he objects. He falls back on this statement: "What we need is actually free trade as they have it in England. That is what built that country in the first place, and that is what keeps it going to-day."

Our correspondent was taking in a good deal of territory and he was dealing with a condition which no longer exists. If Britain had free trade then she could not possibly have negotiated a trade agreement with United States; there would have been no need for doing it and there would have been no way of accomplishing it.

There is a good example of that in wheat. The world market at the moment is around 61 cents, but the consumer of bread in Britain does not buy on that basis because flour is taxed there to produce a fund out of which farmers are paid a sufficient bonus to bring them $1.30 a bushel for their crop. As far as imports go there is free trade; when it comes to eating bread there is not.

Following the wheat business to other countries, we find that cheap wheat is not benefiting many people. Latest figures show that by the time our wheat (if it could) might enter various countries tariff and other barriers bring the price to the following figures:

Germany, per bushel	$2.28
Italy	2.11
Grecce	1.85
Czechoslovakia	1.73
France	1.64
Norway	1.62
Yugoslavia	1.29

Britain alone can secure our wheat at the cheap price, but her tax on milling then becomes operative. Free trade is something which has more or less vanished, and the fact that we have plenty of wheat at a low price does not mean that the people who could eat it at the low price are getting a chance to do so. Truth is they are actually paying a high price for wheat while we are selling at a low price.

Value In Black Walnut

Sir William Mulock, former Chief Justice of Ontario, has a grove of black walnut trees at his country home at Armitage, 30 miles north of Toronto. Thirty years ago Sir William says the trees were little more than mere saplings, but today they are credited with having a value of about a million dollars. What has given them increased value is the development of the process by which it is possible to graft the "paper-shell" walnuts to these trees.

Apart from the value of this grove the former Chief Justice speaks kindly and intimately of them, explaining: "As I grow older I find many old friends departed. But my trees only grow more beautiful and stately. It is not possible to have any difference of opinion with them."

More than 2,000 seedlings from Sir William's grove of black walnuts are being distributed throughout Canada, so there is beauty, a nut crop and a valuable timber crop in black walnut.

Must Buy In Germany

Several months ago British car manufacturers were disturbed to find that a light German car was selling in Britain for less money than the British makers could sell in their own home market. Now they face another problem of the same kind, having found that in the South African market a light car of German make is selling for $935, while a British car of corresponding size sells for $1,100. There is no tariff preference in the South African market, so the British makers are having trouble enough trying to get their share of the trade.

Germany has a plan of trading which is bothering a number of the European countries to-day. She will purchase in central and south-eastern Europe such articles as wheat, barley, eggs, cotton, hides, poultry, mohair and cereals, and payment is made in "blocked marks," the exact meaning of that being that the money is good only for the purchase of goods made in Germany. Thus when Germany does her importing of materials from these countries she at the same time makes certain that she will also do an equal amount of exporting of goods in the production of which German labor has been employed. Paying above the market price for material is her way of bonusing an export trade.

Economists who have studied the plan say it is unsound and Germany cannot possibly gain by it when she is paying above world prices for material. The only way to recover the high price in the first place is to produce manufactured material at an abnormally low cost, and that is probably what is being done as there is no possibility of a labor union being formed in Germany to protect wages and hours. The system may be economically unsound, but evidence is plain and shows it is being done and it is giving British manufacturers trouble enough in trying to find a means to compete successfully against it.

We Were No Pikers

R. M. Harrison, writing in the Windsor Star, finds this about which to feel elated:

> Canada retains the honor of having given the world its first truly transcontinental railway system. Even to-day the United States can boast of no such thing. One can go from coast to coast in the United States by train, but only over the lines of several different railway companies.

We agree at once that our country went off the deep end into the transcontinental railway business, and if there is any honor attached to it, then we might be inclined to claim it. In a general way we have an east to west distance of something like 4,000 miles, and a north to south depth in a commercial sense of between 175 and 200 miles. And we have more railway mileage than Austria, Bulgaria, Greece, Finland, Norway, Portugal, Rumania and Belgium combined.

The transcontinental idea seemed to catch us early. One of the conditions for bringing British Columbia into Confederation was the building of a railway to connect the coast province with the rest of the Dominion. They started talking of it in 1871 and completed the C.P.R. in 1885. There was a bonus of $25,000,000 and a land bonus of 25,000,000 acres and a guarantee of no competition in the territory for 25 years.

In 1896 Mackenzie and Mann started building what was to become the Canadian Northern, and in all they constructed more than 9,000 miles. They received a good deal of Government backing, but their ventures were actually badly financed, and any who had opportunity to ride on some of their western lines can attest they were badly built. In the war period they could go no further and folded up. Eventually our Government took their roads over.

The Grand Trunk also became what one might call transcontinentally-minded. We get air-minded and all sorts of other ways minded, and we did that in railways, so when we started on the Grand Trunk Pacific we were going in for the third transcontinental line. The Government was to build from Winnipeg to Moncton, N.B., and lease it to the Grand Trunk for 50 years with no rental at all for the first seven years and after that 3 per cent. on the cost of construction, something which was never paid. The Grand Trunk was to build the 2,800 miles from Winnipeg to Prince Rupert, and the kindly Government was to back its bonds to 75 per cent. of their value. It was all built and all placed in operation. The only thing wrong was that it did not pay, so we had another transcontinental railway on our hands. And still have.

Yes, if there is any honor to be claimed in building transcontinental railways then the people of Canada have a right to lift a hand and claim prior position. We have been no pikers when it comes to having done things in a big way, but in kindness and justice to the troubled world we would not advise any other nation to follow our example.

NOTE AND COMMENT

At least the holding of a provincial convention offers prima facie evidence that there are Conservatives left in Ontario.

Russia is busy celebrating the establishment of red democracy, one drawback being that there are several thousand liquidated people who cannot join in the event.

While it is too late to do your Christmas shopping early, you can still do a lot of avoid-last-minute traffic jams in the stores by completing your shopping as soon as possible.

The Japanese budget has been increased by a billion yen, and largely for military purposes. Which means that military ambition is making the people of Japan, already poor, poorer than ever.

Toronto man who appeared in court here said he could not recall whether he was drunk or not as charged. In which case court is quite safe in deciding in the affirmative.

The women who were "raided" in Toronto when they attended a bingo game are probably ready to testify that the Queen City has too many policemen already.

Massey, Ont., cannot get enough candidates to fill its Council because no one is anxious to face the relief problem. It must be admitted that it is a problem grave enough to dismay the most public-spirited citizen.

In the 15 war years since 1776 during which United States has participated in six major wars there were 244,357 fatalities. In 15 years of peace between 1923 and 1937 there have been 441,914 automobile fatalities. It does not seem necessary to offer any comment.

British politician wants the Government to appoint a public relations minister to the cabinet. His duty, we presume, would be to write the prospectus when the administration decides to go to the country.

The town of Paris, instead of spending $300 on a municipal election, took the $300 and paid it into the relief fund, figuring in that way to secure, with Government assistance, relief to the extent of $900. All of which may be tough on civic aspirations of newcomers, but rather easy on the community purse.

WEE ANGUS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ The other day just after four, Wee Angus went out to explore, he went along with Pete; and I have warned him now and then, that this is just the season when, he shouldn't wet his feet.

¶ They came across a piece of ice, and it looked slippery like and nice, then they grew rather bold; and Angus talked a while with Pete, they sort of tapped it with their feet, to see if it would hold.

¶ I think they dared each other too, as boys are very apt to do, it sort of hurts the pride; Wee Angus wouldn't take a dare, and started off right then and there, to take a little slide.

¶ He only went six feet or so, before the ice began to go, he said he heard it crack; he couldn't get no farther out, nor could he turn himself about, and double on his track.

¶ So he went through above his knees, and there was quite a chilly breeze, it cut through to the bone; Wee Angus knew what he had done, he started boldly on the run, and he put straight for home.

¶ I should have spanked Wee Angus then, for I had warned him time again, and spoke about his health; but I got thinking back some years, and by the records it appears—I'd done the same myself.

Litte Time Now To Be Sociable

H. R. Pomeroy, clerk of Fullarton township in Perth Co., was on his 80th birthday discussing life in general with a staff writer of the Beacon-Herald of Stratford. Mr. Pomeroy was born in Durham county but moved as a child with his parents to Perth. He gives his views this way:

FULLARTON, Ont.—"One of the greatest needs in the world today is more sociability among the people. Everyone seems to be in a rush all the time and I don't think half of them know why they go rushing around the way they do," said R. H. Pomeroy, Clerk of Fullarton Township in Perth county, for twenty-seven years and now in his 80th year.

He had been talking about the days when folk went by horse and wagon over the corduroy roads between Fullarton and Mitchell. In those days, he said, if one farmer met another they would stop and have a friendly chat. It was the thing to do and it brought about a fine spirit of friendliness, something which seems to be lacking today. In those days, mused Mr. Pomeroy, a person wouldn't drive the horse and wagon to Mitchell without "dropping in" on friends along the way.

Despite his years Mr. Pomeroy is most active. He keeps two cows and looks after the books of the township of Fullarton.

"ONE THING that Fullarton can say and a thing which not many more municipalities can say and that is that there has never been a debenture in the township," said Mr. Pomeroy. There has not been an election in Fullarton in the past seven years.

"I remember many years ago when nomination day for the township was one of the best days in the year. It meant a good time for everyone, listening to the arguments and hearing the fellows call each other names. It used to get rather hot and heavy, but it has changed in recent years. I have been chairman of the nomination day meetings for twenty-seven years and I haven't yet had to call for order," said Mr. Pomeroy, as he recalled some of the fine old meetings which featured nomination day in the township.

But despite the heat of the arguments, Mr. Pomeroy could not remember a meeting at which blows were struck.

"My memory goes back to when I was two years old. I can remember when I was two years old and my father lifting me up to see the excitement on November 5, which was Guy Fawkes' Day.

Although born in Durham county, Mr Pomeroy moved to the village of Fullarton when he was three years of age with his father, the late Emanuel Pomeroy, and he has lived here ever since that time. He had a store for some time and carried on various occupations, receiving the appointment of township clerk in 1911.

"I haven't taken a holiday in thirty years, simply because I like to be around and never had any desire to travel to far-off places like some people. I don't drive a car myself and never had much desire to have one," said Mr. Pomeroy.

DOG TAX.

(Ottawa Journal)

THE DOG TAX is simply a nuisance tax, retained apparently because nobody ever has bothered to rid us of it. It is an inconsiderable source of revenue, having returned only $8,570 to the Ottawa treasury last year, but it is a source of extreme annoyance. Moreover the injustice of it is apparent, at least to every dog-owner. A five-pound canine that never leaves its owner's property unless on a leash must pay a tax, while the neighbora's cat roams the district free as the air, stalks birds, dashes through flower beds, yowls to the moon, and pays nothing.

It will be argued, perhaps, that without this tax the community would be over-run with dogs and life made miserable, but such a contention will not stand up. The laws against dogs running at large still would apply, wandering canines then and now would be liable to impounding. And, as everybody knows who keeps a dog, the cost of a license is merely one item in a considerable annual bill. But it is a discriminatory tax, an irritating tax, and no more justified than would be a tax on canaries or washing machines.

THE REBUKING OF MITCH

(Ottawa Journal)

PREMIER Mitchell Hepburn took it upon himself to tell the citizens of Windsor that they should not have Mr. David Croll as their mayor.

The citizens of Windsor proceeded to elect Mr. David Croll as their mayor by a majority of 5,000 votes.

That may or may not be a gain in the education of Mr. Hepburn. It is a distinct gain for the proposition that in the management of their local affairs the people of this province do not want interference from any would-be dictator or from any other outside influence whatsoever.

No more reason existed for interference by Mr. Hepburn in a municipal election in Windsor than existed for interference by Mr. Hepburn in the affairs of Spain. Certain people, however, have a weakness for high and mighty notions about their influence and their power.

It is good that, from time to time, such people should be "taken down." The best way to deal with the dictatorship spirit is to smack it lustily whenever and wherever it attempts to raise its head.

SAFETY IN GERMANY.

(New York Sun)

IT IS NOT SAFE to be a Jew in Germany — witness the persecutions of the past and present and the threat of worse to come.

It is not safe to be a Catholic in Germany — witness the demonstrations and insults aimed at Cardinals Innitzer and Faulhaber.

It is not safe to be a Protestant in Germany—witness the plight of Pastor Niemoeller.

It is not safe to be a Nazi in Germany—witness the bloody purge of 1934.

No sane person is safe in Germany.

PRIVATE

"'Ere, buzz off. Don't come poking' yer nose into a technical discussion."

• Nothing Civilized About It

HERR HITLER, who devotes much time to a consideration of Soviet Russia and to a condemnation of the way in which it is governed, can hardly have failed to notice the great similarity between his own methods and those employed by the Bolshevist regime.

For instance, says the Sault Ste. Marie Star, the Nazi storm trooper newspaper in Berlin, Das Schwarze Korps, warns that any Jewish attempt on the life of a "leading" German would mean the mass killing of Jews in Germany.

Without mentioning the name of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, the newspapes said that "on the day on which a Jewish weapon or a weapon bought by Jews is used against one of the leading men of Germany, then there will be no more Jews in Germany. We hope we have made ourselves clear."

Of course, the letter written to a New York paper which caused the outburst was a silly one, possibly even a dangerous one. It proposed the release of a few convicted murderers to be sent to Germany to assassinate the Nazi leaders. The German paper complains that the United States government did not censor this. But the United States Government conducts no censorship and the letter remains the silly remark of a half wit writer. But the outburst of Das Schwarze Korps is something different. The German Government censors everything and must have given this threat of a mass attack upon the Jews its official blessing.

And how like to those of Russia are these methods! The gangster method of hostages! It is often wondered why those on trial for "treason" in Russia "confess" so much. The explanation, correspondents tell us, is that they do it to protect their families from reprisals if they don't. In the same way Russian literary men who visit other countries find it necessary to be very careful so that revenge for what they say will not be wreaked upon those near to them, while soldiers who consider deserting and fleeing the country know that their relatives will pay for it.

Exactly of the same type is this latest German threat against the Jews. Exactly of the same type was the holding of one of the Rothschilds for ransom after the seizure of Austria. Exactly of the same type was the assessing of a $400,000,000 fine against the German Jewish community in reprisal for the slaying of vom Rath not by a German Jew but by a half mad Polish Jew youth.

There is nothing civilized about it.

• Little Box of Ashes Sent Home

By W. B. COURTNEY

MORE THAN 100,000 homes in Japan now harbor shrines to unknown soldiers which their owners mistakenly believe to contain the ashes of the son of the family, who recently returned from covering the war in Asia.

"In humble homes all over Japan are enshrined small white boxes presumably containing the ashes of a soldier son killed in action in China," Courtney says. "But the fact is, although Japanese officials will deny it, that these boxes are likely to contain the ashes of a Chinese soldier, a Mongolian pony or even a Missouri mule; or perhaps just a spadeful of dirt.

"It may be that when Japanese soldiers die in hospitals their ashes actually are returned to their families. But when they are killed at the front their bodies, together with the bodies of Chinese and, under stress of rapid campaigning, even dead draft animals, are burned together in a great pyre. Then a sufficient quantity of the blended remains are shoveled into the little white boxes for shipment to Japan."

Take a typical Japanese peasant family which has lost a son in the war. Each such family gets 1,000 yen from the privy purse of the imperial household and another 1,500 from the government, in addition to the little white box. And each bereaved mother is officially informed that she "should be the proudest and happiest woman in the village."

A great ceremony is made of the delivery of the little cedar boxes, each covered with white silk, but occasionally skepticism is beginning to be expressed in private concerning the actual contents of the boxes. Discussing in general th subject of Japanese precaution to prevent disease, of which the burning of bodies on the field is one, he reports that sometimes it reaches fantastic heights. For instance, when the Emperor travels by rail, the whole line as well as the train itself is disinfected and all members of the train crews and station crews along the way are inoculated for typhoid and various other diseases.

"I suggested that a more effective way of safeguarding the royal family would be to inoculate them instead of the train crews. I was detained for forty-eight hours for investigating in a town in North Manchoukuo, near the Soviet frontier, after making that remark, although I won't say there was any connection there."

MODERN WINTERS

(New York Times)

WE LOOK FORWARD hopefully to the day when we shall have an air-conditioned climate, set all the year round at a temperature of 67.5 degrees and, of course, at the proper humidity.

No, winters are not what they used to be. We will not let them be. We are surprised and hurt when they try to be. Our ancestors strengthened their characters by getting up in the cold and shivering and freezing their ears and noses for at least four months of the year. We don't seem to care to have our characters strengthened in that way.

If we want our characters strengthened we go to the movies and watch some one else jump two or three hundred feet on skils or shinny up the north col of Mount Everest

WHY NOT RUSSIA?

(Los Angeles Times)

THE INDICATION by President Roosevelt that Ambassador Wilson will not be sent back to Germany so long as racial or religious persecution continues there will be received with general public approval, even if this means hiatus in diplomatic intercourse.

To be consistent, however, the same sort of treatment should be accorded the bloody Russian regime. There is no particular reason to make fish of Germany and fowl of Russia, which is certainly no better in the matter of persecution on religious and political grounds.

WHAT HOOVER SAW

(The Nation, New York)

WHEN Herbert Hoover visited Germany last winter he was a guest at Goering's hunting lodge. The setting was lavish and ostentatious, and on the centre of the dining room table Mr. Hoover saw a bizarre figure of a woman's head. It was life-size, gold in color, and adorned with a necklace and earrings. As Hoover stared at the figure, Goering announced with pride: "That necklace is of real pearls; those earrings are real rubies; the whole head is solid gold." He concluded: "That was my first wife."

HOW LONG?

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

According to the Canadian Countryman, too many of our newspapers and other publications are merely "rags" published for the purpose of making money for their owners. Wonder how long the Countryman would continue to publish if it were losing money.

MANY TWINS HERE.

THE OLD ADAGE that it never rains but it pours is borne out by The Elmira Signet:

With the arrival of twin daughters at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kinzie, of Blair, on Sunday, the number of sets of twins in the family of Mrs. D. Kinzie and the late Dan Kinzie, of Blair, was increased to five. Two years ago a twin boy and girl were born to Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kinzie, then of Blair. Gordon and Ernest are brothers and are themselves twins. Gordon, who now resides at Preston, is a twin brother of Mrs' Norman Ruppel, of Elmira, and Ernest is a twin brother of Alfred Kinzie, Preston. The twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kinzie are the third pair of Kinzie twins to be born in Blair in the past 21 years, the other set being twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kinzie, a cousin of Ernest and Gordon.

A DOG'S LIFE

(Canadian Pacific Bulletin)

DINNER in regal style for Jo Chan and Nachi, high-bred visitors from Japan, caused quite a stir at Sudbury. Their meal, ordered by wire from Winnipeg, consised of a basin of mutton broth, boneless fresh fish, and a pint bottle of milk—at a cost of $1.10. The travellers from the Land of the Rising Sun, near the end of a long journey by steamship and rail from Kobe, Japan, to New York, were two little Japanese spaniels worth $300 each.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

WHO HATH ascended up into heaven, or descended? who hath gathered the wind in his fists? who hath bound the waters in a garment? who hath established all the ends of the earth? What is his name, and what is his son's name, if thou canst tell? Every word of God is pure: he is a shield unto them that put their trust in him.—Prov. xxx, 4, 5.

✧ ✧ ✧

I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever: nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it: and God doeth it, that men should fear before him.—Eccl. iii, 14.

✧ ✧ ✧

I will fetch my knowledge from afar, and will ascribe righteousness to my Maker....Behold, God exalteth by his power: who teacheth like him? Who hath enjoined him his way? or who can say, Thou hast wrought iniquity? Remember that thou magnify his work, which men behold.—Job xxxvi, 3, 22-24.

A BOY'S HOBBY

(The New Yorker)

THERE is a certain small boy who pursues a hobby which, for some reason or other, has made a great impression on us. He collects locomotive numbers. There is nothing particularly tangible about his collection—he merely copies down the numerals which he sees on the fronts of locomotives, copies them down into a small red leather notebook. Each entry is followed by a brief identifying note, as for example: "2457—Katonah station, coming back from the country."

It is not necessary that he ride on the train pulled by the locomotive in order that the number be eligible for his collection. In fact, he doesn't even have to see the numbr himself—friends report numbers and he enters them in his book with eager care. Numbers which he gets from outside sources he likewise identifies with a brief note: "1956—Mr. Dodd, who went to college with Papa and got drunk and had to stay all night."

This boy, it seems to us, has the makings of a first-rate collector. Someone tried to fool him once, gave him a phony number. He smelled a rat instantly and erased the number from his book, pending a checkup.

A Bit of Nonsense

The Test

A man was bragging that he could name any brand of spirit, and a country wag, taking a flask out of his pocket, asked the connoisseur to taste that and tell him what it was. He did so and promptly spat it out, making horrible faces. "Good gracious, man!" he cried. "That's petrol, that's what that is!"

"Yes, I know that," came the quiet reply, "but what brand is it?"

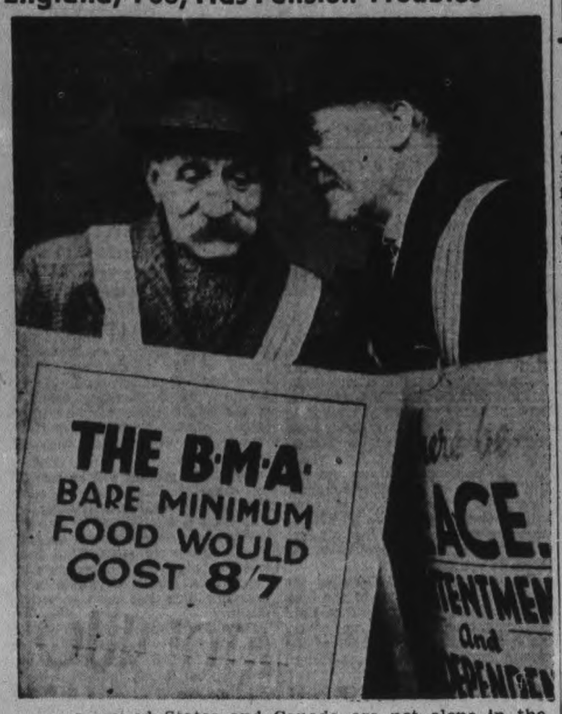
England, Too, Has Pension Troubles



The United States and Canada are not alone in the clamor for pensions for the aged. England, too, is hearing demands for increases in the existing old age allowances. Here are two of the pensioners who took part in the recent march from St. Paul's Cathedral to the House of Commons to demand increase of their pensions to one pound ($5) a week. The placard carried by the man at LEFT, announces that his present pension barely covers cost of the minimum food required to keep him alive and healthy. That 8-7 is eight shillings and seven pence, about $2.

Too Many Think Government Owes Them Living Says Cross

SARNIA, Ont., Dec. 9—(CP). — Too many people have the idea the government owes them a living, Hon. Eric W. Cross, Ontario Minister of Municipal Affairs, told a meeting of the Lambton County Council last night. Mr. Cross said there wa stoo much talk of taking wealth from the "haves" and giving it to the "have-nots."

Discusing relief and unemployment, Mr. Cross said there were 25,000 more persons getting direct relief now than there were a year ago. He also emphasized the necessity for tax reduction, because "this country can only flourish as long as it lives within its income while providing certain social services."

Mr. Cros sexpressed opposition to those who would abolish county councils,. The councils, he said, were "foundation of democracy."

OBITUARY

MATTHEW JOHNSTON.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Dec. 9.— Matthew Johnston, a resident of Tweed for the past several months, died in Belleville General Hospital on Thursday morning, following a brief illness. Mr. Johnston, who was a tinsmith by occupation, had been employed by a local hardware firm. Last week he was stricken with pneumonia, and was rushed to the hospital at Belleville. He was formerly a resident of that city.

PETER LIGHT.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Dec. 9. — Following a lengthy illness, the death occurred of Peter Light, a well-known resident, at his home in Tweed early on Thursday morning. In his seventieth year, he was born at Bogart, a son of Louis Light and Delemia Cassibo. Forty-three years ago he was married to Hariett Dagenis, who survives. Thirty-nine years ago, Mr. Light took up his residence in this community, but his work as foreman of several large lumber companies took him to many points in this province and Quebec. He was, for some time, sexton of St. Carthagh's R.C. Church, although he was forced to give up his duties when illness overtook him in July, 1937. He was a member of the Sacred Heart Society of St. Carthagh's, and was a Liberal in politics. He was respected by a wide circle of friends.

Tram Expert Dies

Recognized as one of the world's leading transportation experts, David W. Harvey, general manager of the Toronto Transportation Commission, died at his Toronto home at the age of 51. In 1928 he was selected as survey consultant to aid in re-organizing the unified metropolitan transport system of London, England.

Besides his widow, he is survived by two brothers, Louis and Remi, both of the Township of Hungerford.

Motorship Grounds

FORT ERIE, Ont., Dec. 9—(CP).—The motorship R. J. Barnes, laden with 1,000 tons of coke downward bound on the Niagara River, which went aground off Edgewater Beach, Grand Island, in a recently dredged channel, was released today through the efforts of a tug. At no time was the ship in any danger.

Two Presidents Named By Fairview W.A.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FAIRVIEW, Dec. 9.—The annual meeting of Fairview Women's Association was held at the home of Mrs. Albert Armstrong Tuesday afternoon with a splendid attendance. The president, Mrs. Wilbert Rosborough, led the meeting, opening with a hymn, "Work For the Night is Coming." Mrs. Cephas Heard read the Scripture and Rev. Wilkinson led in prayer.

The various reports read were most encouraging for the work of the past year and the treasurer's report showed a substantial balance on hand. Rev. Wilkinson took charge of the meeting for the election of officers. After a balloting for the position of president it was decided to elect two presidents for the coming year in order to lessen the responsibilities, and Mrs. Wilbert Rosborough and Mrs. Albert Armstrong were chosen as presidents; first vice-president, Mrs. Robt. Fowler; 2nd vice, Mrs. Fred Brown; secretary, Mrs. Cephas Heard; treasurer, Mrs. Harold Lewis.

After the various committees were appointed the meeting was brought to a close and lunch was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fowler and son Reg, accompanied by Miss Olive Bell, spent the week-end with friends at Midland.

Misses Laura Whittington and Barbara Dawson of Stewart Hall, spent the week-end at the home of Miss Fern Armstrong.

Mrs. Henry Stubbs of Sarnia, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Milburn and was present at their sixtieth wedding anniversary.

Tragedy At Funeral

OSLO, Dec. 9—(AP).—One person was killed and seven others injured to-day when the roof of a small building collapsed under the weight of a crowd during the funeral of Queen Maud. Iron Bars Foil Robbers At Tweed, Fourth Raid In Week

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Dec. 9. — The fourth attempted breakin of the week occurred on Wednesday night when the glass in the rear door of the dry goods store of Napoleon King was broken. However, as the door was reinforced with iron bars, the attempted robbery was thwarted.

Earlier in the week the hardware store owned by Myles & Son was broken into, and a rifle, ammunition to the value of $15.00, and other hardware items were stolen.

Entrance was gained through the cellar window into the dry goods store owned by C. H. Kerr, but the thieves were disturbed before they were able to break the door from the cellar to the main upper floor. Nearby neighbors heard the noise, and it is believed that when they turned on the lights that the thieves became frightened. An axe, the only clue to the police, was left near the scene.

The first robbery as previously reported occurred early on Sunday morning, when a quantity of tobaccos and cigarettes was removed from the grocery store of A. C. Barnett.

Held For Drunk Driving.

Doral Thompson, of the Village of Northbrook, was taken into custody by Chief of Police Clair Hayes and Corporal McFee of the R.S.M.P., charged with drunken driving, obstructing the police, and being in possession of illicit liquor. He was remanded in the County Jail at Belleville. Resulting from the arrest four citizens of Napanee were found to be in possession of illicit liquor, while three citizens of the Township of Kaladar have been charged with the sale of illicit liquor. All the above cases will be heard before Magistrate Lloyd at a later date.

The city of Toronto, according to the Esso News reporter on his Wednesday broadcast, who is announcing an item relative to the Dionne quintuplets, stated that the item was from Toronto, Quebec.

Appearing before Magistrate in the local Police Court on Thursday afternoon, Fred Jeffrey was remanded for one week on charges of obtaining clothing and money under false pretences.

United Church Example

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 9—(CP)—The United Church of Canada is a demonstration of "how those who differ widely may live together more happily and securely than apart," Rt. Rev. John Woodside, Moderator of the United Church, told the Biennial Council of the Federal Council of Churches here today.

Seek Information On School Grant

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 9.—The Lakefield High School Board will send to the Department of Education an inquiry regarding the size of the grant this year, the Board decided when the members held their regular meeting in the Memorial Hall here on Monday. The grant, which was something over $1,800 in 1937, was raised to slightly over $2,400 in 1938, but the Board feels it is entitled to a larger increase. It will ask the Deputy Minister of Education for Ontario to explain how the grant is calculated.

Chairman J. W. Ridpath and Trustees E. W. Bailey, H. L. Erskine, and C. J. Lake were present.

It was moved bw Trustee Northey and seconded by Trustee Bailey that the High School Board accept the Public School Board's increase of $500 in rent, which makes the annual rental $2,500. The motion carried.

Dumb Dan Morgan Drops Grid Stars From His Fighting List "Too Sissy About Slug On The Ear"

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 9 (AP).—Dumb Dan Morgan, the old fight manager, has given up on college days and said today he wouldn't give a split infinitive for all these big, husky football players being turned loose right now—not as fighters, anyway.

"It's a shame," said Dan, "because there's probably a world champion amongst 'em, and he and I could get together and make ourselves a bag of money. But somebody else can collect the headaches from now on. No more college football players for me."

Dan, dressed up like a Christmas tree, watched Lou Nova, best of the young prospects, work out for his 15-round battle with Tommy Farr a week from tonight. He admitted, reluctantly, that he liked Lou's looks despite the fact the coast kid has a football playing record against him.

"Maybe he's different," Dan ventured. "So far he doesn't show any signs of this football affliction I'm telling you about, and that short right of his is a beauty."

What, Dan was asked, did he mean by this mysterious affliction that had blighted the gridiron crop?

"The truth is that they just don't like to get hit on the ears," sighed Dan. "They can't stand to get their ears messed up. Outside of that, football players are the best bunch of fighters the world ever saw.

"When I discovered their weakness—they don't want to carry around a couple of scrambled ears even if they make a million dollars—I swore off football players and went back to truck drivers and stevedores."

Lazy Bandit

PLAINFIELD, N.J., Dec. 9 (A.P.).—A sit-down bandit was sought by police to-day as an auto thief and holdup man. Harry Johnson of Roselle, driver of a parcel delivery truck from Newark, said the lazy bandit drove up beside his parked truck last night, nonchalantly leaned over in the seat, wafted a gun through the window, and demanded "Hand over the money." Johnson said he handed over $100.

A Man's World Gal Cagers Say

The following open letter, self-explanatory, was clipped today from the Cobourg Sentinel-Star:

And so the Galloping Ghosts went to town—only it's the other way around—the town went to them. We can't imagine what the rugby team has that we haven't got—it isn't that they're more shapely or better-looking—and yet all they have to do is to send a couple of their sex to the council meeting who eventually leave with the satisfaction of knowing they will get $100.00—as per last year, while we, the Ontario Girls' Basketball Champions, were politely refused even $25.00 to help pay our expenses last year, which nearly all came out of our own pockets.

And now, ladies and gentlemen, a little bird tells us that the town intends to give a banquet and windbreakers to this scintillating rugby team. Last year we sort of hinted that we would like blazers for our team—just 12 girls—but no, it was out of the question, but, so we hear, not out of the question to provide for 30 too, too divine rugby players. If the Kinsmen Club had not given us a very delightful banquet last year, we would have forgotten we had won a championship—first year we had played boys' rules, too, and that is something to brag about.

We are of the opinion, decidedly, that the boys have too much attention paid to them altogether, but, somehow, there doesn't seem to be much we can do about it. And so the rugby season ends and basketball stars—Little Girls, what now?

Now Eligible

Martin Gainor, ABOVE, can now doff his civies and dress in his grid uniform once more. The star middle winger of Winnipeg Bombers was first declared ineligible for the Dominion final in Toronto tomorrow against Argos, the C.R.U. ruling he was not a continuous resident of this country the past year. However the C.R.U. officers received new evidence by Western officials and have now declared Gainor okay for the game.

Three Hockey Groups Organized In Campbellford Schools

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 9.—Public and Separate schools here have been organized for 1939 under three groups: Pee-Wee for the smaller boys; Bantam for boys a little older, and Midgets for the oldest boys. Teams will again be entered from town in the Bantam and Midget sections of the O.H.A.

In the first year's operation of the league Campbellford Bantams won the Hon. H. C. Nixon trophy for the All-Ontario championship, and have the honor of having the first name engraved on this beautiful trophy. The Midgets advanced to the finals of Eastern Ontario. This was certainly good work for the first year's operation, and the boys and Mr. Dunk deserve three cheers for their efforts.

Practice for the Bantams and Midgets will begin as soon as ice is available in the arena.

Pee-Wee Section:

Canadians.—(Capt.) Austin Bennett, Richard Schrader, Glenn Fairman, Jack Bartley, Norman Runions, Teddy Dunk, Allan Taylor, Freddy McMullen, John Pierce, Harry Peake, Ron. Reynolds, Ed. Sutton.

Maple Leafs.—(Capt.) Pat. Glenn, Ken Messenger, Laurie Nesbitt, T. B. McAvella, Davy McEachern, Paul Ferrill, Willmer Greaves, Pat Doherty, Gordon McInroy, Bobby Peake.

Bantam Section:

Bruins.—Alex. Johnston (Capt.), Donald Bartley, Lynn Ferrill, Gerald Emmons, Douglas Thomlison, Billy Oiver, Douglas Burgis, Bill Reynolds, Wesley Mechetuk, Gordon Hay, James Black.

Americans.—Bill Nesbitt (Capt.), Douglas Free, Lionel Dunk, Don Jones, Keith Sutton, Tommy Seaborn, Arden Hay, Robert Bosbey, Gordon Jacobs, Ron Pryke.

Redwings. — Charles Bertrand (Capt.), Jack Smith, Gordon Runions, Ralph Osborne, Bill Glenn, Jim Hoey, Lawrence Williams, Fred Runions, Robert Johnstone, Dugold Stephens.

Canadians. — Buddy Ayhart (Capt.), Bud Peloquin, Geo. Boyd, Billy Dingman, Bill McKelvie, Neil Sloggett, Ronnie Joyce, Albert Holings, Bruce Nicholas, Ronald Adamson.

Midget Section:

Black Hawks.—Doug. Lambert (Capt.), Berald Martin, Garfield Fraser, Doug. Lucy, Don Begg, Percy Free, Walter MacGregor, Norman Begg, Clinton Johnstone, Howard Robertson.

Rangers.—Jack Sutton (Capt.), Pete Battman, Jack Storie, Grant Milne, Murray Stover, Larry MacGregor, Ed. Barker, Ken Martin, Carl Runions, Everett Mechetuk.

SPORTS -DAY BY DAY-

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

On the heels of formation of a hockey league in Miami, Florida—where Jim Ellis and Mick Magee of Peterborough are playing—we learn of a new modern rink in Hollywood, California. An outdoor one, no less! Now the winter climate in Southern California is much like our summer season, days fine enough for swimming and evening cool enough to require a blanket over you at bedtime. But with a high-powered ice plant, this open rink is guaranteed to have hard ice with temperature up to 85 in the shade. What a thrilling sight it would be to see a bevy of movie beauties skating briskly on ice in the shade of palm trees under a Southern moon! Hockey is but a few steps away in the Cinema Capital, and young puckists now learning the game here may eventually get a chance to strut their stuff in Hollywood. Alas, we were born 30 years too soon!

* * * * * *

At the executive puck session here last twilight, Frank Buckland, Tommy Miller and Cliff Cadd were named to attend the Belleville meeting on Sunday to draw up the senior "B" schedule. They will favor a double schedule—that is having both Fliers and Redmen here twice each—with a three-in-five playoff serial. But, of course, they will listen to the other clubs' desires and work out some suitable arrangement to all. If both other clubs insist upon a triple schedule, that'll be that. Much to be said for either, with weather always the unknown quantity. The Petes prefer a shorter schedule, with some exhibition games worked in, and a good playoff series—making allowances for a few postponed tilts. They are probably right at that, so long as the puckists get enough action to be in shape when and if they make the playoffs. If the Petes should be beaten out then they'll wish they'd tried a longer schedule, but that's a fair gamble.

* * * * * *

They'll Do It All Over

While the junior teams went merrily ahead a week ago and drew up their schedule at a Port Hope meeting, it was a decidedly tentative affair. They did it without any authority, and now must meet again in Port Hope this Tuesday to do a repeat. On account of they neglected to see the O.H.A. convenor about the meeting, R. M. Glover being appointed by the O.H.A. to arrange this, and also as they picked some nights that the Petes might want. However, it'll be worked out pretty much to the satisfaction of all. Sandy Burrows is O.H.A. convenor at the senior session in the Quinte city. Routine matters were tabled also at last night's local gathering.

* * * * * *

One highly important matter was that of a Petes' coach, and it seems three gees are available and willing. One is Lornie Rose, another is Frank Buckland, and another is Bert McLeod. All okay gents for the job as far as we're concerned, and we have no particular preference. The matter will be left to a meeting of the senior hockey prospective players within the next few days, and we hope it's soon as the coach should have been appointed before this. Manager Tommy Miller will round up his players and prospects shortly and they'll pick their own pilot, which is the best way. After all, the executive and public haven't nearly as much to do with the coach as the boys out there on the ice in games and practices. We are lucky to have three experienced guys to make a choice from this season.

* * * * * *

Don't Forget a Defence

Let us mention the defence problem again, as it's really a problem—as much so as whether to send rich Aunty Amelia, who doesn't like us, a card or a five-buck present! There may be others but all we can figure out on the local horizon at the moment are Weir, McNulty, Crowe and Shields or Brady. But we trust the puck ossifers are considering both Brennan and Cadd. The latter went oke in intermediate company last year, and the Havelock veteran did a lot of good for the Petes a year ago.

* * * * * *

Two more of our travelling pucksters are doing all right, we hear, both Al and Gee Clark clicking okay in studies and sports down in Clarkson Tech, in Potsdam, N'Yawk. They like the setup and are hurdling classroom hazards with the greatest of ease, and will soon be active in hockey again. The students aren't playing yet, but have begun workouts and wil lsee action in their brand new collitch rink in a couple of weeks. While the Potsdam pupils have no regular hockey schedule, they stage a series of exhibition ice games with other colleges in Canada and the States. May be playing Toronto Varsity, Queen's, Yale, Princeton, etc. The 1938 Colts were a studious bunch, we gather, when 'tis recalled that three of 'em graduated to college circuits—the Clarks to Clarkson and Jopling to St. Mike's.

"With Refreshments"

The morning mail brings this invite: "The sponsors of the Sports Writers' Prediction Contest invite you to attend informal get-together of Canadian Sports Writers immediately following the Canadian final football game Saturday, Dec. 10th. 'The Roof', Park Plaza Hotel; presentation of the Gruen watch to Wm. Walshe, Kingston Whig-Standard, and cuckoo clock to Ted Reeve, Toronto Telegram. Five to seven p.m.; refreshments." After nearly predicting the season's biggest grid upset, when Orfuns beat Imps, we ought to take in this affair. To slip congrats to a C.O.B.L. writing buddy, Bill Walshe of Kingston, for winning the contest; to listen to the witty Reeve respond when handed the booby prize; and to get in on those "refreshments."

* * *

Norm Bowler says the Riverside A.C. plans an amateur boxing show about two weeks after Christmas, and the local scrappers are starting training now for it. After reading our remarks — from the Barrie sheet—that a phoney was pulled by the Toronto promoter who matched "Auggie Ferguson" against Nick Orlando several weeks ago here (the real Auggie of Barrie denying he had ever fought Nick), the local club wrote Barrie and issued a challenge for a Ferguson-Orlando fight. The former claims he has not lost a joust in 30 or so, while Nick figures he can take just about anyone his weight in the province, so he's willing to tackle the real Auggie. But no reply from Barrie has been forthcoming as yet. Such a scrap would be a honey of richest clover flavor, we imagine.

Hither and yawn: Coach Chute and a skeleton squad of local lacrossers left today for an exhibition fray in Rochester this eve...Babe Bogardis is refereeing senior O.H.A. scraps down around the Falls now ...Three artificial ice rinks up north now, Copper Cliff, Kirkland Lake and McIntyre Mines at Schumacher...The latter is the latest and a beauty, costing nearly 200

Three Named Petes' Coach

Three applications for coach of the Petes' O.H.A. senior "B" team are on file with the Peterborough Hockey Club executive at the present time, those of Lornie Rose, Bert McLeod and Frank Buckland. Final decision will be left in the hands of the players and prospective players at an early meeting to be called by Manager Tommy Miller. This was decided at a nexecutive meeting of the club last night in Duffus'.

A committee of three, Frank Buckland, Tommy Miller and Cliff Cadd, was appointed to attend the schedule-drawing meeting in Belleville this weekend. The gathering inclined to favor a double schedule with a playoff series similar to that of last season, but delegates from here will attend the meeting with an open mind in this respect. It was pointed out that a double schedule was a safe course, provided some exhibition games were worked in, with a three-in-five playoff series.

The junior schedule meeting will be in Port Hope on Tuesday with R. M. Glover the convenor. Probably Jim Guiry and Bill Jackson will represent the local "B" and "C" clubs at this session, where an eight-team schedule will be agreed upon. Other points were discussed at last night's gathering—at which some of the executive officers were absent—including players, equipment, schedules, etc. It was agreed that all team equipment must be purchased with the assent of the managers or coaches and must have the written okay of the treasurer. The session then adjourned.

SPORT SPICE

(By SID FEDER)

NEW YORK, Dec. 9 (AP).—Jack Dempsey is predicting Joe Louis' downfall—not right away, but not too far off either..."He'll go back all of a sudden, same as me," says Jack..."He's out of the ring a lot, he'll get fat and out of shape and take things easy...Then along comes some young fellow and belts him one."

If ever a guy is on the spot, it's Ray Carlin, Lou Nova's manager... There he was sitting with Lou at the fight writers' party yesterday, when Gene Tunney upped and said—right out in meeting—that Nova was being brought along too fast...That if he knocks off Tommy Farr next week, the only clouter left will be Louis—and he's not ready for that yet... Then Dempsey came along and said the same thing...So Carlin hopped right back at 'em, insisted he's carefully thought over every match his youngster has had, and that all contenders today are third rates—except Nova, of course.

When they awarded Dempsey the Eddie Neil medal, a lot of the boys remembered that Eddie's first fight assignment with the A.P. was covering Jack's training camp before the second Tunney fight...Ham Fisher, Joe Palooka's boss, pointed out how well Dempsey wears the gravy on his vest these days. . . Nova sported a swell shiner, a gift from a sparmate ...Jack, all choked up and grateful, spluttered like a kid caught playing hookey when the award was announced.

Columbia University's Sid Luckman, who played the season's last two weeks with a busted nose, has about decided to pass up any pro football chances so he can start a business career.

Girl Basketeers Getting Lined Up

A meeting of the executive and coaches of the Ladies' Basketball League was held last evening in the Y.W.C.A., with a fair representation on hand. The session was called by Joe Cooper to clear the decks for action before this lively girls' cage circuit reorganized for the coming season. Various details regarding teams, players, schedules, etc., were threshed out by the gathering and a definite idea lined up in the way of pre-seasonal necessities for a big cage campaign.

It was decided that another meeting be held next Thursday night at 7.15 in the Y.W.C.A., with coaches and captains invited to attend, as well as last year's league officers. The election of officers will be one of the main business items at this next session. Entries of teams, senior or junior, have not been called for yet, but will be shortly. Play is likely to start about the first Friday after January 1st.

Unknown Teams Take Fancy Of English Fans

LONDON, Dec. 9 (CP Cable). — The fight being waged for English Cup honors by two comparatively "unknown" teams has caught the imagination of soccer fans. Among the 34 clubs playing in the second round of the tournament at the week-end, Runcorn and Horden Welfare are outstanding examples of the spirit that carries minor league clubs through qualifying rounds into competition with big time elevens.

Runcorn's ground will be crowded to capacity when the Cheshire League entry clashes with Aldershot. The team is maintained by two collieries whose employees pay six cents weekly into a recreation fund. Players with big league experience are included in the eleven which in the past few days has been in special training.

Up in Durham, supporters of Horden, a mining village team, are not dismayed by the forthcoming visit to Newport County, powerful leader of the league's Third Division, Southern Section. The team has been training by floodlight and practically all the inhabitants of the village turn out to see the nightly practices. Horden's running expenses last year amounted to £11 ($52).

Seven other minor league outfits and 23 representatives of the Third Division take part in the second round. The winners will enter the third stage of the competition, January 7, when the giants of soccer get into the battle for the first time.

Another Great Fight.

League interest lies in the efforts of Derby County and Everton to stay out in front in the drive for the First Division championship. Both teams play away from home against tough opposition. Leicester City entertains the league-leading Derby outfit, while Everton figures in a Lancashire "derby" with Preston North-End.

Glasgow Rangers are setting a dizzy pace in the Scottish League and expect to register their seventh straight victory at Hamilton. The Light Blues, outstanding aspirants for the title, are at the top of the table with a four-point margin over Celtic, who in turn top Hearts by a single point.

The Celts are due at St. Johnstone, Saturday, where the home team usually put up a rousing game. Hearts are away to Clyde, who have slowed up considerably since a long series of victories in the first two months of the campaign.

Scottish reels classes have been organized in Paris by the Caledonian Society.

CANADIENS' RALLY FAILS TO OVERCOME THE RANGERS' LEAD

Gainor Given His Okay For Winnipeg Post

TORONTO, Dec. 9 — (CP). — The defence in the Martin Gainor eligibility hearing rested its case to-day and Winnipeg Blue Bombers awaited a decision on their best defensive player, while Winnipeg fans and Winnipeg's money poured into town for the Dominion Senior final with Toronto Argonauts to-morrow.

With the eligibility of the charging middle-wing in the air, Chairman W. A Cuddy of the Winnipeg School Board telegraphed C.R.U. officials last night that the board was "seriously considering" Gainor for a position as physical education director in a Winnipeg school. That was the Winnipeg football club's answer to a C.R.U. request for a further statement on Gainor's right to play against Argos.

"I think this conclusively proves our point in assuming from the start that Gainor was eligible and we were not trying to put anything over on anybody," Manager Joe Ryan of the Bombers said. "We were sure of his eligibility."

The C.R.U. had said Gainor would be allowed to play if he "has established a continuous residence in Canada by reason of a position he has been promised as a physical director and that his absence from Canada was to finish his course and obtain the necessary qualifications to accept that position."

Gainor left Winnipeg during the past year to complete a course that would qualify him as a physical education director.

Board Impressed.

Cuddy's telegram to the C.R.U. said: "Martin Gainor being seriously considered by Winnipeg Public School Board as a director of physical education for a Winnipeg high school. The Board is favorably impressed with his voluntary assistance previously rendered at Gordon Bell High school, and his prospects for a position are good."

No matter what the outcome of the club's submission, it stirred to fever pitch the heat hanging over a football final that stirred debate away back when Bombers and Argos were marching to their sectional championships. Systems and line-ups, sectional strength and sectional rivalry have had the East and West worked up ever since it began to appear that Bombers and Argos were the good things again, just as they were in 1937 when Toronto defeated Winnipeg in the final.

There's that big, driving line coach Reg Threlfall has called Winnipeg's main weapon and there's that flashing, daring backfield which has carried so much of Coach Lew Hayman's mail for Argonauts. There's the fact that the West has been sending successively stronger line-ups East for five years. The Winnipeg team of two seasons back lifted the title from Hamilton Tigers and made it certain the East always would have to worry about the West in future finals.

Fights

Pittsburgh — Fritzie Civic, 148, Pittsburgh, outpointed Vincent Pimpinella, 151¼, Brooklyn (10).

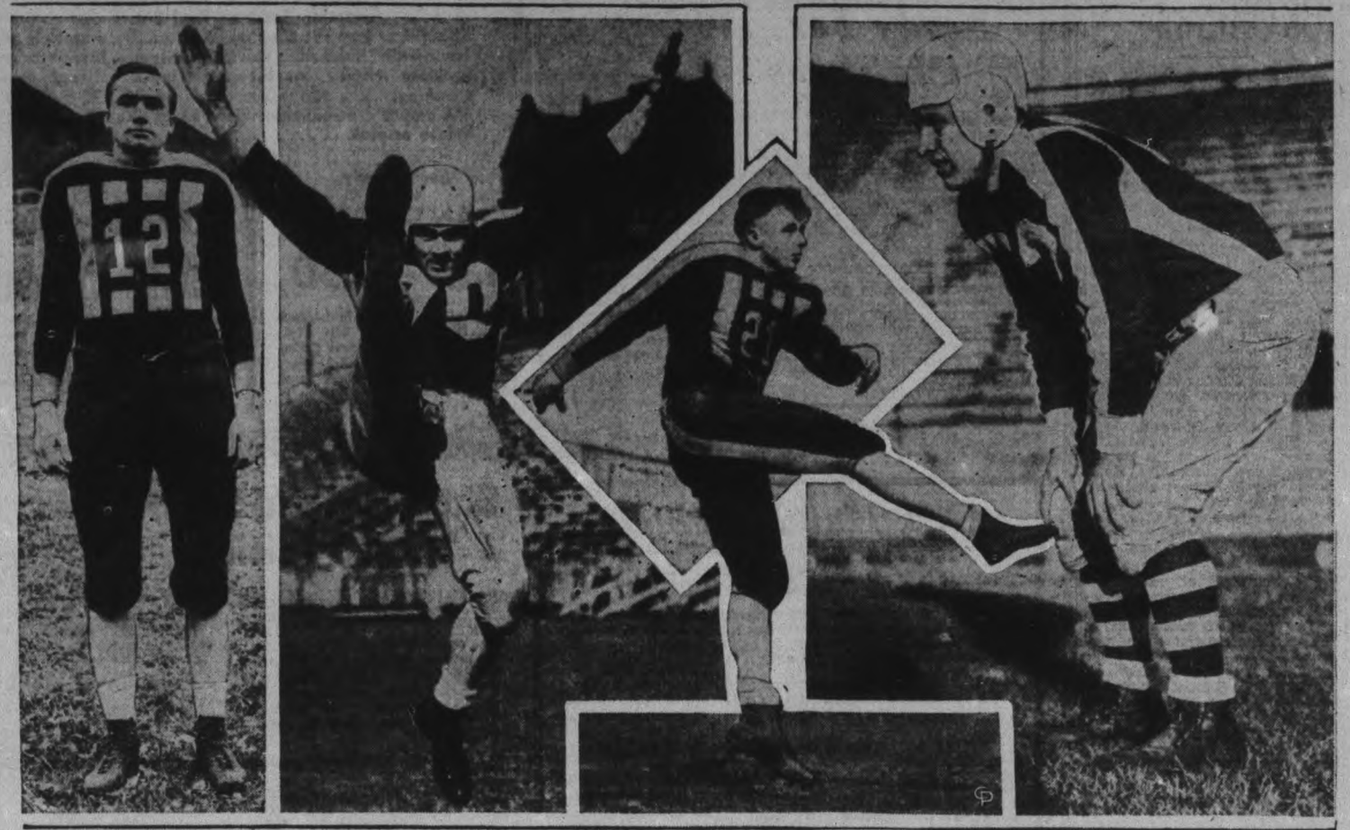
Their Toes May Decide Who Wears This Year's Football Crown



A quartet that may be hitting the headlines next Saturday night is that shown ABOVE, four players whose kicking may sway the decision in the Dominion rugby final between Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Toronto Argonauts. LEFT, Art Stevenson, quarterback and all-round star with the Western champs, who handles the regular kicking duties for his team. Next, big Bob Isbister, one of the country's best, who gets 'em away for Argos, and has shown improved form every time out this year. Greg Kabat, whose field goals led the Bombers to the prairie heights is the next one along, and at the RIGHT Bill Stukus, who, with brother Annis, does the signal-barking for Lew Hayman's squad. Bill is not as renowned as his elder brother for his hoofing efforts, but he rarely misses a convert and his passing, pass receiving and running have been sensational all year.

Smith And Hextall Pace Rangers In 6-5 Win Over Canadiens; Wings, Amerks Go Overtime 1-1

Last year it was Gordon Drillon and Syl Apps of Toronto Maple Leafs who, as sophomore forwards, established themselves among the National Hockey League's highest fliers. Now over the hill come little Clint Smith and Bryan Hextall, a couple of New York Rangers making their second season in the big time a great one.

Drillon and Apps poked away at rival goal tenders all last winter and at the finish Drillon led the league in scoring. Apps in assists. Smith and Hextall are given more to bursts of goal-getting, but they're buzzing up near the top in the individual totals.

Smith, a tiny hustler between Cecil Dillon and Lynn Patrick, paced Rangers with three goals last night to a 6-5 victory over the Canadiens at Montreal that lifted them to within a point of the league-leading Boston Bruins. Hextall, who on a recent night bagged five scoring points against Toronto, got two of the other goals.

Wings, Amerks, 1-1.

Another sophomore to keep your eye in is Carl Liscombe, flashing wingman with Detroit, who scored the Red Wing's goal last night in a 1-1 overtime tie with New York Americans at Detroit. Liscombe was one of the few Wings who kept pace with the opposition when the club was slumping; his score last night put them within a point of the fifth-place Maple Leafs.

It's not the freshmen year that's hardest, men close to hockey will tell you, but the second season when the player has to prove he wasn't a flash in the pan. Smith, Hextall and Liscombe so far have shown themselves to be just about the pick of the group of youngsters who played their first full N.H.L. semesters last season.

Smith and Hextall were responsible for breaking a Canadien streak of four games without defeat. The Habitants rallied gamely with a closing three-goal burst, but couldn't match the early footing of the Western kids, who two seasons ago were members with Bobby Kirk of a Philadelphia forward lien that broke minor league scoring records.

Clint bagged the first goal two minutes after the start and Hextall made the score 2-0 in five minutes. Stew Evans and Johnny Gagnon pulled Canadiens level before the period closed, but a minute after the second began Smith was at it again, nicking a goal that was augmented by another from Art Coulter's stick.

Smith started things again in the third and Hextall completed the Ranger total before five minutes of the period was over. The nthe crowd of 10,000 saw young Bill Summerhill lead a Canadien reprisal. Pee-Wee scored three minutes after the Ranger sniping had ended and again nine minutes later. Herbie Cain added to the mounting total but not until only 46 seconds remained and the issue was virtually decided.

The teams played listless hockey for three periods at Detroit, then Liscombe opened up the game with a 10-foot shot that beat Earl Robertson four minutes after overtime's start. Two minutes afterward Eddie Wiseman camped near the Detroit net and slapped a relay past Tiny Thompson just when the former Bruin star was counting on his second shutout in two games.

The tie may have been costly to Detroit, for Eddie Wares, gifted wingman, went out in the second period with a ruptured kidney. It was not known immediately how long he would be on the injured list with Charlie Conacher, another Detroit star.

Brants, Started Take Hope Of New Wins

TORONTO, Dec. 9 — (CP). — Brantford's fighting Indians, roaring down the victory path on the lookout for scalps, may be a strengthened band of braves when they take the ice here tonight against the undefeated Toronto Goodyears in an Ontario Hockey Association Senior 'A" tilt.

It was announced today that Cliff Chisholm and Red Dunne, formerly of Hamilton, possibly will don war paint and join the redskins in their skirmish with the league leaders. Cellar occupants of the six-team league, the Brants took their first win after five defeats by defeating Niagara Falls Brights 7-5 in overtime Tuesday.

Now they're on the right road. Brants are going to be tough to beat. They've shown revived enthusiasm in ice drills and intend to upset the highly-touted Goodyears, short four players through injuries.

The four are Johnny Inglis, high-scoring forward who has a shoulder injury; Frank O'Brien, veteran winger suffering a severe chest bruise; Ted Manorek, defence, sore hip, and Captain Blondy Sutcliffe, defence, two cracked ribs.

In another game tonight, Port Colborne travel to Niagara Falls. The teams are tied for third place, each with five points, and the winner will jump over the idle St. Catharines Chiefs into sole possession of second place.

The official league standing is:

Team	W	L	T	P
Toronto	4	0	0	8
St. Catharines	3	1	0	6
Niagara Falls	2	3	1	5
Port Colborne	2	2	1	5

Bombers Average 24 Years, 184 Lb.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 9.—(CP). — When Winnipeg Blue Bombers trot on to the Eastern gridiron for the Dominion rugby football final their opponents will face a fast band of players, backed by plenty of weight and inspired by youth.

Average age of the Western Canada champions is 24 with Herb Mobberley's 34 years the longest life span and 19-year-old Carl Krisko the baby of the flock. Bombers will toss an average poundage of 184 into the fray.

The large weight carrier is 20-year-old Benny Hatskin who scales 232 and the lightest of the 25 players is the veteran Mobberley at 142. That peerless running half of the west, Fritz Hanson, is only eight pounds heavier but has withstood the pounding of four years on the prairies.

N.H.L. Stars

(By the Canadian Press.)

Clint Smith, Rangers—Turned the "hat-trick" with three goals as the New Yorkers defeated Montreal Canadiens 6-5.

Bill Summerhill, Canadiens — Scored two goals and aided in two others to pace the attack of the Flying Frenchmen.

Eddie Wiseman, Americans — Scored his team's goal in 1-1 overtime draw with Detroit Red Wings. Carl Liscombe, Detroit, tallied the lone Detroit goal against Americans.

Football Experts, Out On Limb Again Decide Nine To Three Argos Will Take Blue Bombers

TORONTO, Dec. 9—(CP).—The "experts" went out to-day on the limb they've fallen from so often and by a margin of nine-to-three called Toronto Argonauts to defend successfully their Canadian football championship against Winnipeg Blue Bombers Saturday.

The Canadian Press asked a dozen sports writers and coaches who would win, and why. These are their answers:

Art Massucci, coach, Sarnia Imperials.—On the basis of last Saturday's performance against the Imperials, I pick Argos. (Argos beat the O.R.F.U. champions 25-8 last Saturday).

Doug Vaughan, Windsor Star.—Argos, but it will be close. Change in rules plus Argo razzle-dazzle plus better kicking will decide it.

Red Wilson, Sarnia Observer.—All Winnipeg has to do is outkick Isbister, stop Teddy Morris, Art West, Annis Stukus, Selkirk, Storey and MacPherson on Toronto's own field. I don't think they will.

'Peg True to West.

Eddie Armstrong, Winnipeg Free Press—Bombers as a unit are so far ahead of last season's team, which lost by only a point, that I look for them to take the game. Our charging ends should stop that end run of Argos.

Hal Walker, Toronto Globe and Mail—Argos on their backfield and kicking. Their line has been underestimated all season and I believe it will hold its own against Winnipeg's.

Ivan Miller, Hamilton Spectator—Argos, with speed, a charging line, and a backfield capable of everything in the football book, have too much to toss against the Blue Bombers. Argos by a good margin.

Fred Jackson, Toronto Star—Argonauts are too fast. They are one of the best teams ever developed in the East.

Ralph Allen, Winnipeg Tribune—Bomber power to overcome Argo speed.

Vern Degeer, Toronto Globe and Mail— Argonauts because of their backfield power and because they have a stronger line than most people think. Change of rules won't help Bombers.

Ted Roove, Toronto Telegram. — Argos by a few points because they have the advantage of home grounds and a better knowledge of the rules.

Red Burnett, Toronto Star — If Winnipeg are half as good as they are confident they should win, but it will be awfully close.

Alex. Ponton, coach, Toronto Balmy Beach — Unless the Westerners have something exceptional, I look for an Argo win. Change in rules will handicap Bombers.

Dr. Douglas Hyde, president of Eire, is forbidden by the new constitution to go abroad.

Remember When—

Jack Delaney, French-Canadain battled, scored a technical knockout decision over Paul Berlenbach in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round bout at Chicago 11 years ago to-night. Delaney dethroned Berlenbach a year previously as world's light-heavyweight champion. He relinquished his title in 1927 to enter heavyweight ranks.

Calves Ease 50, Hogs Up 35 On Week's Sales

TORONTO, Dec. 9—(CP).—Good weighty steers and butcher cattle moved about 15 cents higher on Toronto Livestock Market this week, but butcher cows lost 25 cents, the Dominion Livestock Branch reported. Calves were 50 cents down. Hogs gained 35 to 50 cents cwt. by Wednesday but lost some of the gain Thursday. Lambs were up 50 cents with sheep unchanged.

The cattle run included only 400 from the West. Good weighty steers and butcher cattle traded readily, while a few hundred plainer cattle were unsold. Trade was draggy after Monday.

A few lots of choice weighty steers sold at $6.75 to $7, with other steers downward to $5. Butcher steers and heifers were mostly $5 to $6, with tops at $6.10, and one lot of heifers at $6.25. Cows closed at $2.75 to $3.75, with odd tops at $4. Canners and cutters were lower at $2 to $2.50 with the bulk at $2.35.

Butcher bulls held at $4 to $4.50, bolognas from $3.50 to $3.85. A few choice fed calves brought $9 to $9.50 with mediums downward to $6. Stockers were steady at $4.25 to $5.50 cwt. with some plain kinds unsold. A few stock calves and fleshy feeders made $6. Good milkers and springers were firm at $75 to $80 each, tested.

With prices lower on United States cattle markets, there were no shipments from Toronto this week.

Vealers Hold.

Choice veal calves were priced at $10 to $10.50 with most males between $7 and $10. Heavies brought $5 to $6.75 and grassers $4.50 to $4.75.

Hogs opened at $8.75 off trucks for bacons and advanced to $8.85 to $8.90 Wednesday. The close was at $8.50 to $8.75. Sows sold at $6.25 to $6.50 off trucks. Feeding pigs traded at $4.50 to $6.50 each.

Good ewe and wether lambs were $9.25 delivered by rail and $9 by truck. A few choice lambs reached $10 cwt. Sheep ranged from $2 to $4.50 cwt. according to quality.

Crokinole Party

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 9.—A successful crokinole party was held on Monday evening when the Young People's Union of Lakefield United church were hosts to over forty members of the congregation. Eleven tables of crokinole were played, prizes being won by Mrs. Archie Ward and Rev. G. F. Kelly.

Dainty refreshments were served by the committee in charge. Decorations in the Christmas spirit lent gaiety to the occasion.

RHEUMATIC PAINS

Apsley Man Moves Home To New Site

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, Dec. 9.—A very unusual spectacle was to be seen on one of the streets of Apsley, as George Stephens moved his home at the corner of Main street, opposite the Apsley house and proceeded two or three lots lower down to nearly opposite the post office.

The house is quite old, having been built about 75 years ago. The site has been sold recently and a modern garage and service station is to be built there in the near future.

Library Is Moved.

Several of the members of the Apsley W.I. met on Wednesday afternoon to form a bee, to carry the library books from the town hall to a small building that has been hired for a library for the winter months. All members are asked to come on Saturday night to help get them ready for circulation.

Mrs. Frank Tanner, Chandos, held an old-fashioned quilting bee on Tuesday. The ladies present were Mrs. Bob Scott, Mrs. Albert Wilson, Mrs. J. Pashler, Mrs. John Tucker, Mrs. Robert Shaw and Mrs. Charles Smith. A bountiful dinner and supper was provided by the hostess and a happy and sociable time was enjoyed by all.

An afternoon tea and bazaar was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. (Rev.) McMullen. The afternoon being so warm and mild a good attendance was reported and an enjoyable time spent by the ladies. This series of teas is under the auspices of the Apsley United Church Women's Association.

of the 1937 election because he disagreed with Mr. Rowe's labor policy.

What most delegates considered was the only reference to Col. Drew by Mr. Rowe was in these words: "Who is here among you so doubtful a Conservative that he would form a coalition with our common enemy, for him alone have I offended."

(Col. Drew in his letter of resignation to Mr. Rowe urged the Conservative leader to enter a coalition government with Premier Mitchell Hepburn in order that there might be united opposition in Ontario to the Committee for Industrial Organization, militant labor body, now called the Songress of Industrial Organizations.).

County Plowmen Re-elect 1938 Officers

Winding up an exceptionally successful year whic hincluded innovation of practical demonstrations in three townships, the Peterborough Plowmen's Association re-elected their officers last night, and decided to hold the 1939 match in Smith on the first Tuesday after the international plowing match.

"While the association is advancing it is wise to leave well enough alone," William Hayes of Douro remarked, seconding Gordon Hancock's motion to retain the present officers. They are: Hon. President, J. J. Duffus; President, Howard Quinn; 1st Vice-President, Walter Thorn, Otonabee; 2nd Vice-President, William Thompson of Harvey; Secretary-Treasurer, Frank C. Paterson; Assistant Secretary-Treasurer, R. R. Dixon, Otonabee; Auditors, Vincent Eastwood and C. S. Cummer; delegates to the Ontario Plowmen's convention, Alex. Houston and Harold Collins; alternates, Erle Tully and Wm. Thompson.

Honorary Director, John McIntosh; Directors: Asphodel—Rork Ferguson, M.P., and Gordon Girven; Belmont—W. G. Barrie and Wesley Johnston; Douro — Wm. Hayes and Vernon Campbell; Dummer—Warden E. N. McDonald, Trevor Watts, Alex. Carlaw; Ennismore—Leo Scollard and Joseph Cavanagh; Harvey—Archie Wilson and Wm. Thompson; North Monaghan—R. T. Lillico, Ira Robson and Charles Whittington; Otonabee—Alex. Huston, Frank Graystock and Harold Collins; Smith—Gordon Hancock, C. E. Moore, Harry Grant and T. H. Henry Graham; and from the city—G. A. Gillespie, Stewart Hall, V. Eastwood, C. S. Cummer, Walter Burns, R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, Arthur McIntyre, A. R. Kennedy and Stanley Jackson.

The financial statement read by Mr. Paterson showed the association to have maintained its satisfactory position of last year.

Pleased With Match.

The members were unanimous that this year's match on the farm of David Miller, near Warsaw, was the most successful the association has ever held. Mr. Quinn paid a compliment to the co-operation of Trevor Watts of Warsaw in arranging for teams, and on his suggestion it was decided to write Mr. Watts a letter of appreciation of his valuable assistance.

The demonstrations of plowing by J. J. Duffus to three classes of young farmers, forty of them altogether, was one of the developments this year which was regarded as being a practical means of producing better plowmen in Peterborough County. Members said the methods used by Mr. Duffus were of the objective kind that explained the reasons behind every detail of good plowing. Plowmen learned not only to do work of certain quality, but also the reasons why they did it.

Earlier Finishing.

For next year's match it was decided to set 3 p.m. as the dead line for contestants to finish their work, and an effort will be made to have some of the classes completed before that time as a facility for the judging. It was also decided to charge one dollar to applicants for teams, the money to go to the owners of the horses.

Mr. Duffus mentioned the interest shown by some of the directors in encouring plowmen to enter the match, the increased entries that resulted, and also suggested that all the township directors endeavor to bring out more competitors next year.

Racket Of Itinerants.

The itinerant plowman, who drives from one match to another, is receiving the attention of the Department of Agriculture, Mr. Duffus said, and it is probable that some action will be taken to curtail this racket, "which is becoming worse than the way some exhibitors make the rounds of all the fall fairs they can."

Letters of appreciation are to be sent to all those who contributed prizes for the 1938 match.

soldiers and veterans will receive preference as usual in the Christmas jobs.

Many New Sorters.

Expert sorters will be in the key jobs, but the extra employees will do a fair share of the complicated sorting of the flood of mail, E. J. Underwood, director of Postal Services, said to-day. A special system has to be worked out for the huge volume of mail and packages.

The Christmas mail is on the move already. First colorful wrappings and holly seals appeared in the sweltering days of last July when the steamship Nascopie departed from Montreal to take the annual mail to the lonely folks in the Arctic.

In recent days posts have closed for parcels destined for some countries abroad and most European mails will close in about a week.

Because December 25 falls on a Sunday this year, the postman won't knock on Christmas Day, but the "overflow" will be delivered on Monday, December 26.

Ban Propaganda

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 9—(AP)—A proposal to ban European political propaganda may come before the pan-American conference which opens tomorrow, activity by the Argentina delegation indicated today.

The delegation, a conference informant said, agreed upon a tentative recommendation and was to put it in more direct wording at a meeting today.

Don Scott Is Elected Head Of Kinsmen Club

Don Scott, well known merchant, was named president of the Kinsmen Club by acclamation at the annual meeting of the organization held Thursday night. A strong slate of officers was elected by the members in preparation for the district convention of Kinsmen clubs to be held in Peterborough next spring.

Ted Borbridge and Lorne Bateman were initiated as members and Don Loucks, national registrar of Kinsmen tendered a formal welcome to the two newcomers. He said there were 73 clubs across Canada with representatives in every province and a total membership exceeding 3,000. Kinsmen clubs represent the second largest national service organization in Canada. It is not international but is purely Canadian, although membership is not limited to Canadians. He urged the two new men to take a keen interest in the service projects of the club. President Mark Crough also voiced a welcome and expressed the hope their addition would benefit not only the club but themselves.

Dr. Mark Crough, president, was in the chair. The slate of 1939 officers is as follows: Don Scott, president; Vern Selkirk, 1st vice-president; Howard Shimer, 2nd vice-president; Dave Hubbard, treasurer; Angus McDonald, secretary; Ken Smyllie, registrar; and an executive consisting of Norman Elliott, Harold Constable and Charles Graham.

Don Loucks spoke in tribute to the fine leadership which had been given the club during the year by Mark Crough, the retiring president. He said Dr. Crough had given plenty of time, effort and diligence to every phase of the club's activities and as a mark of appreciation he presented him with a past president's gavel suitably inscribed.

Dr. Crough in turn lauded his successor, Don Scott. He said Don was one of the hardest workers in the club and that he wears the harness of kinsmenship well. The president elect thanked the Kinsmen for their confidence in electing him and asked that every member give 100 per cent. support.

Articles Stored In Shed Stolen

Breaking into shed at the rear of a Murray street residence recently thieves carried off a large number of articles belonging to Mrs. William Nelson of Toronto which had been stored in the place.

The booty included a silver tea service valued at around $35, a quantity of table knives, cut glass dishes, sherbert glasses and bed spreds.

Mrs. Nelson, who formerly lived in Peterborough had had her property stored here for some time. Recently it was discovered that some one had broken into the shed and she came down from Toronto to investigate. That same night there was another break-in and this time the thieves got away with quite a haul. There were evidences that they had ransacked the boxes in the shed thoroughly for articles had been thrown around and several dishes were found in a broken condition.

TURKEY DINNER.

Thirty-two underprivileged boys in the city between the ages of nine and eleven are slated for a turkey dinner soon. At Thursday night's meeting of the Kinsmen Club, Howard Shimer suggested that every member bring an underprivileged boy with him to the next dinner meeting. The boys will receive a little gift and a top notch meal. The suggestion was approved. Members should advise Mr. Shimer not later than Wednesday next whether they have a boy lined up for the dinner, if not he can give assistance. The dinner is a week from next Monday.

The Rambling REPORTERS

POSSIBLY AN OLD FRIEND

Kiwanians are still trying to decide what meaning they should take out of a remark made at their luncheon meeting to-day by President L. J. Pettit, when he told them about the pending visit to Peterborough of Dr. McIlroy.

Dr. McIlroy, who will speak at the Open Forum in George Street United Church on Sunday, is in charge of rehabilitation of men who served prison terms. "Come and hear him," Mr. Pettit urged. "Some of you may find he is an old friend."

ANOTHER CASUALTY

Another jackrabbit, speed demon of the field and forest has met death beneath the wheels of a modern motor car. A few days ago Don McConkey was driving home along the Chemong road with a friend when a rabbit started to race his car. He overtook the rabbit which disappeared between the front wheels of the car. McConkey slowed down fearing he might have run over the racer, but when he reduced speed the rabbit sprinted from beneath the radiator and took the lead. Unfortunately the rabbit became dazzled by the lights of an approaching car and cut across in front of it. He was instantly killed. Motorists report the rabbits have no difficulty travelling forty miles an hour.—McG.

Woman Suffers Head Injury; Struck By Car

Miss Edith Pringle, a middle-aged woman living at 308 Louis street is in Nicholls Hospital suffering from a severe head injury and shock, as the result of being hit at George and ing streets at 8.25 Thursday night by a car driven by Mrs. Daniel Gunn, 272 Simcoe street.

Mrs. Gunn was driving her automobile north on George street and in turning west on King street, struck Miss Pringle who was crossing King street on the west side of George street. The automobile passed over the woman but it is not certain whether or not the wheels went over her. Miss Pringle was picked up and taken to the Standard Medical and Surgical Clinic and from there was removed to Nicholls Hospital. She received a very bad gash on her head and was complaining of soreness in the back.

Personal Loan Plan Will Be Discussed

TORONTO, Dec. 9.—At the approaching annual general meeting of the Canadian Bank of Commerce there will be unusual interest in the material in the General Manager's address which will disclose the general results of the Bank's Personal Loan Plan since its inception a little over 2 years ago, and figures will be given showing the total number and aggregate amount of loans made under this service. In addition the General Manager will disclose figures showing the number and amount of loans made during the past year of $500 each, or less, in order to make plain the fact that this, as well as other banks grant small credit as freely as they do to large business concerns.

There will also be in the General Manager's address the results of the special analysis which the Bank has undertaken recently on industrial activity and in which a number of branches and customers and friends cooperated.

Business Transformation

The President's address will outline in some detail the remarkable transformation which has taken place in Canadian business in the past decade. Canada has shifted to a more highly industrialized life and has therefore strengthened her resistance against external disturbances and added materially to her recuperative powers.

This change explains why Canada has suffered during the past year only a moderate and short recession in general business activity and why, also, she has been able recently to resume progress. In addition, the President will mention the economic weaknesses of the country as well as certain monetary fallacies, and will close with a summary of the current business situation which gives promise of further economic recovery during the next year.

Bags Big Wolf

The shooting of a big wolf to the south of Havelock, near Trent River village, by Hiram Revoy this week caused some amount of alarm to farmers in the district. Residents say this is the first occasion they can recall in over twenty-five years that a wolf has been heard of in this immediate vicinity. Experienced hunters believe it must have been a stray from the packs farther north, and think that it is highly improbable that there are more in this district. Mr. Revoy, RIGHT, and Wm. McLaughlin, who accompanied him on the hunt, both of Trent River, are shown BELOW with their kill.

NO POLICE COURT

It was a case of white gloves for Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning with not a single city or county case listed for hearing in police court. There have been very few such blank days this year.

CONGRATULATIONS.

Rotarians and close friends of Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, minister of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, are extending congratulations to him on the fact that his second book entitled, "Torch Bearers of Recovery" is off the press and now on sale at local book stores.

FEW ACCIDENTS

Despite the bad traffic conditions Thursday night when the city and district were blanketed by fog there were few accidents reported. One woman was knocked down and hurt by an automobile but fortunately that was the only mishap in the city.

BARRICADE DOWN.

The timber barricade in front of the new Loblaw store on Charlotte street was removed this morning and passersby got their first view of the spacious store. Workmen have not put the finishing touches to the work yet, but the plate glass is in the frames. Work is continuing on the interior.

CHECKER CLASH TUESDAY.

A team of Port Hope and Cobourg players will engage members of the Peterboro-Lindsay Checker Clubs Clubs at the Y.M.C.A. here next Tuesday night. Dr. Annis of Lindsay is coming down for these games, and will be accompanied by some of the other Lindsay players. The public generally is invited.

SUCCEEDS J. D. HAYDEN.

Judge L. V. O'Connor has been unanimously chosen chairman of the Cobourg General Hospital, succeeding the late J. D. Hayden. Few men in this country engaged in voluntary service to the public could have equalled the devotion that John Hayden applied to the supervision of the Cobourg Hospital and to its technical equipment with all the mechanical and other modern aids to the medical profession.

OLD SONGS ENJOYED.

Two decades of time rolled back Thursday night as Morley Plunkett stood beside the piano at the Empress Hotel and entertained the Kinsmen with songs that were the highlights of the Dumbells nearly 20 years ago. "The Photo of the Girl I Left Behind Me," along with the "Mountains of Mourne" were sung and well received. George Nicholls was at the piano.

PLOWING TO-DAY.

On Thursday he was hoeing and his occupation was described as being one of "prime unusualness." Well, to-day he is going one better and is out with a horse, ploughing. He is Bert Arnott, North Monaghan market gardener, and there is no name left for a man who ploughs in December. Mr. Arnott reports there is absolutely no frost in the ground, that he is experiencing no difficulty. He is ploughing a drain, presumably to clear the land should a December flood occur.

TO TALK ON JAPAN

Rev. C. C. Robinson will be the speaker at Monday's luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club and he will talk on Japan, the country in which he was born and where a great part of his life has been spent.

BUILDING CONTINUES

Building permits for December were given a good start with the $20,000 permit for renovation of the Royal Theatre. A duplex is being built on Douglas avenue by Arthur Smith, 332 George street at an estimated cost of $3,500, and Albert Olin has a bungalow underway on Monaghan road, near McDonnel, which will cost another $3,500. Already the total for the month exceeds $27,000.

WILL ATTEND DINNER.

Herbert Routley, local merchant, is another man who went to England in 1910 with the Queen's Own Rifles, headed by Sir Henry Pellatt. The regiment, numbering 640 all ranks, took part in the Imperial Army manoeuvres. Members of the contingent plan a birthday dinner for Sir Henry Pellatt, who will be 80 years of age on January 6th. Routley and three other local men, Wilfrid Huycke, Bill Ashby and Harry Clifton, plan to attend.

A RARE DUCK

Clyde Ashby reported to-day that the Mandarin duck which he shot during the duck season has been returned from the Ontario Royal Museum in Toronto where it was mounted and anybody interested may see it on display. The duck has been placed in a glass case to avoid handling and is inside the store on Rubidge street. The native habitat of a Mandarin duck is China but a few have found their way into Canada. They are the most beautiful of all the duck family.

RELIEF RENT.

The following clause was included in the report of the finance committee passed at the council meeting Monday night: "That all vouchers issued by the Relief committee for rent in respect to properties upon which there are arrears of taxes shall be issued, and cheques therefor, payable to the tax collector who shall deposit the cheques to the credit of the corporation and give credit to the owners, mortgagees or agents in respect to such properties for which such cheques are issued, upon the arrears of taxes that are due in respect to such properties."

School Board Cuts Rental To $2,500

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 9.—Rental for the Lakefield High School for 1938 has been fixed at $2,500, an increase of $500 over the previous amount. A motion made at the last meeting of the Lakefield Public School Board, setting the rent at $3,000 was rescinded at the regular meeting of the board held on Monday evening.

Chairman F. L. Erskine and Trustees E. W. Bailey, Roy Bullock, C. J. Lake and E. H. Northey were present.

It was moved by Trustees Northey and Lake that any child coming to school unclean, i.e., with hands and face not washed, and hair not combed, must be sent home immediately with a note to parents relative to their condition; same pertains to skin trouble. The motion took effect immediately.

It was moved by Trustees Northey and Bailey that the Public School principal be authorized to arrange with the manager of the rink for skating, hockey practice and games.

Legal Committee Decides To Permit Refreshment Booths To Open On Sunday

Refreshment stands that rate lower than a restaurant may be open from 8 a.m. until 12 midnight Sunday's inclusive throughout the year excepting during the three months of summer when the closing hour may be extended until 1 a.m.

At last night's meeting of the legal committee of the council, Alderman Gordon, chairman, said he had been discussing the detail of hours with some of the men in the refreshment business, and they were satisfied with the 8 to 12 limits. It was proposed by Alderman Glover and McCannan that the period of the year include the months of May and September, but opposing it were Aldermen Stocker, McIntyre and Wilson.

Applications of eating house licenses shall in the future be first considered by the Medical Officer of Health and his recommendation will then be reviewed by the council who shall have the final authority in the regulation of all places receiving licenses.

Alderman Gordon said there was no law against a boy spending his Sunday School money in places that are lawfully open, providing he eats there what he buys. The chairman added in his reply to Ald. McCannan: "Parents may have to send the Sunday School collection on ahead instead of giving it to the kids."

Plan To Show Children How To Spell

"U-b-i-q-u-i-t-o-u-s" spelled out Kiwanian Carl Browne at the club's luncheon meeting at the Empress hotel today. Cliff Hall joined him at the head of the class with "inconsequential" but others fell down on words that sounded like "pseudopoduim," "psychotherapeutic," "consanguinity" "aluminumography."

It was all part of a scheme to scare Kiwanians sufficiently to send them scurrying before Saturday night for their dictionaries, or to borrow their youngsters' spellers unles sthey, too, were entered in the Kiwanis Spelling Contest.

Kiwanian Fred Johnston announced that on Saturday night members of the club will have to show youngsters that they, too, know how to spell." "Don't let us down," he warned. Some spectacle is going to be the appearance of full-grown men stumbling over easy and difficult words to the near sneers of their juniors when they walk to the platform on Saturday night.

Speaker of the day was Rev. G. S. Easton of Trinity United Church, whose analogical address on mountain climbing was well received. He told of books he had collected during many years in bookstores, at auction sales, and other places, and urged the purchase at times of books that one felt he did not want. The books a person wants usually deal with some specific subject that is the rut in which the prospective purchaser's mind travels, he explains. Books off that list are often a revelation, broaden one's outlook, and become favorites.

He told that he had once purchased two books on mountain climbing although he had no interest in the subject. They have become his favorite books now and the analogy between mountain climbing in its literal sense and in its figurative sense is close, he said. Three points of comparison that he stressed were the need in both senses for close cooperation by all; that in both senses the greatest tragedies occur at the easiest parts of the journey; that man has yet to stand on the topmost pinnacle of the world.

Poor Reflectors On Many Bicycles

"The attention of the department has been directed," says J. P. Bickell, registrar of motor vehicles for the province of Ontario in a letter to the Peterborough police department, "to the large number of unapproved reflectors in use on bicycles."

"In view of the fact that during the first eight months of this year there were 816 cases reported to this department in which bicycles were injured in motor vehicle accidents and 21 were killed, it would seem to be desirable that that very necessary provision of the Highway Traffic Act which requires that bicycles display a lamp or an approved reflector on the rear should be more rigidly enforced."

"I am advised that there are many cheap reflectors on the market which are of little or no value but the use of which possibly gives the bicyclist a false sense of security. The reflectors which have been approved by the department have been given laboratory tests and are clearly visible under most weather conditions. Their use together with the white strip on the rear mudguard is essential to the safety of the users of these vehicles."

The reflectors Mr. Bickel lists as having received the approval of the department are the Redlite, Stimsonite, two types of Fairylite, the Bluemel prismatic, the Bluemel raylite and the Realite.

LONDON—(CP).—A bill to be introduced in Parliament this session will make available over the whole of England and Wales modern facilities for diagnosis and treatment of cancer.

Kinsmen President

Don Scott, popular and hard working member of the Kinsmen Club who was elected president of the club for 1939 by acclamation at the annual election held Thursday night. Rated by business men in the city as the most aggressive junior manager in the city, Mr. Scott will direct the club's efforts at the district conference to be held in the city next spring.

Gleaners' Class Elects Officers

The election of officers took place at the monthly meeting of the Gleaners' Class of Mark Street United church. Mr. Rowland gave a short address emphasizing the fact that members should not work to please others but to discharge their duties to the honor and glory of God.

The new officers are as follows: Past Pres., Mrs. Rita Wright; Pres., Mrs. Janet Payne; 1st Vice-Pres., Mrs. H. Mackey; 2nd Vice-Pres., Mrs. E. Austin; Sec., Mrs. E. J. Hanwell; Treas., Mrs. W. Osborne; Social Convener, Mrs. Bruce Clark; Games Convener, Mrs. H. Cooper; Pianist, Mrs. R. Wright.

Refreshments were served and a social half hour much enjoyed.

Committee Buys 500 Cords More Of Wood

A deficit of $6,000 is the expected adverse balance of the relief committee of the council as reported by Alderman Dutton, chairman, Thursday night. Some further assistance may be obtained from the provincial government, but the intimation in that respect can hardly be regarded as definite.

The committee decided to buy 500 more cords of hardwood from Joseph Robertson at the price of $6.75. An earlier order for 500 cords has been filled, and the quality of the hardwood recommended to the committee that the purchase be increased to 1,000 cords.

The filling of Christmas baskets to be distributed by A. G. Metheral will require more generosity from the public this year, and an appeal is likely to be made for assistance when the need is more clearly known.

MAILS ARE HEAVIER.

Indication that this Christmas is going to be a good one for merchants is given in an announcement by Postmaster Charles Lacheur to-day. Both parcel and letter mail for Christmas delivery in the Old Country are heavier this year than for some years past, he said. The mails closed last night for assured deliveries of Christmas mail across the ocean.

ROMANCE INC.

BY OREN ARNOLD

Read This First:

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, establishes herself in a cozy cottage near the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, hangs out a sign which reads "COUNSEL in ROMANCE", and inaugurates a novel plan to help guide 100 student "members" in their social affairs for a small fee. Bob Towne, campus football hero, much attracted by Sara Sue, is the first to enroll, and this enrages Peaches Pomeroy, who had regarded herself as "Bob's girl" the previous year. An unprepossessing freshman Worthington Gurley, enrolls and also displays an interest in the pretty young widow. Then Dr. Thornton Holgate, new member of the faculty,brings the Cottage Plan to a climax when he begs Sara Sue to help him and confides his love for the Pomeroy girl. Finally, T. J. Sanders, a sports goods salesman, drops into town and falls in love with Sara Sue at first sight. After Sara has given Dr. Holgate several lessons in "how to become more human", he becomes frantic at the freshman ball when he comes upon Peaches badly intoxicated. For hours he lies awake, tortured by Peaches' public display.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER 21

A GOOD SLEEP and a good meal are two of the greatest miracle workers known to mankind.

Thornton Holgate slept until 11:30 that Sunday. He did not regret missing church, for once. He got up and bathed and felt very refreshed, then ate a hearty lunch in the Rice Commons, read The Chronicle and The Post, and saw it was a lovely Sunday afternoon. After that he felt a little ashamed of his actions the night before; it occured to him that he had acted almost like a freshman; he, a mature man.

After all, it had been a Saturday night, a dance night. And Peaches Pomeroy was five or six years younger than he, young enough to be a little bit careless. She had been drunk, apparently; but then, other people drank. In fact, some people seemed to get drunk often and still retain a semblance of respectability. Dr. Holgate felt that Peaches was perhaps just in the wrong crowd, under a bad influence.

With that thought he began to chide himself.

"If I had been more attentive, had sought her earlier and offered her wholesome entertainment, she would not have succumbed to unworthy companionships," he told himself. He did not realize that he was just another young man in love, trying to rationalize his lady's irrational actions. Many another lover has thus unwittingly tried to deceive himself.

He saw a group of faculty men walking toward the Rice tennis courts, some in tennis dress, others obviously going just as spectators.

"Join us, Holgate?" one of them invited. "Beautiful afternoon."

"Thank you, I will," he answered. Companionship was welcome now.

Some of these were older men, but one or two were nearer his own age, junior instructors or fellows. Some he knew had been at the freshman dance.

"Mathematics all week, dance all Saturday night, sleep all day Sunday, eh Holgate?" one of them kidded him a little. "I saw you there last night, but didn't get a chance to speak. Wanted you to meet my wife, too."

"So sorry. Did you both enjoy yourselves?"

"Well, yes. I had some duties, and so didn't dance very much, really. Part of the chaperonage fell to me, you know."

Thornton hadn't known, but he nodded. "Very orderly assembly," he ventured.

"Most of the time. Some messy clean-up work toward the end. Always a handful that have to be watched."

"Doubtless," agreed Thornton. "Was it, er—disagreeable?"

"No. Routine. Same old offenders, mostly, as last year. Drinking, necking."

"Ah—necking?"

"Yep. Both go together. Some young people come to a college with a moral sense, some are born without one and never acquire it. I don't know why. You'd think decency would dawn on them some day. But the word doesn't exist for such as Bane and Templeton and McGonigle and the Pomeroy girl."

"The Pom — Miss Pomeroy?" Thornton was deeply interested, of course.

"Yep. She wanted the party to continue until dawn. We found her and the three boys in a private room shaking dice. They were paying off in dollars, she with kisses. She managed to lose rather consistently, or they managed it for her. All intoxicated, of course.

"She was—kissing—the young men?" Thornton Holgate's interest could have been just professional, to a casual observer. His fellow instructor took it as such.

"Oh, yes," the spokesman went on. "You are new here, of course, so you don't remember the scrapes the Pomeroy girl has been into in past years. The implication, of course, always is that it's worse than kissing, but I tend to discount such things. Faculty folk are too prone to be dictatorial, or suspicious. One think I like about Rice is its liberality, its assumption in most instances that the students are adults, capable of managing their individual and group affairs. The freshmen, of course, need a bit of early guidance, but as a rule the—"

Dr. Holgate was not interested in a professional discussion. He made excuse to go away, declining to play tennis.

The hurt of the previous night had come back to him. He had tried to be generous in judging Peaches Pomeroy. He had felt himself rather acutely in love with her. The pain of finding her imperfect—despite her physical appearance—was indeed stinging. It had hurt doubly to have other faculty men, unacquainted with his personal interest, add to the information he himself had gathered.

He walked from the men's tennis courts across the wide green pasture toward the bayou, the sluggish, ornamental stream that separates the dormitory area from the athletic field house and stadium. He sat on the bank of the bayou for a while and thought. Spanish moss hung in festoons from the huge trees there; all the ground growth was lush. The place naturally was beautiful and restful.

Some boys came by and saw him. Comradely fellows, they sat down near him uninvited.

"Saw you at the dance, Dr. Holgate," one of them said. "Say, it's great to have the professors mix with us that way. I always thought college professors were high and mighty, kind of." He was obviously a freshman.

"Oh, no." Dr. Holgate forced a friendly maner. "Not at all. We are—ah, human, you know. Do I appear to have horns? That is—well, we enjoy sociability with the the students. You must never think of faculty members as anything but your friends. We try not to intrude on you, but we like your company."

"Say, that's all right, Dr. Holgate! Say, you—say, can I come up to your room and visit some time? My dad said I would get to rub elbows with some distinguished men at Rice. That's why I wanted to come here, partly. Say, I'd like to do that, some night, if it would be all right. I'm studying engineering. I'm in one of your classes, sir. I was telling Mrs. Davis yesterday. She knows you. Say, she likes you, too. I mean, she said you were a brilliant mathematician and all, and I think Mrs. Davis is pretty good at sizing people up. She's had—"

The garrulous young fellow did a lot more talking. But he was likeable. Open and earnest and bubbling. He and his fellows asked Dr. Holgate to go and have a malted milk with them, at the soda fountain place across from the field house. He went along. The company cheered him; freshman ebullience often is contagious to a degree.

"Want to walk on up the boulevard?" they invited, after drinks.

He didn't mind. He liked the company now. It got his mind away from Peaches Pomeroy and her actions. At least, he thought it would.

But it didn't.

He kept comparing her with the ideal of her that had formed previously in his mind. He tried to bring the two images together, to straighten them out and make one pretty one, much as modern cameras are focused to make one sharp image of two hazy ones. The matter occupied him as he walked northward with the young men.

Then all at once a car was honking behind them. It drew to a stop alongside the professor and the three freshmen boys.

"Hello, Thornton!"

Dr. Holgate turned—and his mouth dropped open in surprise.

"Hello," Peaches Pomeroy repeated. "We just happened to see you. Won't all of you pile in?" We'll go for a spin somewhere."

The freshmen needed no further invitation. They instantly became a human octopus—legs and arms flailing everywhere in the scramble for the back seat. The front seat of the car was occupied by three girls, Peaches at the wheel. The other two, as beautifully dressed as Peaches, and almost as pretty, were laughing at the freshmen and being generally gay.

Dr. Holgate made no reply. He was too astonished. He just stared at Peaches, highly confused.

"Get in, stupe!" she commanded, as if in exasperation, laughing. "We're not going to bite you. Get in the front; Barbara can sit on your lap. Get in!"

"Say!" began the talkative freshman, "this is swell! Say—"

Sure-Fire Party Ideas Good the Year Round

Go Swanky or Riotous

Everybody happy! I should say! It's always a gala night when the high-school set gathers at Connie's.

No wonder. Her brain's fairly seething with party ideas that are gay, easy, inexpensive.

Maybe it's a Shipwreck Party. Guests come as "survivors," wearing tattered shirts and shorts, beach pyjamas, swimming suits. Hostess hands out clue for a Salvage Hunt: Floating S O S, Humpty Dumpty, Hobo's blanket, Captain's Companion . . . .

Or a Merry-Go-Round Jamboree where the kitchen's turned into a wayside diner. Guests draw for the privilege of donning a chef's cap and apron, serving hamburgers to order.

Or even a Jamaica Gingeree. Soft yellow lights and red and yellow paper flowers turn the house into a sun-drenched Caribbean island. And there's a Gingerbread Ice Breaker to get everyone acquainted.

Our 32-page booklet maps out dozens of merry evenings. Invitations, decorations. Easy-to-fix refreshments. Brand new ice breakers, stunts, games.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of WHAT'S NEW IN PARTIES to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

DOROTHY DIX

In A recent sensational murder trial of a man for slaying his wife's lover the wife testified that the reason she lost her affection for her husband was because he was too perfect.

She said that he was always good and kind and considerate. He never found fault with her, or criticized her cooking. When he came home at night he would make the beds, sweep the floors, get the dinner and wash the dishes. And for the remainder of the evening he was ready to be a gay and chatty companion, or step out with her as she preferred. And he never forgot to tell her how becoming her new hat was, or to give her a parting kiss when he left the house.

In a word, he was the paragon of a husband of whom every woman dreams and whose lack the great majority of married women spend their lives lamenting. And she simply couldn't stand him. Life with him was like being fed on a daily diet of chocolate creams, and marriage, like cooking, has to be flavored up with paprika to keep it from palling on one's palate. So the lady ran off with a man who would give her more blows than kisses.

Of course, all the wives who read about this sad case of woman's ingratitude will say "How dreadful!" and that she should have been on her knees thanking heaven for having bestowed such a gift upon her, instead of chucking it into the ash can, so speak, but in their secret hearts they will all know just why she did it. For no woman wants a perfect husband, as you will realize if you will observe that the most devoted wives are worshipping at the shrines of husbands whose feet are not only of clay but have wandered a bit, instead of the model husbands who are all pure gold.

Indeed, instead of women admiring men's minor virtues, they despise them. No girl is ever attracted to a man by his domestic qualities, no matter how much she may deplore his lack of them later on. She doesn't picture her hero of romance as scrubbing out the bathtub and mopping up the floors, or lending a hand with the washing. Not without significance is the fact that most of the men who are meticulously neat and tidy, who never throw their things around, or drop cigarette ashes on the floor and who are obviously cut out for good husbands, are old bachelors.

Of course, one reason why women don't want perfect husbands is because a he-angel is a death blow to their vanity. In most situations in life women have to take a back seat and eat humble pie. They are not as strong physically, or as brilliant mentally as men. They can't be elected President, or build a skyscraper, or delve as deep into the mysteries of science as men can. But when it comes to the good old standard virtues, that's their dish.

Practically any wife can be morally superior to her husband, or, at least she can assume that attitude, and so you can see how aggravating a husband would be who never lost his temper, or stayed out late at night, or told his wife what wonderful bread his mother used to make and how she ran a house on air, and who yes-yessed her so that she could never get up a fight with him even when she was just spoiling for a scrap.

No woman wants a husband whose perfections present an invidious comparison with her own faults and weaknesses. Nor does she want one on whom she cannot expend her passion for reform, thereby depriving her of the chief pleasure of marriage, which consists in trying to make her husband over according to her own little pattern.

Women profess to yearn for perfect husbands, but they wouldn't have one on a bet, because if they did their chief grievance would be taken away from them and they would have practically nothing to talk about. When three or four women foregather for a talkfest, their principal topic of conversation is their husbands' faults. John is so careless about his clothes.

Tom is so fussy about his eating. Sam takes his wife for granted. Percy can't be dragged out of his easy chair of an evening. Billy wants to step out as soon as he has had his dinner. Pity poor wives. But would they exchange these poor faulty creatures for a perfect husband? Not on your life. They realize how dumb they would be in any gathering of wives if they didn't have something to grouch over.

Fortunately few wives have to contend with the perfect husband problem. Most of them are married to cheerful fellow sinners, which is what keeps marriage a going concern.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, December 10

The progress of this day seems to be threatened by a tendency to "fly off the handle" or do things of a tempestuous, reckless or impetuous character, which possibly may have detrimental consequences in business or in the private life. With proper control of strenuous and turbulent inclinations, there is prospect of many decided benefits of a definite nature. New contracts, speculative enterprises and personal adventures in a social or romantic manner are likely.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a very active, progressive and prosperous year if they will not attempt to put over promising matters by main force, high pressure or impetuosity. These will react in quarrels, hostility, and defeat. With moderation and calm deliberation there are benefits from new contracts or speculation. There should be happy adventures of a private or romantic character.

A child born on this day may have a very determined and probably wayward and reckless character, attempting to win out against all obstacles and stresses. This attitude may incur much opposition, enmity, and consequent defeat of many excellent prospects.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

Knarf and Hanid hurried down the road until they came to the little wooden house with the sloped roof where their friend, Ting-a-Ling, lived. Ting-a-Ling was Chinese. Just behind his house there was a pretty pond. It was in front of his house, to, and on both sides of it. To tell you the truth, his house stood right in the middle of the pond. It was really a house-boat.

The two shadow-children waved and shouted to him from the edge of the pond. "Ting-a-Ling! Where are you?"

Finally Ting-a-Ling came to his front door. He was so delighted to see the two shadows that he ran right down the steps to meet them.

"There's nothing like a house-boat."

He forgot, you see, that the steps led right into the water. He fell in with a big splash.

Shadows Frightened.

"My godness!" Hanid exclaimed.

"He'll drown!" cried her brother.

But Ting-a-Ling came bobbing up again the next moment and pulled himself out on the steps. He stood up dripping yet. However, he smiled cheerfully. Then he hastened around to the other side of the house, got in a little row-boat and rowed to the bank.

"Come right in," he said in a pleasant voice. "I'll row you to my house. Isn't it lovely? I've just moved in."

"But why did you move out of your old house, Ting-a-Ling?" Hanid asked him.

"Didn't you like it any more?" said Knarf.

"Oh, I liked it very much. Only I got tired of living on dry land. Living on top of the water is ever so much more fun. I think everybody should live on top of the water."

By this time they reached Ting-a-Ling's new house. He brought the row-boat right up to the edge of the porch and the two shadows sprang out lightly. But when Ting-a-Ling stepped out his foot slipped and the boat overturned and he splashed into the water again.

"Yes," he said, when he came up the next moment, "liivng in a house-boat is much, much nicer than living in a land-house. You never could do a thing like this if you lived in a land-house. Now answer truthfully, could you?"

They Admit It.

The two shadows shook their heads. "No, you couldn't." They helped him out of the water. He sat down on the porch rail.

"Just think," he said smiling cheerfully once more, "I never have to worry about sprinkling my garden with water any more. My whole garden is at the bottom of the pond. And when I feel like fishing, all I have to do is get my rod and line and hang it out of my window. I can even do it while I'm fast asleep. Ah! yes—there's nothing like living in a house-boat."

Looking Back On This Date

Just now when Canada is preparing for an elaborate program of national defence, it is interesting to cast one's eye back 90 years and see how we have advanced in that peroid. Then the United States was a possible enemy; today it is a pledged ally in case of attack and we of this generation have no fear of our neighbors, but instead cousinly affection.

Writing to London Dec. 9, 1848, replying to a suggestion by the colonial secretary, Earl Grey, that since Canada had been granted responsible government, we ought to be ready to bear the part of the cost of defence, Lord Elgin said, in part: "The time is as yet inopportune. Some Canadians believe that Great Britain considers the colonies a burden and desires to sever the ties."

After describing the depression which free trade by Britain had forced upon Canada, Lord Elgin added: "Canada has a special claim for protection beyond any other colony, because it is the fact of her connection with Great Britain which exposes her to hostile aggression. She has no enemy but the United States, and they would cease to be dangerous to her if annexed."

Elgin advised London to be patient, and predicted that when she had the strength Canada would be ready to do her own defence. But "until the St. Lawrence has recovered some of her trade and the commerce of the country has in some degree recovered from the depression under which it labors, I should be disposed to contend that England's wisest policy was to bear Canada now imposed upon her . . . Canada now imposes upon her . . . You must avoid any measure which would lead Canadians to imagine that Great Britain is less resolved and prepared to, by British means and British power, protect this as well as the rest of the empire."

It was about this time that Elgin, in urging the need for reciprocity with the United States, looked forward to a time when Britain would be compelled to abandon free trade and seek herself reciprocity with the republic. But could we have forseen the tripartite treaties of 1938.

The four main lines of railways in Great Britain will relay 406 miles of track during 1939.

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often brink quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this precription a trial.—(Advt)

Hastings W.I. Is Given Paper On Peace

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 9.—A Christmas spirit prevailed throughout the December meeting of the Hastings' Women's Institute held in the council chambers on Tuesday afternoon, when Mrs. J. A. Walsh presided in the absence of the president.

Members responded to the roll call, "A beautiful thought from prose or poetry." Most of the responses bearing on the theme of giving suitable for the Christmas season.

Sympathy was expressed for a valued member who is now in the Hamilton sanitarium. The members decided that she be sent a bed jacket as a Christmas gift, a remembrance from the Institute. Mrs. C. M. Baker kindly offered to knit the jacket in time for Christmas.

A community children's night will be sponsored by the Institute to be held in the near future in the town hall, when each of the seven schools of the district will be represented, each school presenting numbers towards the program. Mrs. J. A. Walsh Mrs. J. A. Brown, Mrs. C. M. Baker and Miss Rhea Preston were appointed conveners and the following were appointed to interview the teachers of the following schools and report to Mrs. Baker as to their program: Elgin school, Miss Rhea Preston; Cobourg Road, Mrs. R. King; Dutch Line, Mrs. Wallace Orr; Fife's school, Mrs. W. S. Fife, Fleming's school, Mrs. G. Fox; Hastings Public school, Mrs. C. M. Baker; Hastings Separate school, Mrs. T. A. Walsh.

Mrs. G. Fox led in community singing of Christmas carols, playing the accompaniment on her guitar.

Regret was expressed that the Rev. F. W. Newell was ill and unable to be present. He, however, prepared the following paper on "Peace," which was read by Mrs. C. M. Baker.

"Nearly two thousand years ago the first Christmas message of "Peace on earth, goodwill among men" rang out from the bleak Judean hillsides, as our Blessed Saviour was born of humble parents in the Bethlehem manger. Down through the intervening centuries the gospel of the Prince of Peace has been tugging at the hearts of men for sincere acceptance.

"The history of those two thousand years, however, is largely a history of wars. There have been long periods of peace, some of them extending over centuries; but the passions and violences of men thus held in check have formed mere interludes in the constant succession of wars which mark the whole life of mankind. It is estimated that covering the six thousand years of recorded history there have occurred something over six thousand major wars; that is, there has been a war for every year that man has recorded his own history, and the end is not yet. In the short periods between fighting, people have lulled themselves to sleep with the thought that there can be no more war, but it has always come again. The prophets and seers in every generation have proclaimed the coming day of peace and the common people, staggering under the burden imposed by war and fearful of its new tragedies, have tried to believe the promises held out of a day of peace. The greatest poems and the greatest songs of the ages express the yearning of the heart of humanity for the coming of peace.

"War is the complete negation of every precept pronounced by the Prince of Peace. It degrades and debauches human personality; disrupts and destroys brotherly love; it makes mockery of the Sermon on the Mount; and spreads death and destitution instead of that abundance of life which the Master came to fulfil. It sneeringly violates the great moral code of both Judaism and Christianity — the Ten Commandments by ordainling that thou shalt kill, and covet, and lie, and steal, that colassa crimes against God and man shal be reckoned as glorious virtues.

"How can we secure peace? Peace, to be enduring, must be founded in righteousness. There is a fine phrase in a beautiful prayer which runs thus: 'Establish among them that peace which is the fruit of righteousness.' Whether it be the differences or misunderstandings that create divisions between friends, or the recurring strife between men in the industrial workroom, or the more serious controversies between states and nations, there can be but one basis of a lasting reconciliation, and that basis is justice, equity and honest dealing. A truce may be effected and a temporary peace established that stay more serious results, but if it is to be a peace that means lasting satisfaction and good will, it must be grounded in righteousness.

"Gross selfishness is at the bottom of most quarrels; greed and an unworthy desire to beat the other fellow. Could we but see the need for equal rights, for justice, and the daily practice of the Golden Rule, what a vastly different place this earth would speedily become! For if every home were peaceful, and every person charitable and serene, how long could dissensions linger in this world?

"Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God."

"They that take the sword shall perish with the sword."

Signing Of Epoch-Making Franco-German Pact

The epoch-making Franco-German treaty of amity was signed with due ceremony at the Quai D'Orsay in Paris by German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, LEFT, and French Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet, RIGHT, as French and German dignitaries looked on. By the terms of the pact, Germany renounced all claim to Alsace Lorraine and agreed to seek a settlement of all future differences between France and Germany by arbitration.

Lilac Bushes Are Loaded With Buds

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 9. — Lilacs should be in full bloom here by Christmas Day if the present mild spell continues. Carl Hill, age 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Darcy Hill, of Lakefield, pointed out to-day when he brought in to the Examiner a branch picked from a lilac bush near his home.

The branch was covered with fresh buds, many of the buds having already burst into the delicate green leaves of early spring.

Mr. Stanley Higgins, of Lakefield, who returned on Tuesday from a visit to Hamilton and St. Catharines reports that spinach and Brussel sprouts are still growing in the gardens there, and that in Hamilton roses were blooming in the garden of the home next door to where he was staying.

Baldwin Calls On Nation To Aid Jews

LONDON, Dec. 9.—(CP).— In a nation-wide broadcast, Earl Baldwin of Bewdley last night appealed to men and women of goodwill of all classes and creeds to help victims of German anti-semiticism by contributing to the refugee fund bearing his name.

Officially opening the campaign, the former Prime Minister spoke as the accredited representative of Roman Catholic, Protestant and Jewish organizations. The money received will be apportioned among various refugee relief organizations irrespective of race or religion.

"I have to ask you to come to the aid of victims not of a catastrophe in the natural world, not of an earthquake, nor flood, nor famine, but of an explosion of man's inhumanity to man," Lord Baldwin said.

With thousands of men, women and children "despoiled of their goods, driven from their homes and seeking an asylum and sanctuary on our doorsteps, a hiding place from the wind, a covert from the tempest," it is now Great Britain's turn to help, Baldwin said.

The first task, he continued, is to rescue at least 50,000 "unfortunate children with the utmost speed and care for them while waiting for their transit to countries of settlement."

Difficult Task Ahead

"Mass migration to any sparsely inhabited territories is difficult and costly and must demand preliminary spade work and must make time, but the goodwill of many nations has been aroused," he declared

In the United States, the Netherlands and other countries, he said, "men and women of goodwill of all classes and creeds are coming forward and I trust that Great Britain will not lag behind."

"I am no longer a minister of the crown," he declared. "I do not speak tonight as a politician or member of a party. I am an ordinary Englishman who is shocked and distresssd by the plight of these despised and rejected people and their innocent children.

"They may not be our fellow subjects, but they are our fellow men. Tonight I plead for victims who turn to England for help. For the first time in their long and trouble history they have asked us in this way for air. The honor of our country is challenged. It is up to us to meet that challenge."

The former prime minister closed his appeal with the whimsical statement that in the present situation he was a "poor beggar."

"For long years I have been more used to receiving requests than making them," he said. "Others may carry on the campaign and collect money more effectively than I.

"My task is only to speak tonight to the hearts of our fellow countrymen, to the hearts of those who speak my tongue across the seas. I know their hearts. Their hearts I understand, and I am confident they will respond."

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

GAY AND PRETTY

By ALICE ALDEN

Hair up or hair down, hoop skirt or pencil silhouette, cartwheel or furred beret—come what may in styles, we can always expect some gay and pretty clothes. One of the leaders in the happy clothes parade this season is happy Penny Singleton, shown here in a gay mood. She wears gay clothes off the movie lot, too, this outfit being of blue wool and featuring a saddle bag pocket that is set high on the belt. The same cincha buckle that is found on the saddle bag pocket is used on each of the two small pockets set high on the shoulder line. A gay paisley print scarf is muffled at the throat, while a deeper tone hat and antelope shoes finish off the costume.

It was a very jolly social evening that about forty former Londoners and their friends enjoyed Thursday evening in the Y.W.C.A., and many were the reminiscenses exchanged before the bridge games got underway. The evening was under the auspices of the London Old Boys' Association. Bridge prizes were presented by the vice-president of the association, Rev. Dr. E. W. Young, and were won by Mrs. C. Moore, Mr. Jack Pritchard, Mrs. W. J. Moorhead, Mrs. Martin and Mr. G. Blackwell.

Helen Roger Auxiliary

Mrs. G. Morrison in Monaghan opened her home for the December meeting of the Helen Roger Auxiliary of Knox United church. Mrs. Clegg, the president, presided, and read the Christmas message. A gracious welcome was extended the visitors who were present.

Reports of the secretary, treasurer and secretary of christian stewardship were read and adopted. A letter was read from the Mission Band which thanked the Auxiliary for their study book. After a letter had been read from Mrs. Post, Glenalda, the Auxiliary decided to send its Christmas bale of toys and clothing to this station. Mrs. J. F. Reed, convener of the nominating committee, presented a list of the officers for the coming year. This list of names was accepted as read.

Mrs. Mesley, assisted by several of the members, conducted the second chapter of the study book entitled "Planting the Church," and the worship period was conducted by Mrs. Clegg. A social hour was enjoyed at the close of the meeting.

Mark Street S.S. Teachers Meet

The teachers of Mark Street Sunday School met at a pleasant supper meeting n Thursday evening. Following the supper the business of the Sunday School was discussed, and the election of officers took place, which resulted in all officers of former years being placed back in office for the coming year; A. W. Gamble, superintendent; L. Cunningham, assistant superintendent; K. Throop, secretary treasurer and W. Gamble, assistant.

A few words of encouragement and appreciation to the executive and staff were spoken by Rev. E. W. Rowland. An important matter of business was the white gift service which is to be held on December 18, when all members of the Sunday School and congregation are asked to participate in order to spread to a fuller extent Christmas cheer at the Yuletide season.

Those present were: Rev. E. W. and Mrs. Rowland, Mr. and Mrs. Gamble, Mr. K. Throop, Mr. C. Ferguson, Mr. W. Gamble, Mrs. T. Hill, Mrs. E. Holden and the Misses E. Throop, I. Throop N. Adlam and S. Aker.

Life Membership Certificate Presented

A Life Membership Certificate was presented to Mrs. S. Wildman at the December meeting of Group E of the George Street United Church W.M.S. on Thursday afternoon. The presentation was made by Mrs. E. E. Harvey.

Fifteen members and five visitors were present at the meeting, which was held at the home of Mrs. H. W. Ballard, 527 George street. The president, Mrs. E. Wand, presided. In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Stevens, Mrs. B. Frederick was appointed to carry on the work. That fifteen books had been read during the year was reported by Mrs. E. Dormer.

After the scripture reading by Mrs. W. Y. Morrow, sentence prayers were given by Mrs. B. Frederick, Mrs. W. McKibbon and Mrs. J. H. Vance. Mrs. T. Curvin, accompanied by Mrs. H. A. Bonny, gave a very delightful Christmas solo. An interesting Christmas story entitled "Christmas Bells," was given by Mrs. H. A. Bonny.

The election of officers was conducted by Mrs. J. H. Vance, and resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. E. Wand; vice-president, Mrs. J. H. Vance; secretary, Mrs. M. McLean; treasurer, Mrs. S. Wildman; pianist, Mrs. White; assistant pianist, Mrs. W. H. Cunningham; telephone convener, Mrs. W. J. Moore. After the closing hymn, refreshments were served by the hostess and her committee.

We Noticed

. . . . That the majority of the smartest of this season's Christmas cards are essentially simple, with sentiments that reflect to a large extent the deeper significance of the day.

. . . . There are novel types, to be sure, but fantastic modernistic designs, ornate motifs, the bizarre color schemes of surrealist suggestion and wise-cracking comics are, generally speaking, among the missing. Some of the greetings are casual and informal, but nevertheless they all convey a sincerely joyous message.

. . . . For the children to send, there is a wonderful selection of adorable cards from animals to snow men. Some of the most modern include two gay sea lions on a turquoise ground with the greeting done in red; a jolly snow man with his creator behind him waving a red-mittened hand; the feet of a man and woman striding along, on a white card; a shepherd, with his flock, watching the Star of Bethlehem, and an amusing card for Dad—white with brown and dusty orange lettering, and one in delft blue with the Christ child, stars, and lambs in white.

Carols Open Christmas Program

Christmas Carols played softly on the piano by Mrs. M. C. Parr opened the Thursday meeting of the George Street Evening Auxiliary, which was held in the Board Room of the church.

A delightful Christmas program included: two piano numbers by Shirley Curtis; a Christmas story told by two little girls from the Primary Department of the Sunday School, Evelyn Rendall and Grace Marshall; a vocal solo by Miss Loretta McDougall; the story of "The Other Wise Man" told by Mrs. C. S. Thompson, and a piano duet by Miss Laura MacFarlane and Mr. Wardle.

During the business period, it was reported by the treasurer that the financial standing was well over the amount that had been allocated to the group.

The election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: Hon. pres., Mrs. A. R. Brown, Mrs. M. C. Parr; president, Miss Stella Bennett; first vice president, Mrs. Donald Lavis; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Wilbert Prise; recording secretary, Miss Alberta Curtis; corresponding secretary, Miss Eva Elliott; treasurer, Miss Elsie Taylor; Christian stewardship and finance, Mrs. Ross Davidson; community friendship, Miss Edna Manning; secretary Mite Boxes, Miss Edith Wright; supply secretary, Mrs. Lloyd Gilders; Missionary Monthly, Miss Gertrude Creba; temperance, Mrs. Jack Beatty; Lit. secretary, Mrs. John Bradbury; flowers, Miss Ilein McKim, Mrs. W. Westran, Mrs. F. Greatrix; pianist, Miss Bessie Elcome.

Senator Fallis Speaks To Convention Women

At a reception given Thursday evening by the Central Women's Conservative Association to women delegates and wives of delegates to the Ontario Conservative Convention, Senator Iva Fallis urged that there be unity in the party behind their selection of a leader to-day. She described the place the Senate holds in Canadian administration. The Senate, she pointed out, represents Canada regionally, whereas the House of Commons representation is by population. The Senate is a protection to minority and sectional interests, doing a duty out-

There should be no division in thought, interest or sentiment between city and rural dwellers, for the good of one group is interwoven with the other, Senator Fallis said. The gathering was in the roof garden at the Royal York Hotel, and was attended by more than 100.

Mrs. Ralph Day, wife of Mayor Day; Mrs. George Gooch, president of the central Association, and Mrs. George Hastings, past president, welcomed the delegates to Toronto. Miss Iva Belford, Port Credit, extended greetings from the national executive of Young Conservatives, of which she is vice-president, and Mrs. Robert Connor, central vice-president, was on the platform. Mrs. Adelle Barrett Pugh, Mr. Harold Rich and Mrs. Katherine McCausland, accompanied by Miss Edna Garlick, entertained.

Bride Of Tomorrow Delightfully Entertained

Mrs. Harold Mesley and Mrs. Robert Hutton entertained jointly at a delightful miscellaneous shower at the latter's home, 334 Rubidge street on Thursday evening. The shower was given in honor of Miss Dorothy Searles, whose marriage to Mr. Kenneth Miller takes place on Saturday of this week.

Yellow chrysanthemums in a silver basket and tall yellow tapers in silver holders adorned the tea table, where Mrs. P. D. Moore poured tea, assisted by the hostesses and Mrs. I. J. Miller.

As the guest of honor passed under the archway between the dining room and the drawing room, she was greeted with a shower of confetti that fell from a yellow silk umbrella. The umbrella, which hung in the archway, was the centre from which white and yellow streamers were attached with numbers as a clue to the gifts which were hidden about the rooms.

Cards and games were also played during the evening.

The Alumni of St. Joseph's Hospital presented one of the hospital graduates, Mrs. Martin Guerin (formerly Christina Rivard) with a silver cake plate at its meeting in the hospital this week. The address was read by Miss Irene Torpey, and the presentation made by little Ann Rundle of Romaine street. A charming reply was made by Mrs. Guerin, who said that a warm welcome awaited the Alumni members at her new home. Tea was served afterwards by members of the Alumni.

Nutritionist Debunks Lengthy List Of Food Beliefs

New York, Dec. 9 (AP)

A LONG LIST of "unsound" beliefs about food were reported today to the Greater New York Dental Society by Dr. Martha Koehne, nutritionist of the Ohio Department of Health at Columbus.

It is unsound to believe, she said, that tomatoes clear the brain, lettuce and cucumbers keep one cool, lettuce and onions induce sound sleep, fish is brain food, celery is a nerve tonic.

"Never eat unless hungry" is misleading, for she explained some folks have poor appetites, yet need more food than they crave.

To think that disliked food will not digest is a fallacy, she said. If swallowed in a peaceful frame of mind she said "it will go the rest of the way."

for the Premiership were those of a minstrel show endman. It hadn't worked.

Advice From Men Who Know.

In dealing with problems of agriculture, mining and other occupations, Col. Drew said he would go to farmers, miners and others for advice. For farm advice he would call farmers. For Northern Ontario he would seek and be guided by men from the North.

"I wouldn't go to Bay Street offices to learn about the North," said the noted barrister, soldier and writer.

For advice on business, he would not go to the theorizing professor. He would go to the practical businessman.

The most important problem was that of youth, said Col. Drew. In Ontario 75,000 came to voting age annually.

"Even if we couldn't convince the older generation, we could win the next election if we convinced youth we were doing right by them," he said.

The way to convince youth was to show courage and faith in Canada. Give youth courage, hope and reason to believe the Conservative Party stood for national welfare and not party intrigue and it would follow the Conservative Party.

The Bren gun inquiry was a provincial issue because the province controlled the sale of stock, said Col. Drew, predicting "there will be no Bren gun contract with the Canadian Government when the next session of Parliament opens."

"We want no salesmen of death peddling their stock around the streets of this province again, telling people they're going to make money because Canada needs arms. There will be no profiteering on the weapons of war if you choose me Leader of this party."

Five Seats Open

Col. Drew said five legislative members had offered to resign in his favor should he be elected leader. He would ask Premier Hepburn to call a by-election the minute a seat was opened.

"I do not believe he dares to refuse this request," Col. Drew added.

The candidate said he was a believer in the two-party system. "I was one of several prominent Conservatives who believed it was wise to have a coalition under the terms offered us a year and a half ago," he added. "I may have been wrong. I was honest.

"That is past. No matter what may have been possible in the past, what has been done in the last year has precluded all possibility of coalition with the man who in the last year has sought to destroy respect for the British crown."

Col. Drew urged Conservatives to show their loyalty when the King and Queen came to Canada. "One Empire is our greatest assurance of future prosperity," he said.

Heighington's Cause.

Speaking on behalf of Mr. Heighington, Mr. Waters said the former member of the Ontario Legislature had a record which entitled him to serious consideration as party leader.

There were no buttons, brass bands or synthetic enthusiasm on Mr. Heighington's behalf but there was a worthy career. He would be a sane, steady, serious and sober statesman. Government by snappy epigrams and wisecracks would be ended.

Mr. Waters criticized the appointment of a lawyer as Ontario Health Minister (Hon. H. J. Kirby). "I suppose the next typhoid epidemic will be checked by injunction," he said.

"You can't win an election with cheap clap trap," Mr. Heighington told the convention. Glamor on the platform wasn't enough for a leader. The ability to lead the Legislature also should be considered.

"I want to offer myself to you as a man experienced in the Legislature of Ontario who can meet the charges of our opponents and beat them on their own ground," he said in terming Premier Hepburn a "master of superficiality."

"Consider the record of people when you vote," he urged. "If you are pledged to any one candidate, forget about it. I won't do. We learned that. Cast your ballot on your own discretion."

Lawson for Unity

The most important thing in Ontario was to bring all Conservatives into the fold again, said Mr. Douglas in nominating Mr. Lawson. The candidate was the one who could reunite all factions in the party.

Mr. Lawson was ready to leave the federal area to weld the Ontario Conservative party into a fighting force again. He knew the organization business from bottom to top.

"There is only one way the Conservative party can depose the present government," said Mr. Douglas. "That is by the unity of all Conservatives."

"I am not the nominee or favorite of any group, clique or class," said Mr. Lawson. "Had Mr. Macaulay (Hon. Leopold Macaulay, Conservative House Leader) been a candidate, I would not have been."

He had been urged by many Conservatives to be a candidate to give the delegates an opportunity to vote "for a man who had never been a party to any intra-party quarrels or strife."

Mr. Lawson repudiated the anti-Drew pamphlet mentioned by Mayor Morrison. It was not the way he played the game.

If the Ontario Conservative Party wanted to get anywhere it had to take a definite stand on definite problems. As a starter Mr. Lawson proposed the province should relieve the municipalities of all cost of relief for employable unemployed.

A Vicious Circle.

High municipal taxation, caused largely by relief budgets, was retarding building. At the same time nearly 50 per cent. of those on relief were formerly dependent on the construction industry. This is a vicious circle. Assumption of relief by the province would stimulate building and remove this class from relief.

Premier Hepburn, charged Mr. Lawson had scuttled every effort made by the Dominion government to deal with the problem of unemployed youth. It was neglected entirely in Ontario except for the training of a few girls for domestic service.

The personal feud between Premier Hepburn and Prime Minister King had cost Ontario farmers the benefits of the natural products marketing act. Had there been friendly relations between the two governments, a way would have been found to make the act effective.

"The only farmer who has benefitted by Hepburn policies is Farmer Hepburn. He has added 700 acres to his farm since 1934. How many of you have added ten?"

The real pals of Premier Hepburn were the Bay street mining barons. He was given to flying to Florida and other places with the biggest baron of all. Mr. Lawson suggested that at the next election every billboard in the province should be plastered with the title "Baron Mitch of Bannockburn."

"I Come Unfettered"

"I am at a Conservative convention today," observed Mr. Rawson in opening his address. "Sunday I preach to Christians. I have achieved the ultimate.

"I come before you free and unfettered with no political past whatsoever. Therefore I have no dirty linen to wash. If I had, I wouldn't wash it on the front lawn for the envious neighbors to see."

Mr. Rawson said there was no campaign on his behalf to "bludgeon" the delegates. It was a mistake to pledge delegates before they sized up the candidates.

"I come to the convention impelled by a sense of duty and at the risk of my future career. Great political parties should not be left to the mercies of ward-heelers."

Canada today was nine provinces, not one nation. Mr. Rawson wanted to see Ontario back in confederation and Canada "back in the empire with force and verve."

Premier King should learn that the spiritual home of Canadians was not to the south. It was across the Atlantic.

'Open Door' Idea Done In China

TOKYO, Dec. 9—(AP).—A source close to the government today said foreign minister Machiro Arita had informed the United States and Great Britain the principle of the "open door" in China had vanished.

The Minister was said to have spoken frankly yesterday to Joseph Grew and Sir Robert Craigie, the American and British ambassadors, leaving no doubt as to Japan's position.

The informant said his statement contained such phraseology as "henceforth, you will be permitted." "You will not be permitted..."—referring to conditions under which foreign commerce may continue in China.

Concrete questions were not touched, it was said, but Arita laid down two general principles showing Japan's line of policy. Specific questions will be determined according to the following principles:

1. The Chinese-Japanese conflict has changed the political situation in China and has virtually dismantled the nine-power pact, which among other things provided equal opportunity for all powers.

2. Japan, Manchoukuo and "new" China have become a new economic bloc, but they do not intend to exclude foreign trade.

one of which is believed to have struck an occupant.

At Blackstock the locks on the gasoline pumps at Taylor's garage were broken and entry attempted at the garage doors. William Taylor, the proprietor, heard the noise and, armed with a light calibre rifle, he scared off the thieves and sent a couple of shots flying after them as they headed west.

From there they went to Port Perry, where shortly before 1 a.m. an attempt was made to enter the Port Perry dairy, owned by Glen Owen, on Water street. The locks on the gasoline pumps at the Port Perry Wreckers' service station, just south of the dairy, were also broken.

The thieves were disturbed in breaking into the dairy when Owens heard them and got up to investigate. Chased along Water street, they sped through the village and circled back, again to come through the village and go east. Chief Constable Roy St. John and Art Jamieson, bakery proprietor, were in full chase.

Chief St. John shot at the fleeing car, but it made goo dits getaway toward Blackstock.

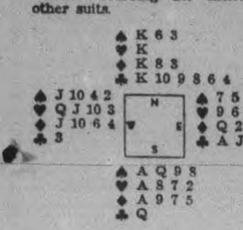
"The Authority on Authorities"

COUNT YOUR ENTRIES

PLAYING FAST is all right, so ong as you are not playing carelessly. It takes only a moment to count the number of entries in the dummy and figure how many of them you require to bring in an establishable suit by one method or how many by an alternative method. Simple reckoning like that may show you the absolute necessity of overtaking a singleton honor of your own hand so as to get a second lead of the suit from dummy before disturbing the entries in other suits.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable)

South bid 1-Spade on this deal, North 2-Clubs, South 2-No Trump and North 3-No Trump.

The heart Q was led by West and won by dummy's singleton. Next came the club 4 to the Q and a spade to the K. Declarer then laid down the club K with the hope that the A would win and that the J would drop from the other opponent's hand. However, as they were bunched in the East hand, the declarer was able to win only three spades, two hearts, two diamonds and one club because of his shortage of entries into dummy to establish the clubs.

If on the first club lead South had played the K the opponents could have taken two club tricks, but dummy would have had two entries when the clubs were set up

Norway Mourns

OSLO, Dec. 9—(AP)—All Norway joined King Haakon today in a moving farewell to his queen.

The crash of the first of 42 salute guns from the walls of the ancient fortress of Akershus signalled two minutes of silence throughout the nation while Norway's sovereign walked to the fortress behind the hearse carrying the body of the queen.

The queen, a sister of King George V of England, died in London Nov. 20. Her body will lie in state in the fortress and later will be placed in a mausoleum to be built within its walls.

Play Presented At Lakevale By St. James'

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FOWLER'S CORNERS Dec. 9.—"An Old Fashioned Mother," a dramatic parable of a mother's love, and full of pathos interspersed with humor, was presented by members of St. James' United Church, in Lakevale Presbyterian church, on Wednesday evening.

The play, presented in three acts, was directed by Mrs. Henry Turner and showed careful training ,very little prompting being necessary.

Between acts 1 and 2, Harold Fife favored the gathering with two harmonica solos and Rev. J. M. Young spoke a few words between the second and third acts.

Act 1 opened with the village choir rehearsing, being composed of Mesdames Ellis, A. H. Cook, W. Wood with Mrs. J. O. Fife at the organ and directed by Widder Bill Pindle (Mrs. Ted Chambers). Miss Louizy Loving Custard (Mrs. L. Gibson) who is a composer of verse, a dressmaker and gossip, joins the group. Others present include Glorianna Perkins (Miss Hazel Palmer) and Deborah Underhill, a mother in Israel, played by Mrs. Henry Turner; also Sukey Pindle, the widow's litle mite, played by Irene Ellis.

Mrs. Underhill, a widow and mother of six children, has managed to feed, clothe and educate her children, who have left for homes of their own, except Charley and John. The latter, the baby of the family travels with bad company and one night brings to his mothe's home an outcast and wanderer, Enoch Rone (Harold Fife) who has fallen by the wayside. After much persuasion on the part of John's mother, good Samaritan that she is, Enoch is given enough money to return to his mother in Buffalo. Before leaving he makes the vow never to let another drop of liquor pass his lips. John Underhill also makes this vow the same night.

Clever Acting

The very clever acting of Matt Drysdale, who takes the part of Jeremiah Gosling, a merry heart, and who is a veteran in dramatic entertainment, keeps everyone in a merry mood so there is not a dull moment during the whole play. "Jerry" owns a "do-daddle," an old hitching post which he is willing to swap for anything.

A loveable character is Glorianna Perkins (Hazel Palmer) a little servant girl who thinks a great deal of Auntie Deb and is a friend to everyone in need.

Charley Underhill, who has been keeping company with the village belle, Isabel Simscott (Mrs. G. Harris) has decided to tell his mother of their engagement. She is delighted to have another daughter and to celebrate they are asked to remain to tea. Just as the guests are about to sit down, the sheriff (Gratton Harris) arrives to arrest. John Underhill (Ken Moffatt) on a charge of theft and murder. John maintains he is innicent, but is led away after a tearful farewell by his mother.

Wants Too Start

Then Charley (Ted Chambers) has decided he cannot make good in the little village of Canton in New York and must have $400 to get a start in the city. In order to do this he persuades his mother to mortgage her farm. For a long time, she hesitates, partly because she is doubtful if Charley will succeed and because Glorianna pleads with her not to sign the mortgage. Charley and his wife are in a hurry to catch the train and Brother Jonah Quackenbush, a while sepulchre whom anyone could dislike at first sight, is eager to lend the money and so get the farm in his clutches. The role of Jonah Quackenbush is difficult because the audience at once turns against him, but was splendidly portrayed by Henry Turner.

Mrs. Underhill signed the mortgage and because Glorianna refused to be a party to the deal, Louizy Custard signed as a witness.

Two Years In Jail

In the meantime John Underhill served two years in prison for a crime that another confessed to on his deathbed. John could find no work. One night after everyone had supposedly gone to singing school. John, a dejected tramp returns and tries to steal all the money his mother has, and which she kept in a cup on the mantle. He is caught in the act by Enoch Rone, who has returned to the village, a respected and wealthy man, and suitor to the hand of Glorianna Perkins.

Enoch gives John enough money to go south where the former owns a mine, in order that he might readjust himself and be able to come back home in a respectful way.

After a lapse of two years, act 3 finds Mrs. Underhill heartbroken because she is unwanted by her children. The mortgage has been foreclosed and she must travel "over the the hills to the poorhouse."

She has made the place clean for the next tennants and sits down for a brief rest when Glorianna returns to bid her goodbye. Glorianna had married Enoch and was the mother of a baby son. Glorianna asks Mrs. Underhill to live with her, but she will not accept.

Jerry is sorry and through the generosity of a loving heart brings two gifts for Mrs. Underhill, a lovely black shawl and bonnet. Expecting the sheriff at 4 p.m. to take her to the poorhouse, the widow dons these gifts. Just before good byes have been said, and the sheriff is ready to take her away, a knock is heard. John Underhill, the widow's "wandering boy" bursts into the room. Securing a job in a mine he became rich and bought his mother's farm, to which she came as a bride fifty years before. He explains to his mother it is to be "their" home from then on, thus bringing to a dramatic close, a play with a fine moral.

Arabs Kill 6 British

JERUSALEM, Dec. 9—(CP-Havas).—A British army captain and six privates were killed to-day in a fight with a band of Arabs near Benat-Yakoub, in Trans-Jordan just across the Palestine frontier.

On the Haif-Beisan railway a freight train was derailed. The Jewish workers' colony at Mishmar-Hayarden was attacked and snipers fired into the Gazna railway station. Two Arabs were shot by unidentified persons at Haifa.

Picket Melee Gets 5 Jailed

CHICAGO, Dec. 9—(AP)—Five Chicago Newspaper Guild members were arrested and blows fell on a dozen heads in a melee today along the picket line at the Hearst Building, where Guild members are on strike against The Evening American and The Morning Herald and Examiner.

Those arrested were Harry Wohl, president of the Chicago Guild, affiliated with the Congress of Industrial Organizations' American Newspaper Guild; Don Stevens, executive secretary of the Chicago Guild; his wife, Sada; Virginia Gardner, a newspaper reporter, and Nate Aleskovsky, Herald and Examiner copyreader.

About 100 persons were on the picket line on Wacker Drive when truck drivers pulled up to load papers. The melee started when police began opening the line of pickets to let the drivers through.

The Guild issued a statement saying the truck drivers "attempted to crash the picket line wielding rubber hoses."

Police Lieutenant William McCarthy said his men gave the pickets "every chance in the world to picket peacefully," he added that hereafter no picketing would be permitted on the Wacker Drive side of the building.

Several of the injured were reported to have been taken to county hospital.

Both papers have continued publication during the strike which began Monday in demand, the Guild said, for job security and collective bargaining rights. Members of the American Federation of Labor union including the Chicago Editorial Association declined to join the strike which they termed "illegal and unjustified."

Two-Foot Drifts Maroon Five Men Defy Team, Snowcar And Plane

TIMMINS, Ont., Dec. 9—(CP)—A tale of severe hardship was related today by George Rodway of Timmins, who with four others was marooned on the highway 18 miles north of Porquis Junction on Monday and Tuesday when a heavy snow storm swept over this section of Northern Ontario.

Leaving Cochrane, where they had been principals in a law suit regarding a motorboat, the five men, James Casey, Fred Williams, Jack Burton, Paul Oltsher and Roway, pushed into a heavy storm on Monday.

So heavily did the snow fall, that the driver was forced to back up and again try to push his way through. Finally the anti-freeze boiled over and the car bogged down in the two-foot fall of snow in the middle of the road.

When the car stalled, Rodway started out for Porquis Junction along with Oltsher. In sevn hours, the two covered the 12 miles to Holland where there was a phone.

"We did it in 300-yard spurts," said Rodway. "We were so tired that when I reached Holland I couldn't speak. We were soaking wet. When we pushed against our trouser legs, the water dripped out as if from a spout."

Horses were sent out for the car, but were forced back because of the heavy drifts. A snowmobile sent out by Cochrane police tipped over and was useless.

Plane Does No Better

In a last effort an airplane flew out but failed to locate the men.

Casey, owner of the car, and Fred Williams also started to walk towards the junction. Casey, a heavy man, gave up and stumbled into the snow. Williams rolled him into the ditch and kicked snow about the wornout walker.

Burton remained in the car until help came. When Casey was found in th snowbank, he was unconscious.

"If we had left him any longer, he would have been dead," said Rodway. He had continued on into Timmins by train. Even that was delayed, when the turntable in Cochrane froze up and no local train could get out of the town.

Horses were obtained from a farm which Rodway had passed on the way down, and sent to rescue the men. All of the men with the exception of Burton have arrived back in Timmins. Burton is at Cochrane.

"We had lots of luck, all bad," said Rodway upon his return.

The car still remains in the centre of the road north of Holland. A tractor will be sent out to pull it to Porquis Junction.

Car-Cattle Crash Case Is Adjourned

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Dec. 9—At a session of the Division Court on Wednesday, His Honor Judge McGibbon heard an interesting case which centred around an accident on the Coboconk-Haliburton Highway in July.

A. Liscombe, a farmer of Bexley township, was driving a herd of cattle on the road. A lad of six years had signalled from an incline on the road that no cars were in sight. A car driven by W. H. Lytle, of Toronto, hove in sight, however, and ran into the herd, badly injuring one cow. The animal had received the attention of a veterinary for some days and was finally disposed of to a canning factory. Liscombe presented a claim for $65.00.

W. H. Lytle, driver of the car, claimed he was only travelling thirty-five to forty miles an hour, and when he broke over the brow of the hill there were no cattle in sight. When he got within 75 feet the feet the cattle appard. H applied the cattle appeared. He applied the hitting the cow. He did not see any one in charge of the cattle. Lytle presented a bill for $107.70, damage to the car.

The defendant stated that he had been driving over this road to his summer cottage on Kushog Lake since 1931. The plaintiff wished to introduce the evidence of Dr. Byers, veterinary, of Woodville, but as he was unavoidably absent, Judge McGibbon adjourned the case, the date to be set later.

Flat Feet Of Joe Louis, Owens, Bill Robinson Come To Defence Of Would-Be Cops

NEWARK, N.J., Dec. 9—(CP)—The New Jersey Urban League came to the defence yesterday of the would-be cop, who can't be one because he's got flat feet.

Appearing in behalf of three men, flat foot floogies whose congenital flat feet barred them from police examinations, league representatives asked the state civil service commission to revise its rule that flat-footed men can't take competitive examinations for police and fire department jobs.

The league said flat feet were no hindrance to heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis, to Olympic champion Jesse Owens, or to tap dancer Bill Robinson.

Eulace Peacock, Negro, who used to be a track star at Temple University, took the witness stand and removed his shoes and socks to show the commission as flat a pair of feet as any of the commissioners ever had seen.

Dr. Henry A. Kessler, an orthopedic surgeon, pointed out the flatness of Peacock's feet had not stopped him from winning many races and setting a few records.

The commission reserved decision of the case of the flat foot floogie.

All New Airlines Designed Fast For Civilians Now, Armies In War

LONDON, Dec. 9—(AP).—A trend toward building huge, fast airliners to carry armies in war and civilian passengers in peace, is noted in the new edition of the British annual, "Jane's All the World's Aircraft."

C. G. Grey, the co-editor, said this was caused, first, by a fear of collapse in the market for straight warplanes "just in case there does not happen to be a war within the next 10 years," and, secondly, by the idea that "air forces in the future will have to do a great deal of transport."

Mr. Grey said it took men, not airplanes, to win a war and "consequently, although we may never have trench fighting such as we knew in France, the winning of the next war may depend on the very quick transport of masses of troops."

The country-by-country presentation of airplane types reflected sharp decreases in French progress and production, a sharp rise in Germany, a slight increase in Italy, and "a comfortable middle course" in Great Britain.

The editor criticized French nationalization of its aircraft industry and said it had done "untold harm." On the other hand he said German nationalization which "throws all responsibility for progress on to individual enterprise" had precisely the opposite effect.

Soviet Russia, he said, had brought out no new prototypes since the end of 1937 "presumably because of liquidation of personnel rather than other factors in the aircraft industry."

He described the United States' progress as "quite reasonable—nothing wonderful." He was doubtful about what he called the American "craze" for tricycle undercarriages. Despite criticism of the British Air Ministry, he declared it had made "very good progress."

The editor predicted that when designs now secret were made public Great Britain would cause the world "furiously to think."

Burns Prove Fatal

NEW LISKEARD, Ont., Dec. 9 (CP)—Severe body burns suffered in her home late yesterday afternoon proved fatal today for Mrs. John Illes, 70, wel lknown resident of this community.

Mrs Illes was putting a fire in the kitchen stove to prepare the evening meal, when a flaming piece of paper in her hand set fire to her clothing.

Screams brought her husband who was working outside the house, but by the time he had arrived her clothes were burned from her body.

Fire also spread to curtains but was quickly extinguished before any damage resulted.

Wizard Indicted

Wallace Groves, Wall Street's current boy wizard, and chairman of the board of the powerful Phoenix Securities Corporation, was indicted by the federal grand jury together with his brother, George, and two men now fugitives, Ernest B. Warringer, and Philip de Rond, in a 14-count indictment charging a $700,000 mail fraud and conspiracy.

In Poor Health

General Cornelius Vanderbilt, head of the famous family, is pictured as he arrived in New York after a 16-day cruise in the Carribean in poor health. The general announced he would enter the hospital for observation.

New Bill Allows Aid To Chinese

LONDON, Dec. 9 (CP Cable). — The British government today introduced a bill in the House of Commons increasing its powers to grant export guarantees, including a new provision which could be used to send material assistance to China.

The bill would increase from £50,000,000 to £75,000,000 ($235,000,000 to $352,000,000) the total export guarantees which the board of trade could grant. An entirely new section would be incorporated empowering the board of trade to make guarantees of an additional £10,000,000 on political grounds as distinct from other guarantees, which are limited to commercial risks.

It is understood the main purpose of the new part of the legislation is to grant financial assistance to the Chinese government over a period of five years. Credits under the new provisions are not limited to commercial goods and it is taken for granted that munitions, as distinct from arms, will be exported.

For months the Chinese government has been working feverishly on a highway from Yunnaanfu to the Burmese border and it is understood it is now completed. This back door route to China by way of Rangoon will be used for any shipments under the scheme.

Kidneys Disturbed Sleep Many Times Each Night

Praises Syntona As He Once More Gets Good Night's Sleep. Backache, Headaches, Dizzy Spells and Stomach Distress Also Overcome.

MR. JOHN McKECHNIE

"I cannot speak too highly about Syntona after what it has done for me," said Mr. John McKechnie, 226 Giles Street, London, in a recent report. "For the past three years I suffered terribly with my kidneys and bladder. I was compelled to rise six or seven times each night and I had lost so much sleep I had become rundown, tired out, and very nervous. I always had a dull ache across my back and was subject to dizzy spells and headaches. Little specks floated before my eyes, I seldom could enjoy a meal without suffering afterwards with gas, bloating and acidity.

"I tried many remedies, but got no real relief, and I began to fear that I would never be any better. Then one day in Standard Drug Store, the Syntona man showed me reports of many local people whom Syntona had relieved of similar troubles, so I started taking it, too. Now, after just a few weeks, I feel like a different person. I can sleep the whole night and get up mornings feeling rested once more. The pains have gone out of my back and I am free of those headaches and dizzy spells My food digests well and that alone is worth many times the cost."

The above are all common results of disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Syntona is specially compounded to treat these four vital organs at the same time, and the results that it gives are vouched for by thousands of delighted men and women who have used it. Syntona is pleasant to take and contains no harmful drugs. It is made from pure juices of 12 selected herbs that have long been known for their medicinal value.

You, who suffer like Mr. McKechnie did, are cordially invited to call on the Syntona man in Elliott's Drug Store, Peterborough, and find out all about Syntona.

Dorland Gang Blamed In Bank Raid

Warrants Out For Trio Who Shot Banker, And Fled With $2,500

PORT CREDIT, Dec. 10—(CP).—Warrants charging armed robbery and shooting with intent were out today for three men wanted for the $2,500 holdup of the Canadian Bank of Commerce here yesterday.

Provincial police who issued the warrants last night said one of the wanted men was a member of the Albert Dorland gang. Dorland at present is serving a 12-year penitentiary term for robbery.

A wide area west of Toronto, was combed for the gunmen, who used a truck to escape. The vehicle, owned by Stannah's radio store here, was found abandoned afterward and the driver, J. Rodie Shea, is sought by police for questioning in the case.

Ray Bryant, accountant of the bank, was shot in the arm when he did not put his hands up fast enough. The bullet went through the fleshy part of his arm.

The bandits forced Austin G. McDermot, bank manager, to open the vault door after making other persons in the office lie on the floor. Once inside the safe, they scooped up everything in sight and fled to the safety of their waiting truck.

Toronto Woman Killed In Crash

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 10. — Fatally injured in an accident three miles wset of this city, Mrs. John Macdonald, 734 Dixon Avenue, Toronto, died in the Belleville General Hospital less than an hour after the accident.

John Macdonald, her husband, is in the hospital in a serious condition. He is suffering from deep facial cuts and shock.

The accident occurred shortly before 6 o'clock on Friday night about four miles west of this city. The Macdonald car, travelling west, collided with the rear of a transport truck driven by Kenneth Flindall of Wooler. The truck was loaded with baled straw.

According to Traffic Officer H. Caldwell, the truck was parked on the side of the highway with a flat tire. Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson ordered an inquest be held.

Aberhart Reaches Out

EDMONTON, Dec. 10 (CP)—Premier Aberhart disclosed today the Alberta government will seek extension of the northern boundary of the province to the Arctic Ocean.

The extension would double the size of the province from 248,000 square miles to approximately 500,000 square miles and add the gold and radium mining areas, fisheries and fur producing districts of the present North West Territories.

Youth Confesses Murder For Cash To Wed

DETROIT, Dec. 10 (A.P.). — Gordon Rowland, 21-year-old Great Lakes sailor hunted since the fatal shooting of a North-eastern Michigan resort manager, was held here on a charge of murder to-day.

Captain Donald Leonard of Michigan State Police, who with other officers arrested Rowland in Windsor, Ont., last night, said the youth admitted he sot and killed Berl Bergman, 55, on Thursday in an attempt to obtain money to finance his marriage to a girl he met during a drinking party a few hours earlier. Rowland is a native of Midland, Ont.

"I just suddenly had an impulse to get some money anyway I could," Capt. Leonard quoted Rowland as saying.

Rowland had $105 on his person when arrested. Apparently, police said, he had made no effort to meet the girl again.

Bergman, manager of Lookout Inn 17 miles south of Alepna, was shot to death as he lay in bed in a cabin at the resort. William Gilliland, 60, owner of the Inn, was wounded. Rowland had been employed at the resort's gasoline station.

Capt. Leonard said Rowland told of working all season as a stoker on a Great Lakes freighter, and then of going deer hunting in Rudyard, in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, where he met Gilliland, who offered him a job at the Inn.

Bergman was shot, Leonard said he was told, when he awoke as Rowland was taking his gun from a dresser drawer. Gilliland was awakened by the noise, and the gun was turned on him.

Past Is Past Says Col. Drew Out To Unite Tories, Defeat Hepburn Regime

Soldier Barrister, Chosen On First Ballot Has 5 Seats Offered in House; Drew, Manion Join In General Support

TORONTO, Dec. 10 (CP).—The Ontario Conservative party girded today for future political warfare under the guidance of the aggressive Col. George A. Drew, barrister, soldier and author, elected yesterday to succeed Hon. Earl Rowe, party leader for little more than two years.

Swept into the leadership on the first ballot at the end of the two-day convention called to choose a new leader, Drew said "the past is past; we look to the future." Now he has to find a seat in the Provincial Legislature, opening early next year, and already five members have offered him their seats.

Drew, 44, and former Mayor of Guelph, Ont., rolled up an overwhelming verdict over his three opponents in yesterday's balloting. The vote was not announced, but unofficial figures gave him 790 votes, against 413 for Hon. J. Earl Lawson, former Federal Minister of Internal Revenue; 42 for Wilfrid Heighington, former Toronto Conservative member of the Legislature, and 13 for Rev. Norman Rawson, Hamilton minister. Only eight of the 1,293 ballots issued were spoiled.

Election Unanimous.

Col. Drew needed 647 to have a majority but Mr. Lawson, member of parliament for York South, moved the convention make the election unanimous. Heighington and Mr. Rawson seconded the motion and the delegates, from all parts of Ontario, cheered, yelled and sang. Col. Drew's election was unanimous.

Smiling, Col. Drew grasped the proffered hand of Mr. Rowe, the first sign of friendship between the two men since they came to the parting of the ways before the 1937 election, when Col. Drew resigned as Conservative organizer and ran as an Independent Conservative in Wellington South.

Perhaps the happiest of the Drew supporters was the wife of the new leader. Mrs. Drew, attractive and youthful, pushed her way to the platform, shoved herself through a crowd of Drew admirers and threw her arms around his neck and kissed him.

No Old Grudges.

"So far as I am concerned, there will be no nursing of old wounds," the new leader said in an interview after his election. "I will welcome the assistance of everyone who believes that the Conservative party has a purpose to serve in this province.

"Old arguments have no place in our efforts to build up for the future. Personally, I shall do everything I can to unite the party for the purpose of defeating Mr. Hepburn. This is a worthy object, not only for the Conservative party, but for the people of Ontario. With a united party I am sure that we can do it at the next election."

Daladier Barely Squeezes Through Vote

PARIS, Dec. 10—(AP).—Premier Daladier won a new but slim majority in the Chamber of Deputies today, enabling him to carry on his strike smashing and his fight against Italy's colonial ambitions.

The premier, nevertheless, appeared to be the political prisoner of his own divided Radical-Socialist party.

In a riotous session of the chamber, the best Daladier could wring from the quarrelling, shouting deputies was a majority of 71 votes out of the chamber's 618. The vote of confidence was 315 to 211.

His new majority was based on conservative support, ranging from his own Radical Socialist party to the extreme right French Social party—Colonel Francois De La Rocque's group.

The Socialists and Communists, who formerly joined with the Radical Socialists to form the popular front, voted solidly against Daladier.

The premier seemed to be faced with three possible roads all fraught with danger:

1. He may continue with the present shaky majority.
2. He may ask president Lebrun and the senate to dissolve the chamber and go back to the people for new elections.
3. He may resign in the hope of forming a new government based on more solid parliamentary ground.

The last two steps, however, would only be "last resorts," his associates indicated.

Daladier's friends appeared to be convinced he would take the first road for the present, sounding out the parliamentary ground as he goes.

Lady Grenfell Passes At 53

BROOKLINE, Mass., Dec. 10.—(AP).—Lady Anne Grenfell, wife of Sir Wilfrid Grenfell, famed medical missionary to Labrador, died yesterday after a long illness. She was 53. Funeral service will be held to-morrow.

A native of Lake Forest, Ill., Lady Grenfell met Sir Wilfred on an Atlantic liner during a trip from England in 1908 and they were married the next year.

Early in 1910 the Grenfells made the first of many visits to the mission headquarters at St. Anthony, Nfld., where their two sons and a daughter were born.

Although Sir Wilfred's health has prevented trips to Labrador since 1934, he and Lady Grenfell retained active control of the hospitals, nursing stations and schools they founded.

Mission leaders credit Lady Grenfell with developing the child welfare department and establishing the mission education fund by which promising Newfoundland and Labrador students were brought to Canada and the United States for technical training.

Sir Wilfred was knighted in 1927 by King George V.

In a Bond Mystery

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP).—A bevy of Hollywood luminaries ranging from crooner Bing Crosby to millionaire producer Joe Schenck was drawn into the Philippine Bond mystery to-day.

Thirteen subpoenaes from the United States atorney's office here were on their way by plane toward the cinema capital to summon the celebrities as material witnesses in the mail fraud case of William P. Buckner, dapper young international financier.

The others called were Ronald Coleman, Miriam Hopkins, Cary Grant, Frank Morgan, Phyllis, Brooks, Binnie Barnes, Herbert Marshall, Leon Errol, Nola Hahn, owner of the Hollywood Clover Club, and scenarists Nick Carter and Jean Mogileski.

North China is short of coal.

Tory Leader Colonel George H. Drew, K.C., 44-year-old barrister, soldier and author, was elected leader on the Ontario Conservative party in succession to Hon. Earl Rowe on the first ballot when 1,272 party delegates cast their votes.

Fish And Game Criticisms Are Said By Hon. Harry Nixon To Be Views Of Disgruntled

Criticism of the Ontario government by several Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association members a few nights ago, has brought quick reply by Hon. H. C. Nixon, minister of game and fisheries. In the following statement to the press, Mr. Nixon explains the department's attitude.

"If the proceedings at the meeting of the Peterborough Fish and Game Association, as reported in your issue of Thursday, December 8th, represented the opinion of the good citizens of that district, it would be discouraging indeed to this Department. There is, however, very conclusive proof that the great majority of the present administration, and the criticisms of this meeting are only the views of a very few disgruntled and inconsistent individuals.

"Take for instance, the reported statement of Mr. Wilbert Fee. He said:

"'I have returned to the government more than $600.00 in the sale of licenses this year. In spite of that, nothing of a concrete nature is being done to maintain good fishing in the Kawartha district.'

Received Only $365.00.

"If Mr. Fee sent more than $600.00 it has not been received at this office but on the contrary we have received $365.00. I am, of course, instructing an immediate audit check to see what became of the balance. As for the serious charge that nothing is being done in that district, may I point out that in Peterborough County alone we have this year distributed 6,741,000 game fish, of which number 895,000 were maskinonge fry. In addition, we have constructed at Deer Lake a fish hatchery which will ultimately be one of the finest and largest in the province, and we have spent on it to date over $40,000.00.

"This party answers the criticism of Mr. Gravestock which is rather inconsistent with the letter which he wrote to the Department on October 13, 1938, from which I quote the following:

"'Have only fished once in the last month but landed fifty-seven lunge this season.'

"Most of us would be very happy if we landed that many lunge in a lifetime, but, of course, we do not pretend to be such great conservationists as this gentleman."

Already Investigated.

"He challenges us, also, to investigate the work done by Minnesota and he will pay all expenses. As a matter of fact, this has already been done and is a matter of record on the files of the Department. The following is an excerpt from a letter received from the State of Minnesota Department of Conservation, November 29, 1938:

"The total number of maskinonge we hatched this spring is 86,000 and most of these were planted as fry. We placed approximate-

Red Lake Bettor Drops $4,000 Chasing $65,000 Racing Tip

Rochester, Minn., Dec. 10 (AP) HENRY PABLO, 51, of Red Lake, Ont., was out $4,000, victim of a horse race betting swindle, he told police here yesterday.

Two chance acquaintances "tipped him off," he said, on how to win $65,000 on the races. He brought his savings here from Red Lake and after his "friends" obtained the money they disappeared.

"They sent me to Kansas City to collect," he explained to police. From Kansas City he went to Minot, N.D., where he received a telegram saying: "Go home."

Italy's Tunisia Drive Eases

ROME, Dec. 10.—(AP)— The Italian campaign for Tunisia appeared to be letting up today as the press adopted a more moderate tone in its anti-French articles. No new street demonstrations were reported.

One of the papers to continue the attack on France was Il Popolo di Roma, which said Tunisian "Jews of the ghetto" were bringing pressure on French authorities to curb Italians in Tunisia.

The authoritative Fascist editor, Virginio Gayda, indicated in Il Giornale D'Italia that Italy wanted new negotations with France to settle the question of Italian rights in North Africa.

He blamed France for not having negotiated a special Tunisian accord as contemplated under the 1935 agreement signed by Premiers Pierre Laval and Benito Mussolini.

Meanwhile, the Jewish question continued to hold a prominent place in Italian activities at home.

The famous La Scala Opera House at Milan took all Jewish subscribers off its list and refunded their money.

2 Miles Of Highway Disappear On State Books

Port Huron, Mich., Dec. 10 (CP) M. D. PATRICK, public works commissioner, is considering advertising for two miles of missing state highway. The state highway commission pays the city for state highway upkeep within the city limits. Last year the contract covered 12.53 miles of highway, but the contract this year covered only 10.78 miles. The difference would cost the city about $1,900 cash. Patrick has appealed to state capitol officials who have admitted they don't know what happened to the missing highway mileage.

Life Line, Fired To Stranded Ship Saves 7

BOSTON, Dec. 10—(AP).—In a dramatic Cape Cod rescue in a pelting rainstorm two hours before dawn, seven men were taken off the grounded Boston trawler Andover by Breeches buoy today, while a pounding surf threatened to break up the Lewking, heavily-loaded vessel.

Two others of the crew had taken to a dory earlier, as United States coast guards shot a line from shore to the vessel across 150 feet of rough water.

The Andover, a 93-foot single screw vessel built in 1930, is owned by General Seafoods Corporation. She piled up on the beach in a dense fog.

Her captain, William Bruce, who described himself as "an old Scotsman," said in a radiophone conversation with The Associated Press "it looked pretty bad for a while." He said the waves occasionally rolled as high as his pilot house before the vessel went aground.

Coast guardsmen at Chatham, Mass., station said the Andover, a week out of Boston, had 50,000 pounds of mixed fish aboard.

She went ashore almost at high tide during a southeasterly storm and every hour saw her higher out of water, as the tide receded. The coast guard cutter Chelan was ordered to her aid from Provincetown, but officers said she could do little until the next high sea in early afternoon.

The rescued seamen were taken to Orleans coast guard station.

Letting Him Know

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 10 (A.P.). —Patrolman Roy O. Watts of the Police Accident Prevention Bureau, told this one to-day:

He answered a telephone and said: "Accident squad. Watts speaking."

"It's a lady," was the reply.

Cafe Owner Is Battered With Hammer

Deliberate Attempt At Hold Up Belief Of Police

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Dec. 10.—Len Lung, proprietor of the Glossy Cafe was attacked early this morning and badly beaten over the head while he was standing over the stove in his restaurant preparing a meal.

Ike Neal, 60, of this village, was later arrested at his boarding house by Provincial Officer Hatch and Constable Percy Gray and lodged in the Marmora jail.

Neal is alleged by police to have entered the restaurant early this morning and ordered three breakfasts for miners and while Len Lung was preparing the same he was struck over the head. He was knocked unconscious but came to about six o'clock this morning and was seen runing up the street with blood flowing from his wounds and he was shouting the name of "Ike Neal."

The Chinaman was taken to the office of Dr. Crawford where it was found he had seven wounds in the head and a possible fractured skull. He was later removed to Belleville hospital.

Carpenter By Trade

Neal is a carpenter by trade and for some time has been unemployed. The weapon used in the alleged attack is said to have been a machinists' hammer, and is believed to be owned by the prisoner Neal.

Provincial Constable Jack Heath and Town Constable Percy Gray took the prisoner to Belleville this morning where he appeared in court on a charge of assault occasioning grievous bodily harm. He was remanded without plea for a week.

Lung operates the cafe in Marmora village with his brother Lem John. He came to Canada in 1910 arriving at Victoria, B.C. Since that time he has operated restaurants at Tweed, Oshawa and for the past ten years in Marmora. He is 54 years of age and has three married sons and a daughter in Canton. His wife died ten years ago.

Provincial Constable Hatch stated that Neal showed no resistance when placed under arrest at his boarding-house early to-day.

Villagers are incensed over the attack on the elderly man. The latter has won a host of friends by his quiet, friendly ways and several state the Oriental has in a modest way contributed to many charities.

At one o'clock to-day, the exact nature of the man's injuries had not been determined.

Capone, Only One More Year In Jail To Find Lush Money Days Gone

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (AP). — Al Capone is coming back next month but not to the Chicago he left in 1932 to serve a 10-year Federal prison term for income tax evasion.

The scarfaced Capone, one-time undisputed head of Chicago's gang-lang empire, is scheduled to leave Alcatraz Prison in San Francisco Bay on January 19, 1939.

There is, however, a year's sentence in Cook County jail before he will actually be a free man. Then?

"He'll come out a law-abiding citizen," aver his attorneys. "He's taken his punishment like a man, hasn't he?"

State Attorney Thomas Courtney's staff decline comment on its intentions, but Courtney's men have been very busy the past several months breaking up the bookie gambling houses reputedly directed by some of Al's surviving associates.

The group has been little in the public eye as individuals of late and the gangland slayings which brought death to 701 men during the 12 years the hoodlums battled over lucrative bootleg, vice and gambling territories have sloughed off to a dozen this year.

100 Million Racket System.

Capone, now 41, was boss of a reputed $100,000,000 rackets kingdom here before the Federal Government put the finger on him. When he returns he will find the lush money days of the prohibition era have disappeared.

The huge profits of illicit breweries—beer once sold at $1 a bottle—have faded into insignificance.

Most of the former ganglord's cronies, triggermen and leading chiefs of staff will be missing, too. They have been largely decimated by bullets, natural death and the law.

Convicted on five of 23 counts charging failure to file returns and pay a tax of $215,080 on an estimated income of $1,038,654 for the years 1925 to 1929, Capone began serving time May 4, 1932.

Red Tail Light On The Left Rear Of Every Cow, Latest Order To Wallaceburg Night Cop

WALLACEBURG, Ont., Dec. 10 (CP)—Instructions have been issued police by Deputy Reeve Harry Shirley, chairman of the police committee of town council, that all cattle passing through town at night must be suitably adorned with "tail lights."

The order with the deputy reeve's signature appended, reads:

"From now on, by order of the town council of the corporation of Wallaceburg, all boo cows, comprising bulls, heifers, steers and calves must carry red tail lights on their left rears when being driven through the town of Wallaceburg between the hours of sunset and sunrise inasmuch as the driving of such cattle through the town of Wallaceburg between the hours of sunrise and sunset is forbidden.

Passed in open council this sixth day of December, 1938.

(Signed)
Harry Shirley, Chairman of Police."

Pre-War Beauty, Darling Of Bourbon Prince Jailed For Swindle Of A Swindler

PARIS, Dec. 10 (AP)—Louise Chardonnet, pre-war Parisian beauty and darling of a Bourbon prince, was in jail today charged with taking part in a 3,000,000 franc ($79,000) swindle.

Mlle. Chardonnet, now 48, once was maintained in a lavish style at the apartment of Prince Antonio of Bourbon and Orleans, infante of Spain, who died in 1930.

She and three others, also under arrest, were said by police to have swindled not only honest citizens but an ex-swindler with 10 convictions on his record.

Police said the four carried a receipt for 8,000,000 francs ($210,000) worth of Spanish pesetas from the Barcelona branch of the Bank of Spain. Investors in a scheme to get the fortune out of Spain were to get shares. Police said investigations proved the receipt to be a forgery.

Cheddar Production Up 1,373,053 Pounds

TORONTO, Dec. 10 — (CP). — Production of cheddar cheese in Ontario during November totalled 4,998,053 pounds, an increase of 1,373,053 pounds over November, 1937, the monthly dairy statement of the Ontario Agriculture Department said to-day.

Production for the first 11 months of 1938 was 83,113,349 pounds, a decrease of 91,456,962 pounds for the same period last year. The average price of cheese for November was 13.0 cents a pound, a decrease of 1.2 cents over October and of 1.6 cents from the November, 1937, price.

MICKLEHAM, England, Dec. 10—(CP Cable).—Groundsmen are taking dead timber from the 95-acre "Juniper Hill" estate of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett these days while architects and draftsmen work on detailed drawings for modernization of the 18th century rectangular brick mansion which the former Canadian Prime Minister soon will call home.

A dozen men using two trucks are tidying the parks and the woodland estate which has been unoccupied for the last three years, and architects expect to start renovating the interior of the house in February.

At present it is filled with dead leaves and mud tracked in on the boots of workmen. Repairmen already are fixing the roof and drain pipes, seeking out possible leaky spots.

The former Canadian Prime Minister will live halfway up a hill at the foot of which are Mickleham Church and The Running Horses pub, where his village neighbors drink quiet beers after their day's work.

View Over a Valley.

From the great, terraced, triangular lawn of Juniper Hill or the front windows of his home, Mr. Bennett will be able to look over Mickleham Valley which resembles parts of the Gatineau Valley north of Ottawa.

Below the house run two electric railway roads. Neither can be seen although traffic sounds can be heard from the house on the hill, which is between 3,000 and 4,000 feet above sea level. The estate includes three cottages, large garages and a gate lodge.

The bare interior of the Juniper Hill mansion shows considerable work will have to be done before it regains its homelike atmosphere. Mr. Bennett intends to have the primitive central heating plant and archaic plumbing replaced and a small motion picture theatre built in the great rambling basement.

Worship Of State Greatest Threat Warns Eden At New York, In Ringing Defence Of Democracy

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP). — Anthony Eden, former Foreign Secretary of Great Britain, spoke emphatically last night for the preservation of the democracy which "we in England and you in America cherish most," and saw as the greatest threat to that democracy "a new form of idolatry, the worship of the state."

Eden's address to the National Association of Manufacturers was a ringing defence of democracy as "a university in which we learn from one another." It never could be a barracks where blind obedience was the first essential, he said.

"It would indeed be the greatest irony in human history," he told the 4,000 persons at the banquet and a radio audience, "if mankind were to allow all progress to be stifled by the setting up" of this "worship of the state to which all men must bow down, and to which they must sacrifice their freedom of faith, of speech, of worship."

"Man was not, in our view, made for the state. The state was made for man," he said.

The British statesman, who resigned his cabinet post in a difference of opinion with Prime Minister Chamberlain over policies toward the totalitaran states, stressed that Great Britain and the United States must stand firm together against the enemies of democracy, and "we are acutely conscious of the need to defend ourselves."

Civic Acclamation Is Being Urged

The first indications that a municipal election is only a matter of three weeks away bobbed up Friday when a well known citizen halted an Examiner reporter to urge that in the interest of economy a campaign to return all the municipal bodies by acclamation and thus save the expense of the annual civic balloting should be launched.

"Take the council for example," said W. K. C. "They have had a good year. They have been endeavoring to keep expenditures down and have succeeded remarkably well and there isn't the slightest doubt that the members have been working hard all year on public business. What would be gained by holding an election and perhaps replacing some of these experienced aldermen by new men. Would you want to turn the relief administration over to somebody else for instance or give the parks to some green alderman to handle."

"The other civic bodies are doing all right too," he continued. "Why turn them out just for the satisfaction of making a change. My feeling in the matter is that civic efficiency would be maintained by retaining the present set-up in office and by doing that all the expense and bother of an election on New Year's Day would be avoided."

All Tired Out
Before Day Half Over

Women who should be strong and healthy become weak, run down and worn out, and are unable to attend to their household duties. They get up in the morning dreading the day's work ahead of them.

Some disease or constitutional disturbance has left its mark in the form of shattered nerves, impoverished blood, and an exhausted condition of the entire system.

Women will find in Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills the remedy they need to supply food for the exhausted nerve force, and one that will help them back to sound, perfect health again.

Art Critic Passes

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (CP)—Lida Rose McCabe, 73, author, newspaper correspondent and art critic, died yesterday.

Miss McCabe was the first woman reported to go to the Klondike, where she stayed for several months writing news despatches. Subsequently she went to Paris, where she was correspondent for the American Press Association and the New York Tribune. Her published works included "Ardent Adrienne, the Life of Madame De Lafayette" and "The American Girl at College."

Dolly Quinton Gets 8 Years

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 10.— Raymond (Dolly) Quinton, described as drug addict and the "terror of Windsor," was last night sentenced to eight years at Portsmouth Penitentiary by Judge Joseph Wearing in County Court, when a jury found him guilty of the armed robbery of the Mount Brydges branch of the Royal Bank of Canada on October 13. About $4,000 was stolen.

While Crown Attorney Norman Newton pressed that the most severe sentence be meted out to Quinton, including lashes, Judge Wearing stated he was making a distinction between Quinton and Melville Campbell and Harold Voore, sentenced to nine and ten years respectively on the same charge. Judge Wearing gave as the reason for this distinction, the fact that Quinton was not present at Mount Brydges when the actual holdup took place, although Quinton had been with Moore and Campbell when the jobs were planned.

Shows No Emotion.

Coatless and wearing a red flannel shirt with the neck open, Quinton stood up in the prisoner's box and received his sentence without any trace of emotion. Once while Judge Wearing was addressing him, Quinton sought to speak, but was told not to interrupt by the Judge.

No Radio License Pays Fine, Costs

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 10—Bertrand Sharpe of Stirling pleaded guilty and was assessed two dollars and costs for failing to observe one of the town's newly erected stop signs located south of the post office. It is understood that no less than six offenders are slated to appear in police court here next week as a result of missing the same signs which council had erected last week.

A Murray township resident paid two dollars and costs for not having a radio license. Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., of Peterborough presided.

OBITUARY

MRS. HERBERT MORPHET

Peterborough lost one of its most highly respected citizens on Friday with the death of Mrs. Herbert Morphet, 458 Hunter street west, at Nicholls hospital after a brief illness.

Mrs. Morphet was known by almost the entire community, where she had lived for the past forty-five years. She was a member of St. John's Anglican church and was closely associated with many of its activities. She was the first president of the Women's Association of that church, and always took a great interest in the welfare of all its branches. She also taught Sunday School for a considerable time. One of the projects in which she was most interested was the Art Association, in which she held office at various times.

Daughter of the late O. E. Henderson and Mary McKinley, she was born in Almonte, Ontario, and resided in Toronto before coming to Peterborough.

Surviving besides her sorrowing husband are three daughters, Mrs. Fred E. Hooper and Mrs. Wilfred Preston of Peterborough and Mrs. P. F. Peele of Calgary, Alberta; one sister, Mrs. James Cherry of Ottawa and one brother, E. W. Henderson, of St. Catharines.

The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from St. John's Anglican church, Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson and Rev. R. C. Blagrave of Hamilton, former rector at St. John's officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake cemetery.

A Torpid Liver
Brings Many Ills

All down through the history of medical treatment there persists the idea that by keeping the liver healthy and active you escape many of the common ills of life and some of the most serious and most painful diseases as well.

A healthy liver filters poisons from the blood and converts them into bile which as Nature's cathartic is poured into the intestines or bowels to keep them regular and active.

It is only by keeping the liver active that you can really overcome constipation and relieve the most serious forms of indigestion.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are, above all else, regulators of the liver. They quickly arouse the torpid, sluggish liver to healthful activity, ensure action of the bowels and proper working of the kidneys. Put this time-proven medicine to the test when you are feeling out-of-sorts from constipation or indigestion, when you have headache, or backache or the tired feelings which come with sluggish action of the liver or kidneys. 35 cts. a box, at all druggists.

Canadian Legion Notes

A chiel's among ye takin' notes, and faith, he print them.—Burns.

All members are reminded that the monthly meeting of Branch No. 52 will be held on Wednesday, December 14 in place of Monday, December 19, the latter date having been reserved for the Legion Carnival. We expect to have a very large meeting, as we are throwing the meeting open to any ex-serviceman of the district who cares to come. There will be a draw for turkeys, geese and chickens, and refreshments and entertainment will be provided. The Legion Carnival promises to be a very successful one, judging by the sale of tickets to date. All holders of carnival books are requested to return all stubs, cash, and unsold tickets not later than Friday, December 16.

A single-handed cribbage tournament open to all members in good standing will be held. Contestants must enroll not later than Wednesday, December 14, and the draw will take place on Thursday evening, December 15. The first heat will be played on Friday, December 16.

Will Comrades Nicholls, O'Toole, Mounce, and Edwards call at the hall on Monday evening next to arrange the games for the first part of the billiard tournament. Comrades Long, Gracie, Bacon, Potter, and Bell will be in the second section, and it would be appreciated if they would meet as soon as possible and arrange for the draw and the games.

It would be much appreciated by the executive if all the members would support the carnival to the best of their ability both by buying and selling tickets. There is a great deal of work to be done in erecting booths and getting the hall ready for the event. A good deal of the work will be done on Saturday afternoon, December 17; so come along and lend a hand. It is your carnival, you know

The carpetball is going along nicely, thank you, and though the Legion Rooster received a nick in his comb from Trinity No. 5, he is still trailing his wings and crowing loudly, as the Sons of England found out on Thursday evening. Three points at a time is good fishing anyway you look at it.

Half Of Marler's Suit Dismissed

TORONTO, Dec. 10 (CP).—Leonard Marler's suit for damages against his father, Sir Herbert Marler, Canadian Minister to Washington, was unaffected by yesterday's decision in weekly court by Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, dismissing the suit against Dr. G. H. Stevenson, superintendent of the Ontario Hospital at London.

The Canadian Press yesterday reported erroneously that the suit brought against Sir Herbert and Dr. Stevenson was dismissed. Actually the dismissal affected only Dr. Stevenson and Mr. Justice Roach said his decision was without prejudice to the plaintiff's right to add the name of Dr. Stevenson on obtaining the consent of the Attorney-General.

Leonard Marler, asking damages of $300,000, claims he was wrongfully committed to the London Hospital to prevent his marriage to Janet White of Syracuse, N.Y.

Theatre Biggest Job

Architects say the theatre is the only major operation involved in the renovation of the house but the vast expanse of wall surface will have to be recovered and the great floor area improved.

The house has four reception rooms and a study, 19 bedrooms and a large winter garden with an artificial grotto extending to the ceiling. The library is a 25 by 16-foot room and other main floor rooms contain fine chimney pieces carved by the Adams brothers.

The great rectangular staircase hall is supported down the centre by a row of luted columns and is heated by a great fireplace.

The house contains no room designed especially as a ballroom but it is considered likely Mr. Bennett could use the winter garden for that purpose if he wished. The garden has a large mosaic floor space a few feet above paths that wind between giant ferns and small palms set in rockery.

Campbellford Man Dies Suddenly

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 10—John Armstrong of Seymour township died suddenly following a heart attack early Friday afternoon. Mr. Armstrong, who was fifty-eight, had been walking down the road trying to recapture a couple of colts which had escaped from his barnyard when he was overtaken by Mr. Oliver Garneau and his son Jack who had just started out in their car.

They helped him capture the colts and drove him back to his farm where he complained of not feeling well on entering the gate. He succumbed to a heart attack in the Garneau car within two hundred yards of his home. Surviving him are his widow, the former Mary Carr and two children Edward at home, and George of Kirkland Lake.

Predict Star Explosion May Turn Night Into Day For Weeks

By Stephen McDonough
(Associated Press Science Writer.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—(AP).—Someday, astronomers of the Carnegie Institution of Washington say, a star in the milky way may explode, and turn the earth's night into day for weeks, or months.

The probable time of the occurrence of such a nova, or new star, or a super-nova is unpredictable. It might occur tomorrow, not for hundreds of years, the astronomers said at the annual exhibition of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

Eighty-five novae and 10 super-novae have been observed since 1917 in the distant regions of space.

It is also probable that the crab nebula and its central star are the remnants of one of the giant explosions of a super nova which appeared in the year 1054, he added. No other evidence of star eruptions has been found in the earth's galaxy. Indications are that they occur only once in about 600 years, the astronomers said, but admitted that such an assumption involves some guesswork.

Such novae flame up within a few days to a luminosity 100,000 times greater than that of the sun and then fade away within a few days or few months to their original state. The super-novae are often 1,000 times brighter than ordinary novae.

Thus if a nova, or a super-nova, occurred in the milky way galaxy it might create light of an intensity disastrous to all life on earth, or if it was sufficiently far away, only cause continuous daylight at the peak of its brilliance.

WEEKLY GRAIN REVIEW.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 10 (C.P.). — Export sales of Canadian wheat once again dominated action on the Winnipeg Grain Market during the last week, but although the output reached an estimated 3,500,000 bushels, wheat futures prices moved only fractionally higher.

Quotations at the close of Friday's session were ⅛ to ¾ cent higher, December at 61⅝. May 63⅞, and July 64 cents.

One of the chief reasons advanced for the fine export business was the political tension in Europe which induced importers to make commitments similar to the period prior to the September crisis involving Czechoslovakia. Traders during the week had the same attitude towards recent French-Italian tension over Tunisia.

Absorption of export wheat whether stimulated by the European situation or by slow movement of the Argentine crop to the seaboard was constructive to world wheat markets and a good undertone was in evidence. In addition to Canadian wheat, Rumanian wheat also was bought in good quantities. Germany and Italy were reported to have taken some 24,000,000 bushels of Danubian wheat during the week.

Exports of Canadian wheat and flour have been estimated in excess of 73,000,000 bushels for August, September and November. There are indications December will show good clearances, too, with Vancouver freight bookings indicating 7,500,000 bushels will be cleared from the west coast port this month.

Private estimates on the American winter crop situation were of a bullish nature with a decrease of 13 per cent. indicated in comparison with last year, in the winter belts. Forecasts also were lower generally than the crop of 688,458,000 bushels last year. Estimates now indicate between 495,000,000 and 540,000,000 will be gathered this year.

ly 1,100 fingerlings in the surrounding lakes."

"So the whole State of Minnesota had just one-tenth of the maskinonge fry that was distributed in Peterborough County alone.

"As for Mr. Marshall's criticism, it is interesting to note that in the year 1935 when he was the Department's official representative, only 320,800 fish of all kinds were placed in Peterborough waters, and, of this amount, there was not one single maskinonge."

No Revenue Ear-marked.

"And, finally, to deal with the charge that Fish and Game revenue has been placed in the consolidated fund. Every dollar of revenue received from any department of the Government is placed in the consolidated revenue fund of the Province and money for departmental purposes is voted out of this fund by the Legislature. No part of the revenue from any department is earmarked for any special purpose. It it true that, by increased efficiency, there has been a surplus from the Department of Game and Fisheries. To support this statement, let me point out that in he year 1930, when the Province enjoyed its greatest tourist business, the revenue from non-resident licences collected in Peterborough County, with Mr. Marshall in charge, was $9,000; in 1933, $6,900, and in 1938, under our present efficient staff, $17,300.

"The Government has expended well over $150,000 on the construction of fish hatcheries this year. This work is done by the Department of Public Works, who have the necessary equipment, engineers and staff to supervise such work, and it would simply be a duplication of services if the Department of Game and Fisheries were to attempt such a large program.

"Then, again, the entire revenue of the Department of Game and Fisheries is not one-fortieth of the amount expended this year on the highways of the Province, without which few tourists indeed would be attracted to Ontario to enjoy our angling.

"Comparative statement of distribution of fish in Peterborough County:

Fire Of Unknown Origin Sweeps Barn During December Threshing In Seymour

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 10.—Fire of unknown origin, in the straw mow of George Elmhurst's barn, Seymour Township, gave threshers anxious moments Wednesday afternoon.

George Brown's threshing machine was in operation near the barn when the fire was discovered gaining headway in the dry straw.

Several men equipped with sticks and boards hurriedly climbed up in the mow and proceeded to bat out the flames while others with pitchforks tossed flaming straw to the ground where it was extinguished.

An alarm for help was sent out to the surrounding neighborhood, but when extra men arrived the flames had been subdued. Luckily, the only loss was a quantity of straw, George Brown stated last night.

Condition Is Serious

The condition of Donald Markell, who was injured some time ago while playing basketball in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium, was reported from St. Joseph's Hospital today as serious. The young man fell in the course of the game and his cheek went down with him. In some way or another Markell sustained internal injuries which have taken a turn for the worse in the last few days.

Biblical Thoughts For the Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James, Toronto

THE COMPANIONSHIP OF THE LORD JESUS

"THAT THEY MIGHT BE WITH HIM."—St. Mark 3: 14.

What an attractive thought: 'That they might be with Him." How it answers the question: "What is Christianity?" Christianity means a passionate devotion to a Person, the Person of the Lord Jesus. Nearly two thousand years ago the young Carpenter of Nazareth went up and down the land looking into the faces of men. "He knew what was in man." He met a man; soul leapt towards soul. "Follow Me," is the brief command, and he obeyed. There was something so attractive in that young Jew. Those who had eyes to see and ears to hear were drawn to Him. "Their hearts burned within them." Like Ruth of old they were prepared to say: "Whither Thou goest I will go; where Thou diest I will die."

As they followed Him He strained and tested their friendship and devotion to the uttermost. They must be polished pillars of His Temple. They had much to learn and many ideas to throw overboard.

Think of the shock to their social ideas. One day He called Matthew, the publican, to their fellowship. Publicans, taxgatherers, as a class were dishonest and cruel. It was no easy thing for respectable young men to receive such a man into their company. They had been long enough with Him to love Him and they could not bear to leave Him. "Will ye also go away?" He once asked as shocked Pharisees "walked no more with Him." "To whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life." is Peter's reply. As they companied with Him they were gripped, fascinated, enthralled by His personality. He left His stamp upon them. For His sake they were willing to suffer the loss of all things and to go to the uttermost parts of the earth upon the greatest adventure of the ages.

But the Lord had another reason. He had a secret which could only be discovered by those who were closest to Him. It is remarkable that the Lord never revealed this clearly to His Apostles. Only to the Samaritan woman and the blind beggar. They could not hurt His ministry or teaching.

Some modern scholars are of the opinion that Judas betrayed this secret to the High priests. Perhaps there is a hint in the question of the High priest: "Art Thou the Christ, the Son of the Blessed?" Judas hoped to force the hand of the Master to deliver Himself from His enemies and to proclaim His Kingship.

These plain, everyday men, followed Him and as He revealed Himself to them they loved Him with deep devotion. They trusted Him and gradually they grasped His revelation of God the Father. "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father." They looked into His face and saw God. Then followed the marvel. These devout Jews, worshipping Jehovah, came to give Him unconsciously the value of God. They were convinced that He is no ordinary Man. Finally after His resurrection they grasped the secret in the confession of St. Thomas: "My Lord and my God."

Jesus, the very thought of Thee
With sweetness fills the breast:
But sweeter far Thy Face to see
And in Thy Presence rest.

—St. Bernard.

The Sin of Covetousness

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Dec. 11 is Exodus 20:17; Luke 12: 13-21; 1 Timothy 6: 6-10, the Golden Text being Exodus 20:17. "Thou shalt not covet.")

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

THIS LESSON takes the last commandment, "Thou shalt not covet," and shows how this sin can not only make us very unhappy but can even make us commit a crime, like murder.

The commandment reads: "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife, nor his manservant, nor his maidservant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor anything that is thy neighbor's."

In these times we would add automobiles, smart clothes, etc. It takes an unselfish person to be glad others have nice things and not be envious. It is a spirit for which we must strive. Boys and girls, men and women, envy their neighbors' success in school, at games, in society, as well as tangible things like clothes and automobiles.

The lesson tells of Jesus being approached by a man who asked Him to speak to his brother and make him divide up his inheritance with him. Jesus' answer to that was, "Man, who made me a judge or divider over you?" And then He said: "Take heed, and beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth."

Then He spoke a parable to them, telling them about a man who was blessed with abundant crops. He had so much he hardly knew what to do with it. So he said to himself that he would tear down his barns and build larger ones. Then he would make a great feast and say to his soul, "Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drin kand be merry." But God told him he was foolish to talk like that. That very night his sould might be required of him, and then what good would the abundant harvest do him?

Later on in the lesson, Paul tells us that he believes money is root of all evil. It can be the root of a great deal of good, we know, if we use it to good ends and do not just hoard it for its own sake.

In 1 Kings, the 21st chapter, is told the sad story of Ahab, who committed murder that he might get his neighbor's vineyard which he coveted. Ahab was king of Samaria, and his wife's name was Jezebel. They had a neighbor, Naboth, who had a vineyard that Ahab wanted. He asked Naboth to sell it to him, either for money or for another vineyard. But Naboth had inherited it from his people and did not want to part with it.

After talking to Naboth, Ahab went home very disappointed and angry. He threw himself on his bed and refused to eat his evening meal. His wife asked him what the matter was, and when he told her, she said, "Arise and eat bread, and let thine heart be merry. I will give thee the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite."

Then what did this wicked woman do but write some letters in her husband's name and sign them with his seal. In them she told certain ones to proclaim a fast and set Naboth on high among the people. Then she told them to have two men come and say, "Naboth does blaspheme God and the king." They she said they should take Naboth out and stone him to death.

Well, it was all done as she directed and poor Naboth had no chance to defend himself, but was killed and his vineyard given to Ahab.

But Elisha, the prophet heard of it, and he told Ahab that because he had allowed Jezebel to do this thing he would die in his chariot and the dogs should lick his blood, and Jezebel should also die a dreadful death. Ahab tore his clothes, put on sackcloth next his flesh, fasted and lay in sackcloth, and "went softly." So genuinely sorry did he seem that Elisha said he would not punish him, but his son should suffer, and Jezebel should died as he said.

It all came to pass as Elisha prophesied. The son died in battle and Jezebel was killed by enemies of her son, even as it was spoken. So you see to what lengths people may go when they become covetous, and how possession of what they covet may bring them much misery instead of joy.

Ontario Judicial Appointments

JUSTICE C. P. McTAGUE

J. GERALD KELLY

Mr. Justice C. P. McTague, of the Ontario High Court, has been appointed to the Appeal Court of Ontario, according to an announcement by Prime Minister King. Mr. McTague will fill the vacancy created on the appeal court by the death of Chief Justice F. R. Latchford. The title of "chief justice" of that branch of the judiciary is being discontinued. Mr. J. Gerald Kelly, of Toronto, has been appointed to the High Court to fill the vacancy created by Justice McTague's promotion.

A Lost Document Found—3

Where is such a Bill of Divorcement to be found? The Bill of Divorcement was in being when Isaian wrote and well he knew the contents of the instrument.

The Bill of Divorcement was registered and preserved among the sacred writings in the Temple, right down to the time of the final destruction of the Temple by Titus in 70 A.D.

The Bill of Divorcement was given its important place in the Canon of the sacred Scriptures; and so has been both served and continuously published from the time of its issue to the present day. The Bill of Divorcement is contained in the prophecies of Hosea, chapters I and II. Please read it carefully, for it has an enormous bearing on precent conditions and coming events, which shall continue to shake the earth until the restoration is complete.

Then the Bill of Divorcement is found.

Who does this bill affect?

Beyond question it affects Israel of the ten tribes at the present time.

Seeing that such a living document has been an dis preserved with such infinite care, and is made the basis of the great redemption chapters, which are but the adumbration, the foreshining of the glorious story of the Redemption as set forth in the Evangels; the nation alone concerned in the Bill must, of necessity, be still in being. Such nation must be as multitudious as the sand of the sea. The peoples who constitute that nation must be the possessors of the Gospel. By the reception of Him Who is the theme of the Gospel they are empowered "to become the Sons of God." (St. John I:12).

They are not so called by virtue of the Bill of Divorcement. They are so called by virtue of the Redemption of the Redeemer.

This is geting on in our enquiry. We have found the Bill of Divorcement. It is legally held by the tenribed nation Israel. Therefore by the testimony of the Bill itself, we find that the nation Israel is still in being; and shall be to the end. We have found that the nation is multitudinous, and as visible to the eye as are the stars of Heaven. We have found that the nation Israel is a Christian nation; for by that means only can they be saved, as we know by the testimony of St. John, above quoted, and by the testimony of St. Peter delivered in the Temple at the Pentecost time: "There is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved." (Acts IV: 12).

Women Succeed In Advertising

LONDON, Dec. 10—(CP). — Fifty women who know (but won't tell) all the secrets of next spring's fashions in everything that can possibly be bought discussed them at a private dinner here.

They were members of the Women's Advertising Club of London. Already they are drafting schemes for introducing to the public new kinds of goods not yet on the market—from stockings to sports cars, tinned fruit to typewriters, cufflinks to cricket bats.

Miss Audrey Deans, the president, said: "Advertising is in great measure a woman's job, but it is no place for the woman with a temperament. Hard work, commonsense, and the ability to be a real colleague to men are the essentials."

Many of the women in the club run their own households. More than one-third are married and the proportion of children is high.

Fancies Himself Family Provider

LONDON, Dec. 10—(CP).—There are many men who, at the bottom of their hearts, cannot abide the idea of making wives economically independent," said Miss Eleanor Rathbone, M.P., addressing a conference held here by the National Council for Equal Citizenship.

"Every man," she continued, "likes to picture himself as the sturdy male with a wife clinging to his arm and the children hanging on to her skirts, and all of them looking up to him as the universal provider."

Special Service Is Planned For Nurses

At the special services for nurses in St. Andrew's Church on next Sunday night at 7.30 p.m., the minister will speak on "A Nurse Who Altered the history of the World." The pastor of a church who was arranging for a service for nurses asked a member of that profession to suggest a topic for his address. The nurse replied "Anything, as long as it is not Florence Nightingale." Evidently she had heard so much about that heroic woman that she did not desire to hear any more of it when she went to church.

Florence Nightingale is noted not only for her splendid service during the Crimean War where the British Tommies were dying like flies, but also for her reformation of the military hospital system of England, and for the establishment of an order of nurses which has conferred immense benefits upon the human race.

This other nurse, who lived thousands of years before Miss Nightingale influenced history more than any other woman of her age. She lived at a time when the rule of a cruel dictator was working havoc in the earth. She had unusual insight, and saw that the people she belonged to had a glorious future before them. This woman took immense risks, went actually to live amongst her oppressors, and through her one was raised up that delivered the people from their terrible thraldom.

She is nameless in the record of her doings, but nameless people have profoundly affected the destinies of mankind. People generally speak of "the nurse" without any other title, but nurses come into the most important events in human lives and many enact an influence that is very great.

Cathedral Musings

We stated last week that we should live up to and seek to apprehend that measure of truth which we have and that, if we do not, it is inevitable that we will lose it. The Master said the same thing in another way: "Unto him that hath shall be given and from him that hath not, shall be taken away, even that which he seemeth to have". It is an illustration of the Cosmic law of Use, that decrees that a faculty, whether it be bodily, mental, or spiritual becomes stronger if it is used, but dwindles and finally atrophies if it is not exercised. As far as truth is concerned and particularly spiritual truth, there is a wide difference between mental acceptance and that inner, vivid realisation which alone makes it one's own. If we do not make these truths our very own and strive to increase our powers of spiritual apprehension then we tend to become what the Bible terms 'dead', that is, dead from the higher standpoint. For the mystic when he speaks of the 'living' and the 'dead', means just that, and is not referring to the mere fact of bodily dissolution. Unless this is clearly understood, the value of that wonderful saying of Jesus: "I am the resurrection and the life, he that believeth on Me though he were dead, yet shall he live, but he that liveth and believeth on Me, shall never die", is without real meaning. From the mystic standpoint, however, and in the sense that the 'dead' and 'living' are dead and alive in the spiritual sense, it is one of the great keys by which we may discern part of the esoteric truth of what the Master taught. In another part of the Bible we read that the 'dead' praise not Javeh, neither they who go down to the grave in darkness. Obviously not, for when one is 'dead', one has lost the faculty of spiritual apprehension, so that ones beliefs are no longer based on the heart, but on the head. But by exercising our powers of the spirit our faculties are strengthened, so that we mount from truth to truth in our ascent of the Holy Mountain and approach ever nearer to God's great heart of Love. For if there is one thing certain, it is that the revelation of the Truth of God did not end with the writing of the last book of the Bible. To say otherwise is to deny the truth of Jesus when He said that the Spirit of Truth should lead us into all truth. If we have the realisation of the Christ of God within us, and we can have it in nowhere else, then we must necessarily have in greater or less degree, the realisation of His Truth, for then He is resurrected within us and we are no longer dwelling in our mortality, but in His immortality. Life then, from being a series of disjointed experiences, becomes one glorious whole.

Mrs. John Davidson To Give Address

The address entitled "Peace With the Dictators," which is to be given by Mrs. John F. Davidson of Toronto, in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on the night of Monday, December 12, under auspices of the Men's Association, will mark one more in the series of brilliant public lectures which this speaker has presented in the city.

Peterborough has a claim upon Mrs. Davidson, owing to the fact that she is a daughter-in-law of the late Archdeacon J. C. Davidson, for many years rector of St. John's Church here. She was born in Riga, Latvia, daughter of the manager of a British munitions firm. Later, she lived for five years in Russia and then studied for two years in the United States, obtaining her M.A. degree there.

She married Rev. John F. Davidson, Professor in the Department of Philosophy at St. John's College, Shanghai, and lived for some time in China before coming to Canada, where her husband is a teacher at Upper Canada College, Toronto.

The cosmopolitan outlook gained by this wide international experience, combined with a brilliant mind and a fluency of tongue unsurpassed by many male speakers, make Mrs. Davidson pre-eminent in the list of public speakers. She is constantly engaged in giving addresses in many places, and her appearances are looked forward to with eagerness by those who have once heard her.

The Sin of Covetousness — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 20:17; Luke 12:13-21; I Timothy 6:6-10.

The rich man filled his great barns with food and said to his soul: "Take thine ease, eat, drink and be merry."

Ahab, king of Samaria, tries to bargain with his neighbor, Naboth, for a vineyard which he covets, but Naboth refuses to sell.

Ahab is disappointed, so Jezebel, his wife, plots to have Naboth accused of blasphemy and stoned to death.

"The love of money is the root of all evil," said St. Paul, the Apostle.

The Father's Fine Outlook

A story which is rather out of the ordinary is in circulation explaining why Hitler did not deliver a funeral oration as he had planned at the burial of Ernest Von Rath, German embassy secretary at Paris who was murdered by a Polish Jew.

It is related that when Herr Hitler arrived at the funeral service he met with the elder Von Rath, mourning at the bier of his son. Hitler spoke in an effort to console him and intimated the whole German nation would avenge the death of his son.

The reply of the father was that he did not desire any talk of revenge over the grave of his son, and his belief was the assassin had no hatred toward his son but had been driven to the rash act by his love for persecuted relatives.

Then it was that Hitler declined to go ahead with his speech and instructed Joachim von Ribbentrop, his Foreign Minister, to deliver the funeral oration.

The idea of a father whose son had been murdered not desiring revenge would seem strange enough to the German dictator. It might even be considered unusual in any land, but that father in his hour of deepest grief gave evidence of possessing a philosophy of life which if made generally effective would be sufficient to entirely change and revolutionize the outlook of the entire world.

Know Where To Start

There is something definite to investigate when they get around to placing the blame for the accident which took the lives of 19 men at Sydney Mines, N.S.

An investigating party after spending four hours underground came back with two ends of a steel hawser 1 1-8 inches thick which had been used to draw the string of mine cars.

The definite point is simply this: It was a clean break, and the steel hawser elsewhere showed no signs of wear or strain.

It should be possible now to take those broken ends back to the place where the hawser was made and ask plainly why such a thing should break as clear as a piece of twine is snapped off after a salesman ties up a parcel.

The whole tragedy is right there, so when they start to make an investigation they know exactly where to begin.

Was Not a Surprise

There was no surprise in the selection of Col. George Drew as leader of the Ontario Conservatives. Reports which stated there were sufficient delegates pledged and instructed in advance by their various county associations to elect him were probably correct enough. If that were so, then the business of electing him was just routine.

The Examiner believes he was the best selection of the available contestants for the office. Selecting a leader is one matter; getting him in the Legislature with a sufficiency of followers to force out the Hepburn Government is another. And it is more formidable.

Col. Drew has yet to prove he has the qualities of leadership. A political leader must possess a degree of magnetism of the sort which inspires confidence; he must be able to work with his colleagues and bring them along with him. The new leader is coming into the field when the Conservative party needs a new vision and a new hope. There are Conservatives in the province, plenty of them, but they have not been voting together. Every Conservative convention has heard addresses about disloyalty from certain factions. Col. Drew has opportunity to demonstrate that he is big enough to justify the confidence his fellow-Conservatives have shown in him. He should get his neck under the official yoke as soon as possible.

The Smaller Grand Jury

Judge O'Connor of Cobourg, presiding at the December sessions of Peterborough County Court referred to the grand jury system, of which much has been said in recent times. His belief was it would be better to leave it alone or abolish it entirely rather than have a reduction in personnel from thirteen to seven members as has been suggested.

When the grand jury was under discussion and criticism at the recent meeting of our County Council the feeling was it was costing too much money. There was not an attack on the grand jury system but rather on the extent of its personnel. In a practical way the meaning was that seven men could do quite as well the work which is now being done by thirteen. There was also the feeling that under the present system there was too much time spent in inspection of county buildings, and the process was involving a duplication of services which were already being rendered by duly appointed inspectors.

This paper is not prepared to say the grand jury should be abolished; it is part of a system which has worked well enough. It is a final check-up on evidence heard in a primary court before an accused person is sent up for trial. But we have a feeling that seven men could attend to this business just as well as thirteen. There has been a cutting down of municipal governing bodies pretty much all over the province, particularly in cities, and it has been found that the lesser body operates as well as the larger. The opinion of seven sensible people would probably be just the same as thirteen and the cost of their services and providing transportation for them would be much less.

He Asks a Great Deal

Rev. Charles E. Coughlin has filed notice of suit against the Detroit Free Press for $2,000,000, dividing it into one million for actual damages and a million for punitive purposes. In other words it is his desire to punish the Detroit paper to the extent of a million dollars.

The suit has to do with a story which was printed in the Free Press regarding a recent radio address delivered by Father Coughlin. Details of the suit have not been published as under the law of Michigan it is not possible to divulge such details until the case is called for trial.

One cannot but wonder where Father Coughlin got the idea of mentioning two million dollars as the amount for which he was going to bring action, and how he could estimate or adequately show that he had been damaged to the extent of a million dollars. He is going about in the same state of health as before the newspaper article was published and his energy does not seem to have abated in the least. We have a feeling he will never get the two million, and another feeling that he does not expect to.

Just One Christmas Eve

The Examiner asked a number of people when Santa Claus should arrive this year, and almost with one accord they said "On Christmas Eve." Christmas comes on Sunday and it will be marked by a holiday on Monday, and by some of our folk even unto Tuesday, so there was chance of some confusion as to when the Santa gentleman should make his appearance. The decision is the night of the 24th as per the schedule of other years.

And right enough. A little thought on the matter would show it could not well have been otherwise. This merry old man does not change his ways; his mind for years has been tuned to the 24th of December rather late in the evening and his habits and efforts and plans and running schedule have always been on that same basis.

If people start fussing around and advising him to come this day or that day the chances are he might get disgusted and refuse to come at all. A chap who goes driving around in a mysterious sleigh drawn by reindeers and who has learned how to go hopping over houses and popping down all sorts of chimneys is not apt to change his ways. He has so perfected his system that it would be the utmost in folly to suggest that he should try some other plan.

We can and do take liberties with changing the day on which we shall celebrate the King's birthday according to our own convenience but Christmas Eve is the 24th of December. Always has been and always will be.

Another Fever Spot

The world remains quiet—if at all—for only short intervals. The recent demand of Italy that it should have possession of Tunisia has started the war feeling to fever heat in France. Strange too how some of the land now in demand should be such ancient stuff and so long forgotten. Such was the case of Ethiopia, of Libya and now of Tunisia, the area of which is about 50,000 square miles and with a population of about 2,000,000. Its position is considered strategic because it extends about 500 miles along the Mediterranean side in North Africa.

It is necessary to turn far back to pick up the early history of Tunisia, which was once a possession of Egypt; later came the Phoenicians and the wanderers of Canaan. Then it passed under the domination of the Romans and then Arabs and in 1575 of the Turks.

It is interesting above all else to read that Tunisia contains great stores of antiquity, many ruins, and also evidence of a former fertility and great prosperity. For several hundreds of years there has been no prosperity there. Either the energy or the plans and secrets of the ancients have been lost. It used to have a productive capacity which it has long since surrendered.

The inhabitants of Tunisia are largely Bedouin Arabs. There are also 90,000 Italians, 50,000 Jews, 12,000 Maltese and a French population of 50,000 exclusive of the militia. Under control of the Turks Tunisia became virtually independent, but in 1881 the French sent an expedition to the land and took possession. That was the old and popular method of securing territory—just send an army and take it. That is how France came into possession of Tunisia which Italy now wants on the ground that there are more Italians there than there are French.

The weakness in the plea of the Italians is in the claim that the rights of minorities must be regarded and respected. Although there are more Italians than French in Tunisia, they are not by any means the dominating race. Italy's treatment of the Jews has demonstrated that the government at Rome knows nothing whatever about even-handed justice to minorities.

France has no intention of handing over Tunisia. Italy will undoubtedly figure on the Rome-Berlin axis as the reason for expecting aid if necessary from Germany. Thus the world has another nasty looking situation facing it.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Strange old world. Here we are getting ready for Christmas, while Spain prepares for another winter campaign.

Entomologists are such cheerful fellows. While it is still 1938 they are predicting a heavier than usual grasshopper infestation for Saskatchewan in 1939.

Are we better off with a great wheat crop at a low price or with a small crop at high prices? There is a subject for those who are bent on debating.

Former Premier Howard Ferguson has been talking again about hides on the fence. It remains to be seen whether or not history repeats itself.

We noticed an article in the Lindsay Post saying that "Sweat keeps the face clean." An interesting theory no doubt, but a most uncomfortable one with which to experiment.

Beverage rooms are to close at 8 o'clock Christmas Eve, and there are many who hope the experiment will work out so well that the same early closing will be adopted for New Year's Eve.

A glance or two at the windows serves to convey the impression that Christmas ties this year are holding up well to the standard in the matter of bright colors.

An East York man who secured $2,200 in relief was found to be the owner of 87 shares of stock. What kind of stock is not stated, but it may have been ownership of the stock which made it necessary for the man to seek relief.

People of Switzerland are said to feel that the League of Nations premises in their midst is not a good thing for the country. And we had been think that the Swiss would be one people who would be getting some benefit from this great organization.

Dr. Dafoe says the time is coming when the Dionne quints will have to retire from the public gaze and have a chance to grow up as normal children. The idea is sound enough, but not so easy to make effective when there are thousands of people who want to see the only set of quints in existence.

It is difficult for people living on this rather sensible continent to understand it. A day or so ago France and Germany signed a document to live together as good neighbors, and the day after we read this heading in the daily paper: "France Builds Dual-Purpose Planes of High Speed to Match Germany."

Car driver was arrested near Hamilton, and it was related "his car left the highway, crossed a farmer's lane, and after destroying a fence post and a Hydro pole knocked down the farmer's only walnut tree." Perhaps it was a wise idea for farmers to build their houses and barns some distance back from the road.

LEARNING

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Last year when it came Christmas time, I had to wait and stand in line, and chant my hymn of hate; I had some other chores to do, and waited till the hours were few, and then 'twas very late.

¶ There was no time to pick and choose, and ponder much on shades and hues, of purchases feel proud; I waited until came the night, then got wedged in both good and tight, and mingled with the crowd.

¶ I felt as one who grieves and mourns, when people trampled on my corns, my feet were sore indeed; and people bumped me as I went, I was a weary sort of gent, much like a broken reed.

¶ The clerks all did the best they could, to treat me right like how they should, they'd greet me at the door; but I suspected that they thought, when showing me the things I bought, I should have come before.

¶ And I grabbed ties of pink and green, instead of gentler shades I'd seen, I mingled with a throng; there were so many people there, I lost my calm and careful air, and everything went wrong.

¶ I think I learned my lesson then, for now I walk with early men, who know just what to do; I go out early in the morn, when no one steps upon my corn—in fact, I'm nearly through.

ONE END CHAFES.

(New York Times)

THE SOUTHERN END of the Berlin-Rome axis is reported to be growing restless, but that is only to be expected. How would anybody feel if he were one end of an axis, and the spotlight was monopolized by the other end of the axis these many months? The southern end of the axis might try to put on a rival show, but it would only call attention to the fact that they do this sort of thing infinitely better at the other end. A competition in totalitarianism between Berlin and Rome can lead to only one result. Berlin will always come out more totally total than Rome, than any other nation on earth. It is the native German genius for what Germans call the Absolute and the Infinite and what outside observers call going the limit.

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics

HAD HELPED HIM

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I was rather amused at the great interest Russell Hill has taken in his late brother's welfare since he has passed away. And I am sorry to have to make the following remarks.

If Russell Hill had been one-half as much interested in his late brother before his death as what he appears to have been since it would have been much better.

When the late William Hill had no place to sleep I along with others had taken him in, and showed at least some degree of kindness to him. Mr. Will Hill was not well for some time before he died.

I stated that he was a transient, and I say so still. In other words a man without any particular place of abode.

I myself never met Mr. Hill until last summer, but I have been informed that he was born in the township of Dummer, in the neighborhood of fifty-one years ago and I have been led to believe that he has seen much of the world since then.

He worked for Mr. Edward Carr last winter but left there in the late spring, and since he left Mr. Carr, he has been working just wherever he could get a day's work. I had taken him in on a number of occasions and given him a bed and his breakfast, and have assisted him in other ways to try and help him get along. He always spoke of Russell Hill's as being his home, and I do know that I have left him there on a few occasions but I know nothing of how much friendship that did exist between he and his brother and family.

Sincerely yours,
W. E. GRIFFITHS.

Havelock, Dec. 8.

HELPFUL INTEREST

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Enclosed find something for the Gerald Johnson fund. I hope it will not be necessary for this lad's guitar to be sold in order to realize the money for Christmas presents. I saw him in the hospital last summer on my trip home and he had the guitar on his bed then. The boy has a lovely smile but such sad eyes. Won't some troop of Boy Scouts take him as their "good deed"—visit him regularly and tell him stories of their experiences in the great outdoors—which he must long for?

Could not a group such as the Kiwanis, Kinsmen, etc., ask my friend Fred Roy to show this boy and other inmates, his pictures of the Coronation, fleet etc.

Will you appeal through your paper for copies of The Illustrated London News, showing the Silver Jubilee (1935) pictures, also the issue with pictures of George VI's coronation. These would be particularly pleasing to this loyal lad whose first question to "Grey Owl" was, "What did the King say?" Thank you for your article in your issue of December 3rd.

Very truly yours,
CLARA L. HODGSON.

WHY ITALY ASKS HER PART

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—It would appear by published accounts that Italy is just planning a straight hold up against France in her Tunisian demand. But the fact is that Italy is asserting the Wilsonian principle of self-determination which all nations agreed to in the case of Czechoslovakia, Ireland etc. A large part of Tunis is occupied by Italians who far exceed all other nationalities in those parts. Tunis was acquired only by occupation by France and not by conquest. There would appear therefore to be no good reason why autonomy should not be granted the Italians there just as we do in Quebec.

The point is that the League of Nations having recognized self-determination cannot now deny it. Besides Italy was an ally during the war not an enemy as Germany was. It does not look as if the retention of all Tunis by the French is as gracious a gesture as it should be. If actual occupants have not a prior right, who has?

J. H. BURNHAM.

WAS CUT OFF

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I am an old man of 77 years of age and seven years ago I was allowed an Old Age Pension which was paid to me for six years.

Now the Pension Board has cut off this pension simply because I have had a slight argument with local officials. The only excuse given is that I was supposed to be two years younger, seven years ago. This is wrong as I am 77 and as I have already supplied the government with all my proofs I have nothing left now to prove my age.

When two Governments have paid this pension why should I suddenly be cut off?

Yours truly,
JOHN W. DEREMO.

• Thinks A Parson Should Stay Out

The following editorial opinion in the Hamilton Spectator was written several days before Rev. Norman Rawson of that city appeared before the Conservative convention in Toronto as a candidate for leadership.

WE NOTE the announcement of the Rev. Norman Rawson's candidature for the leadership of the Ontario Conservative party without enthusiasm. The tossing of clerical hats into political rings leaves us cold. The pulpit was never intended to be used as a springboard to political life. The reform of society works from the individual conscience upwards. It is a slow, evolutionary process in which the Church is designed to play an infinitely more important part than any or all political parties. Enduring peace, prosperity and contentment will, according to Christianity, be only found by humanity in its search for the Kingdom of God. The clergy direct the search and cultivate, or should cultivate, in the individual the spirit which in the aggregate is the ultimate guarantee of good government. Men see the vision when they dedicate their lives to the ministry, but its realization is so slow and they are so jostled about by the every-day material aspects of their work, which take so much out of them, that the vision often becomes dim and they rebel against conditions as they find them in their day-to-day contacts with distress and, temporarily forgetting the great paradox, "My Kingdom is not of this world," they try to find a short cut to human well-being.

Quite aside from these somewhat philosophical observations, it is difficult to see how the Rev. Mr. Rawson could lead the Conservative party without putting the stamp of the United Church upon it. This would, no doubt, be regarded as introducing religion into politics, which would be unfortunate. While Mr. Rawson's splendid talents and eloquence would find scope in politics, it is our hope that he will continue to use them in that more important field where the hearts of men are touched and the seeds of good citizenship are planted.

• Will We Have To Go About Armed?

THE FREQUENCY with which what are designated hold-ups are occurring throughout Ontario creates a problem with which the police forces of the Province must deal effectively, or human life and property will not be assured of the safety of which so much boasting has been made in this Province through the years. Apparently, says the Brantford Expositor, there is no community that is safe. Even in the City of Toronto with its army of policemen these robberies have occurred frequently. The same thing can be said of other large centres. Not only that, but gangsters are going around in high-powered cars, and business establishments in small rural hamlets are not safe.

Are these occurrences the result of organized and well directed activities by central gangs? If they are, it is not sufficient to catch a few of these perpetrators and punish them. Those responsible for planning the crimes must be discovered, punished, and placed where they can do no more harm. In Ontario during the recent week-end there were a number of these robberies. Brantford had an exciting incident of a stolen car, and the village of Princeton was the scene of a store robbery. What is to be done to insure the safety of business places? Is it necessary for them to provide weapons of defense and take the law into their own hands? With all the boasted co-ordination of the various police forces of the Province too many of the perpetrators of these crimes escape—this in spite of motorcycle officers, radio broadcasts, and cruising cars.

The problem has become so serious because of these widespread offences that unless measures are devised to cop with these swift-moving gangs no business place will be safe. The protection of life and property is the paramount responsibility of the law, and the citizens of Ontario are becoming exceedingly resentful at these occurrences. That the problem is a difficult one is admitted, because it is utterly impossible to have constables everywhere. If it is possible to devise a system of alarm that will be province-wide so as to spread a network from which these desperadoes cannot escape, it should be worked out.

DEAL FELL THROUGH

(New York Post)

ONE of New York's most amazing hotel deals fell through this week, after lengthy negotiations. Ralph Hitz, America's most important hotel operator, had completed arrangements with the operators of the Empire State Building to convert into hotel rooms all the untenanted space between the 42nd and 80th floors of that building. The hotel setup was to endure until after the World's Fair. Negotiations were called off because Hitz refused to agree to remove the hotel fittings if the venture proved unprofitable.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

COME, ye children, hearken unto me: I will teach you the fear of the Lord. What man is he that desireth life, and loveth many days, that he may see good? Keep thy tongue from evil, and thy lips from speaking guile. Depart from evil, and do good; seek peace, and pursue it. The eyes of the Lord are upon the righteous, and his ears are open unto their cry....

The righteous cry, and the Lord heareth, and delivereth them out of all their troubles....Many are the afflictions of the righteous: but the Lord delivereth him out of them all. —Ps. xxxiv, 11-15, 17, 19.

DEMAND ROYAL RANK

(Toronto Telegram)

IF THE Duke of Windsor now demands royal rank for his wife he is asking more than he asked when he was King. At that time he offered the suggestion that she should have merely the position of a morganatic wife. It is thoroughly unacceptable that his heir, if any, should be in the line of succession.

The British Empire demonstrated its strength in the orderly manner in which one King stepped out of the picture and another was crowned in his stead. That strength should not be subjected to another strain to meet the ambition of either the Duke or Duchess of Windsor.

It is sincerely doubted that the Duke of Windsor could be of any service as representative of the Empire in any quarter of the globe. He is remembered with affection as the Prince Charming of a war weary world. That memory of him will remain, if he permits it. But as a man who quitted his post to gratify his own will he is the author of his rejection by those who had most regard for him.

THE EIFFEL TOWER.

(Ottawa Citizen)

THE EIFFEL TOWER, the tallest structure in Europe, is not the most beautiful. It is not the most beautiful in Paris. As a matter of fact it has probably been called more bad names by more architects than any other building of comparable size on the face of the earth.

But the Eiffel Tower turns out to be the country's biggest drawing card. Over 800,000 people visited it last year; nearly 300,000 more than visited the Louvre Museum, a few blocks distant. All the Louvre has to offer is the greatest collection of art the world possesses.

BIG JOKE

(Chatham News)

Perhaps there is in the world a more important task than the one of restoring the old condition of order and security—but it is hard to imagine what that more important task might be. For that kind of security is a fundamental of civilization. Without it, civilization is little more than a sham.

FICTION AND FEATURES

ROMANCE INC.

BY OREN ARNOLD

Read This First:

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, establishes herself in a cozy cottage near the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, hangs out a sign which reads "COUNSEL IN ROMANCE", and inaugurates a novel plan to help guide 100 student "members" in their social affairs for a small fee. Bob Towne, campus football hero, much attracted by Sara Sue, is the first to enroll, and this enrages Peaches Pomeroy, who had regarded herself as "Bob's girl" the previous year. An unprepossessing freshman, Worthington Gurley, enrolls and also displays an interest in the pretty young widow. Then Dr. Thornton Holgate, new member of the faculty, brings the Cottage Plan to a climax when he begs Sara Sue to help him and confides his love for the Pomeroy girl. Finally, T. J. Sanders, a sports goods salesman, drops into town and falls in love with Sara Sue at first sight. After Sara Sue has given Dr. Holgate several lessons in "how to become more human", he becomes frantic at the freshman ball when he comes upon Peaches badly intoxicated. For hours he lies awake, tortured by Peaches' public display. The next day, while walking with some of the students, Dr. Holgate is confronted by Peaches and two other girls in a passing car.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER 22

IT IS AN unusual case when a normal, wholesome, young American man can grow to age almost 29 and never once have had a girl sit on his lap. Thornton Holgate had been "in love" several times in high school, but had done nothing about it. A few times, in school assemblies, it had been necessary for him to pair off with some feminine person, and a very few times sufficient pressure had been brought to make him actually take a girl somewhere. But mostly he had been content to admire the opposite sex from afar. It had always seemed presumptuous for a person as humble as he imagined himself to be, to force any girl to pay attention to him.

He grew out of that inferiority complex to a degree when he entered college. The Right Girl at that moment doubtless would have reshaped his entire life, but she did not come along. Before he realized it, college studies had gripped his enthusiasm; mathematics under truly learned men had opened magnificent mental vistas in which human equations had no part.

He beheld the sudden appearances of Peaches Pomeroy in her car this Sunday afternoon, heard her greeting and her command to get in, then passed into momentary daze. When he reawakened, a somewhat heavy but soft and thoroughly delightful something was inplanted upon him. He was learning that its name was Barbara, that the similar something at his left shoulder was named 'Lisbeth. Both objects, besides being sweetly perfumed, were wiggly and giggly and highly articulate. And Miss Pomeroy's sedan was moving at something above 60.

"Yes, yes, quite so," Thornton was saying, solely because it seemed advisable to say something, after the deluge of greeting, introductions, small talk. The freshman behind him, busy with their own chatter, pail little attention.

"I know—let's go to Galveston!" Peaches had suggested.

"YEA-A-A-A!" chorused the freshmen, in for anything. "Bet's!" chimed in the girls. That's when Thornton had collected his wits and said "Yes, yes, quite so."

Peaches swung right through Hermann park and headed for Telephone road, thence on eventually to the main pavement, which finally heads into the great Galveston causeway, a bridge over the sea arm which makes Galveston an island. Sheer fatigue eventually caused Thornton to relax and the girl Barbara turned on his knees to talk to him.

"Am I too heavy? I've been gaining scads of weight lately. I'll bet your smashed to bits."

"Not at all, not at all!" he lied. He was disturbed by the fact that her eyes—very pretty eyes—were less than a foot from his.

Ditto her lips—very pretty lips. Dr. Thornton Holgate, Ph. D., swallowed hard.

"Some of the road's bumpy, Thornton," Peaches called to him. "You'll have to hold Babs tight. But that's all right, she's bashful. If you get tired, ma[illegible] hold you on her lap a while."

"Send her back here!" shrieked a freshman, and Dr. Holgate was grateful for that interruption. But nobody paid any attention to the freshmen. Freshmen are just—freshmen. Slimes. Necessary and tolerable, and cute enough sometimes, but still freshmen. These were senior girls.

The distance from Houston to Galveston is 56 miles. Or was. In recent decades Houston has been eating up the distance steadily, spreading and growing and extending so that the actual mileage now is about 30. But from where pretty Barbara first plumped down on Thornton's lap, to the far end of the causeway, was a good 50.

Even though Peaches made it in less than 60 minutes, ignoring Sunday traffic and possible speed cops, and even though the upholstery of her car was the best that money could buy, Dr. Holgate was virtually paralyzed when they turned onto the beautiful Seawall drive. Barbara was, as she admitted, somewhat rounded; her weight stopped the circulation in Dr. Holgate's legs, causing rather severe pain. He bore this as if he were a myrtr. It is doubtful if he would have mentioned the matter for a million dollars, in cash.

When they rolled past the pretentious Hotel Galvez and out onto the very top of the long sea wall which guards Galveston from the Gulf of Mexico, the view was instantly impressive.

"Beautiful! As always!" Barbara said it, and it was true.

"Oh, boy! Say—!" Even the freshmen were awed momentarily. Waves were swelling out beyond the sands and the shallow water, then pouring in progressive white cascades—head-high breakers for which Galveston beach is famous. A few sails and the more bulky forms of freighters dotted the horizon—the harbor is around to the left—and sea gulls streamed over with their poetry of flight.

"Beautiful," agreed Thornton, truly impressed. He had not seen Galveston before.

"It's still warm in the water, what say we swim?" Peaches suggested it.

Everybody, except Thornton, shrieked agreement. But he, too, agreed. Swimming was his favorite sport, always.

"We have no bathing suits," he demurred.

"We can rent them; two or three big bathhouses—see?" Peaches pointed to the buildings, one of them on stilts out over the gulf itself.

When they had parked, and rented their suits and donned them, and met again down on the sand below the high stone sea wall, the chill autumn air nipped at them. Peaches went "br-r-r-r" and snuggled up to Thornton's shoulder. "Golly, can't you hug anybody but Babs?" she demanded. "I'm freezing now."

Of course it was casual. Joking. But Dr. Holgate blushed, even so. It did cause him to look closely at Peaches—and to turn away because her feminine attraction was quite definite in a bathing suit, even a rented bathing suit. She had a form. "Ah—yes! Yes, indeed!" He managed to speak, then, and actually put an arm around her shoulder. "Yes, ha ha. It is chilly, isn't it? Shall we take the plunge?"

They raced for the water.

First there is 100 yards of it—toe deep, ankle deep, knee deep, waist deep, on hard sand. Then for another 50 yards it is not over an adult's head. Beyond that is still gradual slope, where the bigger breakers cavort and play. At the edge of deep water one gets a sensation of being far far from shore, but actually within a few feet of resting ground.

Only a dozen or so bathers were in sight anywhere in the three miles of visible shore line, because of the autumn chill. And yet the water itself was still warmer than Los Angeles or Coney Island ever know. In mid-summer some people say Galveston is too warm; the gulf balminess comes up from the Equator. Thornton Holgate, expert swimmer, found it perfect today; he plunged into it with zest, swimming, exploring depths, blowing, slapping, diving through waves, reflecting that life can be good after all.

The party members split here and there, pairing, or going in singles. The waves were rather rough, toppling the unwary swimmers. Thornton saw a little girl, perhaps 12 years of age, on a mattress-like floater bobbing up and down on the water and shrieking, "Whee-e-e-e-e!" in the exhileration of it. She was paddling with her hands over the sides. She passed him, going out, when he was in water neck deep. He glanced back, but no one appeared concerned. "Whee-e-e-e-e!"

Peaches came up to him then and they dived through a huge wave together, coming up spewing like human whales. It was zestful. It was good to be playing with a pretty girl. Happiness suffused Thornton Holgate. However could he have felt angry or hurt at Peaches for a bit of drinking the night before? Don't be a prude, Holgate! He felt like hollering with the freshmen, and daringly did so.

"Let's ride a wave in," Peaches invinted. "Dive with it, on top, as it strikes. We can ride it a long way."

It proved to be fun. They rode one, then another, then another. The last one skidded them, amid much salty foam, almost to the feet of a woman in street clothes. And when he came out of the foam, he saw the woman was screaming.

"MY BABY — LOOK! She's gone! was thrown off her floater! Away out there!" A mother in hysteria.

They could see the bobbing float. And they caught one glimpse of the child, also bounding. Peaches and Thornton stared, appalled.

Overcome Your Shyness

So easy to fool yourself if you're self-conscious. "I'd love to go to the party," you weep, "if I didn't have this terrible headache."

But if it weren't for your secret dread of meeting people you'd probably forget that headache. You'd be at the party, having a grand time, making friends.

Foolish, isn't it, to go through such torture for a few defects you can easily correct?

Do you fret because your mouth's too large? Develop a lovely skin to offset it.

Even "not knowing what to say" needn't keep you in a corner if you listen pleasantly — and smile radiantly.

And, when you meet people, think not if they like you but if YOU like THEM. Remarkable what confidence that trick gives you.

Yes, you can cure self-consciousness, inferiority feelings, if you try. Our 32-page booklet tells you how —helps you develop a confident, charming personality.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—I am the mother of six children, three boys and three girls, all of whom are now grown and working. No mother ever sacrificed more for her children than I did. I worked from fourteen to sixteen hours a day that they might be well fed, have a good home and an education. Many a night I have sat up until dawn making a pretty dress for one of the girls, or washing the shirts of the boys. Now I am old and in bad health and need the help and affection of my children, but they only know me when they need me. They rarely come to see me and they never remember a birthday or a Mother's Day with even a card. Can you suggest where I failed in the rearing of my children?

A BROKEN-HEARTED MOTHER.

ANSWER:

One doesn't have to be a seer or possess any occult gifts to answer that question. Your children treat you the way they do because you never taught them to respect you, or to have any appreciation of what you did for them, or to feel any responsibility toward you.

You made yourself a doormat for them and quite naturally they trampled over you and kicked you about. You toiled while they played and they grew up thinking that Mother's proper place was in the kitchen, and all that she was good for was to wait on them. You meekly took their fault-finding and abuse and so they felt the contempt for you that we all feel for our inferiors. You gave everything and demanded nothing in return, so they have never felt that they owed you anything.

Every mother writes her own price tag for her children and they accept her exactly at her own valuation. If she puts herself on a pedestal, they bow down and worship her. If she demands obedience, they give it. If she poses as an oracle, they go through life thinking that "Mother knows best" about everything, and deferring to her opinions and judgment. The beloved mothers are not the slave mothers. They are invariably the mothers who have made themselves the queens of their families.

One of the queer things about mothers is that they think that they can rear their children to be one thing and then, when they are grown, some miracle will take place that will turn them into something else. On every side of us we see mothers spoiling children rotten, letting them grow up without any control, permitting them to talk back to them and defy them, and excusing their weakness and folly by saying: "Oh, when Johnny and Sally grow up they will appreciate all I have done for them and love me for it."

But that never happens. You can't cultivate selfishness in an individual for twenty years and then have him turn into a self-abnegating altruist. You can't let a child look down on you from its infancy up and then have it respect you. You can't teach a child to take all you do for it for granted and then when he is a man cherish you and appreciate you. You have to begin in the cradle to teach a child to say "thank you" and be grateful if you ever expect him to do it. The eternal law "as you sow so shall you reap" never works out so relentlessly as in the rearing of children. Every child treats his parents as they have taught him to treat them.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—My husband is a salesman receiving a small salary. He is leaving his insurance to be divided equally between me and our four children, aged 4, 7, 10 and 15. The money is to be paid in small monthly payments. I do not approve of this arrangement. If my husband should die before I do, I want all of the money to invest in a store-keeping business. He is afraid I would remarry and that then our children would get none of his insurance, but I will never marry again under any circumstances. Please help us to decide what should be done about the insurance. VERY DISSATISFIED.

ANSWER:

Whether a man who has children should give everything he possesses to his wife when he dies, or divide it between his wife and his children, depends upon how big an estate he has to leave, and upon what sort of a business woman his wife is.

If there is very little money, it is generally better to keep it together and let the wife control it, provided she has shown that she is a good manager and has enough common sense to use some judgment in her investments and not fall a prey to the first blib-talking salesman who comes along and promises to make her rich if she will only put her husband's insurance in Wild Cat Preferred.

But if a man knows that his wife has had no business experience and that she knows so little about handling money that she can't even keep within her budget, and that she is so credulous that she would trust everything she has to Deacon Cheatem because he prays so beautifully in church, he is very wrong and foolish to leave his children's future in their mother's incompetent hands, and he should give each child his individual portion of his estate.

A great many men leave everything they have to their wives on the theory that a mother will always look out for her children. But this does not take into consideration the fact that widows, especially if they are rich widows, are only too often the victims of fortune-hunters who rob their stepchildren of their father's property. Also, if a woman remarries and has a second lot of children, she almost invariably is more devoted to them than she is to her first children and does not hesitate to deprive her first children of their father's money to give to her younger brood.

But each individual case has to be settled on its individual merits, and what is far more important to you than your husband's insurance is for you not to quarrel over it.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am 17 and have a boy friend, and I think I know enough to take care of myself. We like to hold hands when walking from school or sitting on the porch after school in the evenings. Also, I like to sit close to him on the porch and put my hand on his knee, and we like to walk with our arms about each other. My family tell me that this is not the proper way for a girl to conduct herself, but I reply that it is not anybody's business but my own. What do you think? SEVENTEEN.

ANSWER:

Perhaps there isn't any harm in holding hands in public and walking the streets with your arms about your boy friend, but it is just so common and provincial and makes you look such a figure of fun that I wonder that a modern girl is willing to do it. DOROTHY DIX.

Robbed Of $26

BARRIE, Ont., Dec. 10—(CP)—Ivan Spears told police to-day he was robbed of $26 by two men who held him up at a lonely spot on the outskirts of the town. The men, who were wearing peaked caps and dark overcoats, stepped up and demanded his money as he walked into town last night, Spears said.

Wilfred Donnelly, a farm manager, was held up recently in the same spot but no money was taken from him.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

O-Oh! How cold it is this morning!" Knarf exclaimed to Hanid.

The two shadows had just stepped outside the house, right in the footsteps of the little boy and girl they belonged to. The two children were going to school, and, of course, the two shadows had to go along, too. Shadows always stay near their masters and mistresses.

Well, Knarf and Hanid followed the little boy and girl down the street. There was hardly any wind. But the air was sharp and cold.

"I bet I know someone who's very busy to-day," Hanid said.

"Who?" asked her brother.

Nice Day for Jack.

"Jack Frost. This is the kind of a day he loves best."

At that moment they were passing

"You'd make all the children cold."

the garden at the corner of the street, just a block away from the school. And there, sitting on the little wooden gate, as jolly as can be, was Jack Frost himself.

The children couldn't see him, for Jack Frost always makes himself invisible to people. But the shadows saw him plainly as the nose on Pinnochio's face. (You do know Pinnochio, I hope.)

"Hello there!" cried Jack Frost. "Where are you going?"

He'll Go, Too.

"We're going with the children to school," Hanid called back.

"To school! That's fine. I'll come along, too."

"No, you aren't allowed in school. You can't come along," Hanid said. Knarf added: "You'd make all the children cold. Stay where you are."

"Nonsense," said Jack. "I'm not half as cold as you think. You're just afraid of me. Just look at your master and mistress. They don't mind my being along. It's true they can't see me. But even if they felt me so near them they wouldn't mind. Here—I'll just touch the tips of their toes inside their shoes with my little finger."

"Oh-oh-oh!" cried the little boy and the little girl. "My toes are cold."

And they ran with all their might to the school building The shadows ran, too. And so did Jack, though he didn't like it very much.

Suddenly they all reached the door of the school. The children got in first, the shadows got in next —but when Jack got there, the door closed and he was left outside. Jack Frost is a fine fellow. But it's a good thing he didn't get inside the school, don't you think?

Looking Back
On This Date

The Victoria Colonist will be 80 years old tomorrow. It was on Dec. 11, 1858, that the British Colonist was first issued by that remarkable Nova Scotian, William Alexander Smith who had persuaded the California legislature to authorize him to change his name to Amor de Cosmos ("Lover of the World."). I have previously mentioned De Cosmos in this column, and shall probably have to refer to him again in other connection than with The Colonist.

The time was ripe for a fighting journal in Victoria, and De Cosmos was the man for the job. He lost on time in attacking Governor James Douglas and his "Family Compact" advisers. Douglas was a good target. Domineering by nature his years as chief factor of the Hudson's Bay Company had made him an autocrat. He resented criticism, and he resented the Nova Scotian, who had brought from Nova Scotia some of Joe Howe's ideas that the people had the right to some say in government.

Douglas and De Cosmos were opposites both possesed as the Scots say, "a guid conceit o' themselves." Both were fighters. Douglas resented De Cosmos's criticisms in The British Colonist, and tried to "gag" the editor, who, thereupon, like his hero, Howe, added politics to journalism, soon becoming a power in the assembly. De Cosmos was the first in British Columbia to advocate union with Canada, but was not a "Father of Confederation," since he was not one of the delegates to Ottawa. But he had the satisfaction of seeing union accomplished and of sitting at Ottawa as M.P., while being at the same time premier of the province

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, December 11.

Sunday's horoscope holds excellent promise for all affairs of the church, the clergy, and all old-established matters. But sudden events also obtrude, upsetting plans and causing irritations and disturbances in both private and business affairs. There are signs of a sudden estrangement.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of excellent opportunities for promotion, advancement, honors and the aid of those in high places. But with this there is an omen of irritating and unwelcome upheavals, which may react on the private emotions as well as in business dealings.

A child born on this day may have an adventurous, ambitious and dramatic nature, clamoring for thrills and stirring exploits. But a jealous and possibly eccentric nature may bring defeat to a promising public career. Similar proclivities disturb its romantic experiences.

For Monday, December 12.

Monday's astrological forecast holds promise of much activity and possible excitement or agitation. This relates to the launching of important projects in which there is hope of support from those in prestige and authority. While such enterprises may gain by strenuous methods and bold strokes, a degree of "policy" or finesse would likewise assist.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a very lively and progressive year. Those in power seem disposed to offer substantial aid in launching important projects, either of a speculative nature or those that are practical and constructive.

A child born on this day may be particularly talented and brilliant, with strong inclinations to exploit his talents in a showy or bragging manner. However, it may have a bold and forceful character, with many social and humane graces and inclinations, which may be exercised with finesse and charm.

Pioneer Couple Celebrate 70th Wedding Anniversary

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 10. — Both Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Moir are enjoying good health, the finest gift of all, on their seventieth wedding anniversary which they celebrated quietly at their home here to-day (Saturday).

Residents of Campbellford for the past twenty-three years, they are of the early pioneer stock who started out in life with nothing but a willingness to work hard on a small farm in Percy Township. Mr. Moir, who celebrated his ninety-second birthday on November 11, landed in Monteral seventy-seven years ago with five dollars in his pocket and got his first job making horse shoes at fifty cents a day. A man who never had any trouble in his life locating a job, he believes that there is no reason why anyone who is really willing to work should be out of a job to-day. Unable to remember the name of the ship he crossed the Atlantic on, Mr. Moir recalled, however, that it took thirty-three days, "and we had a fine time singing and dancing all the way over."

"It must have been a lot cheaper to live if you could get along on fifty cents a day," we asked.

"There wasn't much difference in the price of clothes. We had to pay twenty dollars for a good suit."

"Yes, and eggs only brought from six to seven cents a dozen," offered Mrs. Moir, who had just come into the kitchen with an arm full o fwood for the fire. She will be ninety in April "Taxes may be a good deal higher than they were," continued Mr. Moir, "but the trouble with people now is that they have too many luxuries."

Coal Was Cheap.

"Coal in those days sold at about $4.00 a ton, and we used to go down to Brighton to get it with a yoke of oxen. You would sometimes see hundreds of teams on the street with wagons loaded with grain waiting to be unloaded. We would take seventy-five bushels of grain down and bring back a ton of coal for the local blacksmith. My team was a heavy one and I usually brought a ton and a half."

"How much were you paid for bringing it?" we ventured.

"Why, we didn't get paid in cash All we got was a credit on our work. There was hardly any real money around in those days except for Yankee silver, so most of our business had to be done on a trading basis," said the man who began work in his father's blacksmith shop at the age of eight.

"This trip down to Brighton must have been rather a slow one over those corduroy roads."

"Well," he pondered, "I think it took about a day and a half."

"Why, no, Ben, you did it in twenty-four hours. Don't you remember. You would leave at midnight and would travel all day, getting back again at nearly midnight," corrected his wife.

The reason that oxen were used in those days was that they were much better for getting around over rough places. "You could hitch a team up with a chain to the wagon and draw around stumps and rocks in the fields and roads with much less thouble than a team of horses would have been. They were surer footed and easier handled."

Champion Wood Cutter.

Wood cutting was another of the pursuits followed by Mr. Moir, who claims he was always willing to do anything, and has done nearly everything. There was plenty of standing timber and to cut two cords of wood into four-foot lengths was another of his daily accomplishments. "For this you got fifty cents a day and your dinner. I was always a hearty eater in those days, but I don't eat so much now," he assured.

During the past summer Mr. and Mrs. Moir kept their own little garden in which they grew their winter's supply of potatoes and vegetables, and she "put up" a good quantity of fruit for the winter. And despite the fact they retired from the farm 23 years ago, both feel there is more health and comfort there than any other place on earth.

He believes that most of the country's problems would be solved if more people went back to the farm and really did some hard work. There's too much education for soft jobs, he thinks. Boys leave High School, and all they are fit for is a white collar job. In his opinion there are just as many opportunities to-day as there were years ago. Strongly opposed to the present relief system, he claims it should never have been started, and would put all those who haven't jobs out on the land where they would have to work.

Mr. and Mrs. Moir have four living children, and one daughter, Mrs. E. A. (Bessie) Harriatt, shares their home with them. The others are: Mrs. W. White, Bruce Mines, Ont.; James W. Moir, Brighton, and John A. Moir, who lives on the family homestead in Percy Township.

Branch Notes

ST. JOHN'S, LAKEFIELD.

Twenty-five members of St. John's A.Y.P.A., Lakefield, attended the corporate communion service held on Sunday morning at 8 o'clock. After the communion service the members gathered at the parish hall where the committee in charge had prepared a tasty breakfast.

Rev. R Howden expressed his pleasure at the good attendance at the service and hoped that it would be a monthly event.

Sunday evening twenty members gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Hutt to listen to the play "Julius Caesar." Monday evening the meeting will take the form of a "craft night."

❖ ❖ ❖

ST. LUKE'S BRANCH.

One of the most interesting and largely attended meetings St. Luke's has had for some time was held on Thursday evening, when Mrs. Curtis' group was in charge. Mrs. Curtis introduced the speaker of the evening, Miss C. McCarthy, who gave a splendid talk on "Wit, Humor and Nonsense," illustrated by a series of jokes. "Wit," the speaker said, "has been defined as a happy and striking way of expressing a thought; "humor" is the salt of life and "nonsense" is an elephant hanging over a cliff with its tail tied to a daisy."

There was also an impromptu debate, "Resolved, that Motion Pictures are More Injurious Than Helpful." The affirmative was upheld by Miss C. Long and Ron Burgess, while the negative, which won the decision, was upheld by Miss Hope and Jack Davis.

This was followed by a skit by W. Hepburn and B. Pammett and community singing was enjoyed by all with Miss Flowers as accompanist.

A vote of thanks was moved by Warren Gamble and Art Northcott to all who had taken part in the program. Refreshments were served at the close.

The annual district banquet will be held in St. John's Parish Hall on Wednesday night at 7 p.m.

❖ ❖ ❖

ST. JOHN'S BRANCH.

On Tuesday and Wednesday nights St. John's presented "The Importance of Being Earnest," probably the most famous of Oscar Wilde's comedies. The cast was very well chosen and under the able direction of Canon W. P. Robertson, gave a very creditable performance. Members of the cast were as follows: Mrs. W. P. Robertson, Mrs. Ena Morley, Misses Aileen Sisson and Florence Hutchinson, Messrs. Griffin Young, Len Phillips, Fred Hooper, Gordon Clegg and Lorne Galley. We take this opportunity of thanking those who supported our efforts and trust that in the near future we shall present another program worthy of patronage.

❖ ❖ ❖

ALL SAINTS' BRANCH.

On Monday last the regular business meeting was held, with the president in the chair.

The program took the form of a worship night and a splendid address by the Rev. C. C. Robinson on "Discipline" was enjoyed by all present.

Doug. Weir, the delegate to the Provincial Conference, gave an excellent report of the undertakings and ideas suggested during the time of the conference.

It was decided that the branch enter a team in the A.Y.P.A. Hockey League. Don Menzies was appointed convener.

Will all members please keep open Wednesday, December 14, for the district banquet at St. John's Peterborough.

ST. GEORGE'S BRANCH

A successful card party was held on Thursday evening under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A. Harold Porter and his committee were in charge.

The members greatly appreciated the co-operation of those who attended. Fowl were given as prizes to the fololwing ladies: First, Mrs. J. Cooper; second Miss Hilda Houghtan; gents' first, Mr. Morley and W. Davies.

Miss Jean Leach Hostess To Music Club

An interesting meeting of the Orpheus Mission Club was held at the home of Miss Jean Leach, Prince Street, with Miss Patricia Watson presiding.

A paper on the Toronto Conservatory of Music was given by Miss Marguerite Rome, piano solos by Agnes Pogue and Audrey Lacey, and an interesting demonstration of puppets, which he had made himself, was given by Bob Leach. Plans were made for a musicale and tea during the Christmas holidays.

A vote of thanks to the hostess was moved by Jeannette McMorran and Joyce Cribbs. Refreshments were served after the meeting, which closed with "The King," played by Jean Leach.

W.A. Tea Has Festive Setting

A Christmas tree glowing with colored bulbs, the light from red and white candles, and the scarlet of poinsettias made a Yuletide setting for the tea and sale of homemade cooking which the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's church held at the Manse on Friday afternoon.

Guests were welcomed by the hostess, Mrs. E. W. Young, and the president, Mrs. A. Pilling.

Mrs. R. Harstone, Mrs. A. Porteous, Miss J. R. Ferguson and Miss S. Dixon poured tea. The table was festively centred with a Yule log topped by lighted red and white candles and drawn by four miniature reindeer. Tea room conveners were Mrs. H. Tremain and Mrs. F. E. Johnson, assistant tea hostesses included Mrs. E. Humpage, Mrs. E. R. Shirley, Mrs. R. Hardy, Mrs. R. Dewdney, Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge, Miss M. Ferguson. The Homecooking table was convened by Mrs. J. Johnson and Mrs. J. Morrison. Mrs. W. Henry was treasurer, assisted by Mrs. L. Nelson.

Art Association Enjoys Yule Program

The Green Room and Library of the Y.W.C.A. was well filled with members for the Christmas meeting of the Women's Art Association, which was held on Friday afternoon. Mrs. Frank Neal, vice-president, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. Fred E. Hooper.

A delightful musical program included a group of three solos by Mrs. Ford Turner, accompanied at the piano by Gwen Craw. The first number, a short song by Franz, was "The Sea Hath Pearls," and was followed by the lovely, appealing melody "A Slumber Song of The Madonna," with words by Alfred Noyes. The last in the group, "Shadow March" with words by Robert Louis Stevenson, was from Stevenson's "A Child's Garden of Verses," and musically interpreted the feelings of a small boy when he glimpsed the crooked, wicked shadows cast by his candle as he climbed the stairs to bed. Two charming violin numbers "Cavatina" by Raff, and "Serenade" by Pierne, were played by Mrs. Fred Hooper, accompanied by Mrs. H. V. Dobson, Solos by Miss Olga Westbye, accompanied by Gwen Craw, included "A Legend," by Tschaikowsky, and Luther's beautiful, well known "Cradle Hymn." "The Gift" with words by F. E. Weatherly, was delightfully sung by Mrs. H. A. Mitchell, acompanied by Mrs. Dobson, and concluded the musical program.

A Christmas message from Dr. Henry Van Dyke was brought by Mrs. C. S. Thompson as she told the simple, beautiful story o. "The Other Wise Men." A vote of appreciation to the artists was expressed by Mrs. H. Bamforth and Mrs. J. E. Middleton.

Tea was poured during a pleasant social hour following the meeting by Mrs. H. M. Yelland and Mrs. H. Wightman. A miniature china madonna surrounded by tiny china figures bearing white candles centered the table, which was covered with a green damask cloth. Assistant tea hostesses were Mrs. A. Weldon, Mrs. J. E. Middleton, Miss E. Scott, Mrs. H. Bamforth and Miss Laura Belleghem.

We Noticed

...That puzzling questions regarding Christmas cards keep popping up in this merry month of December. Someone inquired the other day if Christmas cards should bear the titles, "Mr. and Mrs."? That depends on whether the cards are engraved, printed or signed by hand.

❖ ❖ ❖

...Engraved cards follow the rules for visiting cards, consequently "Mr. and Mrs." is proper. It is considered a little better to have the card read, "Mr. and Mrs. Merry Holiday wish you a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year" rather than "A Very Merry Christmas and a Happy New year from Mr. and Mrs. Merry Holiday."

Dorothy Searles Is Bride Of Kenneth Miller

A charming ceremony was performed in the George Street United Church Parsonage at two o'clock this afternoon, Rev. M. C. Parr officiating, when Dorothy Grace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Searles, 208 Westcott Street, became the bride of Kenneth Galt Miller, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller, Peterborough.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charmingly gowned in a toe-length frock of rose melon pink taffeta, fashioned with a short bolero trimmed with turquoise blue velvet ribbon. Her veil of pink tulle fell softly to her shoulders from a wreath of tiny blue flowers, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and white regal lilies tied with ribbons of blue tulle.

Mrs. Robert Hutton, sister of the groom, was matron of honor, wearing a gown of turquoise blue lace trimmed with blue tulle, and a tiny hat of pink ostrich feathers. She carried a bouquet of Killarney pink roses tied with pink tulle. Mr. Robert Hutton attended the groom.

A reception was held at the Grand Hotel, where the bride's mother received in navy blue sheer with corsage of Joanna Hill roses.

For travelling the bride wore a frock of Hunter's green crepe with trimming of gold leaves, dark green coat with black fox collar, and green accessories. When they return from a wedding trip to Nashua, N.H., Mr. and Mrs. Miller will live at 334 Rubidge Street.

For Bad Winter Coughs, Mix This Remedy at Home

Quick Relief. Big Saving. So Easy. No Cooking.

This well known recipe is used by many thousands of housewives, because they have found that it gives them a much more dependable remedy for distressing winter coughs. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a compound containing Norway Pine, in concentrated form, well known for its effect on throat membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a mome t. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of cough remedy, unusually quick-acting and dependable, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be surprised by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving quick, satisfying relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please in every way.

"I worked for two years to earn a second hand washing machine!"

"Sounds like a silly confession, but it's true. I found, after buying the machine that the money I paid would buy damp wash at the laundry for two years and more. The machine is now in the corner of the cellar—my washing goes to the laundry."

Old-Fashioned Melodrama Is Presented

Costumes of two decades and more ago brought a nostalgic charm to the stage of King Edward School last night, and many a sentimental old song brought memories flooding back into the hearts of the audience that crowded the auditorium.

For it was a full house to which the curtain was rung up on "An Old Fashioned Mother," presented by the Home and School association. And judging by the long applause that greeted the close of each act, it was also a deeply appreciative house. Complete with a "village choir," the play was a melodrama of the old type with all the necessary entanglements—a sweet young girl, a loving mother, a mysterious person, a "black sheep," a dull girl, a gossip, a villain, a series of stupendous coincidences and even more stupendous diction.

Top honors for comedy acting went to M. Drysdale, who filled the merry role of Jeremiah Gosling to capacity. The youngsters who filled the auditorium's front rows were nearly hysteric at his antics and his acting throughout the entire play left nothing to be desired. Another outstanding part was played by E. Chambers as Charley Underhill, a respectable fellow. Mrs. H. Turner took a major part as the mother of the play, gave her role a simplicity that was convincing.

It was essentialy a melodrama, acted for all it was worth, concerned the story of a mother's unwavering love for her son and her belief in him that withstood his arrest and drunkenness. She went about doing good deeds, thinking good thoughts despite continued setbacks. Each person in the cast knew his or her part to perfection which indicated good direction by Mrs. H. Turner who was also the mother in the play.

In three acts the play covered a time period of five years. Its cast included Mrs. H. Turner as Deborah Underhill, the mother; Mrs. E. Chambers as Widdow Bill Pindle, leader of the choir; Mrs. Gibson as Miss Louisa Loving Custard, a gossip; Mrs. G. Harris as Isabell Simscott, a village belle; Miss Hazel Palmer, a good girl; Miss Irene Ellis, as Sukey Pindle, the widow's child; Ken Moffat as John Underhill, a prodigal son; E. Chambers as Charley Underhill, his elder brother; H. Turner as Brother Jonah Quakenbush, a whited sepulchre; M. Drysdale as Jeremiah Gosling, a simple fellow of good heart; Harold Fife as Enoch Rome, an outcast and wanderer; G. Harris as Quintus Todd, a county sheriff; and Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. A. H. Cooke, Mrs. W. M. Wood and Mrs. J. O. Fife as the village choir.

The Rambling REPORTERS

LOVE FINDS A WAY.

Love laughs at anti-noise by-laws, the same as it has laughed at all obstacles down through the ages. This was clearly illustrated a few nights ago when a reporter saw a young man drive up to the Y.W.C.A. shortly after the supper hour presumably to meet his sweetheart. Instead of honking the auto horn and disturbing the neighborhood in defiance of the anti-noise bylaw, the young man merely pointed a spotlight at a third storey window, then switched the light on and off three or four times. In a few minutes the young lady walked out the door, having observed the pre-arranged signal and the romance continued. —McG.

ONOMATOPOEIA.

Dr. Don Holdcroft of Havelock, is convinced there is no justice in the world. Last night his daughter Betty was entered in the Kiwanis Spelling Bee and was sailing along like a college professor until she drew the word onomatopoeia, the most difficult word of all that were on the list. She made an effort to spell it but failed and shortly after tripped on the word philosophy. After her Dad had examined the word he said: "If I had known Betty had to tackle a word like that I certainly would not have driven twenty-five miles." The word appears in the seventh grade reader.—MG.

Action Started To Set Aside L. Humber's Will

An action to set aside the will of the late Lorenzo F. Humber, foreman moulder, has been entered in the Surrogate Court of the County of Peterborough by Mrs. Eva Seymour, his daughter and only child, on the allegations of undue influence and mental incapacity, at the time the will was executed.

The will, which is being contested, is dated June 21, 1938, and the plaintiff contends that in an earlier will, her late father bequeathed his entire estate, totalling more than $10,000 to her. She was cut off with nominal sum of one dollar in the last will.

The will bequeathed to Mrs. Jenny Snelgrove, wife of Robert Snelgrove, barber, all the household effects, furniture, clothing, and jewelery and the house at No. 8 Argyle street in Peterborough, with the condition that Mrs. Snelgrove is to pay the sum of $1,500 to the executors at the rate of $22 a month. This money is to be used for taxes, repairs on this same house and the balance to be used for payment of the debts, funeral expense, etc., of the late Lorenzo Humber.

Two houses at 814 and 816 Water street are left to Mrs. Emma Humber, wife of his brother now deceased. Mrs. Emma Humber has since died also. The terms of the will set forth that Mrs. Humber is also to pay the sum of $1,500 to the executors to cover repairs to the houses bequeathed to her.

Dion Snelgrove, son of Robert Snelgrove, is left the house situated at 10 Argyle street, along with the summer cottage and lot in Smith Township. He is to pay $1,500 to the executors.

Eva Seymour, daughter of the late Mr. Humber and wife of Fred Seymour is given one dollar in the will.

After his debts have been paid tombstones put up and other minor details attended to, the residue from the payment mentioned above is to be divided equally between Dion Snelgrove, Mrs. Jennie Snelgrove, his mother, and Mrs. Emma Humber.

W. B. Gordon is acting for Mrs. Seymour, and T. J. Carley, K.C., for the executors of the estate.

FAST WORK.

Ross Payne gave customers a demonstration on the fine points of high speed alteration service last night when he had three men install seven 2-person booths and rearrange the other booths in his restaurant without interrupting the regular busines. He also retained a special booth for the accommodation of the coffee club which seats ten persons. The changes increase the capacity of the shop considerably.

Girls Down Boys Spelling Bee Of Kiwanis Club

Girls showed marked superiority at the P.C.I. auditorium last night as group champions were named in the Kiwanis Spelling Bee. In two divisions with three winners named in each there was not one boy who reached the top bracket, three girls taking top honors in the rural group and three more of the fair sex surviving in the rural-urban section with pupils from villages and the suburban area of Peterborough competing.

The pupils showed so much ability it was 11 o'clock before winners were declared in the two sections. Winners in the city section comprising 30 pupils will be determined at the start of the competition Saturday night, then the nine group winners will match ability for the spelling championship of Peterborough County.

Nine pupils took part from the rural schools and after an hour three girls were left. Peggy Longmuir of Belmont turned in a perfect performance and with Lois Wright of Keene and Dorothy White of Bridgenorth moves up into the finals. Other competitors in this section were Joseph Welsh, Hazel Forsythe, Mima Moore, Kathleen Casey, Everitt Bolton, Vera Irwin.

Reached Finals.

Twenty-four pupils from eight schools in villages and on the outskirts of this city faced the microphone in the second section. Every pupil spelled at least four words all of which were taken from the seventh grade reader. No child was given the same word as any other contestant, and two errors eliminated a contestant. The final results after more than an hour and a half of effort showed Lakefield public school with two representatives. Mabel Hopkins and Jacqueline Morin, the other pupil from this school, Audrey Patterson was one of the last to trip on a word. Yvonne Graham of Young's Point public school was the other successful pupil.

The following took part but failed to reach the finals, Ross Jobe, Harold MacTavish and Ernest Eggleton, Omemee; Victor Allen, Burnis Kemble, and Don Thurston, Bobcaygeon; Addie McNaughton and Quenton Bullock, Young's Point; Ormie Hayes, Joy Nice and Pearl Henry, May's School; Muriel Adams, Gordon Moore and Walter Dummitt, Confederation school; Dorothy Scott, John Evans and Betty Holdcroft, Havelock; Pauline Godin, Gerald Longhurst, Yvonne Johnston, Norwood.

The pupils drew numbers from a box which were then announced as the pupil took his turn, and Leo Copp, school inspector told the pupil what the word was, which must be spelled. If necessary he defined the word or used it in a sentence. The pupil then wrote the word, and spelled it through the microphone. Dick Lush, veteran entertainer and announcer held the mike for the pupils and had every contestant at their ease with his whispered words of encouragement and pleasant manner.

Three Judges.

J. E. Sullivan of the Separate school board, R. F. Downey and Keith S. Wightman, school inspectors were the judges. All three had lists of the words and if an error was made in the spelling any of the three would flash a red light which was located on the desk in front of Leo Copp.

The audience of more than four hundred showed their appreciation in a splendid manner and Leonard Foster was master of ceremonies.

Fred Johnston, chairman of the special committee from the Kiwanis club to handle the spelling match had the final say in all matters of dispute and with Jacob Low and Carl S. Browne kept the candidates moving to and from the microphone.

On a few occasions the judges flashed the red light as soon as a candidate made a mistake in the word and before the spelling had been completed. This was believed by some of the spectators to make the pupil nervous, and a few suggested that the light should not be flashed until the spelling was completed.

All of the words used in the contest were taken from the seventh grade reader and a few of them were quite unusual. One in particular which Betty Holdcroft of Havelock had the misfortune to draw was the word, "onomatopeia" which means the formation of words to resemble the sounds made by the thing signified, for instance the word buzz which was invented to describe the sound made by a bee. Seneschal was another difficult word. It means a house superintendent of the Middle Ages who supervised feasts and domestic ceremonies. The remainder of the words put to the pupils were comparatively common. Following are a few which tripped the candidates. Bell-buoy, principal, rummaged, solicitor, victuals, heifer, tenacious, predicament, symmetry, immemorial, philosophy, provocation, stealthily, paralysed, condescension, collarette, prodigiously, scimitar, collateral, muslin, villainous, delinquent, repertoire, lucifer, ambiguity, flurriedly, tenacious, embroidered and scabbard.

L. J. Pettit, president of the Kiwanis club voiced a warm welcome to the parents and pupils. He said a service club is merely an agency through which a community carries out certain work which cannot be shoved on to a government. "We feel we are merely dispensers of your generosity." He lauded Fred Johnston for the infinite pains he had taken in organizing the match and also thanked Leo Copp, R. F. Downey and Frank Paterson, Dept. of Agriculture representative for their assistance.

Music was provided during intermissions by the Collegiate orchestra under the leadership of Albert J. Weames, of the teaching staff, Sylvia Duignan, talented young dancer and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Duignan delighted the audience with an exhibition of tap dancing, and Miss Olga Westbye gave a vocal solo. Miss Merrill Smith played the accompaniment.

He Learned English

VANCOUVER, Dec. 10 (CP) — Roger Boisvert, 18, of Drummondville, Que., is looking for a job today after completing a 3,000-mile trip by foot and automobile from his home town to the Pacific coast. He said he couldn't speak a word of English when he left Drummondville July 12 with his 20-year-old brother, Roland.

Now he can converse in English—with only occasional reference to the dictionary he carries for emergencies. Roland decided to return home when they reached Winnipeg.

Pot Luck Dinner Features Institute Session

WARKWORTH, Dec. 10.—Mrs. Lorne Evans opened her home for a special W.I. meeting on Wednesday at which Mrs. Evans and Mrs. Goney as leaders for the new project on "Buymanship" were introduced.

Some good ideas were taken up and samples of good materials made from cotton, wool and linens were shown. Ways and means of telling good materials from poorer quality were outlined. It wa sall interesting and helpful in buying.

About fifty members and friends enjoyed a pot luck dinner. The menu consisted of chicken pie, salads, jellies, potatoes, rolls, tarts. It was so successful that members are planning another one at some future date. During the lectures, community singing was enjoyed and a pleasant as well as educational afternoon was enjoyed.

The proceeds of the dinner amounted to more than six dollars. It was very gratifying as only the small fee of 10 cents was charged for this sumptuous dinner.

Canadian Slate On Market With Byproduct

Canadian Slate Products Company at Madoc is marketing a new by-product under the trade name of "Gets-U-Out." This fine slate grit lends itself to various uses, especially as a traction aid for automobiles on icy surfaces. The name was inspired by experience last winter when two Peterborough cars slid off the frozen, rain-sprinkled pavement, one into a shallow ditch and the other onto the nearby shoulder in stopping to help the first one in trouble. One of the men had a coffee tin of the grit in his car for just such an emergency. He sprinkled a few handfulls in front of each of the rear wheels of the two cars, and in a few minutes they were on the way home.

Three cars of "Get-U-Out" were recently sold to dealers in Toronto Ottawa and Hamilton; half a car to Belleville and it is expected that a full car will be forwarded to Sudbury next week. This Madoc grit, it is said, does not readily wash off the pavement, and is recommended for spreading on icy steps and sidewalks around the house. It was used in a recent emergency of slippery surface at the Toronto motor show where it helped stopped cars as if they were being braked on a surface of emery paper.

"Gets-U-Out" is packed in 15-pound bags, and is cheap enough for every motorist to carry a supply. There are 4,000 of these bags in a car load.

CANADIAN BOYS TRAVEL SOUTH OF FLORIDA TO PLAY HOCKEY

Ready To Start Ice Hockey South Florida

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Dec. 10.—(AP)—You can drive out Coral way from Miami tonight, past streets lined with royal palms, rubber trees, hibiscus hedges and coconut palms to the new ice palace and witness the first ice hockey game in South Florida.

The Miami Clippers are pitted against the Miami Beach Pirates. Tomorrow night the other two teams of the Tropical League meet—the Coral Gables Seminoles and the Havana Tropicals.

After the opening, three games a week will be played until a 48-game season ends April 2. The boys, dressed not in bathing suits but in regulation hockey rigs, play on ice that is kept frozen by an underlayer of refrigerating pipes. The rink is of regulation size.

Harry Taber, managing director of the enterprise, is frank in telling you that members of the Miami team for instance, are not from Miami. Nor the Havana team from Havana. Most of the players are from Canada.

But the director, excited over inaugurating ice hockey in the semi-tropics, pridefully points to the coaching staff and players and asserts the games will be as full of action as any seen anywhere.

Bullet Joe Simpson, former manager of New York Americans, is coach for the Clippers. The Pirates have Stan Jackson, formerly with Boston Bruins, as coach. The Tropicals have Jerry Page, former director of hockey for the Catholic Youth organization in Chicago, and the Seminoles have Mike Goodman, pion and once with Duluth in the former Canadian skating cham-American Association.

Sarnia Scribe Hints At Argos

Red Wilson of the Sarnia Observer again hints at the ineligibility of one of Toronto Argos' players—and it was rumored before the Argos-Imperial playoff that the Imps might protest this player, though the matter was finally dropped. Wilson writes:

Canadian Rugby Union officials, who appear to be busy pulling chestnuts out of the fire for the Argos, will pass on Middle Wing Gainor's right to play in the playdowns next Saturday. The activity that barred Canadian-born Henry Living from the C.R.U. playdowns has been traced to its source and the same band of Toronto sportsmen are likely behind the Gainor incident. If other clubs were so actuated with the will to win at any cost there might be something doing about at least one Argonaut start who is reported to have been leaving Toronto for his United States home right after the football season and returning again in the fall. He was, they further claim, so late getting back into Canada this year that he didn't get into any of the pre-season drills. The way they get around it is a room in Toronto he never occupies. But a Canadian-born Hi Living with no thought of cutting any corners or shyster evasion of flimsy residence rules, is barred by a body who should know all about the real conniving contraventions right on their own doorstep.

Hogtown Cry

There's nothing that can be done about it until such time as the gang from the provinces use their voting power to dislodge the clique that has been running things for the larger benefit and glory of Toronto. As long as we sit and take what they hand us just so long will they hand it to us.

The only bright thing about Saturday's game in Toronto is the fact that the showing the Imperials made against Argos will take a lot of the burden of explanation from the shoulders of the handful who saw Peterborough Orfuns win that 3-2 decision.

Toronto Man Bowls 1,143 In 3 Games To Set New Record

TORONTO, Dec. 10.—Bill Bromfield, five-pin bowling's "old master," first player in Canada ever to achieve a perfect score, clicked again last night for a 450 possible and rolled an unofficial world's record count of 1,143 for three games. The perfect score was rolled at Karry's Teraulay street alley during a friendly match and came seventeen years after his first success, achieved in 1921. Bromfield had three-game scores of 363, 450, 330 for his 1,143.

The official world record of 1,087 is held by Jack Walsh, also of Toronto, and was made at the Canadian Bowling Association's 1937 spring tournament. Because Bromfield's three games were not rolled in league or tournament competition, it is not likely he will receive recognition for his feat. The first game of five pins ever to top the 400 mark—but not reach possible figures—was turned in by Alfie Shrubb, famous English middle distance runner, in 1918. In 1921, on a Toronto alley, Bromfield became the first man in the Dominion to hit perfect figures.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Well, Mac, what with the weather developing a Florida complex this week they aint much local sport and we gotta wait for a freezeup to see what kinda hockey we're going to have this winter. The groupings has been arranged and the only thing what is holding us back is ice—or lack of it. Despite the boys what has gone hither and thither since last winter we promise to turn up with a pretty fair squad of hockey players in both junior and senior divisions, and we might have a lotta fun before the ides of March. This is 1 of them winters when the absence of a artificial ice plant hits us a awful wallop. The towns with the modern arenas has been playing hockey for weeks and the game is already a old story and here we are without even a practice under our belts and Christmas only 2 weeks away.

Need It Bad.

We simply gotta do something about it neighbors. We gotta about everything else we need in the way of sport facilities but until we get artificial ice we might as well admit that we are well in behind the eight ball so far as winter sports is concerned.

Well, Mac, as I am writing this Fri. I'm entitled to a shot at guessing the winner of the football final and I'm calling the Argos to come through to cop the Dominion honors for the 2nd season in a row. I'm willing to concede the Westerners has a lot of speed, power and class and that it will take a great team to beat them.

They're a Great Gang.

The Argos however is a great team, a gang that has a wealth of speed and deception, the best down field tackling brigade in the game, the greatest bunch of ball hawks Canadian football has seen in years and they got the team spirit, the old college try that makes them tough to lick. On top of that the Bombers will hafta play under rules they aint familiar with and after being idle for nearly a month. So Mister Hayman's boys should come through and grab the gravy. And incidentally the same Mister Hayman rates at least 1 orchid. He has given Eastern football 1 of the most colorful teams in history and done a lot to popularize the game and get it away from the old 2 bucks and kick stuff. The publick just loves that razzle-dazzle hipper-dipper brand and the Argos serve it to them hot.

Well, old timer, I suppose you're up to your ears in this Christmas shopping stuff. If you are you must have discovered the same as me that while they aint succeded in completely Americanizing Canadian football, when it comes to the bargain counters and hitting the line for Christmas presents they allow unlimited interference all over the shop. And don't get fooled, Mac, it aint the big husky men what do the most blocking. Them little women can sure clip hard when it comes to a line play in front of a counter of 79 cents shirts.

Well, Mac, that is about the end of the trail for the week so tallyho.

Sportfully yours
A. WSE CRACKER.

Millbrook Club Visits Lindsay

MILLBROOK, Dec. 10.—Approximately twenty members of the Millbrook Garrison Badminton Club motored to Lindsay on Thursday evening and enjoyed some friendly games with the club of that town; the local players leading in the men's competition, and in the mixed doubles, but taking second place in the games between the lady players.

The invitation was extended by the men of the Lindsay club, who have but recently reorganized after having virtually given up the play for the past two or three years, and they promised a keener competition at the next friendly interchange of visits.

On behalf of the president of the Garrison Club, Howard Lancashire, who was unable to be present, Ivan L. H. Gray voiced the appreciation of the Millbrook members for the pleasant evenin gafforded through the hospitality of the Lindsay club, and stated he would leave it with Mr. Lancashire to arrange for a return visit. Following the evening's play, the hostess club served a dainty lunch in the officers' mess room upstairs in the Armouries before the visitors left for home, the heavy mist making driving hazardous for the return journey.

Those going to Lindsay included Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Allen; Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kennedy; Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Howard; Dr. J. W. and Mrs. Wright; Mrs. Donald Tinney; Mrs. H. D. Bigelow; Misses Betty Montgomery and Ruth Thorndyke; and Messrs. William Edworthy, Henry Raper, Keith Chiles, Ivan Grey, Robert Cathcart, and Owen McCarthy.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Bill Calladine writes home that he and Ned Vitarelli are getting along okay with the Baltimore Orioles, in second place now in the U.S. eastern amachoor loop. Bill has put on six pounds and, if he keeps it up, the streamlined Willie (as Knotty Lee used to call him) will be actually plump come spring! He writes that Peterborough folks wouldn't know Ned the way he's improved—fairly flying in his race for the scoring leadership of the league. The fiery little Italian is quite popular with Baltimore fans, who nearly ripped down the place a short time ago when a goal scored by Ned was called back. Coach Pick Hines is also quite popular with players and customers, and Goalie Bob Forster of Oshawa is doing a noble job guarding the cord citadel for the Orioles. Bill and Ned will be home for a few days on the 18th.

O.H.A. executive committee plans to enforce clean play this winter, a bulletin states. Coaches and players are liable to suspension for rough tactics, they tell us, and referees have been advised to get tough with birds doing high-sticking and slashing on arms, hands or body. Major pnalties for those who start fights, and misconduct penalties to subs who hop the boards to join in a melee. Three majors to a gee in one season may mean his suspension. Managers and coaches are urged to warn the players that they must play clean hockey or they won't be permitted to play at all. Play clean or else....

* * * * * *

Let's Avoid Injuries

We are heartily in accord with the O.H.A. ultimatum, and feel that it is a matter of all-around control and interest. It's up to coaches and players first, but also up to the fans to act as reasonable as possible and not get too hostile. And it's certainly up to referees. With the press not always guiltless, either. High-sticking is very dangerous and no one wants to see amateur players injured, possibly to the extent of losing an eye. Hard slashing and body-checking against the boards should also rate a penalty, as well as a fight or a deliberate trip. But we still believe that referees should overlook accidental trips and not be too tough on charges—allow the defender to take two strides and hit the puck-carrier then hard but clean. Referees must use judgment and penalize quickly when it's really deserved, but overlook minor infractions often.

* * * * * *

Says the Quinte columnist: "Sandy Burrows presented Larry Goyer's application for re-instatement to the amateur hockey world in the O.H.A. at the annual provincial puck meeting and today received word that Goyer's aplication had been favorably received by the O.H.A. and recommended for reinstatement to the C.A.H.A. and the A.A.U. of C. If the O.H.A. looked favorably upon Goyer's application and recommended it, we see no reason why the higher-ups should subsequently refuse to grant it." And he goes on to point out that the ex-pro would be a big help to the Belleville Redmen on a wing position this winter, the club having already added Cy Barriage and Speedy St. Louis to look kinda dangerous to the shrunken Petes.

* * * * * *

Why Not Lornie Rose?

But we are glad to read this as it may see a return of Lornie Rose to amateur ranks with the Petes. Since Lornie also applied at that time and, if Goyer gets re-instated this late in the season, there is no reason why Rose shouldn't—both having been out of pro the prescribed three years. If Lorne has occasional flashes of his once-brilliant puck ability, he would aid the Petes a lot. Veterans sometimes look pitiful in a belated comeback — pitiful in comparison to their peak—but Lornie might still have a lotta hockey in him, like Brennan had last winter for our gang.

* * * * * *

Comes word this morn that the O.H.A. has revised a few of the groupings and classifications. Nothing affecting groups up this way except that five of the eight junior squads in our district are rated as of "C" instead of "B" category. Adding Port Hope and Cobourg to the "C" squads of Bowmanville, Lindsay and the local Monarchs. Which leaves our Colts, Whitby and Oshawa as the "B" teams. Since there is little difference in the calibre of play and with all games counting as wins and losses—and playoffs according to where teams finish—this "B" and "C" stuff means nothing until after group playoffs are over, when playdown paths beckon.

* * * * * *

Madder Than Wet Hens

When seen this morning the Vice-President in Charge of the Second Hose for Flooding Purposes at the Brock St. rink was rather morose. All he had to say was: "!X&¼K$&$!!!" Which, freely translated, means: "Well, what the blinkety-blank can I do in the way of manufacturing ice when the weather is semi-tropical?" It was a painful subject, so we left him to his mumblings. All is at a standstill for the present regarding puck workouts and even the skiers, who will settle for a smattering of snow, aren't flashing their gold-filled molars in engaging grins these days.

* * * * * *

Church Hockey League officers are hoping for a big turnout at their annual re-organization meeting at seven Monday eve in the "Y", as time is a-tearing and there will be ice sometime surely. Reading of reports, election of officers, entr yof teams and general seasonal plans will comprise the business and each club should be represented. Sec. Charlton has sent out 35 invitation letters for the session. One bright spot is the likelihood of a real revival in the junior section—the Junior City Loop not operating at the Brock this winter—and St. Paul's, All Saints and George St. seem sure entries there. Mark St. and St. John's should have some good material for this division, also. Ah, weel, let's go, gang!

Given Medal

United States seaman Clark Wyley, of the Uruguay, one of the Americans'/"Good Neighbor Fleet," is pictured with a gold medal presented him by the stevedores of Rio de Janeiro for saving the life of one of their comrades. Wyley also received a gilt replica of an early model ship, the privilege of entering Brazil at will, and the guarantee of a job for life.

On Thursday night Reg Dyer gave the bowling fraternity another sparkling exhibition of his skill in kicking over the maple pins. After a preliminary 762 warm-up in the City League, Reg moved over into the midnight C.G.E. loop and had no trouble in reeling off a string of 263, 331 and 281 to mark up the night's high three, 865. All told it was a hectic evening as fifty-three men made the pin boys hop when they trundled over the 600 mark, twelve of these in figures above 700. Fred Martin topped the City Leaguers with 782, Dyer's 762 was next, Ab Delahaye flattened the highest single, 356, in his 729; Frank Wood 722, Nels Routley 719, Roy Lewis 713 and Art Mattuci 709, while E. R. Taylor knocked off 739 (308) for the Bankers and A. Barnes 749, C. O'Donnell 731, Joe Marsden 705 and "Lefty" Kearns 703 for the C.G.E.

The other consistent hitters for the evening were, for the Bankers: Gibb 681, Tugby 672, Colley 622 and Brown 602. The 6.30 C.G.E. had J. Barry with 694, P. Pryde 658, J. Brady 650, F. Doris 650, O. Taylor 644, B. Fleming 634, R. Mason 624, W. Westran 622, J. Mitchell 624 and H. Winterbottom 614.

When the last C.G.E. league finished Harold Darling had 698, H. Vass 697, Chuck Kearns 681, V. Shaughnessy 662, D. Abraham 660, T. Martin 646, G. Miles 645, H. Galley 636, E. Johnston 624, J. Playford 617, C. Cox 616, T. Miller 608, J. Jones 606, R. Pilling 601.

For the Bell Telephone girls, Murial Carson rolled off 2 games for 323, Dot Milburn 303, Martha Belkia 302, Orma Ristow 284 and Gertrude Lemmings 281.

REMEMBER WHEN

Toronto St. Patrick's, paced by the two-goal performance of Jack Adams—now manager of Detroit Red Wings in the National Hockey League—defeated Ottawa 6-3 at the capital 14 years ago tonight. The same night Montreal Canadiens defeated Maroons 5-0 in Maroons' first N.H.L. appearance.

Letter To End Unsigned Ones

When Bill Walshe of the Kingston Whig-Standard recently panned too rabid fans for mixing in fights on the ice during games, he received a hostile letter which was unsigned. In an effort to be fair, Bill published the attack but then ran this letter to end all anonymous letters. Says the Kingston scribe:

The following letter was received in reply to the anonymous letter regarding hockey and reports of games published last Saturday. It should end all further comment; especially with writers who do not sign their names.

"Once upon a time I read a book, written by Stanley Walker, no doubt known to you as city editor of the New York Herald Tribune. In describing a certain terse forthright editorial style, Mr. Walker gave as an example the following three sentences: "Joe Doakes was a rat yesterday. Mr. Doakes is a rat today. Joe Doakes will be a rat tomorrow." Mr Doakes is a fictitious character; Joe Doakes has a crisp sound although something less than euphonious. Obviously to substitute for it the phrase 'anonymous letter writer' would destract from brevity of the text regardless of descriptive accuracy.

"Your anonymous 'Courageous Critic', herinafter referred to as such, wrote a most interesting letter. Quite evidently Courageous Critic approved of the mob tactics, employed by a certain group of fans. He cites a broken arm and an (in his opinion) inefficient referee as sufficient cause for the rowdy antics on the night in question.

Like Nazis

"A specious philosophy that and yet oddly familiar, especially if pursued to its logical conclusions. Two evenly matched teams started a fight; therefore a group of partisan supporters automatically earned the right to swarm on the ice to 'restore peace.' Recent articles in the German press have presented the same theory.

"There may be a suggestion that Courageous Critic was a member of the heroic horde which so gallantly vaulted the barrier at the Jock Harty arena—secure in the anonymity of the mob. One would perhaps have thought him content to rest securely upon the laurels gained by this intrepid act. But no, not Courageous age flared upward as he grasped his Critic. The white flame of his courpen to deplore the visceral deficiency of your paper's sports department.

"For a man to complain of lack of courage in a document to which he lacks enough of that commodity to sign his name is surely anamalous to the n'th degree. You will note that my name is signed—also a non de plume. Please use the latter. In a sudden fine frenzy of courage Courageous Critic might stab me in the back when I had my arms full if he knew my identity.—ELMER."

Examiner Correspondence

Officers Elected At Centreville

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CENTREVILLE, Dec. 10. — Mrs. Norman Breckenridge was hostess at the annual business meeting of the Women's Missionary Society and the Ladies' Aid of Centreville Presbyterian Church on Wednesday afternoon, over thirty being present.

The president of the W.M.S., Mrs. Dawson Rutherford, presided and conducted the devotional exercises, after which Miss Evelyn Donaldson read the Scripture, which narrated the birth of Christ. Each member of the society responded to the roll call with a text of Scripture. It was agreed to have a joint meeting of the W.M.S. and the Mission Band in March.

Mrs. John Gainer, treasurer of the W.M.S., reported receipts for the year $197.80, and in addition a bale of clothing and contributions amounting to $28.60.

Mrs. Willis Hall, leader of the Mission Band, reported receipts $26.19. The junior certificate given by Mrs. Ewart and Miss Harvey of Cobourg was presented to Miss Robina Tate, who has been president since the society was organized.

Mrs. James Whittington, secretary of the W.M.S., stated there were 9 regular meetings, with an average attendance of 22.

There were two thankoffering meetings, when there were special guest speakers.

The following officers were elected for 1939: Hon. President, Mrs. James McGill; President, Mrs. Dawson Rutherford; Hon. Vice-Presidents, Mrs. D. N. Dodds and Mrs. Robert Deyell; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. Clifford Hall; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. Thomas Skitch; 3rd Vice-President, Mrs. Harold Tate; 4th Vice-President, Mrs. Howard Breckenridge; Secretary, Mrs. James Whittington; Assistant Secretary, Mrs. Karl Huggins; Treasurer, Mrs. John Gainer; Organist, Miss Gwen Hutchison; Assistant Organist, Mrs. O. B. Johnston; Glad Tidings Secretary, Mrs. Russell Bonner; Welcome and Welfare Secretaries, Mrs. O. B. Johnston, Mrs. D. Rutherford and Mrs. D. N. Dodds; Auditors, Mrs. Willis Hall and Miss Evelyn Donaldson.

Ladies' Aid Session.

The Ladies' Aid Society held their business meeting at same time. The president, Mrs. John Gainer, presided. The treasurer, Mrs. Harold Tate, reported receipts $340.14, expenditures $176.48, leaving balance on hand of $163.66.

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. John Gainer; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. Roy Greer; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. Russell Bonner; Secretary, Miss Geraldine White; Assistant Secretary, Miss Grace Johnston; Treasurer, Mrs. Harold Tate; Auditors, Mrs. Russell Bonner and Miss Grace Johnston.

The meeting closed with hymn and Lord's Prayer, after which dainty refreshments were served.

President Starts National Flurry In Scrambled Eggs

New York, Dec. 10 (CP) A BOOM in scrambled-eggs-for-breakfast eaters—alarming to pastry dealers—was reported today by metropolitan restauranteurs as a result of President Roosevelt's announcement that this was his favorite breakfast dish.

The president told undergraduates of the University of North Carolina in a recent address that although they "may have heard for the past six years that I breakfasted every morning on a dish of 'grilled millionaire', actually for my breakfast I am a devotee of scrambled eggs."

The proprietor of a down-town cafeteria said consumption of scrambled eggs had almost doubled.

"They have a name for it already—they holler for a 'president's special.'

Going To Tell Hitler What She's Thinks

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 10.—Mrs. Eliza Abernethy has decided she will write Hitler and tell him what she thinks of his persecution of the German Jews. She doesn't like the German dictator and is not certain whether a letter of this kind would do any good or not.

Mrs. Abernethy who celebrates her 84th birthday today (Saturday) has been a resident of Campbellford for the past 69 years and along with but few others still living she can remember when the West side of the town consisted of only a dozen houses. She set said with her family on board the Atlas out of Liverpool, England when she was 15. It took 28 days to get to Montreal and recalling the fact that the boat had to turn back once when 20 miles from port on account of a storm and says that they were lost three times on the way over she declares, "I never liked the water since."

She was married in the Methodist parsonage in Hastings on February 4th, 1879 at the same spot where since one son and a granddaughter have been married. The old adage of early to bed was not borne out during her life for she claims she usually stayed up until 12 o'clock. Her husband who died eight years ago at the age of 73 was however an early riser and as a result she used to get up early too. "He used to be sitting in the barn door waiting for the sun to come up," she stated.

Enjoys Fine Health.

Enjoying the finest health she spends most of her time in sewing and crocheting such things as collar and cuff sets which she will give to members of her family for Christmas. Many of her happiest hours are spent in reading the Bible she claims and never a day passes that she does not read a few chapters. Nor is her reading confined to this alone. She is an ardent reader of current books and a student of world affairs daily watching the trend of events and maintaining a keen interest in every new European crisis. She will spend the day quietly at the home of her son Mr. William J. Abernethy, Hastings Road. Nine children, William J., Harry, Ernest, all of town and Fred, Killam, Alta.; James of Entwistle, Alta.; Carl of Port Dover; Herbert of Toronto; Mrs. Mabel Hoag of East Aurora, N.Y.; and Mrs. Elsie Roe, Guelph; as well as 18 grandchildren and seven great grandchildren join in sending her congratulations. She is an ardent reader of the Peterborough Examiner.

HEAVY FIELD EXPECTED FOR ARGOS-BLUE BOMBER RUGBY FINAL

Overnight Rains Will Make Muddy Footing

TORONTO, Dec. 10 (C.P.). — Overnight rains made for heavy, probably muddy footing this afternoon as Toronto Argonauts defend their Dominion football supremacy on the turf of Varsity Stadium. There was prospect of snow before the Scullers will be called to meet the challenge and pride of the West, Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

But the temperature should be mild at game time and the intersectional classic will draw close to 20,000 fans. Western bettors continue to show confidence in their champions and when the starting whistle blows at 2 p.m. EST, most of the wagering will be at even money. Estimates are that nearly $30,000 will change hands.

Gainor Eligible.

The Bombers, cheered by the last-minute ruling of the Canadian Rugby Union, declaring their great middle-winger, Martin Gainor, eligible for the tussle, moved into Toronto from the training grounds at nearby Oakville early to-day.

In the camp of the champions who defeated the Bombers 4-3 on the same field last year, the news about Gainor, previously declared ineligible under the residence rule, caused little stir. The Oarsmen were not worried about the havoc Westerners claimed the former University of North Dakota defensive star would throw into their ranks.

Everything pointed to a mighty struggle between two clubs boasting brilliant scoring records this season. In nine games, six scheduled and three playoff affairs, the Argos rolled up 192 points in crushing Eastern opposition. In 14 fixtures, including exhibitions against United States colleges, the Bombers aggregated 195 points.

Ace Scorers.

Much attention will be focussed on the ace scorers of the rival squads. Annis Stukus, versatile quarterback of the Argos, led the Interprovincial Union with 31 points and his running mates, Art West and Red Storey, counted 25 each.

Little Fritz Hanson, swivel-hipped speedster of the Bombers, who missed the first seven games of the schedule because of a pre-season injury, led his mates with 37 points. Only four points behind was the giant, Greg Kabat, the team's placement kicker.

If big Bob Isbister is in form the Argos are conceded a wide edge in kicking. The champions should also carry a margin on lateral-passing plays, a feature the Bombers will hesitate to attempt, such an attack not being feasible under Western 10-yard interference rules. The quick change-oover to the C.R.U. code is expected to handicap the big Blue team..

Giants And Packers To Meet In Final

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—Close to 60,000 fans will bank themselves in the Polo Grounds tomorrow to watch New York Giants and Green Bay (Wisconsin) Packers fight it out for the championship of the National Professional Football League.

It is the season's real "Sugar" bowl game, with the players of the contending teams splitting 60 per cent of the gate receipts and the respective owners also doing well for themselves.

Each member of the winning side will realize something like $600 while the losing gladiators will pocket about $400 apiece.

The game is regarded as a toss-up, despite the fact that the Giants gave the western division champions a thorough going-over on their last visit here.

New Kid Line For Pros In Goodyears

TORONTO, Dec. 10.—(CP)—Professional scouts looking for a new kid line might do worse than drop in one of these nights when Toronto Goodyears are performing in an Ontario Hockey Association game.

If they haven't already been sopken for, Hank Goldup, George Imlach and Don Metz may be the answer. They showed just about everything in Toronto last night as Bob Ecclestone's Goodyears scalped Brantford Indians 8-2 in a Senior "A" tilt.

The win left the undefeated and untied Goodyears far ahead in the league race with five victories for 10 points. At Niagara Falls, the Falls Brights and Port Colborne Sailors could do no better than an overtime 2-2 tie. The draw lifted Ports and Brights into a second-place tie with St. Catharines, each with six points.

Claimed 11 Points

Just up from junior ranks, Goldup and Imlach accounted for 11 scoring points again the Brants, cellar occupants of the six-team circuit. Metz, who tried out with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League this season, snared two assists.

Most prolific scorer was Goldup who blasted through the Indian rearguard for five goals and an assist. His centre, Imlach, scored two goals and earned three assists as the lightning line showed the best Senior O.H.A. form of the season. Teddy Manorek, rearguard, shot the other tally.

Brantford's goals came in the first and third periods Keith Cooper and Ossie Storor were the marksmen.

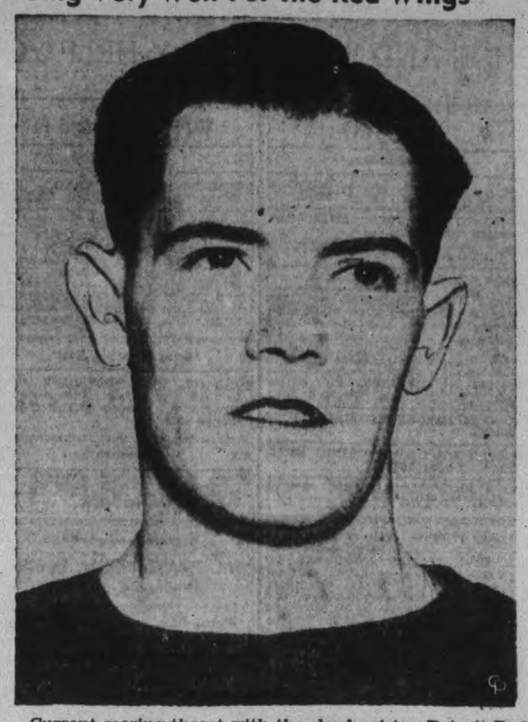
Goodyears outplayed the disorganized Brants by a large margin. Had it not been for the sensational work of Ted Beatty in the visitors' nets, Goodyears might have doubled the figure. The gallant Beatty was credited with 59 saves, while Harry McQuesten in the Toronto twine had but 21 stops.

Join Team Next Week.

Cliff Chisholm, forward, and Red Dunne, formerly of Hamilton Tigers, did not appear with the Brants as expected. They will join the team next week.

A lazy drive by old Goney McGowan from outside the blue line trickled into the Falls' nets to give Port Colborne their 2-2 draw. The fluke goal came in the second period with Brights leading 2-1. Lloyd Fitzgerald scored the other Sailor goal. Jack Dyte and Morrison netted for the homesters.

Doing Very Well For the Red Wings



Current scoring threat with the slowly-rising Detroit Red Wings in the National League is Eddie Wares, ABOVE, youthful left wing star, who has been one of the brighter touches to Jack Adams' picture of gloom. In their last four games the Wings have scored seven goals and of these Eddie has been responsible for four. He hails from Calgary and was formerly a shot-putter of renown, his present station in life being left wing on Adams' youngest line, centred by Alex. Motter with Carl Liscombe on right wing.

Havelock Defeats Hastings Club In Badminton Round Robin

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Dec. 10. — Visiting members of the Hastings Badminton Club were defeated by the Havelock Club Thursday evening, in a friendly round-robin tournament here, the latter players winning 12 of the 20 games played. The local players held the advantage in the mixed doubles with eight victories in 12 games. Superior play of the Hastings ladies however, who won three out of four in the ladies' doubles, was offset by that of the Havelock men who also won three of the four games played in the men's doubles. Play throughout the evening was very close and all games were keenly contested.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the games. The Havelock Badminton Club received an invitation from the visitors to a tournament in Hastings on Monday evening, December 12. Results of the play were as follows:

Ladies' Doubles.

Miss Marion Phillips and Miss Margaret McDonald of Hastings defeated Miss Edythe Russell and Miss Iva Smith of Havelock, 15-6; Miss Dorothy Kerr and Miss M. Case Of The Sleeping Cop Stalls At Sergeant —In Time To Save The Mayor

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP) Nine policemen from Brooklyn headquarters are back at their posts today but with the none too pleasant prospect of still having to explain to Police Commissioner Valentine how one could sleep on duty undetected by the other eight.

The nine cops, who made up the night detail Oct. 15 when 7,200 police records were stolen from the station files, appeared before a departmental court of inquiry Wednesday to answer charges of negligence of duty arising from the case of the "sleeping cop." The inquiry was postponed, however, pending disposal of a criminal case against Lieutenant Cuthbert Behan, charged with theft of the records.

Simplest of the departmental charges was against the cop who took the siesta. He had simply to explain sleeping on duty. The next in rank had to explain how the sleeper was not discovered. The rank above had to tell how it escaped his notice that the man below him didn't know the man below him was sleeping. Finally the sergeant had to face the charge to the ninth power—at which point it got confusing. It was not explained by police headquarters how the charge came to a full stop with the sergeant when logicaly it could have reached the mayor.

Unemployed Veterans Be Asked To Aid Police In Night Patrol

OSHAWA, Dec. 10—A plan whereby able bodied unemployed Oshawa war veterans would assist police on night patrols was presented to the police commission yesterday.

A letter from the Oshawa branch of the Canadian Legion, signed by Arthur Tierney, president, suggested that the Legion would pick the men. The "patrolmen" would not have the status of police constables and would not have authority to make arrests. They would merely patrol streets allotted to them from 10 at night until six in the morning.

In return residents would be asked to contribute 50 cents per month each to the man covering the neighborhood.

On a motion by Judge D. B. Coleman, chairman, the commission went on record as welcoming any move of such nature, but pointed out that the commission would take no part in the collection of the fees or guarantee such collections.

"It would be an excellent thing if it can be worked out," Chief Constable Owen D. Friend commented.

"Such a move is certainly in order in view of conditions at the present time," Magistrate Frank Ebbs remarked.

OBITUARY

HENRY NICKLE.

MADOC, Dec. 10.—The funeral of the late Henry Nickle of Manvers township was held on Wednesday afternoon from the home of his son, Morey Nickle in Madoc village.

The late Henry Nickle was suddenly taken ill while visiting at the home of his son William in Belleville and was removed to Belleville General Hospital for an immediate operation, to which he succumbed after a few days.

Mrs. Nickle was unable to attend the funeral services, being a patient in Belleville General Hospital from foot trouble. He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing wife and three sons, Morey of Madoc, William of Belleville, and Albert of Malone, and several grandchildren.

A brief service was held at Mr. Morey Nickle's home in Madoc by Rev. Mr. Hollingsworth of Marmora, his pastor, before leaving for Eldorado, where services were conducted at Fox's church. Interment was made in Fox's cemetery in the family plot.

Tunisian Arabs Back France

TUNIS, Tunisia, Dec. 10.—(AP).—Italian demonstrations spread westward through France's Arab Empire to-day as crack North African troops guarded the Tunisian-Libyan frontier.

Hundreds of mobile guards and mounted police patrolled the streets of Tunisian cities to prevent the demonstrators from getting out of hand.

In Algiers, Arab and French students took up the cry against the Italian campaign for Tunisia. Algiers is the capital of Algeria, French North African protectorate adjoining French-governed Tunisia.

Several thousand citizens joined the students who marched through the streets chanting "Sicily and Sardinia for France—Italy for the Negus."

Many leading Arab organizations sent signed statements to French authorities in Tunis declaring their opposition to the Italian campaign. Leaders of some of these groups declared that if Italy tried to seize Tunisia by force Arab tribes in Libya would revolt.

Police magistrates, sitting in Tunis, handed down true bills against four of the 12 demonstrators arrested Thursday, including three leaders of the Italian colony.

Ubaldo Rey, president of the Fascist Depolavoro Society and head of the Italian war veterans in Tunis, was formally charged with inciting race hatred.

Two other Italian Fascist leaders in Tunis, Luigi Spano and Catalanotti Francois, were charged with insulting policemen and resisting arrest.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

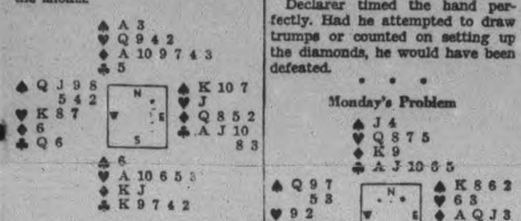
"The Authority on Authorities"

MOVE CINCERLY

THERE ARE HANDS which require delicate manipulation. The declarer who merely slambangs ahead with a run of trumps and then trying to set up a side suit, or who embarks upon a policy of trying to ruff out all of his losers, may take a licking. But the fellow who feels his way along, doing a little of this and a little of that, at just the right time in each case, can steer a safe zigzag course between the shoals.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable)

Four Hearts was South's final contract on this deal after an opening bid of 1-Heart, an overcall by West of 1-Spade, a bid of 3-Hearts by North, 3-Spades by East and 4-Hearts by himself.

The spade Q was led to dummy's A and the club 5 offered. East won with the A and returned the spade 8, which South ruffed. Next the club K and diamond K were cashed and the club 4 ruffed in dummy, covering West's heart 7 with the 9. The heart 2 was then led to the A and when the diamond J was played, West ruffed with the heart K. His spade J return was trumped with the heart 5 and followed by a club ruff in the North hand. The diamond A was played next, then the heart Q and a diamond ruffed with the heart 10.

Declarer timed the hand perfectly. Had he attempted to draw trumps or counted on setting up the diamonds, he would have been defeated.

Giant Drug Firm Suspected Hollow Balloon

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 — (CP). — Attorney General John Bennett of New York today started an investigation of McKesson and Robbins, Incorporated, $87,000,000 drug concern whose financial affairs were described by a director as "so fantastic we still can't believe them."

Bennett sent Max Furman and Joseph Ruggieri, assistant attorneys general, to confer with stock exchange officials to make inquiries among stock exchange firms to determine what action his office will take.

The drug concern went into federal receivership yesterday.

On the prominent drug company's own petition, federal judge John C. Knox appointed three trustees to direct the company's reorganization under the new federal Chandler act, which permits the S.E.C. participation with the authority of the court, which was granted.

An account of the "fantastic" circumstances which brought the $87,000,000 drug concern under the spotlight was given by two directors, W. L. Cummings and J. F. Thompson, in testimony Wednesday before the New York stock exchange committee on stock list. A transcript of this was released by the stock exchange.

Cummings and Thompson gave a minute account of the far flung operations of the company's crude drug department, in which falsification of books, mismanagement and waste were charged in the Hartford receivership action.

Just a Balloon?

"It may be the whole thing (the drug trading department) is just a hollow balloon, just a shell," Cummings told the stock exchange authorities. "There may be nothing there. That is the worst of the picture. There is no involvement of any other part of the business."

The department's assets were carried in the balance sheet at $17,000,000.

Another bizarre touch was given the testimony of the directors in their description of "warehouses" which handled business of the crude drug department, which primarily was a trading organization.

Millbrook Union Elects Officers

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 10. — The Young People's Union met in regular session on Tuesday evening, the Fellowship convener, Miss Delia Mae Sisco, being in the chair, with the following taking part in the devotional period, after the call to worship had been given by Jean Fisher: Mary Dawson, Elsie Theobald, Gordon Might, Elwood Fallis, Byron Foster, and the leader.

Cameron Elson read the lesson and Miss Sisco gave an instructive talk on "Living Creatively." The Christmas atmosphere was fittingly recognized by the reading of a Yuletide story by Phyllis Kidd, and Miss Sisco led in the recreational period.

The new slate of officers for 1939 who will assume their duties in January, includes: Honorary president, Rev. A. L. Sisco; president, Earl Edworthy; secretary, Leitha Edworthy; assistant, Byron Foster; treasurer, Gordon Might; Fellowship convener, Ken Kidd; assistant, Eleanor Bigelow; Citizenship Marjorie McDowell; assistant, Edna McKnight; Cultural, Dorothy Smith; assistant, Esther Might; dramatic B. B. Dawson; recreation, Beatrice McDowell; assistant, William Kerr; leadership training, Phyllis Kidd; publications, Jean Fisher; girls' work promotor, Jean Burnham; boys' work promotor, William Ridge.

Tokyo has added to its police force 74 junior members, over 16 and under 20 years of age, who will be assigned to indoor duty after two months of intensive training.

MORE ABOUT—

Worship Of State

A dramatic and spectacular race against time and weather preceded Eden's arrival in New York. The line Aquitania, which Eden and his party boarded a week ago, was delayed by fog and storms at sea. A special cutter met the ship and carried Eden to the Battery, from where a police escort rushed him to the Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

Gets Great Ovation.

Facing an American audience for the first time he was given an ovation which he described as "one I shall never forget."

Describing himself as "an average Englishman here only on a friendly visit and in nowise official," Eden said, "We must be constantly re-examining our political faith and applying it to the conditions of the modern world.

"Every political system, be it democratic or autocratic, must continually evolve, and in the last resource the survival of democracy must depend upon the faith which it inspires, and the results which, through faith, it can achieve."

"Democracy must have the strength of the best tempered steel, not rigid, but supple," he added. "It must have the strength of the highest form of discipline—self discipline."

Eden's remarks repeatedly were interrupted by applause as he lightened his defence of democracy with quips on the American revolution and English traditions.

"We in Britain know full well that we are no Paragons," he said laughingly. "If we happen to forget it a moment someone will be sure to remind us of it. We acknowledge of course that there are many chequered pages in our long history. One of the worst concerns our dealings with you 160 years ago."

Endless Emergency

In another vein, Eden said "we know we are destined, in our land and in our time and in our generation, to live in a period of emergency of which none can see the end."

"If throughout that testing time howsoever long or short it may be, we hold fast to our faith, cradle it in stone, and set steel to defend it, we can yet hand on our inheritance of freedom, intact to the generations that are to come."

Eden emphasized that "a false complacency is the worst calamity that can befall any nation in critical times."

"To realize then the extent of the challenge that confronts us, and to be conscious of our own shortcomings, are both necessary. But to be conscious of shortcomings is not to proclaim that we are faint hearted, still les sto suggest that we are decadent. Let me say this with all emphasis."

Speaking of "certain standards in which we believe and which we will not yield up," Eden said:

"In our conception, a modern democratic state must be based upon racial and religious toleration. Each citizen must enjoy individual liberty, all must be equal before the law. The rights of minorities and majorities alike must be honored and respected. These beliefs are, we are convinced, the basis of all progress. As an Englishman addressing this great American audience tonight, I tell you that these are the beliefs of our English people still, and that they will hold to them in the years that lie ahead."

Eden looked at the modern world as "vigorous and vital, but ruthless and challenging, a world where force is for many the only instrument of policy."

Always Preparing

"In such conditions we know that we must believe in ourselves to live. We know that we must champion our ideals and the faiths to which we hold with an equal strength, or others which we abhor will take their place.

We know that this endeavor to achieve democracy will once again tax our strength and our endurance to the uttermost. For all this in spirit we are preparing. Nor are we calling out for help to others, nor seeking to lure others to pull our chestnuts from the fire. We have no such intention."

Accompanying Eden on his first visit to this country were Mrs. Eden, Viscount and Viscountess

19 Miners Lose Their Lives In Nova Scotia Mine Disaster

Rescuers are shown here as they removed one of the victims of the Princess Colliery disaster from the depths of the mine. Nineteen miners lost their lives and a score were seriously injured when the cable operating a "man-rake," carrying 250 miners, broke, and allowed the loaded vehicle to crash down a steep incline to the bottom of the mine. Sydney Mines, in which town the colliery is located, went into mourning as preparations for the funerals of the victims were made.

Pierce Nicholson Acquitted By Jury

Pierce Nicholson, Union street, was acquitted by a jury of a serious offence involving his own daughter at the December sittings of the County Court. He was discharged by Judge L. V. O'Connor, who remarked the jury had arrived at a fair verdict.

The jury deliberated for two hours and 20 minutes. In view of the fact that Nicholson was an indigent, two doctors who were to have been called as witnesses for the defence were called as Crown witnesses, and because of this the defence was able to get this evidence before the jury.

Judge O'Connor commended Wilmot Gordon, whom he referred to as "young Mr. Gordon," for the splendid manner in which he had conducted the defence, and in his charge to the jury he pointed out that Mr. Gordon had taken the case at the request of the court, without remuneration. He said it was the first time that the lawyer had pleaded a case before him, and he remarked he had been favorably impressed with his work. He voiced appreciation of the fair way in which V. J. McElderry, K.C., county crown attorney, had examined the witnesses and addressed the jury.

The contention of the defence counsel was that the girl had made a statement to the police matron in which she alleged her father had been responsible for her wrongdoing was merely an act of revenge because the father had ordered her to stay out of beverage rooms.

St. Mary's A.Y.P.A. To Attend Banquet

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, Dec. 10—Members f St. Mary's Anglican church Y.P.A. held their semi-weekly meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Staples on Wednesday evening. President Rob Reid conducted the opening exercises, with a hymn and prayer.

Scripture reading was given by Jack Hannah. Roll call was answered by a verse of Scripture beginning with letter "A".

Several business letters were read by the president in the absence of the secretary. It was agreed to send a delegation to the district banquet to be held in St. John's parish hall, Peterborough.

It was decided that Robert Sisson will be the dramatic delegate for the A.Y.P.A. branch, and that Muriel Hannah and Vera Strachan represent the Bethany branch on the executive for the coming year.

Muriel Hannah invited the branch to meet at her home for the next meeting on December 21.

A talk on missions of the Arctic was given by Robert Sisson, who afterwards held a questionnaire on the subject of Arctic missions. Charlie Morton gave a talk on African missions. Lawrence Staples spoke on Chinese missions. A Biblical contest was conducted by Muriel Hannah.

The hostess served a lovely supper to the guests and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Osaka, Japan, has a new trade museum.

Hinchingbrooke, Sir Martyn Beckett, and Ronald Tree.

The Edens will entrain Monday night for Washington, where they will be entertained by Lady Lindsay, wife of the British ambassador, until Wednesday, during which time Eden will see President Roosevelt.

Collegiate Notes

Principes Alumni.

The two highest and most cherished academic awards that a student of P.C.I. can win, namely, the Princeps Alumna and Princeps Alumnus have been awarded to Miss Ruth Robinson and Donald Diplock.

Congratulations, Ruth and "Dip"! It is felt that no better choice could have been made. Both students are outstandingly scholarly and popular. All in all, the commencement exercises held last week were successful and each prize-winner is worthy of sincere congratulations.

A special prize to the most valuable player in the senior football team was awarded to Allan "Bill" Harle, shifty backfielder of this year's team. Harle's play throughout the last football season was classy and certainly merited the award.

Motion Pictures.

Another reel of educational pictures was shown in the morning assembly this week. The picture was entitled "Sculpture Through the Ages," and showed the fine art work along the line of sculpturing from the time of the ancient Greeks who gave us the legacy of sculpture up to present day architecture. The film also tended to give a lesson in modern soap sculpture. This picture was shown twice—once to the students in the morning assembly and once to those First Formers who could not be present at the showing in the morning due to lack of room in the auditorium.

This week saw another showing of a feature picture in the assembly hall after four. Two shorts, "Africa Squeaks" and "Musical Review" preceded the feature picture, "Troopers Three."

Although these pictures were enjoyed, it is the general opinion around the school that better crowds of more interested students would attend these performances were the pictures more modern. The pictures this week were apparently made about 1928. This is a serious complaint of the student body in general, who claims it would not object to paying even a higher admission price if more interesting and more modern pictures were shown.

Echoes.

This year the "twenty-fifth" edition of P.C.I.'s school year book, the Echoes, is being published. The editor-in-chief (Ruth Robinson) promises that this anniversary number of the Echoes will be the best ever. Extracts are to be taken from the other twenty-four copies which have been published from year to year, the literary section is to be improved, more prizes will be offered this year for literary and art entries which are accepted, and finally all these various sections will be massed to form the silver anniversary number of P.C.I.'s only school magazine, The Echoes.

Hockey.

Owing to lack of accommodation in the Brock Street Arena, there will be no Junior City League this ice-age. P.C.I., last year's winners, are planning to enter a team in the C.O.S.S.A., coached by Bill Jackson. If this is arranged it will be the first time in many years that P.C.I. has sponsored a team other than basketball and football in this grouping. It should be a success.

Rink.

Again we enter a plea for co-operation in sponsoring a school skating and hockey rink. We have many of the students behind us in this connection, as well as the Students' Council. The chief barricade seems to be the executive of the B.A.A.

In last week's column we put the question to you, "Do you want a school rink?" Of those to whom we have spoken 90 per cent. say yes. The rest are indifferent. For those who want a rink at the school, the best way to get one is to let us hear your opinion in the school. Tell the Students' Council about it. You elected them—now let them work for you to help make this winter a successful school term. We have been assured by the president that every possible effort will be made to satisfy you.

Basketball.

Many players of the hoop sport realize the need for new baskets and back boards in the school gymnasium. The hoops which are there now are loose and have lost their effectiveness. The back boards, ostentiously aged, have become dead and refuse to give the proper rebound to the ball.

Practices for the senior team began this week under H. L. Bamforth and will continue regularly from now until the end of the season.

(The schedule will probably be released soon after the C.O.S.S.A. executive meeting some time next week.

Just Between Us Socialites.

The graduating and prize winning scholars of P.C.I. were entertained with a dance in the school gymnasium. The gym wore its usual festive red bricks, trimmed with brown and creme de ciment. Music was supplied by Stan Northrop and his orchestra. Prominent among the guests were the principes alumni, Ruth Robinson and Don Diplock, and the graduating classes. Refreshments served under the direction of Miss Merrill Smith and Albert Leether. A merry time was had by all.

Dramatic Club.

The newly formed dramatic club is progressing very well under the direction of Mr. Hale, head of the English department in the school.

At present the club is specializing in voice, stage gestures, enunciation and other dramatic features necessary to produce a good play. Shakespeare's MacBeth has been the subject of discussion with many quotations from it being used par example.

Harlow Cutting proves to be a promising dramatist of the future. His recitations from MacBeth are well done, so says the president... ow.

Due to various interruptions, the regular meeting night, Wednesday, has not been strictly adhered to, but frequent announcements in the assembly hall made it easy for one to find the group.

Campers Flashes.

The motion pictures for this week which were announced by Margaret Westbye to take place at 4 a.m. were postponed for twelve hours in order to allow the students' council another few hours' rest. They were shown at 4 p.m. Wednesday. We were severely reprimanded by the president of the students' council, Alex Young, for blaming them for not giving us some new songs. Alec claims that money has been granted for these songs fur times now and only one has appeared. He also asked us to make this fact known to the student body. Well, somebody reads us, anyhow. Thanks, Alec. Why are the president ad secretary of the B.A.A. against the school operating a rink this winter?

Cadet Officers' Mess.

The first officers' mess was held in the gymnasium this week. About twenty officers were in attendance. Alton Van Allan, last year's R.S.M., was elected president of the mess, winning by a majority of 16 votes over Adjutant Barrie Jack.

The officers' training course is being held regularly in the armouries now, under Serg.-Major Trape Those officers expecting to hold high commissioned ranks this year of the Prince of Wales Rangers.

Couple Celebrate 25th Anniversary

HARWOOD, Dec. 10.—Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Shearer celebrated the 25th anniversary of their wedding last Saturday.

In the evening their friends and neighbours gathered and surprised them with an old time charivari. .

The evening was spent in dancing and cards. Mr. and Mrs. Shearer were called upon and Mr. Earle Drope spoke of the high esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Shearer are held in our community. Mrs. F. McCulloch made the presentation to Mrs. Shearer, a handsome dresser set and Mr. A. Lawton presented Mr. Shearer with a shaving set.

The bride and groom of 25 years made fitting replies and everyone joined in singing, "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" and "Auld Lang Syne."

During the lunch hour Mrs. Shearer cut a prettily decorated wedding cake which was given them by their daughter, Bertha, of Cobourg.

Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Snelgrove of Camborne were visiting friends here on Sunday.

After his election, Col. Drew, former Ontario Securities Commissioner, whose article in a magazine resulted in appointment of a royal commission to probe the Bren gun contract, told the convention delegates "one of the most significant things is that one of the first to congratulate me was Hon. Earl Rowe."

"We are a united party," he assured a cheering gathering. "There has been today an evidence of interest that should begin to see the end in Ontario of the disastrous type of government we've had in the past few years."

Last night Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, National Conservative leader, joined with provincial party workers in wishing Col. Drew luck at a banquet honoring Col. Drew and at which he was the chief speaker.

To the banquet, Col. Drew enunciated as his highest hope as leader that he might do something to restore national unity which he saw as slipping away. Ontario should take the lead in voluntary transfer to Federal jurisdiction of things that could best be dealt with on a national scale.

If Ontario showed the way, the other provinces would follow. The Conservative policy was to retain for Ontario jurisdiction only in those things necessary to the proper functioning of the local government.

Ontario should waken to the dangers of the teaching of Communism to young folks. Impregnation of the young with Communist doctrines made it unlikely they would grow up good citizens.

Col. Drew expected to be labelled a Fascist for this stand. Communists applied that name to all who opposed their doctrines.

"But I have seen Fascism and Nazism. No one in Canada will fight harder or make a more determined effort than I to prevent their spread because I know them. But I also know no country in the world where Fascism or Nazism exists that didn't first have Communism to pave the way."

It would be quite proper for Ontario to say she would not allow the teaching of any form of dictatorship or anything else subversive of democracy.

Dr. Manion said he was 100 per cent. behind Col. Drew's remarks on Communism.

Blockade Runner "Potato" Jones Loads A Christmas Cargo

LONDON, Dec. 10—(CP Havas).—Captain David "potato" Jones, who won acclaim when he ran the insurgent blockade around the Basque coast last year, will command a freighter being stocked with food and clothing for government Spain and Christmas presents for Spanish children, it was learned today.

Captain Jones will weigh anchor within the next 10 days so as to arrive at a Spanish port on Christmas eve. He has asked the foreign office for a naval escort but has received no reply.

Hundreds of youths throughout Britain have flooded Captain Jones with letter asking him to let them join the crew.

The Daily Herald (Labor) appealed today for donations to provide government Spain with goods.

"What is the news from Spain?" an editorial asked. "It is not about fighting. It is about the food supply. For months the food shortage in Loyalist Spain has been getting worse and worse. The stage of real hunger began some months ago. Today the menace is famine. Today the labor movement makes an urgent appeal for an increased flow of subscriptions to its food-for-Spain fund."

Springville Team Wins In Debate

SPRINGVILLE, Dec. 10.—A very interesting and instructive debate was held in Springville church between teams from Hastings and Springville.

The affirmative side was upheld by Miss Hoard and Kitchener Smith of Hastings. The negative side was taken by Miss Mary Staples and Clifford Johnston.

Each side battled hard in its own defense and had a good quantity of material interspersed with wit and humor.

The judges were Mrs. Baker, Hasting; Mrs. G. McIntosh, Springville and Mr. A. R. Kennedy, Peterborough, who gave their decision in favor of the negative side. Mr. Kennedy acted as critic.

The subject of the debate was "Resolved that our present system of instalment buying is economically sound."

After the debate a social time was spent and enjoyed by all.

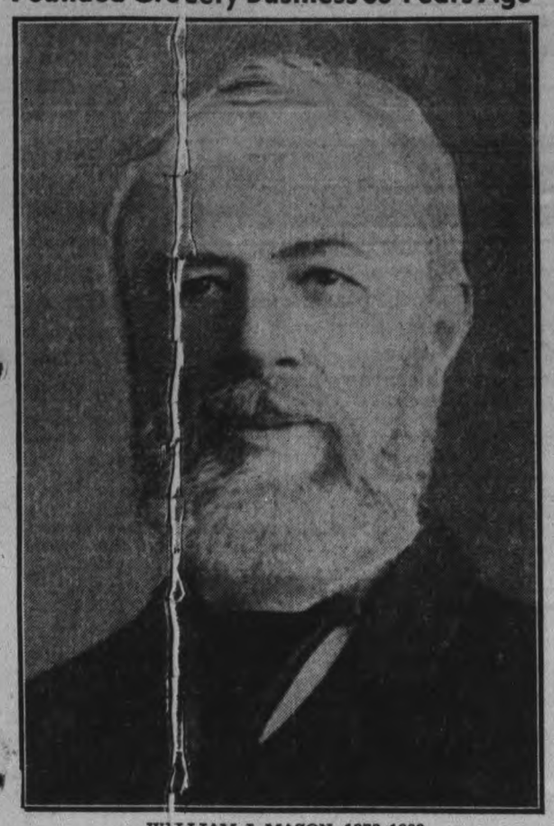
MASON'S MARK DIAMOND JUBILEE

Founded Grocery Business 60 Years Ago



WILLIAM J. MASON, 1878-1893

Son of Francis Mason, who came to Canada in 1827 from Sligo, Ireland, and settling at Cobourg, later moving to Peterborough, where he died in 1876, William J. Mason was the founder of grocery business today celebrating its diamond jubilee. He died in 1893.

Editorial

The sixtieth anniversary of the grocery business conducted by E. F. Mason at 429 George Street in the premises of its founding in 1878 by his father, the late William J. Mason, is an event of historic importance and an achievement in merchandising that evoke glowing sentiments of congratulation to Mr. Mason and his son Herbert G. Mason, as members of a family that has been prominently identified with the affairs and progress of Peterborough for nearly one hundred years.

The historic aspect of this diamond jubilee may be chiefly local and confined to the bounds of mercantile business but both these limitations are nonetheless sufficient to arouse the interest, sympathy and goodwill of the community that has felt the influence of the idealism of the Mason family now into the third generation. Local history generally goes deepest into the affections of people for the reason that it traces back through the persons and families who have been its makers or its witnesses. This occasion of the sixtieth anniversary of Mason's store immediately broadens out through many of the memories and attachments of Peterborough citizens who have themselves been associated with its proprietors, and further back through their parents and possibly their grandparents to the days of William J. Mason, the founder of this consistently enterprising business.

The fine compliments that are being extended to E. F. Mason and Herbert G. Mason today by so many of their friends in the sphere of business, cordial expressions of good wishes for the future that are accentuated by their hometown fellow citizens, are focussed on the shining milestone that has been reached on a long, hard road.

* * * * * *

Personal Memories Rekindled.

To some of Peterborough's people that historic impact again is bound to bring little feelings of sadness for the things and the persons that are past, because milestones look both ways, to the beaten path behind and the attractive highway through dreams and desires ahead. And along the way we all have come together, and in the home streets where we have lingered, are personal reminders of relatives and friends who momentarily or longer come back to us now from the same days and years the Mason men have striven to success. And out of all their effort, those others who have been contemporaries of the Masons, and out of their ambitions and community endeavors has been fashioned this Peterborough of 1938.

And so this diamond jubilee lights up the past again, recalls the struggles that have been overcome, and brings the community to a pause, if only for the day, before thrusting on into the months and years ahead.

Then, there is the Mason achievement in merchandising. Those who extol it most are

Grocers Had To Work Long Hours

Manual Work Heavier In Earlier Days Of Grocery Business

E. F. Mason found no royal road to knowledge of the grocery business when he set out upon his initiation as a boy in his father's store at 429 George street. The doors were unlocked at 7 o'clock every morning, and the day invariably ran into night, usual until 10 o'clock with two hours more on Saturday nights when it often required an invasion of the first hour of Sunday to account for the tag end of the week's business.

Those demands on a clerk's time were the custom of the trade here and elsewhere. Proprietors followed the same routine, so it wasn't a matter of imposing on the apprentices. Manual work was vastly greater than it is to-day. Shops of all kinds remained open late all along the street.

"People didn't have so many places to go as they have had for the last twenty years or more," Mr. Mason suggested yesterday. "That probably explains the established custom of men dropping in of an evening to discuss affairs and events of the day. Builders mostly frequented the hardware stores, and the grocery shops were just about as popular as meeting places."

The interior appearance of the grocery stores were entirely different from the smartly and attractively arrayed shelves and display cases of modern equipment. Signs advertising soaps or biscuits, or some of the comparatively few proprietory goods of that time occupied a lot of the wall space. Commodities were mostly sold in bulk, requiring all kinds and sizes of bins and caddies and other containers on the shelves and under the counters.

Currants and Raisins.

Mr. Mason said he was convinced the currants that used to be imported from Greece were of finer quality than those which now come largely from Australia as a result of trade agreements. They were packed in bulk in barrels and boxes weighing from 100 to 150 pounds. Raisins were brought from Spain in 28-lb. boxes. The whole idea of packaging is a modern innovation. Tea was received in chests by the grocer.

The young generation of to-day has probably never seen a grocery clerk make a cone of paper to serve as a container for small quantities of staples such as icing sugar or pepper, tapioca and so on.

The Farm Trade.

If farmers reached town once a week during the months of fine weather that was about their average. When winter was closing in many a farmer would buy a large stock of groceries against the possibility of being snowbound. From all accounts the folks of forty and fifty years ago were accustomed to bigger and broader snow drifts. Stocking the domestic larder meant buying at least a chest of tea, a box or two or soap, a five gallon can of syrup, perhaps molasses, and from two to four hundred pounds of sugar. Wheat from the farm was taken to the nearest mill to be ground into flour for home needs; and at the hardware or tinsmith shop probably a barrel of coal oil would be taken home on the loaded sleigh.

Mr. Mason said it was a rather common practice for farmers to run accounts until their harvests supplied them with cash. In the meantime they would probably do a lot of bartering with their grocers, bringing in butter and eggs and pork, potatoes, lard and so on. Grocers regarded it as an important part of their business, their dealing with farmers, and Saturdays were invariably a long day of labor.

Townspeople, too, were wont to buy in quantities, but not to the same extent as farmers.

Never See Customers.

"Our young generation of to-day would hardly credit the fact that we might never see some of our customers from one year's end to the other," Mr. Mason stated. "I recall one route I used to cover taking orders. I'd start out up through Auburn and on to the Red Mills settlement at Nassau, where there used to be quite a community of the men who work in Irwin's big lumber mill there, and their families.

I would make one trip a week, and do the delivering on the following day. No doubt it was a way of saving money. Housewives probably bought simply for their week's requirements, and they didn't come into town where they would naturally see other things they would like to take home with them. That applied to many homes also right in Peterborough. The weekly delivery was a regular plan of buying groceries in many homes."

Proprietor Or Mason Grocery Business

ERNEST F. MASON

Purchasing the Mason grocery business in 1893 from his father's estate, E. F. Mason has been proprietor during all the intervening years of sweeping changes in merchandizing. Under his direction six other Mason's Stores have been established in Peterborough, extending the Mason service throughout the city, and adding materially to real estate values.

Six Merchants Of 50 Years Ago Still Actively Engaged In Business In Peterborough

Of all the men in business in Peterborough fifty years ago, ten years after W. J. Mason ventured into the retail grocery trade for himself at 420 George street, only a little group could answer the muster roll from the ranks of those still actively engaged.

They are: Thomas H. Hooper, John Coughlin, J. W. Butcher, and R. G. Kingan.

This group should be extended by adding to it the names of businesses that have retained the original family name, slightly modified in some instances. The entire list might well be enumerated in the names as recorded fifty years ago in 1888 and 1889:

C. B. Routley, wall papers, chinaware and fancy goods; J. S. Fanning, laundry; R. G. Kingan, hardware; J. W. Butcher, "Ten Cent Store" now on Brock street; John Coughlin, monuments; Thomas H. Hooper, confectioner; Aaron Comstock, furniture dealer and undertaker; Wm. Lech & Sons, furriers and hatters; Parker's Dye Works; George Hutchinson, tinsmith; Daniel Belleghem, furniture dealer and undertaker; James T. Stenson, boots and shoes; Robert Neill, boots and shoes; J. J. Turner, tent and sail maker. Also of the professions Edward A. Peck, barrister; and finally the Singer Sewing Machine agency.

Learning of the sixtieth anniversary of the Mason store, now expanded into a group of seven, an Examiner reporter scanned several directories of 1888 and 1889, setting forth the names of the men and women who comprised the town's mercantile interests of fifty years ago.

Incidentally Peterborough's population was then 9,000 and Ashburnham 2,000, the joint community numbering 11,000 persons. More than two hours were spent in browsing over these lists of names. This is no place for implications from that examination and discovery, even if it does come out of the past and things that are gone, but they imparted something of a shock. These names represented many of the old families who did the spade work in this town. Some of them were from the homes of pioneers. They were essentially Peterborough.

Actually, in their turn and in their own generation they received the

Mason's Buy Direct From Manufacturer To Benefit Consumer

One of the advantages of the Mason group of seven stores is their large output of grocery stocks of all kinds, which in turn provides the opportunity of buying directly from the manufacturer, thereby saving the middleman's expense, and enabling Mason groceries to be placed in the homes of the consumers at lower cost.

Food is the most important, the most essential of human needs. The Mason Stores supply you with the very best foods that expert knowledge and expert buying can secure, at the very lowest price.

The Mason Stores have put modern business methods into the corner grocery store of years ago. Stocks are bought regularly and often, are immediately distributed among the Mason stores and are always fresh when they reach the family table.

Canned Food Regarded As A Luxury

Science Has Wrought Many Vast Changes In Grocery Business

What science did to the old fashioned grocery store is beyond the ken and experience of the younger generation of shoppers who accept the new products and their marketing as something long established.

Canned goods have become such household necessities that their novelty has long since worn off. They have even ceased to be a joke about the domestic ability of wives whose expertness is largely confined to the use of a can opener.

The fruits of summer for winter fare are on every table, are included in every day's order to the grocer.

Few Changes Until 1880.

But, in those days around 1880, that had known but few changes in merchandising from the time the first settlers came, preserving fruit was a domestic job. Berries and plums had to be "done down". Apples had to be quartered and strung around the kitchen to dry. You could buy them in bulk from the grocer, but the first commercial canning was confined to tomatoes, and their sale was not extensive.

Contrast those winters without canned peaches and pears, pineapple, even pumpkin, their sparseness of variety with today's vast range of conserved products of the season's that are passed. No one thought of doing down peas and string beans, asparagus, and as for spinach it was practically unknown, and at least the boys and girls of that age were not pestered about the vitamin values of the daily "Greens," the leafy vegetables.

Once all these new lines of groceries were luxuries Today every family buys them, and the price is whittled down to the minimum of profit for the manufacturer.

The Old Fashioned Method.

You open a package of corn flakes, another of the accepted modern staple foods, but compare it with a manner of preparation related by E. F. Mason as he had seen it as a boy delivering groceries. It can be briefly told. He called at a house in the north end of the city. Big shallow dishes of corn and peas in their fully matured and seed stage were set out separately in a liquid young Mason enquired about.

He was told the grain was being soaked in lye to remove the hulls. After that treatment and the hard outer hulls were peeled off, the corn and peas were soaked in water to drain off any trace of the lye. After that they could be cooked for family use. So, it came about, that within a few years an age-old primitive way of preparing that food underwent changes in marketing that were entirely the result of the new applications of machinery to old manual methods.

Even Salt Refined.

Candles and lamps, cotton wicks and kerosene were all discarded by the Edison genius, and so the upsetting of the old grocery customs went on. Hardly any of the staples escaped attention Even salt was refined to flow as readily as pepper. Then it was iodized.

Tea used to cost anywhere from 90 cents to $1.50 a pound. It was sold in bulk, or perhaps you took home a whole chest of it as it came from China and India, later from Ceylon. Those prices have been cut in half by new methods of production and marketing.

BURNED HISTORY

PENZANCE, England — (CP). — Police investigating an unpleasant smell in an office found new tenants burning valuable old manuscripts. And another family got rid of a lot of historical documents by stuffing them down a well.

Three Generations Have Given Service To Peterborough Buyers

Store Where Business Was Started Has Now Become Headquarters For Six Other Stores in City

Sixty years continuously in business in one store on George Street, now become the headquarters and hub for six others strategically spaced throughout the city!

Sixty years of steady and accelerating growth and refinement of method and practice, from the days when clerks had to be expert in making paper bags, to these times when nearly everything comes accurately and trimly packaged by machine!

Three score years of change and advancement from that long era when grocery stocks were mostly staple commodities, to this marvellous age that places an abundance of comparative luxuries on the average table!

Sixty years of sustained service to Peterborough homes with all the drama of personal relationships and of inventions and technical developments in the ways of business, as compared with the easy going, leisurely modes of life when grocery shops were unconsciously regarded as something between a community club and a public forum with such universally accepted equipment as the long-forgotten cracker barrel and the friendly box stove!

Come Far On Road Of Progress In Sixty Years

Yes! The Mason grocery store on George Street has come far down the road of progress and expansion with Peterborough and its people. Its sixtieth anniversary!

A grandson of the founder of the business is now engaged in its direction. The third generation of Masons is sharing the responsibility of managing a greatly enlarged investment. Old companions along the familiar main street of the Peterborough that was once only a town have dropped out of the struggle. The Mason grocery store is a living, flourishing business link with the past of this city, with that generation of which there is hardly a survivor left today.

Modern merchandising never sleeps. Stores are not open so long as in those old days, but after the doors close the industry turns to thinking of new economies and efficiencies, and almost every day seems to bring forth some change, some improvement. That restless, soaring spirit has been exceptionally active in the retail grocery world, a constant challenge to the alertness and keenness of its merchants, and also to their energy, responsiveness to new ideas, and pride in their business.

Reputation of Proprietor Enhanced As Years Passed

That challenge has never been neglected in the E. F. Mason design for merchandising. It has been a long and unflagging and interesting engagement, a personalized service, but nonetheless a business. Today on its sixtieth anniversary no finer tribute could be paid to its proprietor than the acknowledgment that in their ideals and smartness of appearance his stores have kept pace with the newest conceptions, and that the Mason reputation is as fair and bright as it has always been.

Sixty years comprise a long time of testing in basic character, in sturdiness of spirit and in the quickness of apprehending new trends and movements and perceiving their influences and effects. How many names have been

Represents the Third Generation

HERBERT G. MASON

Supervisor of Mason's Stores, H. G. Mason represents the third generation of the family that has been actively associated with the advancement of Peterborough since 1842, when W. J. Mason, his grandfather, came to the old town, was engaged with the firm of Bradburn and Son, general merchants, and later entered the partnership of Mason and Bradburn.

Mason's GROCERY STORES 1878 Diamond JUBILEE 1938

likely to be those who understand and appreciate most clearly what that achievement has been.

It should be enough to say that Mason's grocery at 429 George Street is the only one in Peterborough that has survived the burly-burly of business for sixty years. That period can be reduced to fifty years and the statement still holds good, and it is likely that its facts could be extended further. Manifestly the brunt of that management and leadership has been borne by Ernest F. Mason during the last quarter of a century.

* * * * * *

Swift Changes In Grocery Methods.

Probably the grocery business had burdens and troubles enough for men like W. J. Mason, but they were accustomed burdens, rountine stuff. Then, almost overnight along in the 1900's the trade turned its house inside out under the sweeping impetus of the new machine age and its far-reaching magic and its eventual economies. Out went the old bins and the ancient rows of bulk containers, and in came a bewildering stream of canned goods, packaged goods, bottled goods, and so on down to cellophane.

The grocers of that new day could reduce their hours of business but not of thinking and reading and planning. All the refinements the customers see today in a Mason store rolled pell-mell in upon the proprietor. And he had to adjust himself to them and their significance, quickly adopt them and exploit them as new promoters of business, or he was soon to be left far behind in the ruck.

It is a long story and an exceedingly dramatic one on a stage so unpromising as the grocery floor; but it is true; it happened; and is still going on as swift-paced as ever.

* * * * * *

Achievement In Reputation.

That sketchy review suggests and outlines part of the Mason achievement. It is the objective and tangible side. Inseparably associated with it is the personal element, the daily doing of business throughout the community of the city and county of Peterborough, the creating of impressions upon that public, and the accumulation for sixty years of all the little gains in favor that have become the reputation of the Mason line of men and the atmosphere of their headquarters store at 429 George Street and the branches that have grown out from it.

Contacts with people sometimes have the effect of stirring up little frictions that can generate a heat to consume relationships that seem secure. Sometimes it may seen that these are the more spontaneous, but perhaps that is because the disagreeable incident stays longer upon the sensibilities than does the pleasant one.

* * * * * *

Even the general public must know that the maintaining of cordial relations in business is the very keystone of it. That has been a guiding principle in the Mason management. It unceasingly reached out for the newest ideas, the most progressive, and even more than that, the most aggressive, because E. F. Mason realized that with all the influx of luxury goods —canned goods are comparative luxuries alongside the dried apples for the winters of sixty years ago—with the basic requirement of quality, new fixtures, and machines and quick delivery, prices were a primary consideration.

That phase of the Mason progress is told elsewhere in these columns. It reflects the adaptability of E. F. Mason to the new order of things in grocery methods, and the keenness of his mind in approaching business problems.

* * * * * *

Contributions To The Community.

At any rate the years went by. One Mason after another made new friends among the people of Peterborough, and the community interest of E. F. Mason persuaded him to offer himself directly in the public service, serving for years in the City Council, in the Peterborough Utilities Commission, on the Nicholls Hospital Board, as a director and officer of the Peterborough Exhibition, and chairman of the board of management of Anson House.

These reflections leave the conviction that the story of Mason's Diamond Jubilee can only be told in chapter headings. The details are too many for this account, but they all lead up to what Peterborough has really known, and on which they required only this reminder, that the accomplishment of carrying on the business for sixty years has been a man's work, a Peterborough man's work in his own city, aided by an increasing group of Peterborough assistants, their homes here, their friends and other interests.

With ability of leadership to come through those last twenty-five years with a spirit attuned to the new business period, Mason's stores should look forward to the future with confidence. The Examiner as one of the links between that day sixty years ago and its anniversary to-day, associates itself with all the friends of E. F. Mason and H. G. Mason in congratulating them and wishing them years of accomplishment in the service to Peterborough which they have so well performed since 1878.

hung out over the shops along George Street and how many of them remain before the public today? This is not the place for even an approximate answer to that question, but the inference from observation alone is that the number of such names is legion.

And that thought, too, sharpens the sense of drama, to stop for the moment and cursorily to survey the scene from which the Mason store emerged and went on to its present stage of enlargement through the opening of additional stores.

Business Grew Out Of Early General Store Partnership

The Mason grocery business grew out of an earlier general store partnership under the trade name of Mason and Bradburn. The partners were the late William J. Mason, father of Ernest F. Mason and T. Evans Bradburn. They sold groceries and drygoods and clothing in the premises now occupied by R. Fair, Limited, on the west side of George Street. Their trade sign was a golden lion in a day of such insignia. In fact the Golden Lion was synonymous with the name of the store. Few citizens may be able to recall the Golden Lion of Mason and Bradburn, but many can remember the same sign associated for years with Robert Fair's drygoods store. Cluxton's drygoods store with its sign "The Lamb" was next door, cheek by jowl, to "The Golden Lion." Those trade symbols, and there were many others along the main streets, indicate the personal note in the business spirit of that time.

W. J. Mason was the son of Francis Mason, who had lived at Cobourg prior to coming to Peterborough.

Eventually the partnership of Mason and Bradburn came to an end. The late T. Evans Bradburn became sole proprietor and carried on the general store until he sold out to the late Robert Fair.

At 429 George Street.

Meanwhile W. J. Mason moved up George Street and opened his grocery shop at No. 429 sixty years ago. In turn his son, Ernest F. Mason, went into the store as a small boy, delivered a few parcels and gradually as he grew older began to wait on customers and generally make himself useful, as they used to say in that old-fashioned phrase.

To obtain a broader knowledge of the grocery business, E. F. Mason went to New York as a youth and worked for Acker, Merrill and Condit; retailers of high-class groceries, at the corner of Third Avenue and 23rd Street. They had another store nearer the centre of the city. To extend his experience he next moved to Montreal, where he was employed by Walter Paul in his famous store on St. Catharines Street.

Walter Paul was regarded twenty and twenty-five years ago as one of the outstanding retail grocers in Canada. If he had any peers they were few. Montreal was the leading city in Canada, and many of its wealthiest citizens were customers of Walter Paul.

E. F. Mason was absent from Peterborough four years. He was about twenty-four years old when he returned, called home by a serious accident suffered by his father. Increasing responsibility in the management of the store continued until the death of W. J. Mason.

An older son, Albert Mason, had worked for a time with his father, but he went to Cleveland, and in those circumstances E. F. Mason decided to buy the business from his father's estate.

And so the second generation of the family came into possession of retail grocery business at 429 George Street.

E. F. Mason had served his apprenticeship in the two metropolitan cities of the east, receiving a splendid and thorough training. He was to be initiated into the responsibilities of proprietorship, of battling his way up in the world because he started in debt to his father's estate and with a lean purse.

Began With $45.

E. F. Mason's first year in business for himself was a day to day grinding struggle. When he bought the business from the estate of his father he had only $45 to his name. Recalling that year, Mr. Mason was not inclined yesterday to point a moral with his own experience.

"It was a matter of living as economically as I possibly could, to avoid everything but necessary expenses. During that first year I spent nothing on clothing or anything else for that matter, except the buying of one white collar. Of course, I had to pay my board, and I decided the most I could give the church on Sundays was five cents."

So, all the George Street Methodist Church of that day received in the Sunday collection from Mason, the young grocer, was a five-cent piece, because he was down to hardpan, and he knew it was not going to be much easier for him until he had settled with the estate, and had the business clear of debt in his own name.

Broadening out.

Mr. Mason recalled that it was fifteen years before he had made to his father's estate the last payment on the store. His next experience in their chronological order directed his ambitions toward acquiring another store or two. There were sales of bankrupt grocery stocks, here and elsewhere. Altogether he bought thirty-two of them. Presumably most of those ventures were profitable.

One of those bankruptcies was the grocery shop of a man named Kidd on the west side of George Street, south of Simcoe, about where the south half of the Richard Hall store is located. Mr. Mason carried on there for several years. But, the premises on both sides of him were vacant. In fact the block hardly entered into the town mercantile picture. The bulk of business was carried on in the block to the north.

On Simcoe Street, opposite the City Hall, on the present premises of St. Alphonsus Lyceum, the late Richard Hall had perhaps the largest drygoods store in Peterborough. Mr. Mason one day proposed to Mr. Hall to move over on to George Street, offering to move into the vacant store south of him, thereby affording to Mr. Hall virtually the building that still bears his name, although for years now under different ownership. That plan was carried out, and the next occurrence was a fire in the adjoining Mason's grocery store, and the sale of the lease to the father of Stanley Warne, whose jewellery store was a development from that transaction.

Power of Wholesalers.

The experience of those years convinced Mr. Mason that to offer the public lower prices he had to be able to buy in larger quantities, and that entailed securing additional outlets for increased purchases. Those were the years of the heyday of the wholesale grocers.

The Wholesale Grocers' Guild had become so strongly organized and entrenched that they could compel manufacturers to sell only in large lots, excluding the small retailer from that favorable position. It is probably not too wide of the mark to say that the Guild's dominance was one of the factors that fertilized the latent idea of the chain store. At any rate it directed E. F. Mason more resolutely than ever toward his goal of acquiring more than one store.

The first investment in this expanding enterprise was the purchase of the store at the northwest corner of Rubidge and Sherbrooke Streets, still one of the Mason group. Then he bought the premises occupied by the late T. W. Robinson at George Street and Park Hill Road, but after three years in business there he sold the place to John T. Braund, who moved down from the smaller store he had been conducting at Auburn.

Ill health forced James Edgcombe to dispose of his grocery at George Street and Antrim Street. Mr. Mason bought it, and still retains it as the second of his group. Continued expansion took over the Groceteria on George Street in the old arcade of the market; next the store at Park Hill Road and Reid Street in the northwest end of the city; then across the river to Hunter Street east, and the sixth and latest at the corner of Downie and Charlotte Streets.

Third Generation.

Herbert G. Mason is now the supervisor of the entire seven stores. He represents the third generation in direct line engaged in the business established by his grandfather, William J. Mason, and multiplied by his father, E. F. Mason.

The policy and working principle motivating the Mason plan of expansion was a desire to sell goods to the consuming public at the lowest possible price, to increase sales through additional outlets, which simply meant that more stores had to be acquired. The powerful and dictatorial wholesalers of that day were not unimpregnable. Independent grocers all over Canada like Mr. Mason were facing the same problem and thinking the same thoughts.

It was a time for decision, to advance or do nothing, which was tantamount to falling back. Mr. Mason decided to fortify himself and his customers with additional stores. And so the six Mason Stores came into being centering about the main store and headquarters, that first one opened sixty years ago at 429 George by William J. Mason.

Details Of Merchandising Display At Mason's Main Store

Attractive window sales effects have always been part of the progressive policy E. F. Mason applied to the direction of the business he acquired after the death of his father, the late Wm. J. Mason. Striking design of arrangement, bright illumination with color harmonies are only secondary incidentals of the new ideas that came into the grocery business thirty years ago or more, overturning all the old system that was recognized by the trade when Mason's store was opened in 1878. Mason's Stores have kept pace with modern grocerydom, while few of the old firms remain in their families or retain the family names.

First Stock's Bread Delivered By Wheel-barrow To Mason's George Street Store

There is more than ordinary interest in the announcement that E. F. Mason has sold Stock's Bread for the entire sixty years that the Mason stores have been established. During that period, both Mason and Stock's have gone through cycle after cycle of changes—and they have witnessed the entire panorama of three score years' progress in the field of baking and merchandising of bread products.

When the original Mason store opened, Stock's bread was available for delivery on the very first day, for the Stock's business had been established in 1872. At that time deliveries were made as far away as Lakefield—ten miles distant. The first shipments were made by train and a wheel-barrow was used to haul the bread from the Stock's bakery at the present site at Stewart and Sherbrooke streets, to the Canadian National Railways station. Later, of course, horse and wagon were used. For years there was not a train leaving Peterborough that did not contain a shipment of this bread. With the curtailment of train service, teams started to go as far as Buckhorn and Keene with loads of Stock's bread. The plan at that time was to work a horse one day and let him rest the next day. Sleighs were used in winter. In more recent years delivery has been made by truck and one hundred mile trips are not exceptional.

Breadman Gets Through

Throughout the years it has been a very rare experience when the Stock's Bread trucks have been unable to make a delivery even under the most adverse road conditions. Even when the mailman has found it impossible to get through, the Stock's bread man has usually managed to reach his customers in the rural districts.

There are in Peterborough and district, and among the customers of E. F. Mason, families who have used Stock's bread throughout the entire establishment of the Stock's business.

It goes without saying that there have been many changes in the character of the bread loaves and in their baking processes in the three score years that Mason's have sold Stock's bread. It has always been "quality" bread, but prior to 1920 it was difficult to obtain the same uniformity in each loaf of bread as is possible now. The baker has constantly become more educated in baking methods that make for uniform quality. Obstacles have been overcome. Baking methods have been improved. Yeast, for example, in those days, might be of a certain standard one day and of an entirely different sandard the next day. That difference would be evident, of course, in the finished loaf and it was somewhat of an accident if the bread were exactly alike every day in the week.

Now Stock's Bread not only have well-balanced, thoroughly tested, scientific formulae, but in their modern bake shop they have heat regulation, humidity regulation and fixed standards. All these result in uniform quality. It was in 1912 that remodelling of the Stock's bakery started on an extensive scale and changes and improvements have been made from time to time until today the Stock's bakeries are regarded as model bakeries in every respect. The Stock's bakeries are always ready for inspection at any time, twenty-four hours a day.

Old IXL Loaf

A simple mixing machine was practically the only mechanical equipment used originally in the baking of Stock's bread. The type of equipment and pans were reflected in the appearance of the bread that was baked. Originally, for example, the loaf of bread was inclined to be flat and square in shape. The original Stock's white loaf, incidentally, was known as the IXL loaf and old Mason customers will undoubtedly recall that particular loaf. When it was desired to make brown bread it was the custom to first make the white dough and then add brown flour to it. For a long time it was extremely difficult to make a real good loaf of whole wheat bread. But Stock's were good bakers and they were equally successful in making a palatable loaf of whole wheat bread, in very short order.

The wrapping of bread was practically unknown until about fifteen years ago. The first attempt at wrapping bread was in the form of a band or sleeve. The modern wax paper was not extensively used until about 1926. Not only was wrapping of bread practically unknown in the first few decades of the Stock's business, but many of the original loaves were of shapes that did not lend themselves to wrapping. The French stick bread, for example, a long, thin loaf—and the double loaf of bread, which was split apart before using, certainly would have been most difficult to wrap. The first wrapping machines were exceedingly crude. First an ordinary electric iron was used to seal the ends; later a hot plate, and still later semi-automatic wrapping and sealing processes came into being. Because of the great amount of hand work, wrapping was a costly operation. Now machines wrap and count the loaves in the twinkling of an eye, without being touched by human hands.

The Tin Loaf A Favorite

There were bakers, in the days before bread was wrapped, who used white gloves and a prong when handling bread. The custom of wrapping bread actually changed the appearance of the loaf, probably to as great an extent as any other factor. White bread originally was more open in texture than present day bread and the result was that the loaves were higher than today's bread. A favorite with farmers was what was known as the tin loaf—a real long bread, square in shape. The electric toaster, such as is used in the average household, led to a demand for sliced bread and for a slice that would fit into the toaster. The electric toaster practically marked the doom of the double loaf.

By 1930 the slicing of bread had become an important factor in bread production. The first slicers were crude, gravity-fed affairs—quite a contrast to the modern slicing and wrapping machines that turn out sixty loaves a minute.

Some of the more recent loaves developed by Stock's Bread Limited, according to Mr. Jas. Dutton, the local manager, and which are sold by the eight E. F. Mason Stores, are the Victory loaf, which has a split top and is made in two pieces; the Peter Pan loaf, a single brick shape loaf; the Vitos loaf containing sunshine vitamin "D" element; the Vitos brown loaf; the Wonder Kracked Wheat bread that combines brown and white in a single loaf; the Royal Wonder loaf and the Wonder Hearth loaf. "Hostess" cakes are also a very important factor in the business of Stock's Bread Limited.

No Pasteurizing

SARNIA, Ont., Dec. 10—(CP)—Lambton County Council rejected a resolution asking repeal of the compulsory milk pasteurization law. The resolution was submitted by the Natural Milk Producers' and Consumers' Association of Ontario, head office in Kitchener. In asking repeal the association did not condemn pasteurization but opposed the compulsory feature of the law.

The council, however, did concur in a Wentworth County resolution asking the Dominion Government to guarantee a price of 80 cents a bushel for fall wheat to Ontario farmers. A Kent County resolution opposing abolition of county councils was filed.

Britain Increases Barley Subsidy

LONDON, Dec. 10—(CP Cable).—W. S. Morrison, Minister of Agriculture, to-day announced in the House of Commons an increase in the barley subsidy and plans for a long-range policy to bridge the gap between production costs and the world market price.

The government subsidy to growers will be increased from 10 shillings to £1 ($2.34 to $4.68) per acre. This will mean a total cost this year of £400,000.

To formulate a permanent policy a conference has been called of representatives of growers, brewers, and other processors of barley.

Six Merchants Of 50 Years Still Active

old town site from pioneers, extended the streets, strengthened the foundations of the town, and put the community in orde rfo. the coming of the greater days of invention and expansion.

William J. Mason was an adult of that generation, and his son, Ernest F. Mason, was one of its its youth. Of the sterling spirit of citizenship o fsuch men as these and their associates was born the Peterborough that was ready to break its old bonds when the marvels and glories of the twentieth century began the remaking of the old order.

This is not a story about William J. Mason, the Peterborough grocer of sixty and fifty years ago, nor of his son, E. F. Mason, or the other son W. A. Mason, both mentioned as clerks in the Mason grocery store at 429 George street fifty years ago. It is rather a roll call of those citizens of years ago who were the associates of William J. Mason and his son when this town was facing the problems of a young community, and needed willing and capable men to take up the work.

If you look over this appended list you will notice that Vincent Eastwood, chairman of the City Trust Commission, was a young clerk in the hardware store of McKee and Davidson; that City Clerk Armstrong was editor of The Review when the late Frank Dobbin, father of Ross L. Dobbin, was the managing director; that Sir Joseph Flavelle was a young grain merchant on Simcoe street; that John Garvey who later went into the wholesale field was a retail grocer on Hunter street; that Felix Brownscombe and Herbert Morphet were employed with George A. Cox, later to become Senator and a mightily successful Canadian; that E. A. Peck was a young lawyer with an office on George street; that J. H. Burnham was a member of the law firm of Burnham and Omeara; T. H. G. Denne was in business on Charlotte street; James Stevenson was the Member of Parliament; Rev. M. L. Pearson was minister at George Street Methodist church; Peter Hamilton, father of Mayor Hamilton was a manufacturer of agricultural implements at George and King streets; and so on reading that personal cross-section of the Peterborough of half a century ago.

These were the men of old and traditional loyalties to Peterborough. E. F. Mason was brought up in that school whose traditions expected the full performance of the duties of citizenship along with their personal engagements. Their company could be further enlarged by recalling the names from other ranks than the mercantile, the men of the building trades, the heads of industry, the doctors and lawyers and so on.

Some of the contemporaries of William J. Mason in 1888 and 1889, most of them in retail business are listed in the directories of that time as follows:

C. A. Alexander, 559 George street, grocer and baker.

Andrew Allison, 877 Water street, grocer.

Walter Anderson, 521 George street, grocer.

Thomas Bradburn, grocer, George street.

C. S. Brown, grocer, 315 George street.

Mason's Main Store 60 Years After Its Opening In 1878

Ernest F. Mason, present proprietor, and his son, Herbert G. Mason, supervisor of the Mason's Stores, are seen at the right with their competent and obliging staff. The founder of the business, Wm. J. Mason, couldn't recognize the premises in which he used to preside as a merchant during years gone by at 429 George Street, if he were to see it today in all its modern facilities and methods of purveying groceries to the public of Peterborough.

Butter Bought From Farmers Sixty Years Ago In Firkins, Crocks And Rolls

The sixtieth anniversary of Mason's grocery store at 429 George Street stirred in the mind of E. F. Mason memories of old-fashioned ways of doing business that stand out in sharp contrast with corresponding practices today.

"You might not think there is much difference in the handling of butter then and now," he suggested. "It is such a common, every day commodity that you simply take it for granted, believing that it has always been done up in pound prints.

Grocers of sixty years ago and later bought their butter in firkins, crocks and rolls from the farmers, and put it away in a cool corner of the cellar because there were no refrigerators.

You can't imagine a grocery store of today without the modern system of refrigeration.

Firkins were tubs weighing 112 pounds; crocks of butter weighed from 2 to 15 pounds, and the rolls were from two to six pounds. Farmers used more salt than they do today. It preserved the quality and flavor. A small supply of butter was kept upstairs and sold by the pound in the wooden containers that were similarly used in selling lard.

Butter in pound sizes was a development that came when wooden moulds were first made. The butter would be presed by hand into them, and the top was carved out to leave on the butter a floral or some other design. Some of these prints were half pounds and circular in shape. But, the creameries changed all that, the floral designs disappeared because the butter was wrapped in paper and pound prints were then just as they are today."

That is part of the story of butter as it was stocked and sold in the old grocery stores when the late Wm. J. Mason went into business for himself at 429 George street.

Sugar In Huge Barrels

The handling of sugar from cask to counter sixty years ago was just about as crude as the methods of marketing butter.

"Sugar came from the West Indies in big hogsheads that would weigh, I suppose, from 1,500 to 1,800 pounds," Mr. Mason said. "That was unrefined brown sugar of good quality that most people bought because it was cheaper than the white. We got some refined sugar from Montreal, but it was not generally used as it is today. The known cost 8 or 9 cents, I think it was, and the white from 10 to 12 cents.

Each of those big hogsheads would contain about ten barrels of sugar. I can remember how it used to be unloaded. The rear wall of the store was also the end of the building, and there was a yard there to Chambers street. These huge barrels had to be rolled off drays into the cellar. There is no problem like that in the grocery business today."

No Paper Bags

Part of the training of a thoroughly qualified clerk in the old days of the grocery trade was the ability to make paper bags. Sugar had to be wrapped and Mr. Mason recalls the countless bags he made out of heavy paper, fastening the edges with paste. The design of those handmade bags was much the same as that of the bags made in later years by machine.

No one thought of packaging tea. It came in chests, but a good clerk could wrap up a pound or two of tea with almost the same resulting lines and appearance as the lead foil, machine made packages that are the universal tea containers since the grocery trade began overhauling its ancient ideas. Mr. Mason believes that, if it were necessary, he could package tea by hand as neatly as any clerk in the country. There is no spirit of boasting about that. Clerks used to be expected to know such things, and, once acquired, the handiness or expertness remained although the requirement had passed long ago.

Molasses And Syrup

Molasses and light syrups produced from the sugar cane were commodities sixty years ago. That detail of the trade is explained perhaps by the plain fact that life was simpler and so were the tastes of the people. The range of groceries was limited.

The cane molasses was a pure form of sugar, and even today is highly recommended because it has not been refined down to the stage of white sugar. There were three grades of the cane syrup. These sweets were used in cooking and especially with porridge and bread.

Lards From Farms

Lard was like the other staples. It was packed in bulk, like the butter of sixty years ago, and had to be ladled out in the same manner. It came in tubs and barrels, and quite a lot of it was bought from farmers.

Farmers raised hogs and killed them an established domestic side line and one of the byproducts was lard. It was rendered somehow or other around the house and was poured into the regular big milk pans. When it cooled and solidified these big circular cakes were about two inches thick, and the exact circumference of the milk pans.

Pickles were sold only in bulk. Biscuits came in wooden boxes of ten to fifteen pounds content. They were not wrapped at the factory in packages familiar now for years to the public. Christie's soda biscuits and ginger snaps were favorites long ago, and their lemon biscuit was a featured confection in an age when so-called luxury lines were comparatively few. The lemon biscuits rated higher up the scale of standard lines than the ginger snaps and soda biscuits.

Pancakes For Lunch Loved By Children

Every boy and girl thrills to a stack of piping hot pancakes. So if you want to keep the children happy, have a nourishing pancake lunch ready when they come in. Here's a thrifty luncheon menu that is packed with just the things youngsters need most. And it is so easy to prepare.

Tomato Juice
Aunt Jemima Pancakes
Syrup Bacon Milk

And pancakes with sausages and maple syrup are just the thing to serve the family for a real Sunday morning breakfast!

The Irish branch of the British Legion plans a modern club in Dublin.

Tops In Bridge For Second Successive Year

For the second year in succession this quartet won the match-point team of four event in the national bridge championships conducted at Cleveland. The players, C. Solomon, Mrs. R. C. Young, C. Goren and J. R. Crawford, are all of Philadelphia.

Sunday Morning Is Pancake Day

For millions of families Sunday morning means more than getting an extra wink of sleep. It means they will awake to the tantalizing aroma of pancakes baking on the griddle.

And when these pancakes come "hot off the griddle" the meal maker can be sure they'll be tender, fluffy and flavory. Because modern day pancake ready-mix takes the guesswork out of pancake making. According to directions on the Aunt Jemima package you just add milk or water—stir—bake—and serve. These modern pancakes do away with all the fuss and bothersome ingredients, but they still have that good old fashioned tastiness.

Ham Pancakes.

And to satisfy that "meat for breakfast" hunger there's nothing better than Ham Pancake made from the following ingredients:

1 cup Aunt Jemima Pancake Ready-Mix.
1-¼ cups of water, or milk.
½ cup baked ham, minced.

Mix and bake according to package directions. This recipe makes eight cakes.

Crepe Pancakes.

Crepe Pancakes are surprisingly good and always call for an encore. If you like them French style and tissue thin, tip the pan as you add the batter so as to produce the thinnest possible coating over the bottom of the pan. Then bake to a golden brown. The following ingredients will make ten or twelve cakes:

1 cup Aunt Jemima Pancake Ready-Mix.
1-½ cups milk.

Mix and bake according to general directions and serve rolled, either plain or with a powdered sugar and jelly filling.

Has Stockings 150 Years Old

WINNIPEG, Dec. 10—(CP). — Seventy-three year sago a little girl of six was packing her belongings to leave her home in Germany for a new home in Russia. Everybody in the household was busy finding the things they wanted to take. Great-grandmother came to little Amelia with a small package. It contained white cotton stockings she had knitted as a child. Round the top was a design in red, like a cross-stitch block pattern. They were for Amelia to remember her by.

The stockings still are in existence —nearly 150 years old. Amelia, or Mrs. Suppes now, is 79. She lives at Ridgewell, Man., but the stockings are in Winnipeg. "Mother was looking over her things about two months ago and she gave these to me," said Mrs. H. Miller of this city. "They're just a keepsake. It seems funny now to have white stockings, but everybody used to wear white, my mother told me. Especially on Sunday, with long, full skirts and little white bonnets."

STRANGER THAN FICTION

Only Newspaper On Labrador Increases Price

By Ewart Young
(Canadian Press Correspondent.)

CARTWRIGHT, Labrador, Dec. 10 (C.P.). — Labrador's first and only newspaper, "The Cartwriter," has raised its price. The four-page sheet, which is published fortnightly on a mimeograph press now sells in the streets of this remote northern village and its environs for three cents instead of two. The editor, Eric Jones, used up his whole column in a recent issue to explain the increase to his public. The editorial tells the story best:

"After fourteen weeks of publication we find that 'The Cartwriter' can no longer operate on its present system.

"We find that expenses have doubled receipts.

"The response the people of Sandwich Bay have made makes us loath to consider discontinuing publication.

"The only alternative is to raise our price.

"So in future 'The Cartwriter' will sell for three cents.

"Selling on an average 45 copies per issue, this will give us $1.35 as against 90 cents at our present rate.

"The minimum cost of getting out each issue is $1.20. Which leaves us as we are with a deficit of 30 cents per issue. At the three-cent rate there will be a margin of 15 cents profit. This will take care of sundry expenses."

Worth the Money.

But nobody in this northern outpost will kick because of the extra cent for the fishermen-trappers and their families feel they have something there well worth the money.

The little paper, with a humble appearance and a scant circulation, serves as a medium of news for people cut off from the outside world for nine months of the year.

The local and foreign news section is in charge of William J. Cobb, manager of the Cartwright Hudson's Bay Company trading post. Events at home and abroad are recorded in simple style and the readers, most of whom are without radios, have come to depend on the column as one link with the outside world.

The social and personal department is looked after by Mrs. Kate M. Keddie, native of The Pas, Manitoba, who has charge of the industrial department of the Grenfell mission at Cartwright. The movements of missionaries, doctors, and others are reported in advance so that the people in the outlying communities can be kept posted.

Other features include a regular health article by the nurse in charge of the Cartwright Grenfell Hospital, a serial story with a local setting written by the assistant matron of the boarding school dormitory, "Patter," a spicy column with quotable gems, and of course editorials and fillers. The sheet carries no advertising.

The editor is the principal of the boarding school founded ten years ago by Sir Wilfred Grenfell. The printer is Edward Cook, assistant teacher and a son of Matthew Cook, the veteran newspaper printer of Newfoundland. The paper is sold by school boys who turn newsboys every other Saturday and pad about the village in their skin boots shouting "Extra!"

"The Cartwriter" has no subscription sale and no copies are sent outside the country. Cartwright's 20-odd families and the half-dozen homesteaders in each of the six communities around Sandwich Bay absorb each issue. The novel newspaper of the North is a self-contained, non-profit organ. There is no salary drain on its treasury.

NEW NORTHERN HIGHWAY

THE PAS, Man.—(CP).—Manitoba's newest and longest highway, which runs from the International Peace Gardens on the United States boundary 427 miles north to The Pas, will be opened officially between July 1 and 4 next year, according to arrangement now being made by The Pas Board of Trade.

Built Speedily For Needy Boys

BOSTON, Dec. 10—(CP).—Built to meet a modern depression fostered need—the plight of homeless boys who wander like grown-up hoboes around the country—the Charles Hayden Goodwill Memorial Inn was dedicated by the Morgan Memorial.

The building, a seven-storey limestone-and-brick edifice, 40 by 75 feet, with recreation facilities and dormitory space for 80 boys, was started last April. It is thought to represent some sort of record for quick construction—a haste made necessary by the need for more accommodations for transient boys who find themselves stranded in Boston.

YOUTH WARS ON CATS

MELBOURNE, Australia—(CP).—The League of Youth of Australia seeks to have the number of cats reduced. In one instance, cats imported to kill rabbits destroyed all the birds on an island.

MEETING IS BANNED.

BELFAST—The Northern Ireland Government to-day banned a meeting for Sunday at Londonderry to protest the partition dividing Eire and the six northern countries. A Loyalist counter demonstration also was banned.

The government acted on the grounds the meetings might lead to disorders. Nationalists had charged the Loyalists called a counter meeting solely with the purpose of securing the intervention of the authorities.

Government Aids Berry Producers

CHARLOTTETOWN, Dec. 10. — (CP).—The Prince Edward Island government has given the P. E. I. Berry Growers' Co-operative Association a helping hand. It has presented the organization, the only one of its kind in Canada, with a cranberry separator and grader, the first such machine to be brought into the island province.

The machine is similar to those used in the Cape Cod cranberry districts and is meant to assist the cranberry industry which is in its its infancy in P.E.I.

The grades will be installed at Mount Stewart, P.E.I., in the co-operative's new building which is now under construction. The Association was organized in July of this year.

Members of the organization believe their association will provide a means for farmers to promote a healthy new industry and enable them to conduct a profitable sideline.

Object of the Association is to get in touch with the growers and sell co-operatively on a graded basis, similar to the policy in potato, egg and poultry producers' co-operatives.

The berries are separated into the various grades on a wire mesh. Bad berries are automatically separated from the healthy ones.

Try These Recipes To Vary Menu For Christmas Day

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

"The night before Christmas" is the conventional time for hanging the stocking over the fire-place (or even over the gas or electric stove), but wise homemakers get their socks filled up ahead of time, filled up with new menu ideas and recipes. While the rest of the family lights candles hangs up the mistletoe and gets poised to stick thumbs in plum puddings, it is the homemakers who has to strive to live up to all those great food expectations of the holiday season.

The regular Yuletide menu, from the fruit cup through to the cranberry sauce, is something that is pretty familiar to all of us, so we are glad to offer a few suggestions to give holiday menus a new zip. They are ideal for any part of the holiday season. First of all, for a delicious fruit cup arrange grapefruit segments around sides of a sherbet glass, with thin slices of red apple between. Pile tangerine segments in center and top this healthful cup with sprig of fresh mint.

Cheese Croutons

Cheese croutons in a clear soup offer a pleasant alternative to the usual heavy creamed soup. To make the croutons, cut stale bread in one-eighth-inch slices, spread thinly with softened butter and creamed American cheese. But with round cutter one and one-half inches in diameter and fry in deep fat at 375 F. until delicately browned.

Tangerine cranberry jelly will add a new note to the turkey. It takes a quart of cranberries, three cups water, two and one-half cups sugar one-quarter cup lemon juice, two cups tangerine sections, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one envelope plain unflavored gelatine and one cup cold water. Cook cranberries in water until soft. Force through strainer. Add sugar lemon juice, tangerine sections, salt and bring to a boil. Soften gelatine in cold water and add to hot mixture, stirring until gelatine dissolves. Cool and freeze.

Pumpkin Tarts

Orange pumpkin tarts offer a nice variation on the pumpkin pie theme. To serve 12 you will require two and one-quarter cups cooked pumpkin one and one-half cups brown sugar, three-eighths teaspoon salt, one and one-eighth teaspoon cinnamon one and one-half cups evaporated milk, three beaten eggs, one-quarter teaspoon mace one and one-half teaspoons vanila, three-quarters cup fresh orange juice and one and one-half cup nutmeats, three-quarrind. Line small pie pans with rich pastry, building up the edges about one-half inch. Chill. Mix the ingredients in the order listed and turn into pastry shells. Bake at 425 F. for 25 minutes or until custard is firm.

Holiday fruit logs are grand nibbling! One package dates, one and one-third cups shredded cocoanut, one-half cup nutmeats three-quarters cup dried apricots, one-quarter pound figs, one tablespoon orange juice and one teaspoon orange rind will make one and one-quarter pounds. Chop dates, cocoanut, nut meats apricots and figs or run all through food chopper. Knead in orange juice. Divide fruit paste in halves. Roll into long stripes one-half inch in diameter. Roll in toasted cocoanut or chopped nuts cut into one-inch logs. Tie each log with red ribbon.

Urge Unity For Conservative Party

"I'm going to use my voice in Ontario hereafter," declared Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, RIGHT, former Ontario Premier, as he pleaded for party unity in his address to the Ontario Conservative convention, assembled in Toronto to select a new leader for the party. Mr. Ferguson told the convention that the future of the party lay in cohesion and that "the attitude that I may disagree with you, but I'm going to stick to you," should be the motto of any dissenters against the new Ontario Conservative leader. Dr J. M. Robb, Dominion organizer, also addressed the convention, LEFT, urging cohesion for the Conservative party.

Tasty Trifles Add To Menu

Here are some ideas and accessories to the fact of improving meals during the holiday season. If you chart the main part of the dinner according to certain menus, you can still go gay when it comes to important trifles.

For instance, if you are serving roast pork, as many people do for a holiday or company dinner glorify it not with just apple sauce but with a banana applesauce. Two large cooking apples one-half cup water, one small stick cinnamon, one-third cup sugar and three ripe bananas will yield six servings. Choose bananas with yellow peel flecked with brown. Core the apples and cut into pieces. Add water and cinnamon. Cook until apples are soft. Remove cinnamon and strain apples. Add the sugar to the sauce and re-heat to the boiling point, while stirring. Cool. Slice the bananas into serving dishes and pour sauce over sliced bananas.

Glorifying Onion

And if you are serving onions, how about glorifying said onion and baking it with nuts? Wash and pare 24 small onions. Melt three tablespoons butter in a baking dish and add three-quarters cup sliced Brazil nuts, tablespoon sugar, three-quarters teaspoon salt and pepper. Add onions and stir well. Cover and bake in a moderate oven (375 F.) for about one hour until onions are tender and nuts are a golden brown.

And here's something that should have come first but it is just as good an idea wherever and whenever it appears! For an appetizer or for a dessert, melt peppermint patties over fresh grapefruit segments.

As Done In Florida

Sweet potatoes are nice enough, but it you want to gild the lily and pretty the potato serve them as they do in Flordia. For orange candied sweets take one cup fresh orange juice one-half teaspoon grated orange rind. one-half cup sugar, one cup water, three tablespoons light corn syrup, one-half teaspoon salt, one-quarter cup butter and six to eight sweet potatoes. Combine first seven ingredients, and pour over uncooked sweet potatoes arranged in casserole. Bake covered in a 350 F. oven until tender, 30 to 40 minutes. Baste occasionally. Remove lid last 10 minutes to brown or put under broiler flame.

Isaac Elliott Customer For Sixty Years

A steady customer of Mason's grocery store at 429 George street for the long sixty years since it was opened by the late W. J. Mason is the record of business relationship held by Isaac Elliott of Smith township, living west of Selwyn. To E. F. Mason that is one of the most pleasing features of this diamond jubilee of the business. He referred to Mr. Elliott several times in the course of an interview yesterday.

"Mr. Elliott began dealing with my father when he went into business for himself in 1878," Mr. Mason said. "Naturally there were many others, but Mr. Elliott is the only survivor of our original customers. His farm is fifteen or sixteen miles north of the city. I know that in winter when Chemong Lake froze over and the roads were not fit for travel south from Selwyn, Mr. Elliott used to drive down the lake to Bridegnorth and then in to town by the Chemong Road."

It was learned that Mr. Elliott's preference in dealing at Mason's store has extended to the third generation of his family. Well, the axiom of trade avers that it takes two to make a bargain, and business continues only when it is reciprocally satisfactory to both buyer and seller. This relationship between Isaac Elliott and Mason's store is a fact of appreciation that cannot be enlarged or embellished by comment.

As a steady customer Mr. Elliott surely holds a record over a wide area, partly because few of the grocers of sixty years ago have survived in themselves or their families. And steady customers are the delight of every merchant's heart.

Essays On Peace To Be Judged

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 10.— A prize for the best collection of six essays on "Peace" will be given by members of the Seymour West Women's Institute at the School Fair held here next fall. This was decided at their meeting held at the home of Mrs. Fred Rutherford on Thursday afternoon and was an outcome of the address on that subject delivered by the Rev. Harold B. Neal before members last month. Rev. Neal had strongly urged members to take some action along this line as a means of directing more thought to the matter. The competition will be open to all students in Grades IV to VII. Responding to the roll call with the name of their favourite author Grace Livingstone won an easy first place her popularity while Zane Grey was the second choice of the ladies of West Seymour. During the business it was arranged to hold the next meeting at the home of Mrs. Robert McCulloch's. A committee which included Mrs. Ray McCulloch, Mrs. David Durran, Mrs. Robert McCulloch, Mrs. Douglas Rutherford and Mrs. Fred Rutherford was appointed to look into the matter of holding a banquet in Campbellford during the month of January. At the conclusion of the meeting, Mr. Albert Hazel, district music instructor, directed members in singing "The Old Refrain" which they will render at the music festival in Warkworth next May.

Housebreaking Gang?

TORONTO, Dec. 9 — (CP). — Three Toronto youths were arrested on charges of housebreaking last night and a fourth was charged with retaining stolen property. Norval McIlvena, 17, and Morris Ellison, 18, face three charges of housebreaking, and Solly Rosenthal, 17, one charge of housebreaking. Walter Gora, 19, is charged with retaining. Arrests followed break-ins of three Toronto homes.

Hon. Harry H. Stevens As A Boy Clerked In Mason's Store; Was Pleasing Youth

Hon. H. H. Stevens, former Minister of Trade and Commerce in the Bennett government, was once a clerk in Mason's grocery store at 429 George street. The Stevens family lived on London street, the father being employed at the William Hamilton Company's plant on Reid street. Harry Stevens was growing out of boyhood when he applied for a job at the Mason store. He was immediately engaged. He worked around the store, helping to wait on customers, a brisk and pleasing youth who rose to a high place in the political life of British Columbia and eventually to fame as Federal Minister of the Crown under the leadership of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett.

Manufacturers Vote To Aid Government

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—The National Association of Manufacturers late yesterday unanimously approved a 1939 platform urging "co-operation with the Government." Without argument on the floor, the convention approved a program drawn up only after a bitter fight behind closed doors in the Resolutions committee.

The faction which favored co-operation with the New Deal succeeded in:—

1.—Preventing open criticism of the whole United States Government policy of the reciprocal trade agreements.

2.—Striking out a proposal to revise the Wagner Act.

3.—Eliminating another proposal to abolish special Federal regulatory commissions.

While this bitter battle was going on in corridors and behind closed doors of committee rooms, several hundred prominent industrial leaders attending the convention heard:

1.—United States Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Dem.-Wyoming), chairman of the Temporary National Economic (Monopoly) Committee, say competition must be preserved through regulation "to which all subscribe, a rule drafted in the public interest which shall foster and encourage trade and commerce on which the economic prosperity of the whole people depends."

2.—W. W. Waymack, Des Moines editor; Lewis Morris, Iowa dirt farmer, and W. W. Shotmaker, Armour and Company, vice president, discuss the interdependence of industry and agriculture.

3.—Dr. William H. Dow, president Down Chemical Company; Dr. Carl Bareer, of the Chrysler Corporation, and Dr. Isiah Bowman, president Johns Hopkins University, discuss research as an instrument of national progress from the viewpoint of management, industrial laboratories and independent effort.

Seeney And Griffith Out For New Term?

HAVELOCK, Dec. 10—Municipal nominations in Havelock and the townships of Belmont and Methuen both fall this year on Monday, December 26. Ratepayers in the townships will meet at the Belmont township hall in the afternoon from 1 to 2 p.m. while the villagers will assemble at the Havelock town hall in the evening, from 7.30 to 8.30 p.m. In either case the election if necessary will fall on Monday, January 2nd. There is little election talk in either of the municipalities so far, but it is generally expected that both reeves, Ernest W. Seeney, of Havelock and William E. Griffith, of Belmont and Methuen, will stand for re-election.

In Havelock there is to be elected besides the reeve and four councillors, three school trustees for two year terms; one school trustee for a one year term; and a hydro commissioner for the term of two years. In Belmont and Methuen there is needed only the reeve and four councillors.

Leg Is Broken By Skiding Pole

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 10 — James McMullen, an employee of the Water and Light Commission, broke his leg when a pole was being skidded from a truck back of the water and light offices here. Mr. McMullen, who is superintendent of the commission, is said to have slipped allowing the end of the pole to fall on his leg. Following emergency treatment at the hospital he was removed to his home.

Heroine's Grave Unmarked After 300 Years

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Dec. 10 (CP).—Under a knoll sloping toward wharves on the eastern side of Saint John harbor lies the bones of Lady La Tour and her supporters whose valiant defence of Fort La Tour made a story still colorful after passage of three centuries.

The grave of Acadia's heroine is unmarked, and the ground where she fought her husband's battle in his absence is cluttered with residences, warehouses and wharves while trucks rumble over the last resting place of her men, hanged by order of Sieur d'Aulnay Charnisay in violation of a truce pledge.

The beautiful Francoise Marie Jacquelin, who became Lady La Tour, wanted to possess the fort at the daughter of a barber. One day while walking she was approached by a man named Desjardins who introduced himself as an agent of Charles Saint-Etienne de la Tour, a gentleman adventurer of Acadia.

Desjardins offered the girl a proposal of marriage with La Tour. After talking it over with her father she consented and a few weeks later went aboard ship to wed a man she had never seen. La Tour welcomed his bride at old Port Royal. It became a case of love at first sight. She found him young, handsome, charming and wealthy. They came here to live at La Tour's fort.

Trouble lay ahead. Charnisay, who had been given a grant in Acadia conflicting with that of La Tour, wanted to posses the fort at the mouth of the St. John River. La Tour struck the first blow, imprisoning nine of Charnisay's soldiers near Penobscot because they had been trading in territory he believed was his.

Charnisay retaliated by capturing La Tour, his wife and Desjardins and incarcerating them at Port Royal. He freed them at the request of Capuchin friars after La Tour signed an agreement to keep peace—a promise soon broken.

Revoked Commission

Charnisay had the stronger influence in French court circles. He induced the King of France to revoke La Tour's commission. Despite this La Tour refused to surrender his holdings. A royal decree was issued ordering Charnisay to take La Tour prisoner.

During a dark night La Tour and his wife evaded a blockade, joined a ship outside Saint John harbor and sailed to Boston to solicit assistance. Governor Winthrop received them warmly and the La Tours returned to Saint John with four armed vessels. Charnisay's ships fled back to Port Royal.

When Charnisay sent to France for reinforcements Madame La Tour also returned to that country to plead her husband's cause. Meeting no success, she was forbidden under pain of death to return to America. She defied this order, escaped to England and embarked to rejoin her husband. He decided to make another trip to Boston for the purpose of seking further aid from Governor Winthrop.

Charnisay heard that Madame La Tour had been left with only 50 soldiers to defend the fort. He struck. For three days the brave woman leader and her greatly outnumbered men held the fort. On the fourth day half of the defenders were either dead or badly wounded and the others were near exhaustion.

Then, under a flag of truce, Charnisay sent a message to Madame La Tour offering to spare the survivors if she would capitulate. She agreed, but once inside the fort Charnisay disregarded his promise and had all the defending soldiers hanged except one terrified youth who acted as hangman to save his own life.

Hockey Goes Chemical – TheyNow Play on the Beach

Blue skies, waving palms, bright sunshine and midsummer temperatures...and hockey! Maybe it can't happen here but it can in California. Beach beauties in Venice (not the city of canals), not content with sunning themselves on the beach, decided a hockey game was just what they wanted. So out came the chemicals and presto! A sheet of ice was spread on the sands and in less time than it takes a home town fan to razz a referee the girls were engaged in a "strenuous" game. The referee was just stopping play for some infringement of the rules (if any) when this picture was taken. The 'ice' has as a base of hyposulphite of soda, and after being melted in a large pot, is simply poured on the sand and the fun begins. If it gets cut up all you do is bring out an ordinary electric iron and go over it! We may yet be holding our Canadian playoffs in some of the larger outdoor stadia sometime in July!

Romaine Street Couple Regular Customers Of Mason's Stores For Forty-three Years

Mr. and Mrs. George Dryland, 121 Romaine street, have been regular customers of Mason's Stores for forty-three years. They came to Peterborough in 1895, placed an order for groceries on their first Thursday in the town, and on every Thursday since then, and including Thursday of this week, their grocery order has been received weekly without a break.

Only once in all those 2,236 orders has Mrs. Dryland made a complaint, and that was in connection with one article only. By dealing with Bason's over this long period and Mrs. Dryland has consistently saved money.

Mrs. Percy Bentley Millbrook W.I. Head

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 10.—Mrs. H. J. Armstrong extended the hospitality of her home on Union Street for the December meeting of the Women's Association of St. Andrew's Church, with more than twenty members and visitors in attendance.

The chair was taken by the president, Mrs. P. I. Bentley, and the devotional period, when the lesson was read from John 15, was concluded with prayer by Rev. A. L. Sisco, after which the treasurer, Mrs. J. McKnight, gave her report for the year 1938. The total raised was $652.51, the balance on hand last January having been $101.48; fees amounted to $24.85, and the sum collected in place of having the usual fowl supper was $147.25. Expenditures included $100 to the church board, and $125 to the annual thankoffering; taxes in the parsonage of approximately $85; and about $70 spent in improving the church auditorium, with more than $60 for renovation at the parsonage. Total expenses $508.57; balance on hand, $154.04.

Under the heading of new business, the president requested that all magazines and papers collected in the several homes for sale be left at the Bentley store this week, so the whole may be shipped in the near future. Rev. Mr. Sisco took the chair for the election of officers, the slate for 1939 being; President, Mrs. Percy Bentley; Vice-Presidents, Mrs. P. Stinson and Mrs. H. A. Fallis; Secretary, Mrs. W. C. Fallis; Treasurer, Mrs. John McKnight; Organist, Miss May Duncan; Assistant, Mrs. G. O. Fallis.

Mrs. Bentley thanked the members for their harmonious and hearty co-operation during the two years she has already filled the office of president, and some of those present took the opportunity of expressing the appreciation felt for her capable and faithful services since assuming the position of chief executive of the association, with its heavy and exacting duties.

The January meeting will be at the home of Mrs. F. J. Smith, and the hostess, with her committee, served a dainty lunch during the social hour at the close.

Pupil Transportation Costs Norwood $200

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Dec. 10.—The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education was held on Monday, with Messrs. John Marks (chairman), W. Bitten, E. S. Buck, R. Nevins, W. Bailey, W. H. Giffen, F. Webster, J. W. Lumsden, Dr. H. S. Carleton, Mrs. E. P. Cuffe, and Mrs. A. A. MacIntosh present.

The supply committee reported that fifteen drums of chemical were required for the schools to be used in the holiday season, and also that five cords of wood would be required for the High School.

It was moved by Messrs. Bitten and Lumsden that the supply committee advertise for tenders to supply five cord of wood.

Moved by Messrs. Giffen and Nevins, that Mr. Sargent be paid $200 for transportation of pupils to High School. Carried.

The secretary reported that the High School grant of $2,624.44 had been received

The next regular meeting will be held on Tuesday, January 3.

Accounts totalling $63.92 were then presented and ordered paid.

We are happy to have supplied this aggressive store, later to become a local chain of stores, with some of the products we produce.

The opening of our Peterborough Plant did not occur until 1890, but since that time it has been successively managed by the founder, George Matthews, his son T. Frank Matthews and his grandson.

There is a similarity, therefore, between these two businesses. Each has helped build up the community, and each has been operated by one family since its inception.

We know that good relations will continue to exist between these two companies, one a manufacturer and the other a distributor of high-class food products.

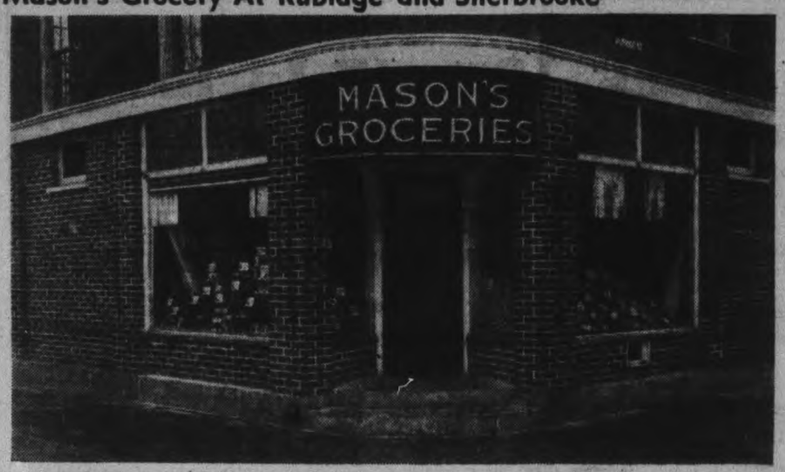
Mason's Grocery At Rubidge and Sherbrooke



One of the most attractive neighborhood stores in Peterborough is this shopping centre thoroughly modernized in contrast with the old shop it displaced. This is the first of the grocery stores acquired by E. F. Mason as a means of increasing the output of the business established at 429 George Street. A larger outlet was essential to purchasing in greater quantities for the advantage of lower prices to be passed on to the public. That is the basic policy of Mason's grocery business. Extensive improvements to the building have resulted in enhancing the appearance of the Rubidge Street corner and of the real estate values in that section of the city.

Five Generations Of The Mason Family Have Been Residents Of Peterborough

The family of E. F. Mason has now reached the fifth generation in Canada directly in the male line.

Francis Mason was the pioneer. He left Sligo, Ireland, in 1827, settled in Cobourg, moved to Peterborough and died in 1876.

William J. Mason was born in Cobourg, son of Francis. He came to Peterborough in 1842, ninety-six years ago, and as a youth was engaged by the firm of Bradburn & Son, general merchants in 1856. After some years in this employment, Mr. Mason formed a partnership known as Mason and Bradburn, also general merchants on George street, in the present building of R. Fair Company. In 1878 he disposed of this interest, and decided to go into the grocery business for himself at 429 George street. This store has now been continuously in the Mason family sixty years. W. J. Mason died in 1893, and the business was purchased from his estate by his son, E. F. Mason.

Herbert G. Mason, supervisor of the Mason Stores, is of the fourth generation of the family, and his young son, John, represents the fifth.

Giving New Twist To Old Practice

CHARLOTTETOWN, Dec. 10 (CP) —Laying of cornerstones has been an established custom for some time but it was given a new twist when the all-important stone was laid in the residence of George J. Tweedy, Charlottetown Rotary Club president.

Lawrence H. Alline, Presque Isle, Me., district governor of the service club, officiated at the ceremony during which copies of Rotary literature were deposited in the foundation to be preserved for all time. Coins of the realm were also deposited. Following the custom, the district governor pronounced the cornerstone well and truly laid on Rotary foundations.

Uncle Sam Scans His Defences Along Canada

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—Preston Grover, in his Associated Press newscolumn, Washington Daybook writes:

With so much dread over what will happen when Japan completes its conquest of China and when German trade pressure moves in on South America it should be interesting to remember that the United States has one vitally vulnerable spot which for one reason or another it cannot arm. That is Canada.

Canada is a sovereign (almost) and independent (almost) member of the British Commonwealth of Nations and as such might be expected, in a sense, to look out for its own defence. But Canadian officials are not coy about these things. They frankly recognize that the Dominion has only 11,000,000 population and cannot afford to build up defences sufficient to keep out a first-class invader.

For the United States, however, the condition is a horse of another color. Canada's lack of serious coast defence leaves a door wide open into the Yankee interior, either by way of Vancouver on the west or St. Lawrence ports on the east.

What defence, then, has Canada?

Ian Mackenzie, Canadian defence minister, discussing the 1938 military budget in the last Canadian Parliament in May, explained it.

"I think it might be reasonable to assume," he said, "that in a major conflagration we should have friendly fleets upon the Pacific Ocean . . . There is no commitment or understanding in regard to these matters, but at this same time I think reasonable assumptions are possible."

President's Gesture.

As to the Atlantic side, he said the "main deterrent to attack from Europe is the British fleet in North Atlantic waters."

Three months after Mackenzie publicly recognized the United States as one of its defenders, President Roosevelt similarly recognized the situation publicly. In a speech on his visit to Canada in August in connection with dedication of an international bridge at Thousand Islands he said the U.S. "will not stand idly by if domination of Canadian soil is threatened by any other empire."

It is a safe enough guess that regardless of any lack of "understanding" as mentioned by Mackenzie there is sub-rosa co-operation between U.S. and Canadian military and naval experts, particularly with regard to exchange of information which would be useful when any fighting begins.

Beyond that the situation may never be improved. There was a time when the United States looked upon Canada as its next territorial conquest. It was the big prize of the War of 1812—if we had won the war decisively. Again we looked longingly upon Canada after the Civil War as a recompense from England for her "careless neutrality."

Probably not until the time of the Great War, Mr. Grover writes, did Canadians give up a real fear that the United States intended some time to "take over."

Find People Must Live In Stories

MONTREAL, Dec. 10—(CP). — To succeed, budding authors must make their characters live their stories.

"Let writers tell of modern problems and don't try to stop them because you find the problems disagreeable," she advised. "It is the responsibility of the writer to tell the truth and of the reader to judge as to the truth. All writers worth while should have the quality of gusto; imagination itself is exuberant," said Miss Bottome, adding that only when the feelings expressed are unreal have the critics the right to term work melodramatic. "Every author should be dramatic."

Missing Man Found In Old Barn

Rawdon Farmer Fell Asleep In Hay Mow Unable To Waken Up

MADOC, Dec. 12—(Special).—James Brunson, 50-year-old Rawdon township farmer, is confined to bed today recovering from the effects of five days without food and water during which time he was in a dazed condition. He is confined to a liquid diet until he shows definite signs of progress.

Brunson, for whom a posse had searched thoroughly since he disappeared Tuesday, was found Saturday in a barn owned by his brother, Albert. He was noticed by Perry Brunson, a nephew, as he stood at the door of the barn. He said he could not account for his actions, and, to his knowledge, had not had food or drink since he left his farm Tuesday to walk to Madoc, a distance of five miles. He is subject to heart attacks.

He said he could remember striking out for a spring, two miles north of his home, "but that is all." He did not know how he got to the barn or when.

Heard Somebody Singing

"Yesterday, or the day before yesterday, I heard somebody singing and made an effort to get up, but I fell back asleep," he added.

Later, he said, he could remember struggling to the edge of the hay mow in the barn. He slipped and fell to the floor below. Then "I got up and struggled to the door where I saw Perry."

Discovery of the prominent farmer and president of a district cheese company bore out a dream of Vida Seymour of Bancroft who told posse leaders Friday she dreamed Brunson was asleep in a hay mow, awakening periodically but falling asleep again almost at once.

The posse, which reached a strength of 200 men, searched woods fields and barns throughout the district since the disappearance. The Moira river was dragged in deep spots. Fortune tellers were consulted. The posse was about to abandon the search when news came that Brunson had been found.

Mrs. Brunson, ill in bed following the birth of her fifth son, does not know her husband is in serious condition or even that he disappeared. She was told he left suddenly on a business trip. Brunson is said to have suffered a minor heart seizure a few hours before he left for Madoc.

Roundup Fills Jail For Sturgeon Falls

STURGEON FALLS, Ont., Dec. 12 (C.P.). — Police here had a tough time when they started rounding up suspects on Saturday as they investigated a shop break-in here. Michaud & Levesque's store was robbed of dry goods worth about $1,000 late on Friday night.

As accommodations in the jail grew more and more limited, Mrs. Alida Levac, charged with vagrancy, was lodged in the Chief Constable's office for the night. She found an open door, and slipped out of the building. A constable spotted her as she crossed the street, and chased her through two houses and a church. He finally found her hiding under the church.

She was taken to jail at North Bay, where she will appear Thursday. Meanwhile another suspect, whom police arrested as he struggled with a large and bulging bag, was found to be carrying parts of a still and fined $100, and costs.

Tug Goes Down

DULUTH, Minn., Dec. 12.—(AP).—The 40 foot fishing tug Donna Marie was smashed amidships yesterday by the steel-hulled Sea Bird, and sank in 120 feet of water in Lake Superior 15 miles east of Duluth. The crew was saved, but Theodore Bodin of Washburn, Wis., captain of the Donan Marie, was severely cut. John Sandstrom, of Bayfield, Wis., of the Donna Marie crew, said the Sea Bird was sailing by compass, due to a thick coating of ice over the windows.

Stowaways Get Home But At Cost Of Month In Jail

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Dec. 12 (CP Cable)

FIVE BRITONS today were sentenced to a month's imprisonment for stowing away in the coal bunkers of the Belfast steamship Dunaff Head, out of Montreal. They were discovered when the ship was two days at sea.

All pleaded they were broke and wanted to get home. The youngest member of the party was Robert K. Hughes, formerly of (17 Ninth Avenue) Saskatoon. The mother of another, William James McManus, 32, said her son went to Canada 18 years ago and she had not seen him again until today.

Others included a Derby actor, Lancelot Everard Farmer, 28, a Liverpool seaman, William Blackhurst, 30, and a laborer of Bath, James D. Moore, 24.

Somaliland Next Cries Duce's Fascist Press

Rome, Dec. 12 — (AP). — Italy's need of French Somaliland for the development of Ethiopia was declared today by Virginio Gayda, the Fascist editor who often expresses Premier Mussolini's views.

Gayda, who previously had aired Italy's alleged grievances against France in Tunisia and her desire for lower tolls and a share in control of the Suez Canal, charged the French with hindering Italian colonial interests through possession of Djibouti.

That port of French Somaliland is the terminus of the railway linking Addis Ababa, capital of Ethiopia, with the Red Sea. Gayda's declaration in his Giornale D'Italia, coincided with other Italian press charges that France was arming Tunisia, her north African protectorate, for military use against Italy.

French Somaliland, Gayda wrote, "continues to nullify the policy of friendship and collaboration contemplated in the defunct Italo-French accords of 1935 and continues to be a chronic provocation which can no longer last or be tolerated."

Other Italian newspapers cited a Paris report that General Morin, who helped build the Maginot Line of fortifications facing Germany, is now in Tunisia as confirming that France "intends to transform Tunisia into a sharp war instrument against Italy."

Quoting French and British newspaper reaction to Italy's claims, Il Messaggero fund it strange that Britons should see "an eventual threat to peace" in the Italian agitation for Tunisia and other parts of the French empire. Revision of Italian relations with France "derives logically from Munich," the paper declared.

Stretching Out.

Gayda did not say what demands Italy would make concerning Djibouti and the railway, but he declared "it is just that the entire problem or Djibouti in its various aspects be faced as a basis for clarification of Italo-French relations and European interests."

"Italo-French relations; like those between Italy and Great Britain, no longer end in the Mediterranean

Premiers Duplessis, Hepburn In Plot To "Get" King Charge Rogers And Howe

Ready To Down Gauntlet, Go To Hustings Says Hepburn In Denial Salvo, 'Tired Of Ottawa Shirking Responsibilities'

(By the Canadian Press.)

Canada's political realm rocked today under a double-barrelled blast fired by two Federal Cabinet members at the Premiers of Ontario and Quebec, charging the Provincial Liberal and Union Nationale heads with an "unnatural political alliance" in an attempt to oust Prime Minister Mackenzie King from the national leadership of the Liberal party.

Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labor, and Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Transport, speaking at a Port Arthur mass meeting Saturday night, bluntly named Premier Mitchell Hepburn and Premier Maurice Duplessis as the principles in the alliance which "has its basis in personal and political animosities and in the apparent desire of two men to gain power over national affairs."

From his home near St. Thomas last night Premier Hepburn—who 17 months ago said, "I am not a Mackenzie King Liberal any more"—shot back a booming salvo in reply. He gave an unqualified denial of any conspiracy between himself and Mr. Duplessis and declared that if the Dominion Government wants to make an issue over relations between it and the province he is "prepared to go out on the hustings and fight them to the limit."

Mr. Rogers told the Port Arthur gathering that the attempted conspiracy failed "because it was against loyalty and against decency and dignity in the conduct of public affairs," and because Mr. Mackenzie King "has never held a stronger position than he does today in the loyalty of the Liberal party and in

Toronto Wants Aid, 22 Million Program

TORONTO, Dec. 12—(CP).—Jobs for many thousand unemployed men would be available if the Dominion and provincial overnments would contribute to Toronto's projected $22,500,000 civic works program, Mayor Ralph C. Day predicted today.

The plan embraces construction of a $15,000,000 sewage disposal plant, a north-south traffic artery east of Yonge street at an estimated cost of $5,000,000, and a downtown courthouse at $2,500,000.

The city, Mayor Day said, asks that the province and Dominion contribute 60 per cent of the cost, leaving about $9,000,000 to be raised by the city. He felt Toronto would have no trouble raising its share of the cost.

The mayor said the sewage plant was urgently needed, as 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 gallons of untreated sewage were being pumped into Lake Ontario daily.

Lakefield Girl Is Champion Of Spelling Bee

Mabel Hopkins of Lakefield won the Kiwanis Spelling Bee on Saturday night and the title of Grand Champion Speller of all Peterborough County, at least among the Seventh and Eighth Grade pupils of all the schools in that area. She won a close decision over Phyllis Schiarizza of St. Mary's Convent, Peterborough, at eleven o'clock. Lois Wright of Keene was third.

Only a slim crowd was on hand to applaud the several youngsters who won awards during the evening, despite the fact that all the champions of the entire bee were picked. On Friday evening contestants for country and village schools, scheduled to be declared, were only eliminated down to the last three in each class. On Saturday Mabel Hopkins of Lakefield, eventual winner of the grand championship, was declared champion over village School contestants, while second and third awards went to Yvonne Graham of Young's Point and Jacqueline Morin of Lakefield. In the School Fair district, Lois Wright of Keene was declared champion, with Peggy Longmuir of Belmont and Dorothy White of Bridgenorth capturing second and third honors. A special prize went to Adele Fitzgerald, a lame girl, who was well in the running.

Twenty-nine contestants from Peterborough city schools faced the microphone during a long session of eliminations that eventually saw Phyllis Schiarizza of St. Mary's Convent take the city championship

Montreal Picking Its Mayor Today

MONTREAL, Dec. 12. — (CP).—The flood of election oratory ebbed away to-day and three candidates stood on the sidelines while the electors took over the job of picking a new mayor for Montreal. By nightfall, 125,000 or more ballot slips will register the choice of a successor to J. Adhemar Raynault.

Awaiting the verdict of the votes were a former mayor, a previously successful candidate and a merchant making his debut at the polls. Besides the three, 74 candidates were out after the 29 of the 35 council seats not filled by acclamations.

For Camillien Houde, long a power in Quebec politics until Reynault beat him two years ago in the last election, the voting to-day marks his attempt at a fourth Montreal mayoralty term. It is Candidate Rochefort's second try — he was beaten in 1936—while for Charles A. Gascon, it is the initial bid for political office.

The three staged a warm campaign for the office vacated by Raynault, Union Nationale member of the Quebec Legislative Assembly for L'Assomption, who resigned because he was tired of the strenuous politics in the city.

The battle ended with a court fight over the distribution of a Gascon circular allegedly attacking Houde, with the former mayor taking out a court writ to sue Gascon for $50,000.

CURB NOISY DRILLS

Certain work on the new Waterloo Bridge over the Thames at London is being restricted to a few hours in the early morning and the evening because of complaints about the noise of the electric drills.

Champion Here is the girl judged by Kiwanians to be the best speller in all the seventh and eighth grades of schools throughout all Peterborough County. She is Grand Champion Mabel Hopkins, aged 12, of Lakefield, and she won a hard battle on Saturday night. Not once during her long contest did she misspell a word. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

Britain "Hopes" Germany Won't Annex Memel

Issue Now Involves Standards Of Public Life; Must And Will Be Squarely Faced At Coming Session Says Prime Minister

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP).—Great Britain has expressed to Germany the "hope" that the Reich will not annex Memel, Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today.

Great Britain, he said, was joining France in representations to Berlin concerning the possibility of a movement to absorb Memel, which was German before the Great War, as a sequel to yesterday's elections for the local parliament which resulted in a decisive victory for Memel Nazis.

In reply to a question the Prime Minister said:

"There is reason to think that after the Memel elections demands may be made upon the Lithuanian government by majority parties in the Diet which would be inconsistent with the statute of Memel (the agreement of May 8, 1924, by which Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan approved Lithuania's possession of Memel).

"The British government, as a signatory of the Memel convention, cannot ignore this possibility.

"In view of the special influence which the German government is in a position to exert in these matters, the British Charge d'Affaires in Berlin has been instructed to join with the French Ambassador in expressing the hope that the German government will use its influence to ensure respect for the statute."

No Ties To France.

Previously Chamberlain had told the House Great Britain is not obligated to go to the aid of France in the event of an Italian attack on France or her colonies.

Replying to a series of questions, Mr. Chamberlain also disclosed that Germany thus far has made no official request for the return of her former colonies, lost in the Great War.

Memel, with an area of 1,099 square miles, was German until the Reich surrendered it under the Treaty of Versailles. It was held under mandate by the principal Allied Powers until 1923, when Lithuanians invaded and occupied the territory.

The Allies recognized this conquest by the May 8, 1924, convention (or statute) signed at Paris and ratified in August, 1925.

The question of British aid to France in the event she were attacked by Italy also came before the house and Mr. Chamberlain replied to a question that "no such specific requirement exists in any treaty or pact with France."

However, on previous occasions Mr. Chamberlain has declared Great Britain would defend France or Belgium against unprovoked aggression.

Rakes Out 18-Pounder

MERRITTON, Ont., Dec. 12.—(CP).—Wiliam Weaver saw a fish at the intake pipe of the mill power plant here. Casually, he used a rake to lift it out of the water. It was a 41 inch, 18-pound northern pike.

507 Child Refugees

HARWICH, England, Dec. 12—(AP).—A group of 507 Jewish children, refugees from anti-Semistism in Vienna, landed here to-day to join previous groups from Germany who have been given asylum in English camps.

The group range in age from three to 17 years. They are sons and daughters of fathers who either are dead or in concentration camps.

Charges Flung At Hepburn Endorsed By King —And All His Colleagues

Suspects Demands Coming Upon Lithuania Result Of Nazi Election Victory; No British Tie To Aid France Against Italy

OTTAWA, Dec. 12 (CP). — Charges directed at Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario by Transport Minister Howe and Labor Minister Rogers in Port Arthur Saturday were warmly endorsed today by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

In a prepared statement the Prime Minister said references to the "alliance" between Mr. Hepburn and Premier Duplessis of Quebec, to efforts looking toward removal of Mr. Mackenzie King as Liberal leader and to the threat to national unity, were correct.

Not only were the statements of Mr. Howe and Mr. Rogers correct, the Prime Minister declared, but they were "shared by every one of my colleagues, and by the vast majority of members of the Liberal party throughout the Dominion."

The issue between the Federal and Ontario Liberal parties will be "discussed in all its implications" at a party caucus as soon as parliament meets in January, the Prime Minister said.

Premier's Statement

The statement follows:

I believe that the statements made by Mr. Rogers and Mr. Howe at Port Arthur, on Saturday night, as to:

(1) The unnatural political alliance between Premier Hepburn of Ontario and Premier Duplessis of Quebec;

(2) Mr. Hepburn's determination to use all the powers at his disposal to bring about my retirement as Prime Minister and leader of the Liberal party of Canada with a view to establishing a government at Ottawa which would be subject to the joint control of provincial administrations in Ontario and Quebec, and;

(3) The threat of national unity invoked in the attitude of Mr. Hepburn and Mr. Duplessis with respect to the royal commission on Dominion-provincial relations and other matters, are not only correct but are shared by every one of my colleagues in the Federal Government and by the vast majority of members of the Liberal party throughout the Dominion.

For a year and a half, I have refrained from saying a word or taking any step which might serve to widen the breach created by Mr. Hepburn's attitude towards myself and the Dominion Government. I have done this in the hope that legitimate differences, whatever they might be, would disappear or be removed.

The issue as it has developed transcends narrower considerations of personalities and parties. It has become one involving the standards which are to prevail in the public life of Canada, in the relations between the provinces and the Dominion, and the whole question of national unity. This issue must be and will be squarely faced. To that end as a first step, I intend, as soon as parliament reassembles, to discuss the situation in all its implications with members of the party in the House of Commons and the Senate. That is all I have to say for the present.

Nazi Work Out Trade Plan Emigrate Jews

BERLIN, Dec. 12 (AP)—A high German source disclosed today Germany was working out what may become a new Nazi formula for the emigration of Jews

The problem probably will be solved, he said, by allowing one wealtny and four impoverished Jews to leave the country as enough German exports are sold abroad to yield foreign exchange to meet the costs of their emigration.

The disclosure coincided with intimation of a slight let-up shortly in the severity of Nazi anti-semitic measures in return for which, it was indicated, Germany expects foreign Jews to provide foreign exchange.

"The government, together with foreign Jewish associations, is working out a plan of coupling emigration with exports," this source said.

He told of it in connection with a DNB, official German news agency announced, with deals with aid that foreign Jews and wealthy German Jews can contribute to riding Germany of her entire Jewish population.

"In pursuance of this plan," he said, "very emigrating wealthy Jew should agree to take four penniless Jews with him.

"Obviously we cannot give him foreign exchange to finance such an operation."

Outlet For German Goods

"He should find some wealthy Jew abroad to lend him such sums as may be necessary for enabling him and his four co-religionists to start life modestly anew in some other country.

"We are willing to reimburse this foreign Jew but obviously can do it only by furnishing made-in-Germany goods.

"The emigrating Jew thus has it in his own hand to hasten the day of his departure from Germany: if he can provide additional markets for German-made products."

This source was confident that such a method promised success.

It was obvious from his manner that the DNB communique was calculated to ease foreign tension over German's anti-semitic drive, thus paving the way for foreign Jewish aid for German Jewish emigrants.

The announcement said that some restrictions against Jews would be relaxed after Jan. 1.

FIRE ROYAL SALUTE

OTTAWA. — A royal salute was fired from Parliament Hill to-day by the 25th Battery, 1st Field Brigade, Royal Canadian Artillery, today to mark the second anniversary of the King's accession to the throne.

Last Minute News Flashes

ST. THOMAS, — Premier Hepburn of Ontario commented briefly to-day on the statement issued at Ottawa by Prime Minister Mackenzie King. He said: "I would suggest that Mr. King lift the blinds of his summer retreat at Kingsmere, peek out and then go back and hibernate again. It strikes me that's about all he has been doing for the last four years, and he might as well continue."

LONDON. — Joint economic reprisals by Great Britain and the United States against Japan as a result of Tokyo's determination to form an Asiatic bloc were regarded as a possibility here to-night. It is understood the idea of sanctions against Japan has been discussed informally between representatives of the two countries although no definite plan of operation has been drawn up or anything concrete formulated.

Death Ends Hoaxes Of G. B. Means Convict, Scandal Dealer De Luxe

Likes Fishing Cabins, Easy To Change Winter's Neighbors

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Dec. 12 (AP)—Gaston B. Means, 58, oft-time convict widely known for his $104,000 Lindbergh ransom hoax, died early today at the United States Medical Centre here.

Undisclosed to the end was his secret of what became of the large sum Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean of Washington, D.C., gave him on his promise that he could return the kidnapped son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh alive.

Even before the Lindbergh case, Means had a sensational career. It embraced trial and acquittal on a charge that he murdered a wealthy widow for whom he had acted as attorney and financial agent; self-admitted activity before the United States entered the Great War in behalf of German employers to check on supplies shipped to the allies; his work in the justice department and subsequent scandalous charges he voiced before a senate committee against high men in President Harding's administration; and convictions at trials during which witnesses said he had used his prestige in inner Washington circles to profit from illegal activities.

The Lindbergh hoax began unfolding when Means was arrested May 5, 1932 as he was driving from his home in Chevy Chase, Md.

Mrs. McLean said Means approached her only a few days after the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped and before the body was reported found, suggesting he could get the child back alive.

MRS. CHARLES SEDORE, 82, is looking forward to the freezing of Lake Simcoe when she can take her fishing cabin on the ice and live on the lake until the spring break-up. Challenge 3 Causes For Hating Men Sees Co-ed Produce Eighty

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 12. — (CP).—Marian Phillips, freshman at the University of Michigan, broke into print here with an article. "I Hate Men," published in the Michigan daily. She wrote a man had challenged her to list three reasons why she hated men. She named 80.

Topping her criticism of the unfair sex in "Why I Hate Men" is the complaint, "they all object to nail polish but they don't know why."

Men think woman wants to get married and if she's better at a job than a man they pay her half a man's salary and think she should be put back in the kitchen—where men think they are better cooks anyhow, Miss Phillips wrote.

Men never emerge from the brute stage, from adolescence to advanced parenthood, Miss Phillips insists. "They always, always ask you where you want to go when you set out on a date, but you always go where they want to.

"When they say they want to get married, they never say that they have found a marvelous girl they want to have the rest of their lives, but they always say they want to marry and have a family."

The Stenographer Racket.

"And if they have a big family they wonder why their wives look so worn and old, and start going out with the stenographer.

"They take your best friend out on a blind date and try to neck her.

"There is no way in the world that you can stop them from telling a dirty story if they happen to have one on hand.

"They only tell you that you look nice when there's a lull in the conversation.

"After making love to you all evening, they suddenly get up and stretch and say they are hungry."

Woman's perennial protest appears in Miss Phillips' list as "never in God's world have they been known to use an ash tray if there's a rug handy."

Congregation Sits Out 19 Hr. 10 Min. Session While 76 Read New Testament Non-Stop

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 12 (A.P.)—Three hours before dawn yesterday a Baptist preacher stepped into a pulpit before pews filled with sleepy worshippers, snapped on a reading light and opened a Bible to the New Testament.

"The Book of the Generation of Jesus Christ, the Son of David, the Son of Abraham," he intoned, beginning chapter one of the Gospel according to St. Matthew.

Fifteen minutes later his voice trailed to a full stop and Earl Montgomery, a member of the congregation, took up the reading.

And so it went in quarter-hour relays—Matthew, Mark, Luke, John....

The listeners, all of them attired in choir robes, sat patiently as morning light suffused the church, changed to bright sunshine and faded into twilight. Women came in at intervals and served hot food.

Darkness fell. At 9 o'clock Harvey Cressman, President of the Baptist Temple's Board of Deacons, began the Book of Revelations. He was the 72nd reader.

At five minutes before 10, Dr. Daniel A. Poling, who started the reading, returned to the pulpit. At 10.10 p.m. he finished.

"The Grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all, Amen."

The worshippers got stiffly to their feet and filed out.

The New Testament had been read from cover to cover in 19 hours 10 minutes.

Corrigan Salts Away $75,000 In 3 Months Lines His '28 Car Brakes In Spare Time

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12 (AP)—Douglas Corrigan, the jalopy flier, hardly needs to write to Santa Claus for anything.

The former $50-a-week aircraft mechanic who flew a dilapidated plane from New York to Ireland has earned $75,000 in three months. He is the star of a movie and the author of a successful autobiography in magazine and book form.

He leaves by airliner late this month for a tour of 15 big cities to boost his book. He is leasing his famous second-hand monoplane to the San Francisco World's Fair, for a percentage of the admissions.

He is open to other offers capitalizing on his so-called wrong-way flight, but he listens to none if there isn't cash on the line.

He is a busy fellow, salting away his overnight fortune, personally tending to all his financial affairs, working daily before the camera, and using his spare time on Sundays to reline the brakes of his 10-year-old car.

Corrigan lives in a low-priced hotel room, comes to the studio on a bus and lunches on a nickel ice cream bar.

Nazis Sweep Memel Elections

End Of Lithuanian Police Powers Is Initial Order

MEMEL, Lithuania, Dec. 12 (A.P.) —The pro-Nazi Memel Directory, flushed with what it termed a smashing victory in parliamentary elections yesterday, decreed the end of Lithuanian police powers to-day in this former German territory.

The decree asserted only police of autonomous Memel would be permitted to control security of the territory lying at Lithuania's southwest corner adjoining Germany. Lithuanian police who heretofore have collaborated with Memel's autonomous force now will be regarded as private citizens.

Political observers said final decision as to any change in the territorial status of Memel, object of German ambitions to expand along the Baltic, would be made in Berlin, not Memel.

The Lithuanian Government which holds a somewhat nominal sovereignty over Memel awaited the return from Berlin of the German minister. It is expected he will bring precise German proposals for the future of the disputed region.

Following a state of emergency decree "for protection of the state," more than 100 students were said rested in Kaunas, Lithuanian capi-rested in Kaunus, Lithuanian capital. Newspapers reported many students had been released, but that they were planning a strike demonstration.

MEMEL, December 12 — (CP). — Memel's Nazi "fuehrer," Ernst Neumann, 50-year-old veterinarian, sounded a rallying cry that "the time is ripe for a decision in Memel."

He was backed by yesterday's vote which showed more than 96 per cent of Memel's eligible voters—90 per cent of the region's 150,000 inhabitants are of German origin—had participated in the election.

26 of 29 Seats Nazis?

Final results will be known later this week, but 26 of the 29 Landtag (parliament) seats were expected to fall to the Nazi. That would be a net gain of two seats for the Germans and political observers said the new members would be more ardently Nazi than the old legislature which, with semi-autonomous powers, governed the 1,099 square mile territory formerly belonging to Germany.

Neumann declared: "We have begged for our rights for 15 years and we shall beg no more."

Those words were taken as foreshadowing a new demand for return to the Reich when Memel's Landtag meets late in January.

Others said that positive action for the annexation or complete domination of Memelland by Germany would come when Chancellor Hitler summons his Reichstag to meet Jan. 30.

That idea was supported by Neumann's enigmatic words "we don't know what our future will be, but the fate of Memel will not be decided here."

Whatever action is taken, none look for the use of force but anticipate the extension of German authority under the guise of demands for "the right of self determination," given voice in the Landtag before the Reichstag meets.

The only casualty of Sunday election disorders was an American, Robert Sellmer, free lance newspaperman of Milwaukee, Wis., who told authorities he was beaten by three uniformed guards for not replying to the Nazi salture as he was crossing a Memel street. The incident was reported to the United States minister in Kaunas.

Where 21 Miners Met Death In Mine Disaster

Shown piled up more than a mile underground, these smashed cars are some of the 26 which carried 250 miners careening down into the depths of the Princess Colliery, Sydney Mines, N.S. Twenty-one miners were killed and 40 injured as a result of accident which occurred when a cable, operating the "man rake," snapped and allowed the cars to hurtle down the steep incline. This is one of the first pictures taken of the interior of the mine shortly after the fatal disaster.

Guerrillas Slay 6,000 Japs In Shansi Rout

SHANGHAI, Dec. 12 (AP). — A major setback to the long-heralded Japanese mop-up campaign in Shansi Province was reported today with the statement by Chinese that 6,000 Japanese had been killed there by Chinese guerrillas.

Chinese sources also reported victories in two other sectors, recapturing cities on the Sinkiang River and others west of Hankow. (The casualty reports could not be confirmed from other sources).

The Shansi setback was said to have been inflicted by China's famed Eighth Army during day and night harassing tactics to force the Japanese to withdraw after a successful offensive against Wutaisha, the Eighth Army's fortified base at the foot of Wutai Mountain.

Foreign reports said the Chinese had seized large supplies of arms and ammunition by means of a hit-and-run campaign aimed at regaining control of the northeast province.

Chinese leaders told of their gains in an interview in a Shanghai tea house where they had come after a hazardous journey through the Japanese lines to obtain medical supplies. They produced photographs to substantiate their claims.

Other Chinese guerrilla successes by the Fourth Army in Anhwei, Chekiang, and Kiangsu Provinces were described. The leaders declared guerrillas had lost only one major battle out of 50 engagements since they took the field.

Meanwhile a Kuomin (Chinese News Agency) dispatch from Linhsien said a major Chinese offensive to attempt recapture of Canton was expected momentarily.

Kev City Retaken

HONG KONG, Dec. 12—(AP).—Recapture of several important towns close to Canton, including the key city of Waichow, was reported today by Chinese who said they achieved victories after several weeks of desultory skirmishing.

Waichow is the principal city between Canton and Bias Bay, on the South China Coast, where the Japanese expenditionary force landed Oct. 11 prior to capturing Canton.

Reports from Canton indicated the Japanese were withdrawing from Bias Bay, east of Hong Kong, since they no longer need the bay area for receiving supplies, now transported directly to Canton up the Pearl river.

Heavy Japanese troop movements west of Canton seemed to foreshadow a major Japanese drive toward Kwangsi and Yunnan provinces.

Marmorans Winners At Bonarlaw Social

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, Dec. 12.—Two Marmora residents on Saturday night were successful in winning prizes at the euchre and social evening held in the club rooms of St. Mark's Church under the auspices of the laymen's Association. The lady's prize went to Mrs. E. A. Gray and the door prize to Reeve W. R. Linn, both of Marmora. The gentleman's prize went to Milton Campbell of Bonarlaw. Close seconds to the winners were Mrs. H. Haslett and Murray McInroy.

There was a good attendance, thanks to three tables from Marmora. The president, Mr. Robert Foshay, expressed his appreciation to all those present, and the lunch committee provided a bountiful lunch.

W. J. Barlow, chairman of the program committee, had charge of the playing.

YALE'S RADICALS

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—(CP). — Answering charges of "radical" hurled from time to time at Yale's law faculty, President Charles Seymour said that without intellectual freedom in the faculty the school "would die of dry rot."

Bethany Home Is Partially Burned

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, Dec. 12.—Fire partially destroyed the home of Ted Shaw on Front street at eleven o'clock on Sunday night. The roof was bumped off and the upstairs badly gutted. Mr. and Mrs. Shaw were at home at the time and immediately turned in the alarm which was responded to by the volunteer fire brigade which was successful in keeping the flames to the second story and the roof.

ROSENEATH

Centenary Surprise Box Collects $60

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Dec. 12.—When the members of Centenary United Church named a money-making system the "surprise box," the name was aptly chosen. This came out at the annual meeting held Thursday by the society. When the financial report was read it showed that out of approximately $120.00 raised by the society $60 of this amount was raised from the "surprise box."

It is just any box filled with donations from a membership of fifteen, and a sale of the goods and articles is conducted also by the same members. This was the special effort made to raise funds, and the members were agreeably surprised at the success of the scheme.

The annual election of officers was conducted by the pastor, Rev. L. W. Scott. Mrs. Newman Lean was elected president succeeding Mrs. William Taylor.

Mrs Taylor, nee Teressa Dowler had, following her marriage moved from the community after serving as president for one year; vice-president. Mrs. M. Brown; secretary, Miss Emma Sherwin; treasurer, Miss Hilda Arthur.

The meeting was held in the church with a large attendance. A Christmas program was presented, a pleasing feature being an exchange of gifts among the members.

Refreshments were served at the close while a social half-hour was enjoyed.

"DRY" SHIP FOR DELEGATES

Organizations are chartering a "dry" ship for British delegates to the International Congress on Alcoholism at Helsingfors, Finland, next year.

Old Virginia Fine Cut is here, bringing new convenience, new satisfaction, new enjoyment to "roll-your-owners." It's an extra fine cut tobacco with long, silky threads of mild Virginia leaf that lie snug and tidy in the paper (most smokers prefer Vogue or Chantecler papers) that roll quickly and easily into evenly-filled cigarettes.

This new cigarette tobacco is different and it comes in a different package—a pocket-fitting, seal-tight pouch that keeps the tobacco fresh and in top condition to the very last shred.

The handy pouch of Old Virginia Fine Cut carries the signature "D. Ritchie & Co.", the hall-mark of genuine Old Virginia.

Dressedweights.—Barrie, $11.65; Chatham, $11.30; Hull, $11.70; Kitchener, $11.75; Peterborough, $11.35; Stratford, $11.75; London, $11.35.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Dec. 12 — (CP). — Cattle sales were too few to establish a market trend by early afternoon on Toronto Livestock Market to-day. Calf prices were weak. Lambs were generally 25 cents higher with sheep steady. No hog price was set by early afternoon. Cattle holdover from Thursday was 500 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 3,790; calves, 920; hogs, 1,560; sheep and lambs, 840.

Only a few hundred cattle were sold by mid-session. A few lots of butcher cattle sold at $5 to $5.75. Butcher cows brought $2.75 to $4; canners and cutters $2 to $2.50. Some good bulls made $4 to $4.25. Stockers ranged from $4.50 to $5.25 with a few stocker calves up to $6 and tops reaching $6.25.

Veal calves made a general top of 10. Heavy calves traded at $5 to $6.50, with grassers at $4.50.

Previous close on off-truck bacon hogs was $8.50 to $8.75.

Good ewe and wether lambs moved at $9.50 delivered by rail and $9 to $9.25 by truck. Choice lambs reached $10. Heaties and bucks ranged from $8 to $8.50, culls from $6.50 to $7. Sheep were $2 to $4.50 cwt.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Dec. 12 — (CP). — Impetus of a 1,000,000 bushel export business and firmness at Liverpool sent Winnipeg wheat futures prices fractionally higher to-day in a moderately active session. Final quotations were ¼ to ⅝ up. December at 61⅛, May 64 to 64⅛, and July 64⅝ cents.

Aside from seaboard and overseas demand for wheat, however, the market had little feature. Offerings by the Canadian Wheat Board were well absorbed and some covering was in evidence.

Liverpool closed ⅝ to ¼d higher, influenced by lower world wheat shipments and reports of frost in Argentina wheat belts. Buenos Aires at three o'clock was ⅝ cents higher to unchanged. American markets held up fractionally most of the morning.

Cash wheat trade again was quiet while pit trading in coarse grains brought out support in barley and oats with some intermarket activity apparent in rye.

wife of the publisher of the Washington Post, said Means professed having learned through a one time cellmate in the Atlanta Penitentiary that the baby was alive and held in Mexico. Means preference to a penitentiary term was to one he served for conviction in 1924 on charges that he helped the diversion of 512,000 cases and 12,000 barrels of bonded whiskey into bootleg channels by boasting he had the United States Justice Department in his pocket.

Mrs. McLean said Means told her of having met the old cellmate at a New York speakeasy. She told of handing $100,000 to Means, who she also paid $4,000 for "expenses" at her Washington home.

She went to El Paso, Texas, in mid-March of 1932 to meet Means near the purported Mexico hideout of the kidnappers and the baby.

She became suspicious when Means told her there of quarrels with the kidnappers which had delayed recovery of the baby. She returned to Washington.

Means' arrest was made after he allegedly told Mrs. McLean he turned over the $100,000 to kidnap contact men in a mysterious meeting April 21 on a railroad bridge near Alexandria, Va.

Hastings Society Elects Leaders

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 12.—Mrs. Albert Brooks opened her home on Thursday afternoon for the monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of Trinity United church, when the retiring president, Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe conducted the devotional exercises.

Group leaders were elected, each one to be responsible for programs in turn. Mrs. A. M. Brooks is leader of the red group, Mrs. H. Orr the white group and Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe the blue group. Mrs. C. Hoard was appointed community friendship secretary and Mrs. R. Collins, Mrs. G. Fox and Mrs. W. Way as delegates to the Peterborough Presbyterial.

Mrs. F. W. Newell prepared an interesting paper on the study book which was given in three parts as follows: "Canada" by Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe, "European and Asiatic Contribution" by Mrs. G. Fox and "The Church" by Mrs. Alex German.

The program, in charge of Mrs. Brooks, included the singing of Christmas hymns; a reading, "Keeping Engagements In Spite of the Storm," by Mrs. A. M. Brooks; piano instrumental by Miriam Newell; reading, "Temperance and Christian Citizenship," by Mrs. A. German; solo, "Pass It On," by Mrs. H. Edwards; reading, "A Word Of Encouragement" by Mrs. R. Collins.

Lunch was served by the red group.

Letter Reveals Distressing Experience

A vivid picture of living conditions in North China is given in a letter which Mrs. W. R. Fields of 215 Princess street has received from her sister, Mrs. S. Pulkinghorn. Mr. Pulkinghorn is employed as a pilot at Taku Bar, and the following excerpts from Mrs. Pulkinghorn's letter are descriptive of the frightening conditions which exist in this part of China.

"My dear Sister:

You will think I am never going to write you again. We have had some awful scares this last summer, and I hope they are finished. The last one we had I shall never forget. We had been playing Mah-Jong until eleven-thirty p.m., the three of us waiting for father to come home at midnight. The lights go out at twelve, and when I heard the Pilot's whistle blow I knew father wouldn't be long. About two-thirty a.m. the boy came knocking at the door. He told us we had orders to leave, as the bandits were in the village shooting and looting. Father was tired and said "don't bother, we are quite safe," so I told the boy I didn't intend to leave. I was so afraid I kept looking through the window. I could see nothing but darkness, trees, and hear shooting. I really began to think we were being surrounded. About half an hour later the boy came again. He said we had to go, as everyone in the village had already gone to the tug that was waiting in the river with six British soldiers on board. I took my keys, my money, and jewelry. I asked if my neighbor had gone, and was told that someone was taking care of her. I went to the gate and saw a light in her room, and when I called her she came down. We all hurried down to the jetty with a hurricane lamp.

Most of the people had already gone when we got to the jetty. Ten of us got into a little boat. We had a job getting alongside of the tug, as the water was running out like mad. When we got into the tug we all felt so pleased, and waited until daylight, when the boat came for us and we went home to sleep.

We can't get coal like we used to; food is also hard to get, and twice the price we had to pay before. It is very hard to get a room, and the hotel fares are also doubled. No one knows what the outcome of it all will be.

We Noticed

...Here are some suggestions that the shops are featuring, and which would make ideal items for your Christmas list. To delight almost any woman you know are giant size bath soaps in assorted scents and flower shapes; a charming silk envelope for the purse with compartments for compact, lipstick, comb, spicy toilet water, bath salts, talcum and soap.

◇ ◇ ◇

...For the leading man in your life there's a locker kit in a pigskin case containing shaving cream, comb, brush, lotion and several other necessary items.

◇ ◇ ◇

...To encourage the small daughter to keep herself well-groomed, there are lots of good ideas on the Christmas counters. How about a minature manicure set, so that her nails will be clean and neat? Then there are comb, brush and mirror sets in small sizes, and a variety of tiny sachet pillows, a set of which might inspire a child to keep the drawers of her dresser neater.

Wife Preservers

You can test cotton materials when buying to see that sizing has not been used to fill the pores and give a deceptive appearance of strength and quality. Rub the material between your fingers. If white dust falls out, leaving the fabric looking coarser, do not buy it

DOROTHY DIX

If You Want To Keep Your Husband Perpetually In Love With You Keep On Using The Same Wiles That Prevailed In Courtship Days.

DAUGHTER, if you want to keep your husband in love with you, let me advise you to follow these rules and see if they don't work satisfactorily:

First. Never disillusion him. Maybe when he marries you he is not quite gaga enough with love to believe that you are an angel straight from heaven, but he does think you are a pretty swell person and that he is lucky to get you for a wife. Keep him holding the good thought. Be easy on his eyes and yes-yes him whenever it is humanly possible to do so. Don't feel that marriage gives you the privilege of going slouchy and eating onions and speaking home druths.

Don't think that because you have hooked your fish you can throw away your bait. You know what your line was when you were trying to catch him. Keep on playing it if you want to hold him.

Second. Don't talk too much. Never tell your husband about your old sweethearts and love affairs. Burn all your old photographs of Tom, Dick and Harry and destroy their love letters before you marry. Never be tempted to relate romantic episodes of your past and how smitten you were with some good-looker, and how you could have married some millionaire and lived in splendor instead of a two-by-four flat.

After you are married put the loud pedal on your achievements and the soft one on your mistakes. Every wife writes her own price tag for her husband, so keep your failures quiet and ballyhoo your victories. When you burn the bread chuck it into the garbage can instead of weeping over it. When you pay $20 for a hat distract your husband's attention from it by showing him the little dress you bought for 2.95 at a bargain sale.

Third Be a lover. Before marriage a man does the courting. After marriage the wife must do it if the fire is kept alight on the altar. Don't expect your husband to take it for granted that you still love him, although you never mention it. He wants to be told, daily and hourly, that he is still a romantic hero in your eyes, and that you think him the handsomest and cleverest and most fascinating man in the world.

Wives don't know it, but the strongest hold that any woman ever has on any man is his knowledge of her love for him. Many a man has married a woman he didn't want to marry because he couldn't bear to break the poor thing's heart when she was so devoted to him. And few husbands ever start to roaming in search of forbidden sweets until the sugar supply runs out at home.

Fourth. Don't let the first baby put your husband's nose out of joint. It is pretty hard for a man who has been cock of the walk to be deposed by a bald-headed infant that looks like a cross between a cream cheese and a boiled lobster, so let him down easily. Give him some of your time and attention and petting. Chuck him under the chin occasionally and tell him he is the "boofulest fing" in the world. Step out with him instead of spending the evenings watching Junior sleep. Talk about something besides sterilized milk and formulas for baby food.

Don't put your husband out into the cold and thenceforth regard him not as a man, but as a slave to provide luxuries for your children. This is a mistake. Few men are baby worshippers, and if you have no time for your husband he is likely to be having a time with the platinum blondes. Moreover, your children grow up and go about the business of life for themselves, and if you have lost your husband because of them you are in for a lonely old age.

Fifth. Don't nag. Before you marry make up your mind that you are going to take your husband as is, and stick to the resolution that you are going to deny yourself the pleasure of cutting him over according to your own taste. Being reformed is always a painful process, and no man would ever marry if he knew that he would have to go through the torture of being torn to pieces by his wife and have all of his habits and tastes snatched from him.

Not being a moron and having ordinary powers of observation before you took a man for a husband you must have noticed his table manners, his grammar and pronunciation, his little peculiarities and weaknesses, and you must have got a line on his friends, his tastes, his politics and his religion. Well, then, in mercy to the poor creature, either take him or leave him just as he stands, with all his faults thick upon him.

So don't nag him to death about gargling his soup, or murdering his mother tongue, or eating two pieces of pie for dinner. Never criticize your husband. Leave that to strangers who do not have to live with him.

DOROTHY DIX.

Tomorrow Dorothy Dix will give you five more rules for keeping your husband in love with you.

Service Is Held For Nurses At St. Andrew's

"The nursing profession is one of the oldest in the world—as old as the human race itself," said Rev. Dr. E. W. Young at a special service for nurses in St. Andrew's church on Sunday evening. There were nurses in ancient Greece, Babylon, Rome and Egypt. These nurses lived during a time of tragedy, danger and the shedding of human blood, just as the nurses of today are brought into touch with the tragedy and sorrow of life.

That nurses have a place and part in God's plan was revealed in the story of Moses, who was rescued by Pharoah's daughter and reared in her father's palace with his own mother as nurse. Dr. Young spoke of the human motives and the divine providence which lay behind this act, and of the mother's insight and compassion of the Egyptian princess In the mother of the child there was something more than mother love. She saw that somehow or other her race was no destined to be destroyed, and may have glimpsed something of the future that lay ahead of the boy. This notable personality, who was her son, led the Hebrew people out of Egypt and through the wilderness. He became the great law-giver of Israel, and by preserving the Hebrew people really changed the course of history, for they would have been utterly destroyed without him.

True Religion Needed

"A Christian nurse is more valuable than any other kind of nurse—she makes a contribution to the world that a non-christian nurse can never do," Dr. Young said. She is present at the life and death of almost every individual, and it is only by true religion that a nurse can achieve her finest influence. A cynical, hard-hearted nurse is a monstrosity. Technical skill may make a nurse, but only God can make a good nurse. The mother heart is a gift from God, and the nurse with a mother heart has a splendid gift to make to the welfare of the human race.

Though nurses usually come from Christian homes, there is a tendency to forget some of the things that have been taught during the arduous, busy hours of hospital life, and Dr. Young urged his listeners to remember that Christ is with them through all the strenuous hours, and that in Him they will realize a never-failing help.

Mrs. Paige Rowell presided at the social hour which followed the service, and Dr. A. Moir welcomed the nurses and spoke about the necessity of the church taking an interest in their spiritual life. Mrs. James Wharry, president of the Women's Auxiliary Board, also spoke, expressing the deep interest which the Auxiliary took in their welfare.

Christmas carols were sung with R. B. Harle at the piano, and solos were given by Adam Hawley and James Johnston.

Guests included members of the choir, representatives from the Women's Auxiliary, the Alumnae Association, and nurses from Nicholls and St. Joseph's Hospitals. The men of the church arranged for the nurses' transportataion.

Coffee was poured by Mrs. T. Hamilton and Mrs. R. B. Harle.

W. A. Plans Sale of Work

A good attendance of members was present for the monthly meeting of the Knox Church Women's Association, which was held in the church parlors with the president, Mrs. John Allen, presiding.

The devotional period was conducted by Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt, and included a fine address on "Peace and Goodwill."

The list of nominated officers for the coming year was read as follows: Honorary president, Mrs. John Penrose and Mrs. V. E. R. Zufelt; president, Mrs. J. Allen; vice-president, Miss L. Armstrong, Mrs. J. Londerville, Mrs. T. Johnston, Mrs. Wm. Archibald; treasurer, Mrs. Roy Lang; secretary, Mrs. J. Lancashire; flower committee, Mrs. Hanscom, Mrs. Lindsay; pianists, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Goodfellow and Mrs. A. Spicer; social convener, Mrs. George Davis.

A large number of visits was reported by the visiting committee, and thanks for the co-operation and support of the ladies was expressed by the president. The treasurer of each group gave a report for the past year. A travelling apron was opened, and netted a fine sum. It was announced that there is to be a sale of work and homemade cooking on Thursday, December 15, in the church parlors, when afternoon tea will be served, and that the January roll call is to be answered with a proverb. At the January meeting, also, holiday cards are to be turned in. The guest speaker will be a delegate from the Women's Association convention which was recently held in Millbrook.

Do You Know?

That the following electrical appliances are very, very helpful when preparing your early morning breakfast, your midnight snack, informal luncheons, or mid-afternoon get-togethers?

◇ ◇ ◇

The electric grill which turns out crisp sandwiches and sausages, frizzled ham and brown hash, and which will serve you faithfully for years if you keep it out of water and use fine steel wool for its non-removable grids.

◇ ◇ ◇

The electric roaster, with its temperature control, in which you can bake a whole meal if you like, and the electric waffle baker for speedy preparation of all varieties and kinds of waffles.

Norwood I.O.D.E. Holds Bridge

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Dec. 12.—The Norwood branch of the I.O.D.E. held a very enjoyable bri[illegible]on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Fred Stewart, "Riverview Farm," Elgin. Seven tables of bridge were played with other ladies coming in for lunch.

The prizes for the highest scores went to Miss Helen Scott and Mrs. M. Callendar, while Mrs. Robert Stewart received the consolation prize.

A dainty lunch was served by the ladies and a good time enjoyed by all present.

Missionary Meeting.

The Women's Missionary meeting was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Brown. The Bible reading was taken from the November Missionary Monthly. Mrs. W. B. Tucker gave the treasurer's report. A letter was read by Mrs. Frank Webster from Miss Clark, a missionary in China. The last half of the meeting was conducted by Mrs. Puffer.

United Y.P.S.

The regular meeting of the Norwood United Young People's Society was held on Monday night, with Margaret Marks, devotional vice-president, in charge. Readings were given by David McNeil, Maynard Bongard and Helen Scott. Miss Varcoe then favored with a solo, "Lead Me Gently Home." The topic was given by Lola Bonds and Margaret Marks. The closing hymn was sung and the meeting adjourned with the Mizpah benediction.

HOUSES WENT CHEAP

LIVERPOOL, England—(CP). — There was only one bid when two houses were put up at auction in Liverpool. They were knocked down for $2.50 apiece. Reason—the houses are scheduled for demolition.

Fashions

A perfect costume slip with beautifully smooth line to flatter your new frocks. The low-cut brassiere top, moulds the bosom. It has a slim diaphragm . . . fitted to give the "nipped-in" waistline. The slim supple skirt, with snug hips, flares for walking comfort. Think of it! There's just a few easy steps to sew it . . . . the cost is moderate! You'll want to make some for Christmas gifts. They'll be received with hearty welcome. Choose from the dark street shades of washable silk crepes and crepe satin as well as from the pastels. They're smart this season!

Style No. 2958 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44-inches bust. Size 36 requires 2 1-4 yards of 39-inch material.

THE MARKETS THAT SET THE PACE

Always Ready when you want it!

. . . if you have an individual line

Sometimes, with two-party telephone service, the line is being used by the other subscriber when you need it most.

It is important to have the service available when you want it—to be able to lift your receiver at any hour of the day or night, and make a call without delay. An individual line telephone makes this possible.

The comfort and satisfaction of a telephone line of your own, both to you and to friends calling you, more than justifies its small additional cost. We can transfer you promptly to individual line service.

Bandits Made a Survey

During a trial at London, Ont., arising out of a bank robbery one of the witnesses was brought from Kingston penitentiary where he is now serving time for his part in the crime. He told with a fair amount of detail just how three men went about looking for a place which they thought would be good for robbery.

Travelling in a stolen car the trio came as far east as Peterborough, and the evidence was to the effect that looked around this city. It must have been that the location of the banks here or the amount of traffic near them indicated they would be rather tough places to enter and leave. So they looked elsewhere and decided on a bank in Mount Brydges, a village in Middlesex county.

We take it that in making such a survey the three gunmen might have selected any bank between London and Peterborough, but they picked on one in a village where police patrol would not be formidable and where there would be no traffic lights to stop them or draw attention to their anxiety to get away.

When men travel around in stolen cars looking for some place to rob it means that a village or a town is as much exposed as a city. It means also that the criminals of one community can be quickly transferred to another; the community with little police protection is just as much exposed to attack—and probably more so—than the larger centre with its adequate protective methods and equipment. Officers in cars and motorcycles the improved system of telephone and radio warning are our best methods for competing with the travelling mugs who rob banks and other places and depend on their speed in departure for safety. Smaller centres are well advised to make certain that facilities for such warnings are always adequate and in order.

Bonusing Destruction

A meeting of the Society of Chemical Industry was held in London recently, and information was given showing that a large bombing plane can carry 2,000 incendiary bombs and these can be released at the rate of 20 per second. It was claimed the amount of damage which could be done would be very great. "Very great" is probably a conservative way of stating the case.

We noticed recently a translation made from a German publication showing what could be done by one of the large bombers recently perfected there. "A large bomb of the explosive type can be relied upon to wreck any known building. It would go right through and the air pressure following the explosion would cause even the walls to collapse."

We wonder if it is worth while to have developed a system of technical education and scientific instruction in many branches in order that men might make use of it to produce a species of hell on earth?

We travel today on a strange road. A man with mechanical or chemical skill might possibly bring into existence a number of useful ideas, but the path of the peaceful inventor is not often a happy one. In many instances he might have difficulty enough in making a living or securing adequate recompense for the long days weeks or months he would have to devote to the perfection of his idea.

If he were able to perfect a new bomb, a more deadly bomb, one which would effectively and rapidly blow human beings to pieces and wreck buildings which it may have taken years or centuries to complete—inflict pain, misery and suffering in a degree never before thought possible—then that inventor will find the world making a beaten path to his door. He can dictate his own price, terms and conditions.

Our scientific world, our technical skill, and our increasing knowledge or engineering and chemistry have been too much used to blast and rape the world which has helped to make this new knowledge possible. And yet the nations of the world are avowedly Christian and we would deeply resent the suggestion that we are not civilized!

Saying Too Much

Florida is making its usual appeal to Canadians to come on and escape the cold weather of the north. It is a delightful spot and that is beyond question, but the Florida people lay it on just a little too thick at times. Thus we read:

"St. Petersburg is virtually cut off from the rest of Florida and is surrounded by gulf waters which keep the temperature at 72 degrees the year round."

It is easy enough to recall some of the January weather in that city. There was the gentleman who had a nice rooming house and for some time had been seeking to make a sort of plantation of tropical growth. He had succeeded in getting banana vegetation up to considerable height, but the leaves were all drooped and looked sick as could be. He was getting along well enough until the frost came, and we believe frost comes at the same degree in Florida as it does in this country.

It is a great winter resort, but one Peterborough gentleman who returned at the end of March this year found it was getting too hot for him. Nearly all the winter visitors leave by the middle of April for the same reason.

Asking The Government

Reference has been made in these columns previously about the manner in which people are expecting the government to come to their aid. The British farmer is not exempt. The government helps him with his wheat by taxing flour so funds are available to make certain the British farmer is paid $1.30 per bushel for his wheat.

Agriculture Minister W. S. Morrison had a rough time of it when addressing farmers at Lincoln. The government plan is to increase the subsidy to barley growers from 10 shillings to £1 ($2.34 to $4.68) per acre. Such a move will cost the government close to $2,000,000 per year.

The amount of the bonus was not considered sufficient. Some of the farmers at the meeting said it was "an insult." They broke up the meeting and forthwith held one of their own at which they passed a resolution setting forth that they would vote for no government candidate unless the subsidy to barley growers was considerably stepped up. It would mean of course taking money from all the people and giving it to those who grow barley. The trouble is so many people are beginning to take the view that such a system is right as can be. Whereas it would swamp any country which followed it far enough.

Our Ontario Premiers

A reader of the Examiner asks: "Is it true that Sir James Whitney was premier of Ontario for a longer period than any other leader? Was he premier for a longer period than Hon. Howard Ferguson?"

It is correct that Sir James Whitney was in office for a longer period than Hon. Howard Ferguson. Whitney's term of office was from February of 1905 until September of 1914, while Mr. Ferguson held office from July of 1923 until December of 1930.

But neither of these gentlemen made a record for length of time in the premiership of our province. Hon. Oliver Mowat was in office from October of 1872 until July of 1896, making a record of 24 years, one which has not been equalled or approached by any other.

Ontario administrations from 1867 to the present have been:

Hon. J. S. Macdonald, July, 1867, to December, 1871.
Hon. Edward Blake, December, 1871, to October, 1872.
Hon. Oliver Mowat, October, 1872, to July, 1896.
Hon. A. S. Hardy, July, 1896, to October, 1899.
Hon. G. W. Ross, October, 1899, to February, 1905.
Hon. Sir J. P. Whitney, February, 1905, to September, 1914.
Hon. Sir William Hearst, October, 1914, to November, 1919.
Hon. E. C. Drury, November, 1919, to July, 1923.
Hon. G. H. Ferguson, July, 1923, to December, 1930.
Hon. G. S. Henry, December, 1930, to July, 1934.
Hon. M. F. Hepburn, July, 1934, to the present.

Mrs. Reilly Will Win

Mrs. Annie Reilly, 58 years of age and described as rather frail, has decided she is going to live in New York city, although United States border officials have decided she is going to keep on residing in Montreal. They say that is where she belongs.

Mrs. Reilly has three sons and two daughters and they all live in or around New York, while the mother lives alone in Montreal. It is no new thing for Mrs. Reilly to be arrested on the charge of having entered United States illegally. In the last eight years she has gone through the procedure six times; she probably knows all the routine now; knows what to expect and what to say.

She was arrested once again in New York the other day, and one of the children arrived and put up the $500 bail required for her release. She explained she wanted to spend Christmas with her children, at which suggestion the Judge though it over and said he would grant a hearing in a month's time, which will include both Christmas and New Year's, so it does not look as though the persistent Mrs. Reilly had actually won a point there.

Her children are reported to be well-to-do while the mother is alone in Montreal and with nothing to do and with little financial strength. Possibly there are sufficient reasons for denying a good many people the right to enter United States, but we have a feeling that Mrs. Annie Reilly is going to be the winner in this crossing-the-border contest. Her five children are in the States and she wants to go there too. Why shouldn't she?

The Impounding Issue

What is regarded as a test case in London, Ont., will be of interest to every community in the province because it has to do with the right to order the impounding of the car of an individual who has been found guilty of driving while drunk. The impounding is mandatory as far as the courts are concerned, and becomes automatically operative when drunk driving has been proved.

A case in London was contested and the claim was that the Ontario Legislature had no right to use impounding, as it was something which a provincial government was doing with a criminal law passed by the federal government. The London magistrate on that occasion refused to sanction the impounding of the car.

The answer of the Attorney-General of the province was that the impounding should proceed just the same, and it was done in this case. Now action has been taken against the city of London and the chief of police and damages of $150 is asked.

That will bring the matter out in the open where it will have to be attended to. It is probably easier to sue a city and a chief of police than it is to bring similar action against the Attorney-General, although it was on the instructions of the latter that the protested impounding was done in London. Perhaps it is just as well that action should be brought because a decision will have to be registered. Much better than to have doubt and delay. This province needs the impounding rights left as they are; it is too effective a weapon against drunk driving to have taken away from us.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Toronto druggist when threatened by bandits picked up a bottle of salts and started after them and that of course caused them to move.

Man in Iowa is in the hospital, having been bitten by a skunk. No—there is no mistake in the wording. He was not shot but bitten.

Trouble with being a senator is that if one takes sick there are so many deserving and expectant politicians who are not pulling for the patient's recovery.

Students who have been vaccinated can now return to St. Thomas Collegiate. Some of them are up in arms over the order.

The new Conservative leader stands six feet two inches, so if Mr. Hepburn decides to shake his fist at him in the Legislature that's about as far as tht gesture is likely to go.

High River, Alta., has a hairless horse, and veterinarians can find no cure for the condition. We know a number of bald-headed men in the same general classification.

Hon. Earl Rowe told Conservative convention in Toronto: "I lost you an election, but I saved you a party." The first part of the statement received unanimous consent.

Berkley, Cal., woman married her fifth husband the other day, and only one of her former collection is dead. She has not lacked husbands but she does lack a sense of shame.

Two Detroit women were arrested when doing their Christmas shopping. They were making excellent selections and good progress. Only thing wrong was their oversight of the fine old custom of paying for things.

Mayor of New York received a letter in which there was a bullet, and a note advising him that is what he would get if he did not cease making attacks on Hitler. It is more comfortable to receive a bullet in the mail than in the back of the neck.

It is reported a dozen delivery boys in Toronto have quit their jobs because they fear being robbed and injured when making calls at night. A better cure might be for the stores to quit making deliveries to calls where change for a bill is demanded.

FRIEND IN NEED

(By A. R. K.)

¶ At times the scandal tongues will wag and make their way around the town, and how they hammer at the jay when he is nearly out and down.

¶ They tackled hard a chap I know, they rapped him soundly here and there, they had all manner of mean things to broadcast on the evening air.

¶ They never gave him a chance at all to answer all the things they said, they never tried to kill them off, they just repeated them instead.

¶ 'Twas then a friend who knew him well, he started in to trail the yarn, he found a man who'd passed it on and dared him out behind the barn.

¶ This friend he said he knew the man, he sees him every day at work, and swears that in his mind and heart there is no trace of scandal dirt.

¶ He knows of all the things he's done, and names him as a kindly gent, who shares what little that he has when scraping on his last red cent.

¶ And thus he tracked the scandal down and save his friend's good name for him, and he was ready for a fight with any scandal-wigglin' chin.

¶ That is the kind of friend I'd like, a better kind there could not be, than one who's stand up for a fight when folk be peltin' dirt at me.

Envies Dogs Food and Shelter

(A Letter from a Transient in the London Free Press)

EDITOR Free Press: I am sending this letter to you in hope you or the many readers of your paper could find a way out for the young men of today who travel in hopes of finding work, whom you call transients.

I was reading your article headed "Gone Limit On Welfare." Mr. Hepburn states that the unemployed single men of today look upon the present day as an era of paternalism. Well that is not so with all the young men that are out of work for there are a great many who would like to help themselves out, but cannot find a way, for you know that work is very scarce, but it is no fault of anybody's that there is no work for us.

Well I may as well tell you how I became a transient, then you will understand. Three years ago I was laid off work. The firm I worked for went bankrupt. I tried to get work but failed. Every place told me that they had all the men they could handle.

I applied for relief but the officer told me that all relief was cut off for the summer. I started out to look for work and could not find any around the country. Six months later I was back in my home town or city as it is. I again applied for relief. I was asked a lot of questions and when the officer found out that I had been out of the city for six months he told me I was not a resident of that place any more. What was I to do? The first time I applied for relief was I to stay until winter to get help? If I had done so I would have been starved to death. After I was turned down for relief I started to travel and look for work. I could not find any until the spring. I did get two weeks then planting tobacco. I made $18. Then I was laid off till harvest but how long will $18 keep a fellow when he has to have a place to sleep and something to eat?

When the tobacco harvest began I got a job, $2.50 per day, for six weeks. I made about $75 or $80. I needed clothes very badly for it had been over a year since I had any good clothes, so I got clothes. After harvest I was laid off as there was no more. I went to Delhi and boarded there in hopes of getting work in the tobacco factory. The factory opened and I tried to get work but could not. There was all my money paid out for board and no job. I looked for work all over but could not find it. I went to Toronto and stayed there all winter, sleeping in the C.N.R. coaches and eating six meals a week for the place I got breakfast at did not give any on Sunday morning.

The 25th of May I came up here and got two more weeks' work again but was laid off then; I had to wait for harvest.

This year I did not do so well for I took sick and lost nine days' work. Then, after the harvest was over I went back to Delhi and tried to get work. I stayed till the facory again opened but the same story. I could not get in. There were a lot of fellows who did the same as I did. Now I am out of money, no place to go and no work. What am I to do—go sit on a curb and stay there till I starve or what am I to do and what are the thousands of others all over Ontario going to do?

When there was so much talk of war, can you guess what the young transient said? This is it: "Well let there be war, we don't care, we may as well go over there and fight, get shot and we will be out of our misery, we have nothing to look forward to."

We all would like to be used like human beings. Gosh, even the dogs are used better than us, for they can bark at the door to let them in, then fed. When they have their fill they go and lay down in front of the fireplace and keep warm.

Do you know last winter I felt like trying to steal a dog's supper and if a person had told me I could have slept on their mat in front of the fire, I would have thought I was in heaven.

Now I will have to wait till next May before I get another job. That is a long time to go without eating, don't you think?

I wrote this in behalf of all the transients that feel the same as I do. And if you or any of the readers of your paper can find a way out I would like to read their plan in your paper.

S.P., THE TRANSIENT.
London, December, 1938.

NO ONE TO BLAME

(Guelph Mercury)

CORONER'S JURIES perform a very useful service to the state by investigating the circumstances leading up to fatalities of one sort and another, and more particularly with respect to motor accidents on railway level crossings. But not infrequently they bring in the formal verdict, "No one was to blame." We have no quarrel with such a verdict. But in nine times out of ten the man who is to blame is the driver of the car whose fatal ending is the subject of the inquiry.

FAITH IS SHAKEN.

IT IS DIFFICULT to picture any person with meanness so imbedded in his makeup as to victimize farmers in these trying times. It almost shakes one's faith in human nature to hear of continued thefts of fowl in the wide area surrounding Lindsay, thefts where the majority of a farmer's chickens are sneaked away in the dead of night. There will be little human sympathy for the thieves if and when apprehended.

WORTH A MILLION.

(Niagara Falls Review)

IT IS SAID that Sir William Mulock, "Grand old man of Ontario," has nearly a million dollars worth of black walnut trees in his grove at his summer home at Armitage. Thirty years ago they were only saplings. We like what Sir William said at the Men of the Trees banquet: "As I grow older, I find many of my old friends departed. But my trees only grow more beautiful and stately. It is not possible to have any differences of opinion with them." We wish there were more men in Canada with such a fine hobby.

NOT HER MAN

"Yes, Miss, this is the only skeleton of the horned dinosaur (triceratops prorsus) we have."

"Thank you so much. Then I expect my fiance has been unavoidably detained."

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics

HAS A COMPLAINT

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—We often read in your valuable paper that we are to deal in Peterborough, keep our money at home and what the merchants have to say.

The stores are full of married women whose husbands are working, girls from out of town and girls who have permanent positions even working all week till Saturday noon, then go in some store for afternoon and evening.

Unemployed girls, some of them walking the streets, some of them hungry, begging for work, that they can't get. Do you call that a square deal?

If you apply for work in Toronto they quickly tell you they employ only Toronto people. While the manufacturers and merchants of Peterborough employ every one else first. May I thank you in advance for publishing this.

Respectfully,
A FAIR DEAL.

THE S. A. BAND

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—The annual serenading effort of the Salvation Army Band is an effort for the Local Corps and also to maintain the instruments and music of the band. It is readily understood that all services of Salvation Army Bandsmen is voluntary and no member receives remuneration for service.

During the serenading in your district our collectors will have official badge of the Salvation Army on their boxes also card from the band.

We trust that our previous services to the public which have been appreciated may continue in the future and any support that is given may well be merited.

Wishing you and yours the compliments of the season.

Yours sincerely,
MAJOR C. WARRANDER.

• Canada Needs Her Trained Minds

(From the Brantford Expositor)

SIR FREDERICK BANTING, the co-discoverer of insulin and Chairman of the National Research Council of Canada, in his tour through Western Canada has issued a warning against the "export of brains" from the Dominion to the great detriment of this country. "We have as much brain power as any country in proportion, trained to good citizenship, towards the welfare of our fellow men," he declared, "but we do not do enough to keep these trained young people in our midst. In Saskatchewan and Alberta on this tour I have been delighted to see that these trained minds have been reabsorbed, but I cannot say the same thing for other provinces. The Maritime Provinces have suffered the most."

It is a pity that a comment like that has to be made in Canada, but it is lamentably true, for thousands of young men in Canada have been going to the United States for more than half a century, and among these were numbered some of the best trained minds in the Dominion, and the finest products of our Canadian institutions of learning. Speaking of the huge tongue of fire in Turner Valley he exclaimed: "Is there not some one in Canada with enough imagination to use these wasted calories of heat in making glassware?" It does seem appalling that this waste has been going on for years, although it must be said that the Alberta Government has recently inaugurated measures of conservation. Sir Frederick also mentioned the development of the mountains of tar sands and salt beds north of Edmonton. "We have been exporting wheat, timber, fish and brains," he exclaimed. "The more we export the more depleted we are. There is an anomaly some place. Why do railways cost us $1,000,000 a week and not one cent for medical research?

Sir Frederick thought that if proper measures were undertaken for the development of our resources it would provide employment for young men who cannot find work. There is much to be said in support of what he has pointed out. It does seem a terrible anomaly that in this young Dominion, with only 11,000,000 of a population, with its almost illimitable natural resources, there should be such a large number of unemployed with a consequent outlay of millions of dollars. Surely it would be better to spend money in productive efforts that would provide employment.

• What County's Gold Mines Mean

(From the Royal Bank Letter)

CANADA'S GOLD MINES made notable contributions to the economic stability of the country during the recent depression in business. In 1937, for the third consecutive year, an all-time high record in the production of gold was established, at 4,096,215 fine ounces. During the first eight months of the current year 3,051,081 ounces were produced as compared with 2,672,812 ounces during the corresponding period of 1937. It may, therefore, be anticipated that a new record of output will be achieved in 1938. This phase of Canada's gold mining industry, however, is well recognized.

A second important contribution of the industry to the general economic life of the country was recently analyzed in a special bulletin of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. This report disclosed that, exclusive of salaries and wages, Canadian gold mining companies expended over $40 million in 1937 for consumable stores, equipment, electric power, fuel, freight and insurance. A similar survey had been made for the year 1935, and a comparison of the totals indicates that during the two-year interval such expenditures increased by no less than 40 per cent. With the continued expansion in the mining of gold, this contribution to the activity and welfare of other Canadian industries may be expected to increase in proportion.

Forty million dollars is a notable contribution for one industry to make to the activities of other industries in the country, but it is by no means the whole story of the support given by the gold mining industry to other economic activities in Canada. In 1937 more than 25,000 persons were employed by the industry with a total payroll exceeding $58,000,000. This brings the total of such expenditures by the gold mines in 1937 to nearly $100,000,000.

SPOILING SUNDAY.

(Rev. G. G. Burton, M.A., Clinton)

BRACKET Sunday in between a Saturday half holiday and a Monday holiday and you make the Lord's day one of pleasure and sport instead of a day of rest as it is intended to be. The tendency is to turn Sunday into an entire day of pleasure, which is a retrograde movement instead of progress in social life. I would advocate a holiday in mid-week. Humanity should be the chief consideration. Business and materialism have crowded human life to the side lines and is altogether out of proportion. People who work for material ends only are missing the abundant life. Desecration of the Lord's day will undermine our social system. The ideal week in my opinion would be a mid-week holiday. Friday market or general shopping day. Saturday a day for finishing up the business or work of the week. Sunday for rest and relaxation, and Monday for work with renewed vigor."

GRIEVANCE OF INDIANS.

(Brantford Expositor)

A LETTER to the Expositor indicates that while the Six Nations are, as ever, loyal to the British Crown, there are many irritations which should be removed. Certainly where there are openings on the reserve for employment, members of the Six Nations, fully qualified, should have at least as good an opportunity as white men from outside. The day has gone when Indian Department appointments should be closed to Indians themselves.

NAPOLEON LASTED 15 YEARS

(W. L. Clark In Windsor Star)

When you are thinking of Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin and others, don't forget that Napoleon rode roughshod over Europe for 15 years. Finally, the British had to crush him.

Also, Cromwell ruled England as a dictator for nine years.

And look what happened to the Napoleons and Cromwells in the long run.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

KNOWN UNTO GOD are all his works from the beginning of the world.—Acts xv, 18.

✧ ✧ ✧

Thus saith God the Lord, he that created the heavens, and stretched them out; he that spread forth the earth, and that which cometh out of it; he that giveth breath unto the people upon it, and spirit to them that walk herein....I am the Lord: that is my name: and my glory will I not give to another, neither my praise to graven images. Behold, the former things are come to pass, and new things do I declare: before they spring forth I tell you of them.—Isa. xlii, 5, 8, 9.

✧ ✧ ✧

O sing unto the Lord a new song: sing unto the Lord, all the earth... Honour and majesty are before him: strength and beauty are in his sanctuary. Give unto the Lord, O ye kindreds of the people, give unto the Lord glory and strength...O worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness: fear before him, all the earth. —Ps. xcvi, 1, 6, 7, 9.

✧ ✧ ✧

O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out!...For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever. Amen—Rom. xi, 33, 36.

"PIGS IS PIGS."

(New York Sun)

IN MAINE, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Pennsylvania pineapple juice and tomato juice are beverages.

In Massachusetts, Delaware, North Carolina, Louisiana, Wisconsin and Oregon the two juices on the other hand, are not beverages.

In Michigan pineapple juice is a beverage, but tomato juice is not. In Maryland grape juice, pineapple juice and orange juice are beverages if they are found in glass containers, but not if they are found in tin cans; in the same State tomato juice and prune juice are never beverages.

In Nebraska a pure juice is never a beverage, but if sugar or water or anything else is added it becomes a beverage.

These "oddities and perplexities," discovered by Food Industries when it sought to digest and tabulate State regulations pertaining to foods, are not, as the publication points out, to be found in the laws or even in the regulations. Sometimes they are discovered only "after consulting the enforcing officers."

CAVAN, Dec. 12—A fairly good attendance of members was present for the election of officers of the Women's Association and Women's Missionary Society of Cavan United church, in the on Thursday afternoon.

The Rev. J. R. Trumpour conducted the devotional period of the joint meeting after which Mrs. J. C. Swain, president of the W.M.S., took the chair.

Business arising out of the minutes was discussed and reports received. The treasurer reported $59.45 paid in to date with more to come in.

Mrs. J. H. Snider, convener of the nominating committee, brought in the following slate of officers for 1939: Past President, Mrs. J. C. Swain; honorary president, Mrs. J. R. Trumpour; President, Mrs. Richard Matchett; vice-president, J. H. Snider; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. C. Swain; recording secretary, Mrs. J. W. Perrin; treasurer, Mrs. Ray Syer; press secretary, Mrs. F. M. Staples; missionary monthly secretary, Mrs. R. Robinson; temperance secretary, Mrs. W. Seymour; stranger's secretary, Mrs. J. R. Trumpour; watch tower convener, Mrs. J. H. Snider; devotional convener, Mrs. J. R. Trumpour; Christian stewardship and finance convener, Mrs. D. J. Hunter.

Mrs. F. M. Staples gave a synopsis of a chapter of the Study Book, "Planting the Church."

W. A. Officers Named

Mrs. R. Matchett took the chair for the business session of the Women's Association, and as convener of the nominating committee brought in the following slate of officers for 1939:

President, Mrs. D. J. Hunter; vice-president, Mrs. J. W. Perrin; recording secretary, Mrs. R. Syer; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. B. Kennedy; treasurer, Mrs. Leslie Pritchard; financial secretary, Mrs. McCullough.

The Rev. J. R. Trumpour conducted the election of the officers. The roll call was answered by twelve members.

Mrs. Snider gave a splendid report of the recent Peterborough W. A. Presbytery, held in Millbrook.

During the period given to hearing reports, the treasurer announced the year's receipts had been $309.71 with a balance on hand of $180.

A motion was carried that $150 should be given to the board of managers of the church.

A hearty vote of thanks was given the retiring president and other officers for their work during the past year.

The president-elect, Mrs. Hunter, spoke a few words, after which Mrs. Matchett dismissed the meeting with prayer.

Gay Flowering Plants for Indoor Bloom

African Violets Need No Sun

Make even north windows gay and cheerfull Plant African violets—revel in their blossoms of deep purple, bright blue or pink, with yellow centres.

A single plant from the florist will start you on the way to a whole windowful of these tropical beauties All that's necessary to grow a new plant is to thrust a long-stemmed leaf into the soil!

They're easy to care for, too. Soak the pots once a week in a pail of water till air bubbles stop rising—don't get water on the leaves. Give plants a mid-week drink by setting pots in a saucer of water.

Grow the lovely flowering maple in your sunny windows. Its luxuriant foliage and bell-shaped blossoms of yellow, scarlet or salmon will make you forget chilly days outside This plant has a decided preference for rich, sandy soil.

Keep your home gay with flowers all winter. Our 32-page booklet tells how to grow bulbs in soil and water All about foliage plants, ferns. When to start poinsettias. Christmas cactus. How to avoid plant pests. What soil to use.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM J. WRIGHT.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Dec. 12. — William James Wright passed away at his residencet here early on Saturday morning after an illness of some months.

Mr. Wright, who was 67 years of age, was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dorland Wright and was born in Marmora Township. He was a resident of the village for about 45 years, and for a large number of years was an employee of the Pearce Company. In more recent years he had ben engaged in road work, being county road foreman for a period. He was of a bright disposition, and was given to many quaint sayings, which added to his popularity. He was a Conservative in politics, and when a young man joined Marmora L.O.L. 319. His wife predeceased him five years ago.

He is survived by three sons, Herbert and Bruce, Marmora, and Edward, Cordova. He is further survived by one brother Isaac, Marmora Township, and three sisters, Mrs. M Potts and Mrs. H. Yatton, Trenton, and another sister resident in Hamilton.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon at 2.30, service being conducted in St. Andrew's United Church by Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth, with interment in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

JOHN ARMSTRONG.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Dec. 12. — The community was shocked to learn of the sudden death of one of its most highly esteemed residents, John Armstrong, on Friday afternoon. Mr. Armstrong had been driving up some horses on his farm previous to being seized with a weak spell while sitting in Jack Garneau's car, and passed away before arriving at his home.

Mr. Armstrong has resided on his farm all his life and was well and favorably known, had many friends, and proved a good neighbor.

Surviving are his wife, formerly Mary Ann Carr, and two sons, Edward at home, George at Kirkland Lake.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon, service at the house conducted by the Rev. A. McLauchlin, with interment at Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Campbellford.

LIKE many other men busy with day to day affairs, Mr. H. did not readily see the wisdom of providing for the future protection of his estate. Present-day problems seemed more important.

But the advisability of taking definite steps was practically thrust upon him, he frankly admits, when he was called upon recently to help the widow of a late friend. It was, unfortunately, the usual case of a wife's inexperience in present-day business matters. The estate had been without a Will and in short order a self-appointed adviser gained her confidence and most of the estate was lost in "sure fire" investments.

Common sense, as Mr. H. now explains to his friend, made him realize that his own estate matters should have prompt attention and he wrote us for information about our management of estates and the cost.

He has made a properly planned Will and appointed us to be his executor and trustee.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

WHEN KNARF and Hanid, the shadows with the turned-about names, slipped into the playroom last night, they saw a very curious sight. They saw Jub-Jub, the toy monkey, who whirled his tail round and round and whose feet were on wheels, scooting from one side of the room to the other. They couldn't understand why he was doing this. He'd stand for a moment to listen to something that the Tin Soldier told him, then he'd scoot across the room to Mary-Jane, the rag doll.

"He can't be playing tag," Hanid said to Knarf.

"And he isn't running a race," Knarf added.

"Then what is he doing anyway?" they both asked.

Punch Knows

At that moment Mr. Punch, the puppet, who was sitting on the steps of the little Show-House in which he lived with his wife, Judy, laughed. "It's really very simple. The Tin Soldier is sending a message to Mary-Jane, and Mary-Jane is sending a message back to her friend, the Tin Soldier.

"You know," Mr. Punch went on, "that neither Mary-Jane nor the Tin Soldier can walk a single step without the children's help. Most toys can't—except Jub-Jub. He's very lucky to be standing on wheels. As long as his tail is wound up—and you can tell it's wound up by the way it whirls round and round—he can go almost anywhere he pleases."

"I wonder what the Tin Soldier's message is," Hanid said.

"I'd like to know, too," said Knarf.

"Well," said Mr. Punch, smiling again, "I don't suppose it's anything very important."

At that moment Hanid suddenly

"Then what is he doing?"

exclaimed: "Look! Jub-Jub has stopped!"

Sure enough, there was the toy monkey, standing in the middle of the floor, as still as a clock that isn't ticking.

Mr. Punch said: "He's all unwound. He won't move another inch until the children wind him up again in the morning.

But Knarf and Hanid were gazing at Mary-Jane and the Tin Soldier. They both looked terribly disappointed. They knew that was because the message from Mary-Jane had never been able to reach the poor Tin Soldier.

"It must have been important!" the shadows cried. So they ran over to Mary Jane and said: "What was the message? We'll take it to the Tin Soldier."

Mary-Jane's face lit up. "Will you," she said. "Then I'll tell you what it is. Tell him, I like you, too."

Now—wasn't that an important message?

"TIRED" ALL THE TIME

She felt miserable—draggy—low in vitality—lower in spirits. She hadn't thought of her kidneys, until a friend suggested Dodd's Kidney Pills. At once she took Dodd's. The "washed out" feeling was soon replaced by clear headed energy and restful sleep. Headache, backache, lassitude and other signs of faulty kidneys disappeared. 112

ROMANCE INC.

BY OREN ARNOLD

READ THIS FIRST:

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, establishes herself in a cozy cottage near the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, hangs out a sign which reads "COUNSEL IN ROMANCE", and inaugurates a novel plan to help guide 100 student "members" in their social affairs for a small fee. Bob Towne, campus football hero, much attracted by Sara Sue, is the first to enroll, and this enrages Peaches Pomeroy, who had regarded herself as "Bob's girl" the previous year. An unprepossessing freshman, Worthington Gurley, enrolls and also displays an interest in the pretty young widow. Then Dr. Thornton Holgate, new member of the faculty, brings the Cottage Plan to a climax when he begs Sara Sue to help him and confides his love for the Pomeroy girl. Finally, T. J. Sanders, a sports goods salesman, drops into town and falls in love with Sara Sue at first sight. After Sara has given Dr. Holgate several lessons in "how to become more human", he becomes frantic at the freshman ball when he comes upon Peaches badly intoxicated. For hours he lies awake, tortured by Peaches' public display. The next day, while walking with some of the students, Dr. Holgate is confronted by Peaches and two other girls in a passing car. After Dr. Holgate is almost forced into Peaches' car, they all decide to go to Galveston for a swim. In the water, the crowd is startled when a mother cries that her child is drowning.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER 23

SARA SUE DAVIS was at home from the freshman dance at 3 a. m.

"It has been marvelous, Worthington!" she exclaimed, and meant it. "Your class has set a new record, everybody was saying."

Her escort beamed.

"And thank you again for the flowers, and for the delightful time. I am so glad you asked me. I don't know when I have had such a grand time." Sara Sue was gracious, always. And grateful. Unlike some pretty girls, she did not just take courtesies for granted.

She went to bed rather quickly because she was tired. There were things she ought to do—bits of office bookkeeping and such—because she had neglected these on Saturday evening in order to dress her prettiest. Fat Cleo had assisted here, and had told her she looked like an angel. Cleo wasn't altogether wrong. But even angels (the earthly variety, that is) can be fatigued.

She was up at 10 o'clock, knowing she had a date at 10:40. When she had dressed and come into her semi-public living room, four or five collegians were already lounging there. Prominent among them was Bob Towne.

"Hi, you old roue," he greeted. "How's the belle of the ball, the dissipation damsel, the merry melodist, the—?"

"Good morning, Bob, and everybody!" She smiled. "How come you're up and out so soon?"

"The others didn't go. Me, I came to make love." Bob announced it clamly.

"Well, that's a laudable ambition, I'm sure," she remarked, saucily. "Anyway, it is being done, I hear."

"Luscious and lovely, I came to take you riding. Whenever you should wake up. Cleo said you had to sleep late, but now that you're out—"

"No," said Sara Sue.

"No what?"

"No sale. No riding with you."

"Nerts. Get your hat. We're leaving in five minutes."

"No, Bob. Thanks, no. Can't."

"Why?"

"Well—well, lets say I'm allergic to motoring. With you. You hit cows and things. Remember?"

"Aw. Come on, Sara Sue. Let's just go grab a cuppa coffee somewhere."

"Cleo just served me one. And—well, to tell you the truth, I have a date right now. In a few minutes, at least."

"Date? That slime hanging around you this morning, too? I'll smack him all over—"

"You do nothing of the kind. Bob Towne, and you know it. Besides, it's not Worthington, it's Mr. Sanders. If you must pry!"

Bob was really surprised at that. Sanders. He knew Sanders was courting Sara Sue. He didn't blame the man for it, for Sara Sue was worth courting, surely. But—Sanders was an outsider. Not a student. Vaguely, Bob resented a non-student coming in to court Sara Sue, in competition with him and Worthington Gurley and the other Rice boys who wanted that privilege. He never gave a moment's thought to the significant fact that Sara Sue herself was not a student, and never had been!

"Phooey," mouthed Bob.

"No. Sanders. Mr. T. J. Sanders. You misunderstood." Sara Sue was bedevilling him a little. They playfought a lot, in mutual understanding.

It was as if she had announced him formally, for at that moment T. J. rang her door bell. She let him in herself.

I'm almost ready," she told him. "Let me dab some rouge."

"Hi there, Towne. How's tricks?" He saw Bob then. "Hello, all."

"Oh, so-so. How's yourself?"

"Pretty good. Just heading for church. Nice day."

"Church?"

"Yeah. Church. You know—church. Where they have singing, and preaching." T. J. Sanders could be sarcastic on occasions. "Big house. Organ. People. Everything. I guess you wouldn't know. They don't use 'em in football."

"Nerts." But Bob grinned at him. "You pretty intimate with 'em yourself?"

"Sure!"

"Hey, Sara Sue—this guy taking you to church?" Bob called.

"Yes, indeed! Sweet of him, isn't it? So thoughtful. Much better than—than running down cows with fenders. And such things."

"Aw say—can't you ever forget? I take you riding one time. I happen to nick one cow. Away back in prehistoric times. And you still hold it against me!"

They all laughed, and T. J. escorted Sara Sue away. Bob watched them, looking more cheerful than he felt. He hadn't been any too successful with his courtship of Sara Sue lately. Not that it was his fault. Football was at its peak. Rice was in the midst of a hard campaign. Coach Britt was missing no bets, so far as keeping his men conditioned, and Bob was determined to play fair.

Once or twice he had gotten to mooning so heavily about Sara Sue that it affected his nerves—and football is played on nevers, by the way. But he and coach, and then he and Sara Sue, had had a couple of heart-to-heart talks which had straightened things out. Bob somehow felt that as soon as football season was over, and especially as soon as he got his sheepskin next June, he would wrap Sara Sue Davis up in a bag and take her home, his forever. Meanwhile, he was fretted by the wait.

And especially did he not like too much of T. J. Sanders. He had to be friends with Sanders, if possible. It meant a potential $1,000 if the football nerve and luck held out. But when somebody else goes to courting your girl, a man can stan donly so much. He already had made an understanding with the energetic freshman. Maybe he really ought to take this Sanders and smack him around and—Bob sighed, got up and left the Davis cottage.

Sara Sue suspected some of Bob's unhappiness, and so tried to keep up cheery banter with him whenever she could. She went to church worrying about him a little.

"Swell football man, that Towne," Sanders conceded. "Well, there's the church, Sara Sue. You can hear the organ. Now this Dr. Ferguson—"

They parked and went inside. Just for mischief, Sara Sue would not let him sit her down near the back row of pews; she led him, behind an usher, right down to row three. She knew well that T. J was doing some bluffing this morning, so she would just pour it on him plenty! He who had tricked her into three dates.

"Will you kneel with me?" she whispered, reverently.

Not all Presbyterians kneel and pray on entering church, but some do. Sara Sue did. But—for once in her Christian career, she had to force back a smile in this holy moment. She forced it, too. Took control of herself, forced the reverence that she truly felt, and whispered a short prayer. Nor did she neglect to ask God's blessing on the young man beside her.

Tactfully she did not look at him, however. Back in her seat, she opened a hymn book and shared it with him. "Sing, or I'll kick your shins," she whispered.

The organ boomed, and Sara Sue sang with the others. "Praise God from whom all blessings flow. Praise him all creatures here below—" She sang sweetly, not so loudly as she had sung the college songs a few hours before, but happily and earnestly. A pretty girl with a pretty voice, Dr. Ferguson in his pew noted her with approval. "—Praise Father, Son, and Ho-leee Gho-o-ost!"

She glanced at T. J. then. Manfully he had pitched into it, too. Singing.

"He's a good sport," Sara Sue told herself. "He's all right."

Looking Back
On This Date

Twenty-nine years ago this evening, on Dec. 12, 1909, a meeting of Conservatives of Calgary unwittingly provided the Dominion of Canada with a future prime minister. Their choice of a candidate for the House of Commons was Richard Bedford Bennett. He was no unknown. He had represented Calgary in the North West Territorial Assembly from 1898 (less than a year after his arrival from his native New Brunswick) until 1905, when the province of Alberta was created and he, as a matter of course, was one of the city's representatives to the first assembly of Alberta.

A little over a year passed. Then the Fielding-Taft reciprocity agreement was made the political issue. "R. B." carried on in the Assembly until the dominion parliament was dissolved. Then he made a whirlwind campaign all over the west, fighting for "Canada and British unity." The Liberals could not ignore his magnetism or the maner in which he swayed audiences; but they let him go ahead, confident that he would be defeated because "Alberta was going solid for reciprocity." Yet when the ballots were counted on the night of Sept. 21, R. B. Bennett had a majority of 2,855, the only Conservative returned in the whole province of Canada.

After that nobody was ever able to beat Bennett and, except for the period 1917-21, when he was out of parliament, he has been elected by immense majorities, serving his constituents as private member, as minister of justice, as leader of the opposition, as prime minister, and again as leader to the left of the Speaker.

Now he returns to Calgary to surrender his mandate, to say adieu perhaps, and to prepare to settle down as an English country gentleman in his own home and in an English garden, there to write his memoirs and to review in mental mirror the many striking incidents in which he has been the central figure. Calgary will miss him; all Canada will miss him; but they will know that no matter where his body may be, his heart will ever be in his beloved Canada, his native land.

I wonder if any of those who were present at that meeting of Conservatives in Calgary 29 years ago will be present when R. B. turns east again.

Pimples Kill Many a Romance

The lives of many young people are made miserable by the breaking out of pimples on the face.

The trouble is not so much physical pain, but it is the mental suffering caused by the embarrassing disfigurement of the face which very often makes the sufferer ashamed to go out in company.

The quickest way to get rid of pimples is to improve the general health by a thorough cleansing of the blood of its impurities.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, December 13

STIRRING events mark this day, according to the planetary configurations. There is prospect of an extremely important, urgent and possibly revolutionary movement affecting the future destiny and calling for much forethought and wisdom in making decisions. This seems to relate to romance or adventure, presaging activity in the emotional life as well as reorganization of the business objectives. While all should thrive and bring happiness, there also may be jealousies and public annoyances.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of major occurrences, with probably decisive moves and drastic action. These relate to the private life as well as business, and may have a far-reaching effect on the future contentment and objectives. While romantic or emotional angles are stressed, business reactions may be drastic. Be wary of arousing jealousies or disagreeable reprisals of a public nature.

A child born on this day may be exceptionally talented, adventurous, original and audacious, and may attain some public recognition. However, its romantic nature may arouse jealousy and enmity.

The measure of
A GOOD CITIZEN

"No personal possession definitely reflects the character of a man and his love for his family more than does Life Insurance. Adequate Life Insurance means to a man that sense of security and contentment that allows him to much better enjoy the happiness of his worldly goods, as he has that consolation and peace of mind that, whatever happens to him, he has played the game as a worthy citizen."

—T. F. KINGSMILL, Retiring Mayor of London, Ontario.

Throughout Canada there are hundreds of thousands of men who measure up to this standard of good citizenship. Their savings in Life Insurance accomplish a two-fold purpose. First, they guarantee that their families will continue to have food, clothing, shelter and other necessities of life. Secondly, they guarantee for themselves financial independence in old age.

As good citizens, these men also gain satisfaction from the fact that their accumulated savings in Life Insurance are invested in Dominion, Provincial and Municipal securities—industries and utilities—homes, farms and schools—for the benefit of all Canada.

Grand Old Lady Of Seymour Marks Her 90th Birthday

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 12—In a spotless little house seven miles south of here near what is known as Bradley's Corners there lives alone a lady by the name of Mrs. A. P. Spafford. Nor is it most remarkable the fact that she lives by herself, but she has no less than thirty-five patch work quilts, each one beautifuly and carefully worked by her own hands. What is really unusual is that she is still able to do this work as well as looking after her house at the age of ninety. She celebrated her ninetieth birthday last Sunday and had intended to spend the day very quietly until her two daughters, Mrs. W. H. Porter of Warkworth and Mrs. Fred Simmons of Brighton and their children and grand children arrived to take her completely by surprise, bringing her flowers, gifts and congratulations. Mrs. Spafford was born near Tweed in Hungerford Township and was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elias Benedict and just to prove there may be something in heredity she claims that her mother lived to be over one hundred and both parents were born in Upper Canada. Her father was one of the pioneer farmers and she herself walked three miles every day to attend school at Bogartville. Of Methodist stock she has never danced or played cards in her life and she can recall those days when as a girl she used to ride to church on a lumber wagon, a distance of three miles.

Married At Eighteen

Married at her father's home at the age of eighteen she and her husband settled on a hundred acre farm which they "worked rather more successfully than most farmers are able to do today" for when he was forty years of age they were able to retire. "It may be because people don't work as hard as we did but at any rate the old farm doesn't seem to produce as much today as it used to," she said.

Mr. Spafford died ten years ago at the age of seventy-nine and since that time she has lived on the farm by herself usually spending a portion of the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Fred Simmons.

More Snow Then

Asked how the winters of today compared with those she remembered as a girl Mrs. Spafford declared there was no comparison. "We always had good sleighing beginning the latter part of November right through until May with a steady cold except for the annual January thaw, and of course people dressed a good deal warmer in those days. We used to have home made flannel and mother did the spinning, in fact I have lots of sheets for which I spun the yarn myself. We would wash the sheep, then send the wool to be carded at the mill at Tweed.

"Do you think there might be any other reason for your living to such an old age and enjoying such good health?" it was ventured.

"Well if you follow the old recipe, early to bed and early to rise' you won't go very far astray. We used to go to bed early, not stay up half the night like most folks do today."

"Did any other members of your family life to be very old?"

"I remember my mother telling me about going down to see an uncle of mine in Prince Edward County. When she arrived he was shingling the roof of his barn and he was eighty-then."

And as further proof of the fine health and strength of this remarkable lady a neighbour volunteered the information that she had seen her only the day before on a step ladder hanging the storm door.

90 Years Old

A woman who passed by two decades the usual span of three score years and ten is Mrs. A. P. Spafford, shown in this picture. This week Mrs. Spafford celebrated her 90th birthday. Still hale and hearty despite her advanced years, she still lives alone in the country, near Campbellford.

Prizes Presented.

A total of $48.00 in prize money was handed out to winners at the conclusion of the bee by Kiwanis President L. J. Pettit. To the Grand Champion went a cheque for $10, with $5 to the second, and $3 to the third winner. To each of the contestants finishing first, second, or third in the city, village, and school fair districts went prizes of $5, $3, $2.

Judges on Saturday were Rev. P. J. Kelly, Inspector K. S. Wightman and Inspector R. F. Downey. Leo Copp was pronouncer, gave each pupil his or her word to spell; Jacob Low's title was "mistakes desk chairman," and it was his duty to check each slip of paper on which pupils had written the words they had drawn, for the printed copy was to be accepted—if a pupil made a mistake in oral spelling yet had it spelled correctly on paper, he was still in the running. Carl Browne had charge of the "correct desk," while Fred Johnston supervised drawing of tickets. George Nichols managed the microphone, and Jack McKone was timekeeper.

Girls proved to be the best spellers again on Saturday night, when they proved victors in every competition. Last boy among the city contestants to see the red light go on, telling him he had gone down to defeat, was Lionel Neary of Sacred Heart School, who lasted until after the seventh round.

The audience, welcomed by Mr. Pettit, heard the Collegiate Orchestra play selections during the program that came as a welcome break among the long list of words. Another feature of the evening was an elaborate experiment in physics by Collegiate Students Hugh Kenner and Bob Crocker, in which liquids foamed and lights flashed with all the eerieness of a Hollywood movie.

Following the contest directors announced there had been a few errors in judging which will be considered by the club in the near future with a view to making some adjustment. All words were taken from the Canadian Speller, Book 2, Grades 7, 8, and 9, with the exception of 100 more difficult selections made from the 7th Grade Reader, "Life and Literature."

BUCKLEY'S TASTELESS WHITE RUB

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c

Quizzed In Disappearance Of White Russians

Mme. Skobine CENTRE, wife of General Nicholas Skobine, LEFT, ex-Russian army officer, and known on the concert stage as La Plevitsgaia, is being questioned by French police in the Quai D'Orsay investigation into the strange disappearance of two white Russian generals. She is now on trial accused of conspiracy with her husband to kidnap General Eugene de Miller, RIGHT, head of the Union of White Russian Veterans in Paris. Both General de Miller and Skobine disappeared in September, 1937. No satisfactory explanation of the disappearance of the two generals has yet been found.

the respect and esteem of the Canadian people."

Sees Manion Talking

"It may be, however," he said, "that having failed in this first attempt, Mr. Hepburn and Mr. Duplessis were ready—and perhaps are still ready—to make overtures to Dr. R. J. Manion, the Conservative leader, with the same object of using provincial forces and political organizations to control the national government. If they make these proposals I should be greatly surprised if Dr. Manion will accept their support on the terms in which it is offered."

Had the attempt succeeded "it would have had far-reaching and disastrous results," for a national government "controlled in the interest of two of the nine provinces" would be an "outright contradiction of federal self-government" and a "political monstrosity."

The federal government, silent despite "constant sniping and sneering from two provinces," cannot so continue "in the face of such dangerous plotting," said Mr. Howe.

All hopes of Mr. Mackenzie King that personal and party dfiferences could be "eventually submerged" in the interests of national unity "seem to have been destroyed."

Ottawa was determined now to place the siutation before the people, said the transport minister in expressing his confidence that "the people will not countenance this web of coercive propaganda.

"At the same time the two cabinet members declared the government's readiness "to co-operate with all provincial governments on matters affecting the general good," particularly regarding unemployment relief and operation of the royal commission on Dominion-Provincial relations.

Coldness of the two provincial governments toward the royal commission was termed by Mr. Rogers "the narrow Canadian attitude of the Hepburn-Duplessis alliance."

"If Mr. Duplessis and Mr. Hepburn persist in their present attitude to that inquiry," said Mr. Rogers, "they can possibly frustrate for the time being its great national purpose. They can perhaps postpone the hope of constitutional reform and financial readjustment that are long overdue. Perhaps they want to do this, although in the interest of Canadian unity I sincerely hope not."

Half-Baked Policies.

Denouncing the Federal Government's attitude toward Ontario, Mr. Hepburn declared recent federal policies were "half-baked, impractical and unworkable." The Dominion administration had been indulging, he charged, in "drifting" and "laissez-fair' 'and its ministers appeared to be "living in another age and generation altogether."

"If Ottawa wants to shirk its responsibilities, and to try everlastingly to saddle us with them, and if they want to make an issue of it, I'm prepared to go out on the hustings and fight them to the limit," she said. "If that's the sort of thing that Howe and Rogers are looking for, let them say so. All they have to do is toss the gauntlet down to me and they'll get what they're looking for—more, too."

His denial of a conspiracy was pointed.

"Let me say, here and now, there is no conspiracy whatever between Premier Duplessis and me. Ottawa holds no attraction for me. "I have no intention or desire to go there. But that doesn't prevent me, as Premier of this province, and as an ordinary citizen and taxpayer as well, from pointing out that the credit of the Dominion—as The Globe and Mail has said—is such to-day as to cause serious alarm."

The Power Refusal.

He hammered again at the Dominion Government's refusal to seek United States' co-operation that would enable Ontario to export surplus Hydro-Electric power. By the Dominion's stand the province was losing $1,500,000 in revenue, Mr. Hepburn said.

"They were elected on a platform which included the recognition of unemployment relief as a national problem, but what they are contributing to relief in this province at the present time is less than the relief requirements in the city of Toronto alone, "and when they blocked our projected water diversion schemes in Northwestern Canada, they interfered grievously with the opening-up of great, inaccessible timber areas, with the establishment of industry, and with the carrying of a great measure of gainful employment to areas that could readily use it.

"Who is it, I ask, who is guilty of non-co-operation? The people of this province well know, and Ottawa knows they know."

Mr. Hepburn claimed the Dominoin Government's farm employment scheme only tended to induce farmers to discharge their hired hands and hire new ones who would be paid by the government.

A Tough Question?

"I'm going to ask this simple question: What has the King government, in its three and a half years, done to deserve the support of those who elected it in 1935? It's a strange mental attitude for Howe and Rogers, the two Maritimers, representing Ontario in the Federal Cabinet, to take, when they feel like the lord of creation that they are above criticsim."

Mr. Hepburn's fight with the Federal government broke into the open on June 3, 1937, when, speaking before the Canadian Life Insurance Officers' Association, he declared:

"I'm a reformer, but not a Mackenzie King Liberal any more and I'll tell the whole world that. And I hope he (Mr. Mackenzie King) hears me."

That same night he hailed Mr. Duplessis as "a great national character," adding: "II look forward to the day he will play an even more important part in the affairs of this Dominion."

At Buctouche, B.C., last night Premier Dysart of the New Brunswick Liberal Administration, said he had "no knowledge of any such alliance" and called Mr. Mackenzie King "the sanest leader of any party in Canada in many years." Premier Thane A. Campbell of Prince Edward Island, said any plot against the Prince Minister "would not find favor with the Liberal party of Prince Edward Island."

Mrs. Leach Heads W.M.S. At Fenella

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Dec. 12. — Mrs. S. Leach was elected president of Fenella W.M.S. when the annual election of officers was held on Thursday. Fenella United Church is an appointment on the Roseneath charge.

The election was conducted by the pastor, Rev. L. M. Scott. Mrs. S. Leach succeeds Mrs. N. C. Leach, and other officers elected were:

First vice-president, Mrs. Norman Chestnut; second vice-president, Mrs. Mary Macklin; recording and corresponding secretary, Mrs. N. C. Leach; secretary of Christian Stewardship and Finance, Mrs. L. Hope; treasurer, Mrs. James Knox. Secretaries of other department will be elected at a later meeting.

The financial report showed that with a membership of fifteen, $75.00 was raised during the year. This amount was raised for the most part through systematic giving.

Routine reports were presented, a Christmas program enjoyed, and refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Andrew Macklin.

Canada Moving To Boom Day Level In Cash Spent Yearly On Movies

OTTAWA, Dec. 12—(CP).—Canadians' expenditure on motion picture entertainment is returning to the pre-depression level.

On the average, everyone in the Dominion paid $2.93 at the box offices, exclusive of amusement taxes, to see movies in 1937. This compared to a per captia expendiure of $2.7. in 1936 and 2.33 in 1933, the low point since 1930 when the outlay was $3.77. These figures, the latest available, are included in a report by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

British Columbia showed the highest per capita amount spent on movies in 1937 with the total $4.82 while Prince Edward Island was lowest at $1.23. Ontario with the most theatres was $3.90..

Total theatre attendance last year was 134,374,000 and box office receipts were $32,499,300, exclusive of amusement taxes and collections of itinerant operators.

This was an increase of 5.4 per cent. in admissions and 9.8 per cent in receipts. There was also a slight increase in average price of admission from 23.2 cents in 1936 to 24.2 cents last year.

Number of permanently-equipped theatres in operation jumped 88 to 1,047, this increase being partly due to new construction but largely to new permanent installations made in public halls in the western provinces. There were 5,294 male and 1,656 female employees in Canadian theatres in 1937 and the payroll was $5,627,300, an increase of $698,600 from the previous year.

203 Jack Rabbits Shot

MEAFORD.—The local jack rabbit population was in mourning today for 203 of its members, killed by members of the Skinner Hunt Club on its annual drive in St. Vincent Township Saturday. A total of 1,726 pounds of rabbit was checked in by the hunters. Three red fox were listed as additional victims of the drive.

First Mosque Opened

EDMONTON. — Canada's first mosque was opened officially by Major J. W. Fry at a simple ceremony attended by more than 100 persons here last night. The church was named Rashid Mosque after the famous Mohammedan prophet. The mosque was dedicated by Abdullah Ysuf Ali, Moslem scholar and Indian statesman touring Canada.

Nomination Day Is Set For Friday, Dec. 23

Since the council meeting of last week marked with a period the end of the municipal year of 1938, thoughts of ratepayers are beginning to turn to the management of the city's affairs next year.

Nomination day on Friday, December 23 will follow the usual procedure of considering first the mayoraity, the Utilities Commission and the Board of Education, with the aldermanic nominations to be received at night.

The aldermen whose terms are expirin gare Aldermen Bradburn, Dutton, the chairman of the relief committee, McCannan, chairman of the property committee, McIntyre and Wilson, this year's chairman of the Board of Works.

Of the Utilities Commission it is Roland Denne whose three years of stewardship are terminating, and of the Board of Education Dr. A. Moir, Chas. Shaw, W. A. Richardson and Dr. C. M. Scott.

So far this month there has been n oelection gossip along the street, preoccupied with abnormally fine weather, its effect on business and the near approach of Christmas.

The only comment the Examiner has heard was Alderman Gordon's remark at a committee meeting last week that he did not see any reason why Mayor Hamilton should not receive the customary two years in the mayoral office. Mr. Shaw has announced his intention of retiring as a school trustee, and a friend of Alderman Dutton's said he might not seek re-election to the council, adding "anyone who takes the chairmanship of the relief committee is bound to get some people active against him. He made a sincere job of that committee, a responsibility none of his colleagues coveted."

Christmas Program At Trent Institute

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Dec. 12—Program for Women's Institute meeting held Thursday at the home of Mrs. J. H. Scott was in keeping with the Christmas spirit. The motto: Christmas comes but once a year. Christmas carols were sung and the roll call; a Christmas recipe; a beautifully decorated Christmas tree filled one corner of the parlor where gifts were placed for each member. There was an attendance of 33.

The secretary, Doris Scott read a letter concerning Farm and Home Improvement contest. No action was taken. Reports were heard from the sick committees, further supplies were ordered for the sick and for a needy family whose home was recently destroyed by fire. Members also are giving donations are requested to leave the same at the home of Mrs. A. Wight, Cedar Isle within the coming week. Christmas cards were ordered to be sent to friends from outside points. The next card party will be held the week after Christmas at the home of Mrs. George Brooks. Miss Doris Scott exhibited a down comforter as a sample of one ordered by the members. Tickets will be sold for this. The members discussed plans for a play. A number of Christmas carols were sung with Miss B. French at the piano.

Reports Heard.

Mrs. H. Mann gave a report of the "Care of Clothing" project she attended recently at Peterborough. A vote of thanks was given her for her efforts, after which lunch was served. Mrs. Robert McNeely provided home-made candy for all those in attendance. The exchange of Christmas Gifts were distributed from the tree.

Mrs. Gord. Ham Wins $50 Credit Note

Mrs. Gordon Ham, 561 Gilmour street, was the luckiest person to attend the grand opening of Foley and Wilson's on Saturday evening. She won first prize in the draw and with it a $50 credit note on the firm.

Second prize of $25 in credit went to Mrs. K. McInnes, and just to keep it in the family her husband walked off with the third prize of $5 worth of gasoline. Miss Marion Storey, R.R. No. 2, Omemee, won an oil change, while Miss M. Hughes of 368 Park Hill Road and George Morrison of R.R. No. 5, Peterborough, both won grease jobs on their cars.

Door prizes went to the following people: On Thursday twin horns to Albert Jones, 546 Stewart street; on Friday, 457 Gilmour street; on Hughes, 457 Gilmour street; on Saturday evening Lady Luck visited 368 Park Hill Road for the second time, and Norma McConnell won an electric toaster. Miss M. Hughes of the same address had won a prize in the draw.

Officers Re-elected By Trent Ladies' Aid

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Dec. 10.—The annual business meeting of the Ladies' Aid was held Wednesday afternoon at the church with an attendance of 14.

The four groups were requested to hand in the money they have collected during the year. The members discussed plans concerning the annual Sunday School Christmas Tree and entertainment which is being held December 22 in the church. A special treat of candies and oranges will be given all the children on that night this year.

A bill was received from the secretary of the Women's Association of Havelock United church regarding necessities for the parsonage. The deaconess' report was given, also the secretary's report by Mrs. Harold B. Wood.

Rev. A. McLauchlin was in attendance to take charge of the election of officers but this was dispensed with, the officers all being re-elected as follows: Hon. Pres., Mrs. George Longmuir; President, Mrs. Thomas J. Brown; Vice-President, Mrs. Wm. Preston; Secretary, Mrs. H. W. Wood; treasurer, Mrs. Thos. K. Thompson; Deaconess, Mrs. W. C. Inkster; Pianist, Mrs. Jno. Ruttan.

Mrs. H. Revoir leaves Saturday and will remain for an indefinite time with her daughter, Mrs. John Carlson, Pittsburg.

Mrs. F. Dobsobea has returned from Cleveland, Ohio and expects to spend the winter at Puffball Inn.

A second wolf, mate to the one shot Wednesday, has been seen on the farm of Mr. Wm. Thain at the south approach to the big bridge.

Bashful Cops

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Two policemen dressed up like wealthy women in an attempt to trap purse snatchers but all they lured were a couple of motorist mashers who hailed them with a "Hi, honey!" To hide his embarrassment, Paul Javonic, one of the officers, lighted a cigarette—and set fire to his veil.

24 Witnesses Summoned In Theft Charge

Twenty-four witnesses from all parts of the compass assembled in city police court this morning as a case involving the alleged theft of a black and tan hound dog got under way. The gallery was packed and at one stage of the proceedings the constable had to shout "order" three times before the laughter subsided.

Charles Westlake, Smith township, is charged with the theft of the dog. The dog is said to be the property of Arthur T. Johnston, manager of the Windsor Hotel and the complaint was laid by his son, Arthur M. Johnston, V.S. The dog, a beautiful black and tan fox hound, was brought into the court room, but was not labelled as an exhibit because if this were done the animal would have to be kept by the police for fifteen days following completion of the case, pending possible appeal.

Evidence presented by Crown witnesses revealed that the dog in question was one of a litter of eight pups, born to a dog at the farm of George Tyndell in Smith on April 6th, 1932. The mother was the property of Tyndell and Johnston the father was jointly owned by Tyndell and Charles Westlake. It was agreed that when the mother was bred, she would become the property of Tyndell and ohnston would have his pick of the litter of pups. He chose two, one being the dog Pat, around which the theft case now revolves.

Johnston then left the two pups with Tyndell, providing feed, on the understanding that they would be available whenever he wanted them for hunting purposes.

Evidence revealed that the dog Pat was borrowed by Westlake for hunting in the fall of 1932 and kept until the fall of 1936. During these years, Westlake fed the dog and paid the annual dog tax. It was stated that Tyndall found the dog while out hunting one day and the animal was returned to Arthur Johnston, the so-called owner, immediately. In March of 1937, the animal disappeared from the premises of Johnston and was next heard of when it was taken off the train at Belleville by Tyndall and Arthur Johnston, Jr. The dog had been shipped from Hastings to Somerset, Prince Edward Island.

Spectators were entertained as Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr attempted to have J. M. Lucas, station agent at Hastings, describe the circumstances surrounding the shipping of the dog from that point. He said he didn't see the dog, he couldn't recognize the man who brought the dog, and that the train was pulling into the station when the men arrived with the dog.

Twenty-four witnesses filed into the court room at the request of the Magistrate but Lucas couldn't pick out the man who shipped the dog. J. E. Oliver, express man for the C.N.R. at Hastings, claimed two men arrived with the dog, about thirteen minutes before train time. He scanned the line of witnesses when they filed in again and picked out Earl Mills as the man who shipped the dog on November 8th, 1938.

Arthur Johnston, Jr., the first witness called for the Crown, said the dog had been in his dog hospital on March 24, 1937, and it disappeared. Later he had advertised in the Examiner offering a reward for its return. A copy of the Examiner, March 31, 1937, with the advertisement was produced and filed as an exhibit.

When did you locate the dog?

I saw him in the Police Station at Belleville on the morning of November 9, 1938.

Dr. Johnston said the dog could be readily identified by two large dew claws on the hind legs. These claws were attached to the joints, and it was not safe to remove them. He further testified the dog recognized Tyndell who had raised the dog.

Arthur Johnston, Sr., told the court he had only seen the dog once since the time he chose the two from litter. He said when the dog was two years old he took the animal hunting.

What efforts did you make to locate the dog after it disappeared in March, 1937, asked Alex. Elliott, counsel for Westlake.

I advertised in the Examiner, then when I heard Westlake had it I intended to get a search warrant, but the dog disappeared again.

Do you remember telling a man you were going to put these two thieves up on the hill?

No.

Did you make the statement that if Westlake run the hound it would be shot?

No.

Westlake told you he would sue you for the dog?

Yes, and I told him I could stand a lawsuit.

Why didn't you 'phone Westlake if you knew the dog was at his place?

Why should I; he gets the Examiner and could see the ad. The ad said anybody harboring the dog after this date would be prosecuted.

As all the witnesses filed into the court, Magistrate Langley remarked, "I never saw so many witnesses in one case." and Mr. Kerr replied, "This is a very long-tailed dog."

BOY IS MISSING

Information is being sought as to the whereabouts of Howard Stuart, aged 15 years, who disappeared from his home here on November 28. The boy is described as of fair complexion and with dark eyes and when he left was wearing green windbreaker, brown trousers and wanter rubbers. Anyone having any knowledge of this lad is asked to communicate with the Peterborough police department.

ONLY ONE DISQUALIFIED

Pupils in Peterborough county and city schools are willing to take a gamble, it would appear from the Kiwanis club's spelling bee. In the two nights only one pupil was disqualified for not attempting to spell a word. Each was given an indefinite period to make up his or her mind whether he or she knew how to spell the word assigned. Every one but a young girl made a stab of some kind. The young girl stared at her paper for about half a minute before the red light flashed, disqualifying her.

TWO CARS COLLIDE

Leonard Scott, 487 Chamberlain street reported to the police Saturday night that while he was driving a car belonging to Robert Orde, 620 Chamberlain street, west on Hunter street, the vehicle was struck at the interesection of Queen street by another car making a wide turn off the latter street to go east on Hunter street. Scott stated that the driver of the second vehicle did not stop. The left front fender, and front bumper of the car driven by Scott were damaged and a tire punctured. The accident happened shortly after 10 o'clock and the hit-and-run driver disappeared in the direction of Ashburnham.

Crime Among Young People Is Laid To Four Chief Causes

A warning to parents of unemployed boys and girls to be considerate and sympathetic in their attitude toward these children was sounded by Rev. W. A. McIlroy, secretary of the Prison Rehabilitation Association in addressing the Men's Forum in George Street United church Sunday afternoon on the subject "Unwanted youth." Mr. McIlroy stressed the difficulty at the present time of finding employment, pointing out that 400,000 young people between the ages of 15 and 25 were without jobs, and deprecated the tendency that existed among many parents of blaming their sons and daughters, rather than the conditions for their failure to find work.

The speaker was introduced by R. J. Goring and began by remarking that in the last ten years he had probably come into contact with more crooks than anybody else in the province of Ontario. His experience had taught him that there were four chief causes of crime among young people, first a desire for spending money to keep up with the Jones', second a desire to be independent among young people who did not want to beg and thought it better to steal than accept charity, third a desire for thrills and fourth a feeling on the part of many who had tried in vain to secure employment that they were unwanted.

Can Be Dangerous

Rev. Mr. McIlroy stressed the seriousness of the present situation, warning that youth mishandled could be a very dangerous element. The existing conditions, with 400,000 young people unemployed and more than 1,000,000 on relief in Canada were a menace both to the public morale and to public morals. Thousands of young people who should be getting married and setting up the homes that are the bulwark of society were unable to do so because of the economic conditions and were drifting into loose ways.

Speaking of his way in re-establishing those who had gone astray the speaker said that in 75 per cent of the cases the efforts of the Rehabilition Association were successful.

C. H. Elliott was chairman.

Brae Factory Re-elects Percy Oddie

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 12. — Percy Oddie was re-elected president of the Brae Cheese and Butter Company at their annual meeting held on Saturday. Addressing patrons, Mr. Oddie declared average would have held up much higher "had cheese not dropped off so quickly." Despite what was considered by many to be a difficult season, Cheesemaker Sam Hobbs managed to give the factory a high score, standing second for the district. Only two vats of cheese were lost during the season. At the Central Ontario Cheese Exhibition the factory was also successful, standing fourth in the show and first in the district with September cheese.

Patrons delivered 942,077 pounds of milk to the factory during the season to make a total of 84,506 pounds of cheese for an average of 11.14 pounds milk per pound cheese. Butter fat content was 32,835 pounds and an average of 2.57 pounds of cheese to one pound of butter fat. Average price for cheese was .1383 cents per pound and for butter fat .3057 cents per pound.

J. D. Mills of Campbellford, who addressed the patrons, stated it was regrettable that production throughout the province should have fallen off 10 per cent. when there is such a good market in England. With production figures up in general the farm picture was a more favorable one, he felt. "It is generally recognized in this country that we will not see prosperity until the prices of farm produce increases."

The main endeavor at the Belleville show was to get the quality of cheese up for export, District Dairy Instructor J. A. Murray said. Canada has always been noted for sending out large cheese and the British market might be adversely affected by the use of a smaller hoop. Despite the fact there was more second-grade cheese throughout the province as a whole (about three thousand more), this district has done a little better than a year ago, and your maker, Sam Hobbs, is the only one from this district who won at this year's and last year's shows, he asserted. The Brae Factory stood second with four under-grade cheese during the year, and the factory which exceeded this record had a much smaller make, Mr. Murray told them.

Directors of the company were re-elected as follows: R. C. Cleugh, Harry Bedford, Bogart Linn, and Alfred Linn.

Havelock Couple 20 Years Married

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Dec. 12.—Over fifty guests were present at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Warner, of town, on Friday evening, when the latter observed their twentieth wedding anniversary. Receiving the guests at the door were their two eldest daughters, Misses Edna and Bertha Warner. The house was attractively decorated with pink and white streamers for the occasion. Games, contests and music was much enjoyed during the evening, and Mr. and Mrs. Warner were the recipients of many beautiful pieces of chinaware.

A lovely buffet lunch was served about eleven o'clock by four nieces of Mr. and Mrs. Warner, being assisted by Mrs. D. Young, Mrs. W. Laing and Miss Minerva Isaacs.

Among those present were: James Hicks, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Warner, Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Moffat, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bright, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bright, Mr. and Mrs. Arden Watson, Mr. and Mrs. William Hicks and son, all of Campbellford; Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Ireland and family, A. Harden, John Nixon, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Timms of Warkworth; Mr. and Mrs. George McNutt, Miss Dorothy McNutt, Ambrose Cooper, of Marsbury; Mr. and Mrs. H. Pratt, of Burnley; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mack, of Stanwood; Mrs. A. Sharman and children, Jean and Alec, of Hastings; Miss Winnifred Gillespie and Ray Outwaters, of Havelock.

Firm Investigated

Shown here is Executive Vice-President D. F. Michaels, of McKesson and Robbins, Inc., gigantic drug and chemical concern which has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in New York. Sensational developments in the bankruptcy, in which assets that may exceed $10,000,000 are alleged to be mysteriously missing, are promised by investigating bodies. A statement given out by executives of the firm claims that "Canadian warehouses" which supposedly held large amounts of the company's stock of crude drugs turned out on investigation to be only mailing addresses.

Cigarette Butt Thrown Into Car

Leo O'Keefe, 45 Lafayette avenue, was convinced on Saturday night that someone with malicious instincts had selected his car as a means of giving outlet to a twisted mentality.

The car was parked in a lot on Simcoe street and was locked. One window was lowered about an inch, not sufficient for anyone to gain entrance to the automobile. A few minutes after seven o'clock the fire department received a call that there was a smell of smoke coming from somewhere on the lot. Fire fighters joined their informant in a search and found a cigarette burning the rear cushion of Mr. O'Keefe's car. They were on the point of breaking the glass in order to extinguish the blaze when the owner arrived on the scene, unlocked the door. He was convinced that some passer-by had tossed a glowing cigarette into the locked car. Damage was negligible, only a small hole in the cushion being noticeable.

Another blaze that occurred on Saturday was in a frame garage at 116 Stewart street, owned by Jean Hurtubise, and rented by Bruce Parker. The fire broke out between two partitions, and its cause is unknown. Only a minimum of loss resulted, although smoke was dense for a time.

OBITUARY

MRS. ELIZABETH DE LA PLANTE

A resident of this city for more than seventy years, Mrs. Elizabeth De La Plante died suddenly on Sunday morning at her home at 178 Lansdowne Street. She was in her 81st year and had been in excellent health, had enjoyed life to the last.

She was born in Quebec, at La Prairie, the daughter of Edward Gordon and Matila Guerin, and moved to this city when she was only ten years of age. She was the widow of O'Dinno De La Plante.

A woman of deep faith and a mother whose chief interests centered in her home and church, she was beloved by all who knew her. She had been a member of the Sacred Heart Church ever since it was first erected, and was a faithful member of the Altar Society.

She leaves eight children to mourn her loss, Mrs. Rische aof Toronto, Mrs. William Caverly of Buffalo, Joseph and Thomas De La Plante of Iroquois Falls, and Edward, Armine, Henry, and Hermine De La Plante of Peterborough. Of her own immediate family she was the last surviving member.

Funeral arrangements have not been arranged as yet, but will bs announced in the next issue of this newspaper.

MRS. MATILDA STEVENS.

Mrs. Matilda Stevens, 515 Cross street, died at the home of her son, Allin Stevens, 355 Rogers street, on Saturday. In her 69th year, she had been ill for about a fortnight.

One of George Street United church's most active workers, she had been associated with the women's missionary society for many years, taking an increasing part in its work during recent years. At the time of her death, Mrs. Stevens was secretary-treasurer of one of the groups of that body. She had been a member of the church for the past thirty years and more.

She was born in Lakefield, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Butcher and came to Peterborough from Beaverton thirty-six years ago. Her husband, Charles Stevens predeceased her some time ago.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. W. Western of Peterborough, and two sons, Frank and Allin Stevens, both of this city. Also surviving are one sister, Miss Beatrice Butcher of Beaverton, and three brothers, Albert Butcher of Cannington, James Butcher of Brandon, Manitoba, and Percy Butcher of Beaverton.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon from the residence of her son Allin Stevens, 355 Rogers street, to George Street United church for service at 1.30 o'clock, Rev. M. C. Parr, of George Street church, officiating, assisted by Rev. E. W. Rowland, of Mark Street United church. Interment will be at the Old Stone Church cemetery, Beaverton.

MISS FRANCES E. DENCH

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 12—The funeral of the late Miss Frances Emily Dench, of Lakefield, was held on Thursday afternoon, from St. John the Baptist Anglican church, Queen street

Miss Dench, who was seventy-one years old, died at the home of her brother, Mr. B. Q. Dench, on December 6, her birthday.

Born on the homestead in North Douro in 1867, she was the sixth daughter of R. Q. Dench and Sarah M. Leeds.

Miss Dench spent her childhood on the farm in Douro. As a young girl she went to England where she lived with an uncle and aunt until about 1900 when she returned to Canada and took up residence with her sister at Fowler's corners—near Omemee. Miss Dench lived with her sister until the latter's death five years ago when she came to Lakefield and made her home with Mr. and Mrs. B. Q. Dench at North Douro Lodge.

Miss Dench has always been an interested church worker. During her life at Omemee she was very active in the work of St. John's Anglican church, Emily township. Since coming to Lakefield her health prevented Miss Dench from entering into the work so fully but she has shown her interest and taken part in the activities of the societies to no small extent.

Rev. H. R. Howden conducted the funeral service, assisted by Rev. W. J. Creighton. The pall bearers were four nephews and two friends: Messrs. Francis Dench of Renfrew; Doug Dench of Toronto; Leonard Patrick of Belleville; Eric Blackwell of Fowler's Corners; Roger Amys of Peterborough; and Charles Bell of Toronto.

Interment was in Hillside cemetery.

First Mosque Opened

EDMONTON. — Canada's first mosque was opened officially by Major J. W. Fry at a simple ceremony attended by more than 100 persons here last night. The church was named Rashid Mosque after the famous Mohammedan prophet. The mosque was dedicated by Abdullah Ysuf Ali, Moslem scholar and Indian statesman touring Canada.

City's Firemen Swamped Repairing Toys

The Peterborough Fire Department will distribute more toys to underprivileged children this year than in any other time in their history as Santa Claus' helpers. Today Fire Chief Gimblett asked that all gifts of toys to the department be stopped. This is the first year in all twelve that members of the department have been repairing toys that response by the general public has been so great that the department has been flooded with toys.

A few weeks ago fears were expressed that not sufficient toys would be contributed to supply the demand that will fall on Christmas Eve. Notice to that effect was given in the Examiner for three days and immediately the fire department began to know what a generous response really meant. Cars drove up in dozens, the telephone rang almost incessantly with offers of toys, enthusiasm began to be felt all over the city. Today the harried members of the department begged for a little respite. "Call it off," Chief Gimblett said. "We can't get the repairing done, we're so busy picking up toys. Thank the public for the most generous response we have ever had, and ask them to keep their toys until next year. We have far more now than we will ever be able to finish. Already there are far more toys ready for delivery than there were last year when all work was completed—and there are still ten days of hard work ahead of the fire fighters.

"It just shows you what a little advertising will do," Chief Gimblett said. He extended a cordial welcome to the public to inspect the toys that are completed and are now on display at the fire hall. "The toys are bigger and better this year than in other years," he said.

Truck Overturns On Devil's Elbow

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, Dec. 12.—Presence of mind saved the life of a truck driver when his vehicle, laden with logs, went out of control on the ill-famed Devil's Elbow in Cavan township on Saturday morning and careened through a guard rail, plunging fifty feet to the bottom of a long incline.

When the driver saw that he was unable to save his truck he jumped and ran in the opposite direction to the falling vehicle. The truck turned completely over twice and came to a stop on its wheels, badly damaged, some fifty feet below the narrow road. It was later removed and taken to the home of its owner, Mr. Wilson of Cavan, where some time later it unexplainedly caught fire and was completely burned.

PETES OPEN SENIOR PUCK SCHEDULE AGAINST FLIERS JANUARY 6

Takes Good Man, Good Sportsman To Lose Gracefully Frank Pallen Tells Grove Boys

"I am sorry you didn't lose some of those games. It is so easy to win and so hard to lose," Frank Pullen of Oakville told the senior rugby teams of the Grove School, Lakefield, at the annual supper in their honor Saturday night.

"It takes a good man and a good sportsman to lose gracefully. Win, of course, if you can, then if you can't win, lose gracefully; play the game for its sake."

Mr. Pullen advised the team, and those who would follow them in the next few years, that the influence of football games on their character in the years of their manhood would be an asset whose value they could not appreciate now. His address might have been based on two lines from a Newbolt poem, inscribed at the head of the dinner program: "To set the cause above the crown, To love the game above the prize."

Mr. Pullen is one of the directors of the Lakefield Preparatory School, and although he is not an Old Boy, three of his sons are graduates of The Grove. His toast to "The Old Boys Absent Friends," was responded to by his son, Lieutenant-Commander Hugh Pullen of the Royal Canadian Navy.

"When you chaps leave here and become Old Boys," Mr. Pullen said in offering the toast, "you will look back on these days at The Grove as some of the happiest in your lives. Take that from me as an absolute certainty that it will happen. This school is fortunately placed away from the turmoil of busy centres. Its beauty of natural surroundings, its lake and river are ideal. I have knocked about in many parts of the world, and I can tell you that there is something about Lakefield and The Grove that is extremely appealing and that will remain with you all your lives."

Mr. Pullen suggested that the boys become interested in the beauties of nature that abounded in the locality, the wild life, the birds and flowers and animals. "Try to make it a hobby, because it is something you will never regret. It is a healthy, satisfactory hobby that will never fail you in later years. I can assure you that the Old Boys I have met are standing behind the Grove School and its staff in the sad loss of its Headmaster. There must be six or seven hundred Old Boys scattered over the world."

K. A. Mackenzie Presided.

Kenneth A. Mackenzie, who has succeeded his father, the Rev. A. W. Mackenzie as Headmaster, presided as toastmaster, at the dinner. The refectory was decorated with the red and green colors of the school. The senior team was seated along one side of the room, and among those at the head table was Mrs. A. W. Mackenzie, mother of "The Head."

Sitting at the senior team's table were their coach, G. W. Smith of the staff, and the honorary coach, Wm. Irwin of the Peterboro senior O.R.F.U. team, W. Flack of the "Orphuns" was also invited, but sent his regrets that he was unable to be present.

Members of the staff and their wives, all the boys of the School, and guests from the district and elsewhere joined in the congratulations to the School's senior football team. Of their eight games with team representing Trinity College School, Pickering and St. Andrew's College, they won all of them, with two off-schedule losses, one with the junior team of Peterboro College Institute to open the season, and the final of all with a team of Grove Old Boys. Each member of the 1938 team was presented with a white sweater, trimmed with red and green and the Grove crest, a gift from T. A. McGinnis of Kingston, father of one of the boys.

The toast to the King was followed by a silent toast in memory of deceased graduates, a tribute that was first paid in 1919 commemorating the Old Boys who had fallen in the Great War.

Hubert M. Eisdell proposed the toast to The School. He spoke of the great loss the School had suffered in the death of Rev. Dr. Mackenzie who would not have wished to be remembered with sadness "but with gratitude for the long years he was spared to spend with us. And we are grateful for the privilege of having come under his influence and for the traditions and ideals he left behind."

"On this occasion our thoughts turn also to Mr. Kenneth Mackenzie on whom the responsibility of office fell so suddenly," Mr. Elsdell said, recalling an association with him during the war years and in other circumstances. "We are proud of our football team this year, and I wish to add my congratulations to the boys, and to express my wish that The School may long continue to send out into the world young men fully equipped to take their places in it, men who realize their responsibilities and who are not afraid to shoulder them. The world never needed them so desperately as it does now."

Grateful For Support.

In his reply, Mr. Mackenzie acknowledged the kindly reference to himself and the members of his. The School, he said, rested on the supports of the tradition from his father's years, the staff and the invaluable interest of the Old Boys. "I am proud to trink that the traditions founded by my father are with us to-day. I believe the best means to carry on is to adopt with those traditions new ideas of our own to-day. There have been changes in the staff during the last eight months, and I should like to say that I am proud of the support and willing work and of the understanding of my own position which I have received from the present staff. I am happy in the support we have had from the old boys. The support we have had in recent months from the Board and the Old Boys has been invaluable to us."

H. F. Ketchum proposed the toast to the Team, recalling that in their eight games with the three other schools they had won eight victories, scoring 124 points to their opponents' 29. Mr. Smith, coach, and E. L. Pease, captain, replied.

Mr. Pease presented tributary gifts to Mr. Smith and "Bill" Irwin, and in his turn Mr. Smith voiced his appreciation of the help he had received from Mr. Irwin "who gave us the fundamentals of the plays we used to great advantage." He also spoke of the assistance given by Mr. Flack.

E. Doe of the Staff proposed the toast to "The Ladies" and Mrs. G. M. Douglas responded. The toast to the New Boys was given by Rev. H. R. Howden, and replies were given by several of the juniors, E. Moore, Duncan McDougall and C. Marshall.

The members of the senior team this year were: E. L. Pease, P. G. Frewer, W. R. Dobbin, A. B. Crickmore, J. F. Maclaren, B. I. Rose, B. A. Dobbin, D. C. Foster, R. T. Harris, K. M. Langmuir, J. R. Potts, P. J. Carson, T. A. McGinnis, J. G. Roberts, H. L. Tilly, W. M. La Nauze, J. B. Wilkes, J. L. Morris and L. H. Chaucer.

Prizes Distributed.

Miss O. M. Perry presided at the distribution of the athletic prizes won during the season, and including the J. F. Harvey Cup to the senior champion, James L. Morris.

The H. M. Eisdell prize to the intermediate champion, Ross M. MacDonald.

The H. F. Ketchum prize to the junior champion, William H. McLean.

The half mile prizes were the Cottage Cup presented by Mrs. T. W. B. Marling to P. G. Frewer of the seniors; the intermediate prize by Miss O. M. Perry to H. R. Tilley, and the junior by Mrs. G. T. Robinson to W. H. McLean.

Winners of the cross country races were in The Seaforth, D. B. Hague, senior; Peter Perry, intermediate, and W. H. McLean, junior.

The Cowley, donated by G. B. Hilliard, to K. M. Langmuir, senior; J. F. Arnoldi, intermediate, and W. H. McLean, junior.

The Cowley time prize was won by B. I. Rose.

The Grove race, prizes were won by B. I. Rose, senior; R. B. Hague, intermediate and W. H. McLean, junior.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Harvey, Lakefield; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Langley; Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Douglas, Young's Point; Rev. E. C. Moore, Young's Point; Mrs. T. W. B. Marling; Miss K. Goodman, Hamilton; Mrs. E. R. Tate, Lakefield; Mrs. G. Elmsley, Mrs. G. Stuart; Mr. K. M. R. Tate; Mr. H. Atwood; Frank Pullen, Oakville; Lt.-Com. Hugh Pullen, R.C.N.; Mrs. G. T. Robinson; Mrs. H. M. Eisdell; Wm. Irwin, Peterboro; Miss Mary Mackenzie; Miss Jacqueline Graham, Miss Betty Harvey, Miss Elizabeth Ketchum, Miss Betty Lampman, Mrs. O. M. Perry.

The members of the staff present were K. A. Mackenzie, H. M. Eisdell, H. F. Ketchum, G. W. Smith, J. P. R. Macaulay, E. Doe, Rev. G. R. Howden, G. H. Loosemore, Miss O. M. Perry.

Giants Down Packers In 23-17 Struggle

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP).—Professional football patterns its game to the customers' wishes and the customers want wide open football with plenty of scoring. No better case for both the customers and the pros could have been represented than yesterday's national league championship playoff, in which the New York Giants beat the Green Bay Packers 23-17.

Having proved the best defensive team in the league during the regular season, the Giants were expected to play for the breaks. Actually they made them, blocking two kicks and recovering a fumble to set up a field goal and the first two touchdowns. Then they showed they also could put on a sustained drive by marching 61 yards to a winning score. That was made on Ed Danowski's second touchdown pass, after a field goal had given Green Bay a short-lived 17-16 lead.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Some guys, don't know when they've had enough, and a lot of our lacrossers come in this category. After happily winning a tough title this past season, and being more or less knocked slap-happy in the process, a bunch of the boys rambled over to whoop it up in Rochester a few nights ago. They played an exhibition lacrosse game 'gainst the Rochester Iroquois in an Armory before some 2,000 high-priced fans, and took the short side of a 22-13 score. No disgrace at all, as the Indians are good and are in the pink, while the locals were short regulars and short of wind! They added a few of the Brooklin players and a pair from Toronto, but their passing play was rusty and that was the main difference. Plus a home defence that nearly cut the ears off incoming opponents.

* * * * * *

The Rochester sports sheet had a big 8-column heading: "Iroquois Down Peterboro, 22-13, In Wild Duel" with this subheading: "Fast Pace Keeps Crowd In Uproar"—so the customers musta been satisfied. Story tells of an early lead by the Iroquois and a strong finish by the Petes, with a Chute-Martin fight and a Creighton-Smith outbreak that threatened free-for-alls. They had a cop in the penalty box to keep order.

* * * * * *

Indians Bad Medicine

Evidentl ythe Rochester writer felt the Indians were bad medicine as he says once: "The Indians' defence hacked down the Peterboro forwards without compunction" and again: "Harry Smith flattened a rival forward with the handle of his stick." He adds that Chute was high scorer for the locals with two little fellows, Whitton and Reid, proving the best stick-handlers and the cagiest forwards of the squad. Red Creighton is called: "The visitors' daring pugnacious goalie." The U.S. scribe just made a couple of mistakes, referring to the locals sometimes as the Auburns—and there is no such name in Peterborough any more; and dubbing the Petes the intermediate champions of Canada, instead of Ontario senior "B" title holders. The boys had a good trip and had all expenses paid. They might have fared a bit better with stars like Worthy, Crowe, Magee, Loucks and Westonfelt aboard.

* * * * * *

A trio of puck gents, Frank Buckland, Tommy Miller and Cliff Cadd, took in the senior "B" schedule meeting in Belleville over the week-end and helped draft a double schedule. It's in elsewhere and shows the locals don't get under way this winter till Jan. 6th, or maybe the 9th,, meeting the Trenton Fliers in Belleville. First home game will be Jan. 13th when Belleville Redmen are here. Schedule winds up Feb. 3rd, with top two teams tackling each other in best three out of five games in playoffs. It is a runty schedule, but then the group is runty, the weather bad, and the VanHorne series in Kingston interferes. Both Belleville and Fliers are in and it'll last till maybe Jan. 10th. Fliers aren't likely to hit the VanHorne finals, but Belleville may. They've got a good club this year and Skipper Eddie Thomas already figures he's won his O.H.A. grouping!

* * * * * *

All They Need Is Ice

So now the junior "B" and "C" district teams can hold a huddle and okay their schedule. The Petes hope to have a couple of exhibition frays before their do-or-die battles begin, and they feel it is a break not having to tackle the Airmen or Redmen too soon—giving 'em that much more time to practice on ice. They hope to get on ice in another week, even if it is on an Oshawa sheet. And they may accept a bid to stage a charity exhibition fray in Owen Sound with the Trappers a week from tomorrow. While our senior group is slim, we imagine some heated battles will be staged by these old rivals once they do dig their skates into the frozen water.

* * * * * *

Comes a letter from Jimmy Ellis in Coral Gables, Florida, where he and Mick Magee were slated to begin their hcokey over the week-end. Jim requests copies of The Examiner to keep in touch with local sports. The boys are parked at a nifty Spanish style hotel with three cocanut palms waving gently in the breeze out in front. "They call this the land of sunshine," Ellis writes, "and it sure is. It is so wonderful down here that I feel selfish you are not all here." So do we feel badly about it—and can just imagine the Messrs. Magee and Ellis parading the sand beaches in bathing shorts. Before the admiring gaze of southern beauties—stop it, we can't go on! And then playing hockey at nightfor healthy expense cuts. Gosh ,it must be a tough life.....

* * * * * *

Breath From The South

Jim says he has been appointed captain of the Miami Clippers, with Mick assistant-captain, so the boys are doing okay so far. They left here to play for the Havana Cubans, and now it's the Miami Clippers — the team's monicker no doubt being changed en route. Their uniforms have blue satin pants with old gold, sweater to match and silk-and-wool stockings, plus a gorgeous crest—the bloomin' panty-waists! It's a four-team loop, mostly Canadians, playing on Miami artificial ice before tourist crowds till April. We hope the lads do well, and will bet a fin they'll enjoy themselves. Toronto paper says this a.m., in a brief bulletin, that the league opened and hockey proved popular with the Miami populace.

Quite a few fans from here took in the Dominion grid final in Toronto on Saturday and saw Argos romp through for a 30-7 victory. The Winnipeg Bombers held 'em in check for three periods in a fine fray before 20,000 excited folk, but the classy Torontos really rolled in the last 15-minute spasm. Red Storey, huge Barrie boy, led the Argonauts with three thrilling touchdowns in the fourth—and this same fellow used to play against our junior hockey Colts for Barrie a few seasons ago on defence. He was a fair puckist but is a star gridder. As one of the Bombers' players said over the radio after the fray: "It was a great game and Argos deserved the win under Eastern rules, but I'd like to meet them again under Western rules!"

SPORT SPICE

(By SID FEDER)

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—(AP).—The Yankees haven't given up on pitcher Freddie Hutchinson yet — even though the Pirates are supposed to have the deal cinched for the coast kid . . . One of the champs' bosses says it isn't anywhere near settled—and that if the Yanks really want Freddie, no other club can outbid 'em . . .

Steven Owen says what really won his New York Giants the pro football championship over the Packers in that thriller yesterday was all the talk that his boys were so "lucky". . . . "After we beat the Packers two weeks ago and Washington last week," says Steve, "everybody hollered we were the luckiest club ever. . . . So no one gave my kids credit for being as smart as they really are —and they fooled everybody, including Green Bay." . . .

Now that the Giants have Zeke Bonura for first base, what's going to happen to Brooklyn's Buddy Hassett? . . . The "thrust" has shown that he's definitely big league stuff, so the Dodgers ought to trade him where he'll have a shot at first basing . . . Instead of trying to make an outfielder out of him.... The kid deserves the chance.

Plenty Of Action As East Defeats West

These two pictures are typical of the many pile-ups which took place when Winnipeg Bombers met Toronto Argos in the playoffs for the Dominion rugby title. Hard tackling by both teams featured the entire game despite the final score of 30-7 in favor of Argos.

'Phainting Phil' Yelps 'Enough' In 30 Seconds To Establish New Record For Himself

LONDON, Dec. 12.—(CP)—Phil Scott has been flattened in 30 seconds—believed to be a record even for "Phainting Phil."

The one-time heavyweight boxing hope, who came to be known by such uncomplimentary noms de guerre as the "Somnolent Scott," recently challenged the American wrestler, Jack Sherr, to a mixed bout, gloved and trunked. Phil entered the ring with cheers whistling in his ears. He left it with assorted fruits and pop bottles whistling about his head.

The faithful scarcely had settled in their seats when Sherry whipped a leglock on Scott. Phil assumed the horizontal position that was so well known to boxing followers and beat the ring-floor with his hands in seeming agony. He cried "enough."

Despite the violent "birds" the paying customers let fly at the end of the bout, the 38-year-old Scott said he would like a return match with Sherry. But no gloves next time.

"It must be with my bare hands; then I'll show him," said Phil from the safety of his dressingroom.

With The Boy Scouts

A meeting of the rover council will be held to-night at 8 o'clock in the central headquarters on Simcoe street. All rover scouts, scoutmasters and commissioners and association executives are cordially invited to attend.

At All Saints'.

Last Wednesday the rover crew went to the fire hall and assisted in painting toys. This will be repeated again this week.

On Sunday morning the crew attended Corporate Communitn with breakfast following, after which they went to morning prayers, as a body, 100 per cent atetndance being registered for this occasion. Some of the boys assisted in taking up the offertory.

The scouts had a good meeting at which the Zulldog patrol put on a skit. Bootleg Kemp knocked out Killer Lacey, after which the ambulance squad had to carry both fighters and the referee out to first aid stations. The meeting for this week has been brought forward and will be held Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock instead of Friday.

Duty patrol for Tuesday: The Eagles.

The cubs will also meet on Tuesday night at 6.30 p.m. All cubs are requested to be present. A going-up ceremony will be held: Ernest Darling, Jack Chambers, Ameron Shannon and Walter Wheeler will be leaving for the troop.

At last week's meeting five visitors were present: Rev. Canon Patterson, Rev. Captain Robinson, District Cubmaster Gordon Clegg, Rover C. Dobbin, and Mr. W. Lyburn. Rev. Captain Robinson spoke to the boys on "Do your best."

At St. John's.

The rover crew welcomed four new members on Tuesday in Warren Gamble, Art Northcott, Art Winslow and Bob Crocker. Plans are going ahead to redecorate the den throughout.

A good number of boys were out to the pack meeting and gave a real jungle welcome to a new leader in the person of Miss M. Hooper.

Instruction under group system was given and found satisfactory, and the games of frog jump and stalking were introduced in the program.

The sixers and second of the St. John's pack will make a goodwill trip to Port Hope on Thursday, December 15, at the request of the Port Hope leaders. Those invited will meet at St. John's Parish Hall at 6 p.m. on Thursday.

A sixers' council meeting was held at the Home of Akela, when plans for the trip were discussed.

The pack sends its best wishes to Sixer Frank Blackburn, who has been ill for the past week and wish him a speedy recovery.

Gordon Hume was one of the cubs who went up to the troop recently.

At St. George's.

At a recent meeting Bob Siddall and Adrian Langhorne were presented with their second star, while Bob Moscrop received his swimmer's badge. R. Totterington was presented with swimmer's and toymaker's badges. K. Hopkin, house orderly; A. Langhorne, house orderly.

Bob Siddall also passed first aid while R. Titterington and A. Langhorne passed guide badges.

The scouts are forging ahead with first aid and signalling and the scouter took new boys in tenderfoot work.—The Skipper.

Greene The Winner Of McGee Trophy

PORT HOPE, Ont., Dec. 12—(CP)—William Green of Port Hope was declared winner of the McGee trophy, awarded annually to the "new boy" who scores highest in gymnasium work, cross-country running and boxing, at the finishing of boxing matches Saturday at Trinity College School.

Greene scored 12 ½points. James Parr of Port Hope and Larry Higgins of Suo, Chile, tied for second place with 10.

Boxing results follow:

Under 15 years. — Paperweight, William Green, Port Hope, defeated Hugh Warner, Beacon Hill, N.Y. Flyweight, George Munro, Toronto, defeated Charles Burrows, Toronto. Bantamweight, Harold Warburton, Montreal, defeated Peter Armour, Erindale, Ont. Featherweight, Larry Higgins, Suo, Chili, defeated John Hope, Montreal. Lightweight, Ross LeMesurier, Montreal, won by default from James Pass, Port Hope. Welterweight, Halfey Olds, New York, won by default from Robert Spence, Toronto.

Over 15 years. — Featherweight, David Armour, Erindale, defeated Tony Walken, Vancouver. Lightweight, Ralph Morton, Brockville, won by default from Charles Roberts, Toronto. Welterweight, Fred Clarke, Amos, Que., won by default from Charles Spencer, Bowmanville. Middleweight, Kenneth Clarke, Amos, Que., defeated Douglas Erinhous, Peterborough.

Tail End Eagles Humble Ramblers 6-3

Things didn't look so dark today for New Haven Eagles, who started slowly in the International-American Hockey League race, and although still in last place in their section can boast of a smashing victory over the powerful Philadelphia Ramblers. The Philadelphia outfit, leading the eastern division with Providence Reds, edged out the Eagles 3-2 in a Saturday clash, but the New Haven boys came back strongly last night to trounce Ramblers 6-3. Springfield Indians and Providence played to a 0-0 draw Saturday and a 4-4 tie Sunday. Cleveland Barons topped Hershey Bears, leaders of the western section, 2-1 Saturday and drew 2-2 with Syracuse Stars Sunday. In a Sunday contest Syracuse blanked Pittsburgh Hornets 5-0.

Armand Mondou, recently sent to Eagles from the National League Montreal Canadiens, scored three goals in the Sunday clash with the Ramblers. Des Smith, Pete Lepine and Ambois tallied the others, Hubbell were the Philadelphia scorers.

In the Saturday contest Lude Wareing, George Allen and Carse scored for Philadelphia. Mondou tallied once for the Eagles while Tony Hemmerling got the other.

Goals by Cunningham and O'Neill gave Barons their victory over Bears, held to a single tally by Red Hamill. O'Neill also got one against the Stars last night while the other Cleveland scorer was Earl Bartholome. The Stars' scorers were Mixi Bennett and Pete Langelle.

Doggie Kuhn got two Providence goals in their second draw game of the week-end against Springfield, while other Reds goal-getters were Will Starr and Noram Schultz. Max Kaminsky, Adelard Lafrance, Ted Saunders and Tommy Filmore scored for Springfield.

Hockey Club Officers

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 12. — Campbellford Hockey Club elected members of their executive at their second meeting of the season held here Saturday. There was a large turnout for the meeting at which it was revealed considerable new material for the team would be required. At least two new names are likely to appear on this year's lineup. The schedule will not be drawn up until there is ice and as was indicated at a previous meeting it will be run through twice. No coach has been chosen yet, but R. H. Cole was elected as manager and other officers included President C. H. Davidson; vice-president, Howard Davidson; secretary, Paul O'Sullivan.

Teams To Play Double Bill In 3-Club Group

The Petes will not open their O.H.A. senior "B" schedule before Jan. 6th and will not be seen in action at home in a loop fixture till Jan. 13th. This was the result of the schedule meeting in Belleville yesterday, called by Sandy Burrows, with Frank Buckland, Cliff Cadd and Tommy Miller representing the Peterborough Hockey Club.

It was decided that the three-team grouping would operate a double schedule this season, with a three-in-five playoff series. The slim group, doubtful weather and the VanHorne Series in Kingston—in which the Fliers and Redmen operate—all made it seem advisable to cut down the O.H.A. schedule. If the Fliers happen to make VanHorne Cup playoffs, the Petes will open Jan. 9th instead of the 6th, it was agreed. The team finishing first gets the choice of a site for the first playoffs against the second team, the third being out.

While the Trenton Fliers were rather inclined to favor a triple schedule at first, the Belleville bunch were decidedly against it and the Petes, willing to try either, somewhat favored the double billing. It calls for each team to play on the other's home ice twice before playoffs are reached. Regret was expressed that a larger grouping could not be obtained for this year in the senior "B" series up this way. Following is the 1939 O.H.A. senior "B" schedule in this grouping:

Open Away

Jan. 6—Petes at Fliers.
Jan. 13—Fliers at Belleville.
Jan 16—Belleville at Petes.
Jan. 16—Belleville at Fliers.
Jan 18—Fliers at Petes.
Jan. 20—Petes at Belleville.
Jan. 23—Petes at Fliers.
Jan. 25—Fliers at Belleville.
Jan. 27—Belleville at Petes.
Jan. 30—Petes at Belleville.
Feb. 1—Belleville at Fliers.
Feb. 3—Fliers at Petes.

Hail Seabiscuit Best Of Year

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Seabiscuit, conqueror of War Admiral in their famous match race, gained another victory over the son of Man o' War today when he was acclaimed the outstanding horse of the year in the United States.

Beaten last year for the honor by the margin of only 18 points, the hard-hitting five-year-old from Charles S. Howard's stable, gained ample revenge. In a pool of 240 sports writers, conducted by the Turf and Sport Digest, the son of Hard Tack rolled up 698 points as compared to the Admiral's 489.

The writers took into consideration not only the Biscuit's easy triumph over his rival at Pimlico but the fact he was in the money in each of his 11 starts, won $130,395 and boosted his total earnings to $340,480, only some $36,000 short of Sun Beau's world record. In whipping Sam Riddle's War Admiral by three lengths he created a new track record of 1:56 3-5 for 1 3-16th mile.

Maxwel Howard's Stagehand, third in the all-age division, was voted best of the three-year olds despite a record which shows all of his major triumphs against older horses.

Hopes Admiral Has 2nd Chance

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Charley Kurtsinger, the "Flying Dutchman" of the United States turf, expressed belief today that all War Admiral needs to beat Seabiscuit is the opportunity.

"I'm just hoping we get another crack at him this winter," said Kurtsinger, jockey of Samuel D. Riddle's great son of Man o' War. "It possibly will come in the Widener Handicap at Hialeah. He's a tough horse, yes, a great horse, but I still believe we can beat him."

The "Dutchman," home on vacation, was referring, of course, to Charles S. Howard's Seabiscuit, which beat the Admiral in a match race at Pimlico last month.

"The Admiral wasn't himself that day," Kurtsinger said. "The tip-off came in the first quarter."

ARGOS DEFEAT BOMBERS 30 TO 7 TO WIN THE CANADIAN TITLE

Red Storey Races Into Hall Of Fame With 3 Touches For Argos To Defeat Winnipeg Team

By Sydney Gruson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Dec. 12.—(CP)—Every once in a while somebody streaks across the football record and leaves his mark with standout performance that time will not erase.

Such was the case Saturday when Buster (Red) Storey raced to glory and three touchdowns that enabled Toronto Argonauts to defeat Winnipeg Blue Bombers 30-7 in the 15th meeting between the East and West for the Canadian championship. Storey's performance will live a long time in the history of the national final.

The big redhead, 200 lbs. of bone and muscle, had been getting hotter since the eastern playoffs started a month ago. He was a ball of fire in the fourth quarter against Bombers, who were leading and were a shade the better team until Storey went wild.

The amazing, 24-point rampage in the final 15 minutes came after three quarters of as hard, thrilling football as the national final has produced. The lead changed hands twice, both teams staged long marches for scores and there was a mixture of heavy ground work and wide-open play to please the most critical in the crowd of 19,000 jamming Varsity Stadium.

Score 4 On Two Fumbles

Bombers capitalized on a short kick by Bob Isbister and two fumbles to score four points in the first quarter through Art Stevenson's single and a field goal by Greg Kabat. A 25-yard pass from Annis Stukus to Art West and a 30-yard dash by West gave Argos a touchdown in the second quarter. Kabat got part of that back with his second field goal, from 20 yards and a difficult angle, after Stevenson passed bombers 81 yards from his 10 in three throws.

Setting the stage for Storey's performance, Annis Stukus got Argos a single from an attempted placement field goal that left Bombers ahead 7-6, with Argos in possession on the Winipeg 40, at the end of the third quarter. Then Storey took charge as the Bomber defence fell apart.

Storey Goes Through.

Until Storey cut through on an end run around Winnipeg's left side for 28 yards and a touchdown, Bombers had made good Coach Reg. Threlfall's prediction of stopping the vaunted Argo running offensive. The powerful Western line had been charging through and breaking up the end run before Ted Morris or Bill Stukus could get away the important second lateral.

Suddenly the Bomber line wasn't charging through and that was the one break Argos needed. Isbister and West made 12 on an end dash before Storey fought his way through a half-dozen tacklers for his first touchdown. Gambling through the air after the swift reverse, Bombers' passes boomeranged.

Storey intercepted one and went 40 yards to the four from where he barged over on third down. Isbister intercepted another, just a few plays later on the Argo three, lateralled to Storey who kept pumping his [illegible] legs high and hard past half [illegible] Winnipeg team and until he reached the Winnipeg five, 102 yards away. Bill Stukus passed into the end zone to Bernie Thornton.

Art Evans intercepted for the third time on the 22. Earl Selkirk plunged for 10, then Storey got through for another touch. The Stukus brothers split the converts.

Thoroughly Beaten.

Threlfall was first to concede Argos' superiority. "They outplayed us and beat us thoroughly," said the coach, who predicted after scouting Argos twice that Bombers would win because of their superior line. It was superior for more than half the game, scattering Argo plays and rushing Argo ball carriers behind the scrimmage line.

Storey's performance reminded of Fritzie Hanson's when the West won its only national title—an 18-2 victory for Bombers over Hamilton Tigers in 1935. Then, on a muddy field in Hamilton, Hanson couldn't be stopped, but on Saturday, on a soft field and in mild weather, Fritizie wasn't given a chance.

Deadly downfield tackling by Bernie Thornton and Wes Cutler held Hanson to 27 yards on kick runbacks, where Argos picked up 93, mostly on a 40-yard dash by West in the third quarter. Argos made 16 first downs to seven for Bombers and gained 149 yards on eight completed passes to 146 yards on four completions. Argos tried 17 passes and Winnipeg 12.

Remember When—

Connie Mack startled the baseball world by breaking up the famous Philadelphia Athletics five years ago to-day. Five of his stars sold for $300,000 cash. Pitchers Lefty Grove and Rube Walberg and Infielder Max Bishop went to Boston Red Sox, Catcher Mickey Cochrane to Detroit, and Pitcher George Earnshaw to Chicago White Sox. The A's were world champions in 1929 and 1930.

Petes Beaten In Rochester

A local lacrosse squad, augmented by several outsiders, dropped a 22-13 exhibition decision to Rochester Iroquois on Friday evening last. An early lead gave the Indians the edge, but the Petes were outplaying the homesters and whittling down the margin the last half of a lively gutted-stick game.

Over 2,000 fans in the Armory saw a thrilling match, marked by furious checking, speedy and smart lacrosse, with a couple of fights thrown in. Minus many of their regulars of the senior "B" Ontario championship lineup, the locals bolstered with a couple of Toronto and a couple of Oshawa players.

Rowan Chute was top scorer for the visitors with four counters, while Whitton, Reid and E. Creighton also turned in a fine game with two markers apiece. Southwick and Vipond scored one each, while assists were contributed by Dundas, Whitton and Reid. The leading Iroquois scorer was B. Jamieson with five, as Young got four and Green three. Better passing gave the homesters a slight edge on the attack, and they used a bruising defence all through. Both goalies went good.

The teams:

Petes: Goal, R. Creighton; defence, Chute and Pullen; centre, Vipond; wings, E. Creighton and Graham; rover, Reid; alternates, Miller, Ormiston, Dundas, Bowen, Whitton, S. Jamieson, Southwick.

Rochester: Goal, B. Hill; defence, A. Hill and General; centre, Green; wings, M. Martin, B. Jamieson; rover Young; alternates, Isaacs, Groat, B. Martin, Smith, J. Jamieson.

Score by quarters:

Petes	1	4	2	6	—13
Rochester	10	7	0	5	—22

"Now Here's My Grip, What's Yours, Sid?"

Acclaimed the two best football players in the United States in the art of throwing forward passes were Davey (Slingshot) O'Brien, LEFT, quarterback with the undefeated team at Texas Christian University, and Sid Luckman, RIGHT, Columbia University ace. The two are seen as they met in New York, where Diminutive Davey journeyed from Texas to receive the Heisman Memorial trophy, awarded him as the outstanding college grid star of the year, as established by a poll of writers and coaches. Both players have been named on numerous "all-American" teams, and O'Brien is even pretty well established as a greater passer than Sammy Baugh, Texas sensation of two years ago, now playing pro football.

Brimsek Hangs Up Third Shutout As Bruins Take Rangers 3-0; Leafs Hit Stride, Down Hawks 4-1

(By the Canadian Press.)

Art Ross knew what he was doing when he allowed Tiny Thompson to go to Detroit Red Wings for $16,000. He was bringing Frank Brimsek to Boston Bruins from the minors for his first national hockey league season, but he wasn't getting a goaltender of minor-league rating to replace the great Thompson.

Brimsek has rewarded Ross' confidence fully. Last night he scored his third consecutive shutout as the Bruins defeated the Rangers 3-0 at New York to extend their league lead to three points.

With the young Minnesotan between the pipes, the Bruins have climed into a predominating position. After two straight wins, they seem to have the indian sign on Rangers, their closest rivals, while the third-place club, Chicago Black Hawks, apparently are going to be too in-and-out to catch the leaders immediately. The Hawks blanked New York Americans 4-0 at Chicago last night, but that performance came on top of a 4-1 defeat by the Maple Leafs at Toronto Saturday.

Thompson experienced his first defeat Sunday night since changing teams, when Canadiens stopped Detroit 4-2 at Montreal. The result left the two clubs tied for sixth and last place.

The International - American league critics told Ross before the season's start that he had a find in Brimsek. Arthur brought him up from Providence for a couple of games when Thompson was unable to start the season because of an eye injury, and realized then that all they said was true.

Rangers Beaten Off

Young Frank committed his third straight shutout before a crowd of 16,218 persons in Madison Square arden and with five Ranger attackers buzzing around him through much of the game. Jack Portland put Boston ahead early in the second period and from then on Rangers turnd to a mass offensive. Brimsek never faltered, Portland and Eddie Shore gave him superb protection and finally Mel Hill and Gordon Pettinger broke through for third-period goals that submerged the Blueshirts.

The Black Hawks' reversal of form was amazing, in view of the long trip home after Saturday's walloping at Toronto.

Manager Bill Stewart shook up the forward lines for the Chicago encounter and the new combinations worked smartly. Mush March grabbed an early lead for the Hawks and they spelled off Americans' continual threats through the second period and most of the third. Then, as the New York attack grew fiercer Joffre Desilets, Earl Seibert and Baldy Northcott broke away for easy goals.

Drillon, Apps Get Going

The firm of Gordon Drillon and Sylvanus Apps, highest scoring combine in the league last season, got together for the first goal of the new campaign against Chicago. Drillon, back in the lineup only a week since he was forced out with a broken thumb Nov. 5, passed to Apps to start the scoring at Toronto in the second period. Then Drillon, individual scoring leader last winter, got his first goal of the current campaign in the third.

Hawks broke their long famine on Russ Blinco's goal but when they tried to press their drive the Leafs broke away for two more scores, by Nick Metz and Pep Kelly. The game marked the first appearances in new livery for Bill Thoms and Doc Romnes, involved in a Toronto-Chicago trade Thursday. Thoms was aggressive for Hawks and Romnes for Leafs but neither scored.

Herbie Cain led Canadiens' offensive and was the only player in the league to score twice during the weekend. Babe Siebert scored for Montreal in the first minute of play and Syd Howe for Detroit a minute later. In the second period Paul Haynes put the Habitants ahead again but Ebbie Goodfellow levelled the score.

Then Cain swung into action with the winning goal late in that period and added the final one late in the third.

Boston Bouncer Out

When Boston Bruins scored their second shutout in a row over Chicago Black Hawks and strengthened their postion at the top of the National League standings, they suffered two casualties that may be a serious blow to the team. Bill Cowley wrenched his knee, and Dit Clapper, ABOVE, hard-hitting defenceman went out in the first period with an ankle injury. The extent of the injury was not known immediately.

Argos Too Hot Is Lament Of Threlfall

By Jack Calder
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Dec. 12.—(CP)—After watching his Winnipeg Blue Bombers submerged by Toronto Argonauts in the National Football final, Reg Threlfall still wasn't convinced that the Argo type of lateral-passing attack is unstoppable.

The Winnipeg coach admitted he was bewildered as anyone else after big Red Storey began ghosting through the Bomber defence in the last quarter Saturday as Argos sped from behind to a 30-7 victory. Until that time the western champions were all they were supposed to be, a hard-charging team with tremendous plunging and passing strength.

"I guess I did talk a lot before the game about our big pounding line," Threlfall lamented. "But I still maintain a charging forward line and a secondary defence that plays the runners properly can break up that stuff."

A former Purdue University star, Threlfall looked at Eastern Canada football for the first time when he scouted Argonauts in playdowns. Preparing Bombers for the title game, he told the line to charge harder and harder. The secondary defence was ordered to follow in and cover every man on the Toronto backfield.

Underestimated Them.

"I didn't give the Argonauts credit for being as great as they are," he admitted. "I knew that every man had to be spotted on those end runs and I fashioned a defence to meet them. It worked for three periods.

"I wouldn't want to be quoted anywhere as saying we were beaten because our defence collapsed. Argos were too hot. But when the left side of our secondary went wrong it was just a runaway."

The secondary had been ordered to cover both the second-last man and the last man on the end run, he explained. The last man was Storey and Threlfall says he wasn't covered properly.

Threlfall said he wanted to bring Bombers back next year. Manager Joe Ryan echoed "If we win the Western title and the Canadian Rugby Union will let us, we'll come."

New Trophy Put Up By Chelsey Man

TORONTO, Dec. 12.— (CP).— Members of the Western Ontario Sports Writers' Association voted at their annual meeting here Saturday to accept a trophy offered by J. M. McDonald of the Chesley Enterprise to be given annually to the outstanding athlete in Western Ontario.

Mr. McDonald, a member of the executive, will donate the trophy in memory of his mother, Mrs. Evelyn M. McDonald. Of silver and bronze, it was designed by H. Verne Marshall of Galt, a past president of the Association. Members of the Association will name the winner each year.

The following executive was elected: President, Vic McKenty, Kitchener; Past President, H. Verne Marshall, Galt; First Vice-President, J. C. McDonald, Chesley; Second Vice-President, Milt Dunnell, Stratford; Secretary, A. W. Steele, Galt; Treasurer, Tommy Morrison, Welland; Executive Committee, Len Taylor, Woodstock, D. W. Culbert, New Hamburg, Bill Herbert, Preston.

Tony Lazzeri ABOVE, for a decade a star at second base for New York Yankees, and last year on the "board of strategy" with Chicago Cubs, has been given his release by owner Wrigley of the National League champions, and may sign as player or coach with some minor or major league team. Cleveland Indians are said to be after his services.

College All-Star

Only intercollegiate player to make the Canadian Press eastern Canada all-star rugby team this year, was George Willis, ABOVE, snapback and secondary defence star with University of Western Ontario, runners-up for the championship in the college loop.

Budge Tops List 2nd Year As No. 1 Athlete

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (A.P.). — For the second year in succession, Don Budge is ranked as the United States No. 1 athlete for 1938.

The lanky California red-head who negotiated an unprecedented tennis sweep in winning the Australian, French, British and United States titles in one year before electing to cast his lot with the professionals, was named as the No. 1 athlete by 26 of the 63 sports experts who participated in the Associated Press' eighth annual poll.

In sharp contrast, however, to his run-away triumph in last year's battle of ballots, Budge was hard pressed this time by Henry Armstrong, great negro fighter, who set up a new all-time boxing record by holding the featherweight, lightweight, and welterweight championships at the same time.

Armstrong, drawing 18 first-place votes, wound up only 18 points behind the tennis ace in the final tabulation, based on three points for first choice, two points for second, and one for third. Budge's total was 122 points, Armstrong's 104.

Noted Soccer Player Thomas Low Passes

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Dec. 12—(AP)—Thomas P. Low, 64, internationally known soccer player and golfer, died yesterday at La Jolla. For the last 20 years he was golf instructor.

Born at Cambusland, Scotland, Low first attained prominence in sports in 1895 when he played on the Scottish soccer team against England. In 1910 he went to Toronto and played soccer there five years before joining the Maidwick club at Pasadena, Calif.

BORN

DALEY.—At St. Joseph's Hospital, on Monday, December 12, to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Daley, Chamberlain street, a baby boy.

DIED

CROCKER.—At Fort Erie on Sunday, December 11, Mabel Crocker, daughter of Mr. Joseph Crocker. Remains resting at the Funeral Home of A. Comstock and Sons, 305 Water street. Funeral from Knox United Church Tuesday, December 13, at 2 o'clock p.m. Interment Little Lake Cemetery.

DE LA PLANTE, Mrs. Elizabeth G.—In Peterborough, at her residence, 178 Lansdowne street (suddenly) Elizabeth Gordon, widow of the late O'Dinno De La Plante, and loving mother of Mrs. Rischea, Mrs. William Caverly, Joseph, Thomas, Edward, Armine, Henry and Hermine De La Plante. A resident of Peterborough for past 70 years. Funeral announcements later.

McCREERY, Mrs. Albert B.—At the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. B. Shaver, 31 Manning Avenue, on Monday, December 12, 1938, Helen Palmer, beloved wife of Albert B. McCreery, and mother of Kenneth and Jack McCreery of Toronto. Interment Windsor Grove Cemetery. Funeral Wednesday.

WRIGHT, Charles B.—On Sunday, December 11, 1938, at Nicholls Hospital, Charles Burton Wright, in his 58th year, beloved husband of Mary A. Banks Tebb, of 96 Bennett street. Funeral on Tuesday, December 13, 1938, at 2 p.m. from Funeral Home of D. Belleghem and Sons, 190 Hunter street, with the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Baptist Church officiating. Interment in Lakefield Cemetery. Kindly omit flowers.

IN MEMORIAM

BOWLER.—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mary Ethel Foley, beloved wife of Milton H. Bowler, who passed away December 12, 1936.

God knew that she was suffering
And the hills were hard to climb;
So He closed her weary eyelids
And whispered, "Peace be thine."
The Golden Gates were open,
A gentle voice said "Come."
With farewells unspoken
Our dear mother entered Home.

—Ever remembered by her Husband and Children.

NURSE.—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. William Nurse, who entered into rest December 12, 1934.

When evening shades are falling,
And we sit in quiet alone,
To our hearts there comes a longing:
If she only could come home.

—Ever remembered by her husband and daughter, Ethel May.

ANDERSON.—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Ada Anderson, who passed away December 12, 1935.

A silent thought, a secret tear,
Keeps her memory ever dear.
Time takes away the edge of grief
But memory turns back every leaf.

—Sadly missed by Husband and Children.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. Elizabeth C. Davie wish to take this opportunity to express their sincere thanks to the Rev. Dr. Barr and their many friends, neighbors and relations for their kind expressions of sympathy and floral tributes.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Dec. 12. — Mrs. Andrew McLauchlin was elected to the presidency of the Women's Missionary Society of the United church, when they held their annual election of officers on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harrison Wing. The meeting was well attended and an interesting program was conducted by Mrs. James Freeman, who gave a review of the new study book, "World in Canada," giving a wonderful description of the growth of the church in Canada.

"Christmas in Many Lands," telling the various manners in which the Christmas season is celebrated throughout the different countries, was contributed by Mrs. A. Anderson.

The other officers elected were as follows:

First vice-president, Mrs. Thomas Easterbrook; second vice-president, Mrs. J. Cochrane; recording secretary, Mrs. Charles Spencer; treasurer, Mrs. S. J. W. Clarke; Mission Band superintendents, Mrs. W. Forsythe and Mrs. George Iles; Strangers' secretary, Mrs. Clare Price; Literature secretary, Mrs. A. Anderson; Supply secretary, Mrs. A. Russell; Press secretary, Miss M. Seeney.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting and a social half-hour much enjoyed.

CAVAN

The dance on Wednesday evening in Cavan Community Hall was fairly well attended. The proceeds were in aid of "a rink fund".

Mrs. McCullough and son Winston, Cobourg visited Mr. and Mrs. M. McCullough on Thursday.

Mrs. R. M. Howden was a dinner guest of Mrs. D. J. Hunter on Friday.

Britons' Love Of Their Fireplaces Balks Nation's Fight On Smog

By Guy Rhoades
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Dec. 12.—(CP).—Great Britain is trying to do something about black fog which annually dumps on the country 2,500,000 tons of soot, scars buildings, kills vegetation and causes disease.

But those leaders who seek to arouse public consciousness to the cost of smokey atmosphere, have encountered as their chief obstacles the every day citizen's conservatism and love for its coal-burning fireplace.

On any still day the Londoner can glance at the rows of chimney post and see grey smoke oozing from them. When the atmospheric pressure is low enough to let fog settle over the city the smoke drops from the chimneys and pours into the streets. That is what they call "smog." It is prevalent in all industrial centres.

Smog contains up to 40 per cent tar, up to eight per cent ammonium chloride, up to eight per cent ammonium sulphate, up to seven per cent sulphuric acid and a quantity of free carbon.

The citizen at large in a severe city fog suffers from sore nose and throat, stinging eyes and obnoxius taste in the mouth.

Some Death Figures.

Public health officials have pet example of black fog consequences. It comes from Glasgow where in November and December, 1909, during a spell of bad smoke fogs, the death rate from respiratory diseases rose from 2.1 per 1,000 population to 13.9 while in fog-free neighboring towns the death rate from similar disease rose from 1.5 to 4.8.

If every man, woman and child in the United Kingdom had to scoop up his share of soot and carry it away, it is figured each would have to carry 127 pounds.

Apart from the bill for illness occasioned by fog, extra light bills, cost of vegetation killed by tax deposits, extra cleaning bills and the like, it costs the country $10,000,000 in repairs to stone and iron work corroded and rotten by the acids in smog.

Authorities would like householders and industrial plants to burn electricity, gas and coke as much as possible and condense the waste products when they have to burn coal.

Central electrical stations in this country, most of which use steam plants to generate power, condense smoke so that little of the waste gases is released into the atmosphere.

But the bituminous coal-burning householder is the worst offender and the hardest to educate.

MILLBROOK

Mr. Ernest Nutt of Stratford has been engaged as the new butter man at the Jeffrey Brothers Creamery, taking over his duties last week.

Reeve W. E. and Mrs. Ball, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ball, Misses Thelma, Muriel, Ruth and Norma Ball were dinner guests of Mrs. Herbert and Mr. Clarence Ball on Thursday evening. Miss Wilma Fallis, Reg. N., of Woodstock, who is visiting her aunt, Mrs. H. Ball was also a hostess on Thursday evening.

Messrs. C. Thorndyke and ex-Warden G. H. Hootan were in Toronto last week attending the Conservative convention, as representative of the Millbrook and Cavan Conservative associations.

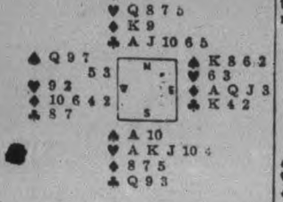
"The Authority on Authorities"

PICK YOUR SPOTS

SOMETIMES YOU CAN afford to let East win a trick, but don't dare let West get in the lead, for fear that he will lead through some tenace or guarded king. In such cases, it behooves you to pick the spots when you are willing to lose tricks. Let East have any trick if thereby you keep West from winning a later trick in the suit.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable)

South bid 1-Heart on this deal, North 3-Hearts and South 4-Hearts. The lead of the spade 5 was covered by East with the K and South won with the A. He then cleared the outstanding trumps with leads of the A and K. The club Q was next finessed and lost to East's K. His return was a spade to West's Q, and back came a diamond through dummy's K. Declarer was able to claim the remainder of the tricks but was already set one trick.

If South reckons that with East holding the club K and also sitting over the diamond K, the contract may be set, he can forestall defeat by ducking the first trick. Then when East gets in with the club K, no play he makes can put West in the lead and keep declarer from making his contract.

Wants To Look Around

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—(AP)—If Mrs. Anthony Eden has her own way she will spend most of today "doing the things one does, you know." Specifically, the wife of the former British foreign secretary told reporters she would like to look at New York from the top of the Empire State building, see the Metropolitan museum and visit two night clubs. However, her husband has charge of their itinerary and she isn't sure how much sight-seeing it will allow.

Impressions Of Iron Mines At Marmora, Blairton Gained By Reporter Of 1868

The Examiner published a few weeks ago a sketch of the iron mining village of Blairton at the west end of Crowe Lake, also situated between Havelock and Marmora, of which only three or four buildings remain today.

Another chapter of Blairtoniana with incidental dismal reference to Marmora is found in article written by a special correspondent of the Toronto Globe and reprinted in the Canadian News of London, Eng, under the date of January 16, 1868, nearly seventy-one years ago.

The writer found Blairton a community of enterprise and energy, looking to the future, and "in Marmora we see but the shadows of the past, the relics of prosperity long since departed." The houses of Blairton were all of wood "lately taken from the forest primeval," while "Marmora shows its substantial and almost elegant old residences built from the limestone which is so superabundant here.

"But although the glory has departed from Marmora and has gone to Blairton, Marmora has still its charms. The commodious residences, the comfortable village hotels, which have not deteriorated with age, the new mills, and a few new houses, prevent one from feeling too melancholy at the signs of failure of the old Marmora Iron Company; while the old coal kilns and cold and silent blast furnace of the iron works suggest serious reflections on the mutability of human works in general and of Marmora iron mining in particular.

Cause of Failure.

"The failure of the works at this place was caused by the lack of fuel for smelting the ores. The transportation of coal with the facilities (? Ed.) at command was out of the question, and the effort to supply the want with charcoal manufactured here was not successful. The wood could be procured cheaply enough, and the large kilns capable of burning about 2,000 bushels of coal each at one time, could supply fuel pretty rapidly; but the charcoal was found insufficient for smelting the richest ores, so that the attempt had to be abandoned after large sums had been spent in erecting kilns and furnaces.

"For a time it seemed that the immense deposits of iron in Marmora must be left for future generations to work; but about a year ago a new mode of procedure was decided on and has worked most successfully. The company's works at this place were given up entirely and operations commenced at Blairton, six miles west of here. The ore is taken out and shipped to Pittsburgh, Pa., and there smelted. A railway has been built from Blairton to the water transportation of Rice Lake, and thence the railway carries it to Cobourg, to be again shipped by the lake to its destination.

High Quality Ore.

So much carriage has, of course, its drawbacks, one of which is that ore yielding les sthan 60 per cent of iron is practically worthless, and is thrown into the lake to get it out of the way. It is only the great richness of the ore that renders the working of the Marmora (Blairton) iron beds profitable, much of it yielding from 70 to 75 per cent pure metal."

The writer describes the drive up the hill from Marmora to a "limestone plateau," and concludes that the general character of the country is desolate in the extreme. "Only one or two houses are to be seen in the whole distance, and those are near Blairton where little patches of arable land are found encircled by the rocky hills. The village and station might easily escape notice of a traveller on the main road (now No. 7 highway), a few acres of bush intervening to cut off the view.

As you emerge from the swamp and enter the village you see that th houses are new, constructed of wood and are unpainted, but they are very substantial and comfortable.

The company known as the Cobourg, Peterborough and Marmora Mining Company have put up no less than fifty good dwelling houses within a few months for the use of their employees at the works. In addition tot these are boarding houses, hotels, stores, groceries, butchers' and shoemakers' shops. There are, too, the station and freight houses for the railway, and the blacksmiths' shops for doing the company's work. Altogether, Blairton is probably ahead of any other village of its age in Canada. The rapid growth of the last few months, however, cannot be taken as a guarantee for future progress at the same rate. The number of hands that can be profitably employed at the mines is limited by the facilities for the transportation of ore.

300 Men Employed

During the season of navigation 300 men were employed, taking out a ton of ore a day for each man. Now the number of men is only about 150, taking out 150 tons of ore a day. This ore is piled up in immense masses beside the tracks from the railway, to be transported on the opening of navigation. The quantity now on hand is about 15,000 tons, and about 40,000 tons were shipped last season, (1867).

Were coal deposits accessible in conjunction with the iron, the operations of the company might assume unlimited magnitude. The iron ore is abundant enough to supply for many years to come incalcuable quantities of the ore, but the single hill at which they are now at work contains deposits that will not be exhausted for many years under the most rapid progression.

It is in fact a mountain of iron on the shore of a little lake known as Marmora Lake or Crowe Lake. The work already done only suffices to show to some extent the immense amount of iron in the hill. The 50,000 or more tons that have been taken out have only cleared away the face of a small point of the hill, and enabled the miners to prosecute their work to good advantage. Nothing has been done yet in the way of sinking shafts to bring up ore from below the general level. Mr. Wilson, the manager, states that the ore taken from a depth of fifteen feet in a test shaft is of the best quality, and appears to get richer as the depth increases.

Drilling For Blasting

On the face of the hill a large working surface is exposed. It is about 200 feet high. At various elevations on its face the miners are at work, in parties of three each, one man to hold the drill and two to strike. The drills vary in length and diameter, the shortest and thickest being used to commence the hole, longer and thinner ones succeeding as the depth increases. The holes are 4 to 9 feet. The lower one-third is filled with powder. Some of the deeper blasts will dislodge as much as ten tons of the ore where the situation is favorable, and thus the material can be got out cheaply.

The miners are distributed over the almost perpendicular face of the mass of iron, industriously driving their drills with heavy hammers or pounding the "tamping" in to confine the powder in the holes they have completed, the positions of some of them seeming very precarious. At the base of the wall the ore is lying in rugged masses varying from a few pounds to a few tons which the laborers are breaking down with sledges and wheeling away up the tramway to the top of the piles.

The demeanor of the workmen and their character as sober industrious citizens, is spoken of in the highest terms by those who are acquainted with them. Some idea of the force of the blasting here may be formed from the fact that the sound is distinctly heard at Eldorado and Bannockburn in Madoc, a distance of twenty-five miles. About two kegs of powder are used a day, and four forges are kept at work almost exclusively in sharpening the drills.

The drilling of the ore is less difficult than of many of the rocks in the Madoc gold regions. Each drill will penetrate the ore to a depth of about a foot before it becomes so dull as to require sharpening; while in many of the gold mines it will do only two or three inches till it must return to the forge.

Mr. Wilson says he lacks for nothing necessary to the working of the mines, the company always sending the supplies punctually, and frequently in larger quantities than are asked. In short, everything from the hotels to the Methodist church, nearly completed, evinces the same spirit of progress.

All is very plain, nothing ornamental having as yet found its way to the iron mines; every dollar seeming to have been expended with the determination to make it return the greatest possible interest in the shape of cheap and compromises to be the centre of the Development has been very rapid. Marmora mining region, and may yet attain to some importance.

Rapid Development.

Development has been very ra- There was not a single house here last February, nor one man employed in the locality. Now it is the terminus of the railway and a hive of industry. A great deal of the country around is entirely unfitted for anything else than mining. The valuable timber has been removed, and the area of farming land is very limited, but the mineral resources are almost unlimited. The suply of iron ore is sufficient to give employment to a large population, and if fuel could be found for smelting the number of manufacturies would soon be such as to make this district wealthy and prosperous. The commencement at Blairton may prove merely the nucleus of developments that will sensibly affect the prospects of a large region hitherto nearly valueless."

No Canadian Interests To Suffer By Tariff Changes, Says Euler

OTTAWA, Dec. 12 (Special)—Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of Trade and Commerce, declared today that no Canadian interest had been prejudiced in the new trade agreements signed by Great Britain, the United States and Canada. He was referring particularly to apples, bacon, canned fruits and vegetables and cereals, around which is centred the Department's current merchandising program in Great Britain.

"I don't think you can pick out a half dozen items in either agreement where Canadian interests have been prejudiced," said the minister. "I don't know of anyone who has been hurt. This is borne out by the fact that there have been practically no complaints."

Canadian Preference.

Although the United Kingdom has made a seasonal reduction in the duty on apples imported from the United States, from 4s 6d to 3s per cwt, Canadian apples still enjoy a preference of about 90 cents per barrel in the British market, Mr. Euler said.

There has been no change in the preferential market Canada has enjoyed for its bacon, although the United States quota has been increased from 400,000 cwt. to 500,000 cwt. This increased competition from United States bacon is not expected to injure Canadian sales, however, for the quality of Canadian bacon is steadily improving and is finding naw favor in the British market. In addition, Canada has never been able to fill its full quota on the British market.

Find Widening Market.

The Minister believed that both apples and bacon would continue to find a widening market in the British Isles.

Mr. Euler was similarly optimistic about the Canadian overseas market for canned tomatoes, canned salmon, cheese, canned fruit and vegetables and cereals. There had been very little, if any changes, in the tarriffs concerning these items and they were being continually pushed in the British market, he said.

The treaty effected a binding of the former rate on pears and peaches, and also bound at 5s the rate on canned apples.

The tarriffs on cheese and canned salmon continue unchanged, while in canned asparagus and canned corn there is a reduction from twenty to ten per. cent, ad valorem. Most cereals enter the British market free, although oatmeal is subject to tariff, which was reduced from 7s 6d to 5s per cwt.

Janetville And District Friends Honor Hall Newlyweds

JANETVILLE, Dec. 12 —Around two hundred friends attended the dance presentation which was held in the C. O. F. Hall on Wednesday evening in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hall (nee Mabel Wilson) who were married recently.

Dancing was enjoyed throughout the evening to peppy music furnished by Red Grier's orchestra of Lindsay who also delighted all with several novelty numbers.

Prior to the serving of lunch at midnight Mr. and Mrs. Hall were requested to occupy central seats while Mrs. Elwood Grandy made the presentation of a handsome chromium four-piece electric coffee set and Mr. Percy Hamilton read the accompanying address. The address contained sincere words of congratulation and best wishes of the host of friends present and expressed regret that Mr. and Mrs. Hall, both of whom were members of the community until recently, would not be making their future home here.

Mr. Hall on behalf of his bride and himself made appropriate reply and afterwards all sang "For they are jolly good fellows" led by the orchestra.

Following lunch dancing was resumed until 2 o'clock.

Guests were present from Lindsay, Dunsford, Omenee, Lotus, Nestleton and Blackstock as well as from the entire local district and all joined in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Hall every success and happiness in their new home in Harwood where the groom and his father Mr. J. R. Hall have recently purchased a store.

Havelock Retains Extra Teacher

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Dec. 12.—Vice-chairman H. W. Roche presided at the final meeting of the Havelock High School Board held, in the absence of chairman Gordon Denike.

The Board have engaged Mrs. D. L. Smythe of Woodstock as the fourth member of the high school teaching staff, from January 1 to June 30, at a salary of $1,000 per annum. The extra teacher was strongly advised by Inspector Jennings and the Board decided at their last meeting to hire one as an emergency measure for the last half of the school term.

The secretary-treasurer was granted a bonus of $25 for extra services rendered during the past two years, on motion of Trustees Lancaster and Spencer

Turkeys Are Fairly Plentiful At 25 To 28 Cents A Pound; Geese 18-20; Chickens 16-22

Eggs, Christmas trees and axe handles were market leaders in quantity Saturday. Mild weather for the middle of December, with everybody marvelling at the suspension of winter's arrival and open water on the lakes and rivers, attracted a big crowd to the buyers' aisles, but R. R. Dixon of Otonabee said most of Saturday's money was going into the channels of Christmas gifts.

The supply of eggs appeared to be ample enough to have blanketted the city with plain omelette. Benches were loaded with them, and the prices ranged from 25 cents to 40 cents. Prices were scrambled if the eggs were not. Hen's eggs were sold for 27 cents a dozen at the noon hour; the low price of 25 cents for the day was for pullets' eggs. The average price for the grade A variety was from 35 cents down to 30 cents. One woman quoted 40 cents for extra selects, and contrasted with the pullet size in the same basket with them, they certainly were out of the ordinary barn run of eggs.

This woman evidently reads the market column. She smilingly remarked after quoting the 40 cent figure "and no affidavit required". That allusion identified her from the previous week when she quoted 48 cents for her A-1 selects, and the reporter added that no affidavit was supplied certifying it.

The top price for butter was 25 cents, scaling down through 23 and 22 cents to 20 cents. A man with a box of butter was asking 20 cents at the noon hour.

The range in prices of chickens spread from 16 cents to 22 cents. A spring chicken that had all the promise of an appetizing meal sold at 55 cents about noon; and it weighed 3 3-4 pounds. That one was evidently a bargain. The average price was about 20 cents, with a big offering.

Turkeys 25 to 28 Cents.

Turkeys were fairly plentiful at 25 to 28 cents. "Twenty-eight cents is the price," said one man after quoting twenty-six. As a matter of fact the price of turkeys was the steadiest of the poultry group. One woman quoted 26 cents for an eleven pound bird, and not so far away a man had three of them, hadn't sold one and was eager to let them go at 25 cents the pound.

Geese were 18 to 20 cents; most of them appeared to be exceptionally well fitted for market. Ducks sold from 20 to 23 cents with only a few of them on the boards. One goose that looked big enough to serve a banquet, weighed 13 3-4 pounds and sold at 20 cents a pound.

On the outdoor market had half a dozen plucked pigeons, and stripped of their feathers they seemed to be no bigger than sparrows. He offered them at 2 for 25 cents, "or the whole five for 50". Possibly somebody bought them for that old English dinner specialty of pigeon pie.

Jork prices were 14 cents a pound for fronts and 16 cents for hind quarters, although E. Pearson quoted 13 and 15 cents. George Muller was also asking 13 and 15, and his prices for lamb were 15 and 18 cents.

Potatoes and Apples.

Potatoes seemed to be off slightly in price. Dooleys sold at 1.10 at the noon hour.

Apples were plentiful. Snowdens of Bowmanville quoted Baldwins at 30 cents the peck, Snows 35, Talmans 40, Russets 35, Spies 40 cents.

E. Morrison of Port Hope had a truck load of mouth-watering Spies at $1.50 a hamper, and $1 for second grades.

The only McIntosh Reds noticed in several rounds of the stands were prominent in Norman Moncrief's display, and the price was steady at 45 cents the peck. His Baldwins were 30 cents, Snows 40 and Spies 25 to 45 cents. Mr. Moncrief called the Examiner's attention to a hamper of old fashioned Bellflowers.

"You don't see many of them these days," he said. "They used to be quite a favorite years ago, but they are not a heavy yielding variety, so orchard men have been gradually getting rid of them. They are extra good cookers and they are also an eating apple. Mr. Moncrief has some cider on hand again, and incidentally if the advertising department doesn't spot this item, the Moncrief apple juice is now on tap down at his brother's shop on Charlotte Street.

Arthur Stinson quoted turnips at 60 cents a bag and parsnips, carrots and beets at 20 cents a basket.

Harold Doig's special Saturday was seven cabbages for 25 cents; and other prices were Irish Cobbler potatoes $1.25; parsnips 60 cents the bushel; and carrots 50 cents.

And The Axe Handles.

As for the axe handles, who cares? At least that is what a lot folks would say, but there must be some demand for them because the supply at three or four stands seemed more than adequate for whatever the demand may be. And as for Christmas trees it may be too early yet to begin planning the decorations for Santa Claus.

With favorable weather for lingering on the job quite a number of the farmers who were lined up on the outside market were still there long into the afternoon, some of them possibly holding out against the last minute chiselers. This trend has been noticed before, and possibly a Saturday afternoon market could be developed if both sellers and buyers could be induced to pry themselves away from the custom of packing the market business into a couple of hours before the Herb Martin's clock strikes twelve times.

SAINT JOHN, N.B.—(CP). — A motorist's hat, with his driving license in the inside band, was blown from the car while he was feeling his way through a blizzard here. The hat and licence were returned to him from Moncton a few days later, having been found on the brake rod of a freight car arriving from Saint John, a distance of 90 miles.

Westwood W.M.S. Names '39 Officers

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WESTWOOD, Dec. 12.—The annual meting of election of officers of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society was held in connection with the regular meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. B. Lobb.

The following officers were re-elected: President, Mrs. E. W. Sargent; first vice, Miss Jessie Davidson; second vice, Mrs. James Clysdale; corresponding and recording secretary, Miss Mary Cameron; treasurer, Mrs. Don Cameron; temperance secretary, Mrs. Hugh Cameron; associated helpers, Mrs. Gordon Warner; missionary monthly, Mrs. W. Morris; literature secretary, Miss Mary Cameron; pianist, Mrs. James Sargent.

Two Christmas hymns, "Angels From the Realms of Glory" and "The Race That Long In Darkness Pined" were sung during the worship period and the Christmas story as recorded by Matthew and Luke was read by the president. Prayer was offered by Mrs. John Hope. A reading, "The Child At Christmas" was given by Mrs. Don Cameron. A reading on temperance was contributed by Mrs. Hugh Cameron. The first chapter of the new study book, "The World In Canada" was dealt with by the following ladies: Miss Mary Cameron, Mrs Don Cameron, Mrs. R. Millar, Mrs. S. Elmhirst and Mrs. J. Clysdale.

The meeting closed with the hymn "O Master Let Me Walk With Thee" and the Mizpah Benediction.

Father Paul Schulte, the "flying priest of the Arctic," shown standing on his "chapel of the air" which is being remodeled at a St. Louis airport. This ruddy priest's card reads, "Rev. Paul Schulte, O.M.I., president of the Miva (Missionary International Vehicular Association)." In his plane he travels a 1,500,000-square mile circuit in the Canadian Arctic. This requires 10 months of each year. Next year he hopes to have two planes in the north.

Fairview Debaters Win At Lakehurst

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FAIRVIEW, Dec. 12. — Fairview Young People were successful in winning the debate in the Presbytery contest which was held at Lakehurst on Thursday evening. Miss Opal Rosborough and Clarence Tully debated from Fairview on the subject: "Resolved, that the pen is greater than the sword," upholding the might of the pen. The winning team will debate against the winning team from Peterborough later on.

These debates are most interesting and educative, and require a good deal of preparation, and are well worth the effort put forth by the young people.

In spite of the foggy weather, a large number attended from Fairview. Lunch was served by Lakehurst Young People.

The community Christmas concert will be held in the church on Thursday evening, December 22.

With Franco's Fighters On the Ebro

While General Francisco Franco, generalissimo of the Spanish nationalist forces, insists that the Spanish civil war is won (by his side, of course) fighting still continues along the Aragon front, particularly on the Ebro River, where the government forces are putting up a stubborn resistance. Here are some of Gen. Franco's crack fighting men in that sector. The men are halted for a rest while crossing the mountains of Mora de Rubielos.

Hunt For Rabbits Brings Mounties, Whole Town Out

By Harold Fair
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LAKESIDE, N.S., Dec. 13—(CP)—A search party that included Royal Canadian Mounted and Halifax City Police as well as a score of district residents to-day found safe three young children who had been missing since yesterday.

The three, Doris white, 10, Clyde White, eight, children of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence White, and Billy Gilfoy, seven, son of Mrs. Edith Gilfoy, all of this Halifax County district, left home to set a rabbit snare at the edge of the woods. Both families live in the same house.

When the search party came across them about three miles from their home, the girl was asleep. All three were slumped down on the ground, tired, wet and cold. They were taken home and then to hospital in Halifax.

Billy's older brother, Clarence, had entered the home with a rabbit he snared when the youngster decided he must catch one too. Mrs. White said she was busy baking bread when the children left. As they were accustomed to going to the edge of the woods to set snares no concern was felt for them until after darkness fell. Mrs. Gilfoy was away in Halifax.

Miss Greek, the children's school teacher, was one of the first to join the search party which entered the dark and thick forest land in a heavy rain. She remained with the searchers during the night except for short intervals when she returned to dry her clothes.

Harry White, 20, a brother of the lost White children, began a search of the nearby woodland when they failed to return for supper. Word of the children's disappearance spread and within a few hours the entire male population of the hamlet had joined the hunt.

Hepburn To Lead Ontario Fight Against King

Federal Record Worst In Canada's History Says Ontario Chief In Making Reply

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Dec. 13 (CP). — Premier Mitchell Hepburn said last night his support in a Federal general election would be directed against the party led by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

The Liberal Premier of Ontario said:

"My position is this — In a general election I could not conscientiously support a party led by Mackenzie King whose government, in a time when action on national basis was badly needed, holds the worst record in this respect in the history of the Dominion.

"The party I am prepared to support, and it is not necessarily a third party, must be led by a man in whom I have confidence and whose policies, in my opinion, will solve the pressing problems that confront Canada today."

Mr. Hepburn denied charges by Labor Minister Rogers and Transport Minister Howe that a conspiracy was in operation to force the retirement of Prime Minister King.

He said he knew of no Ontario-Quebec alliance. After Mr. King issued a statement in Ottawa, stating he believed the Rogers-Howe charges were correct, Mr. Hepburn replied briefly:

"I would suggest that Mr. King lift the blinds of his summer retreat at Kingsmere, peek out and then go back and hibernate again. It strikes me that's about all he has been doing in the last four years and he might as well continue."

Mr. Hepburn said it would take "only a few more provocative speeches" to bring the "full weight" of his administration "out against Ottawa." He declared his Cabinet was united behind him.

"My Ministers are 100 per cent. behind me," the Premier said.

Bennett Wants Proof.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 13 — (CP). — "When the Minister of Labor makes a statement that a conspiracy exists, I expect him to produce the evidence of such a conspiracy at the earliest moment," Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett said here last night.

The former Prime Minister was commenting on charges Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario and Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec had conspired to force the retirement of Prime Minister Mackenzie King from the Leadership of the Liberal Party. The charges were made by Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labor, and Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Transport, at a Liberal Party rally in Port Arthur, Saturday.

"I may have more to say about the matter," added Mr. Bennett.

The former Conservative Leader passed through Winnipeg last night en route from Calgary to spend Christmas in Sackville, N.B.

Anti-Semitisms Spreads In Lithuania

KAUNAS, Lithuania, Dec. 13 — (AP). — Anti-Semitism, spreading into Lithuania from the pro-Nazi Memel territory, was coupled to-day with demonstrations against the Government.

Striking students in Kaunas, forbidden to meet by university authorities, turned their anger into slogans shouted against Jews and the government.

The Kaunas University was closed yesterday because of strikes which followed arrests of 100 students and at least one right-wing politician.

Many believed supporters of former Premier Augustine Waldermaras, once leader of the Fascist "Iron Wolf" organization, was lending secret support to the students.

German sources said activities of the pro-Waldermaras groups against the Government went beyond the university boundaries. These sources said 2,500 persons at a Memel mass meeting adopted a strongly-worded resolution demanding a new coalition government for Lithuania with Waldermaras at its head.

A pro-Waldemaras newspaper in Memel was confiscated by secret police, on request of the state attorney, for containing an article insulting President Antanas Smetona.

Meanwhile, antagonism between the government and pro-Nazi Memellanders grew sharper in Memel where officers were said to be having difficulty in holding in check troops who resent post-election celebrations.

Three Firemen Are Overcome In Store Fire

Three firemen were overcome by smoke and carried from Pattenick's store on George street when Peterborough's first major fire in almost two years broke out in the business section of the city last evening. Loss from fire, which affected four stores, was unofficially estimated at between $3,000 and $5,000.

Captain William Jones was taken to Nicholls Hospital after he had battled his way through almost impenetrable smoke in the basement of the store. Fireman Joseph Astles and Frank Shearer were also overcome by smoke and carried from the building. They were relieved of duty and allowed to return to the department headquarters. All three were nearly recovered later in the evening.

The entire force turned out to fight the blaze, 22 strong, and all were suffering to some degree from the heavy smoke. The fire broke out in the middle of the basement of the store and was first noticed by H. Abramson, proprietor of a store next door. He was just locking up a few minutes after six in the evening when he noticed smoke pouring into his building. He called the fire department and the blaze was located in Pattenick's basement.

Entry was difficult because windows in the basement were covered by wood and no draft could be obtained by breaking windows into the smoke-choked basement. Firemen were forced to break holes through the floor of the drygoods store into the basement. Gasmasks were used by some of the men, but despite this equipment many were ill from smoke.

Four Stores Affected

The fire caused smoke damage in both adjoining stores, one owned by H. Abrason, the other by the Loftus Ladies' Wear. Although the fire could not break through the stone walls of the basement adjoining, smoke seeped through in great quantity and was as dense as a fog in both the stores. The radio store of Ken McCannon on Simcoe street was reported to have suffered from water loss as a result of the fire.

Cause of the fire is unknown, Fire Chief George Gimblett said last night. He said an investigator from

Haunted House Is Causing Stir Among Residents Of Hastings

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 13.—Residents in the north end of this town are at a loss to explain weird goings on in a vacant house. A dim light in the kitchen of the house aroused suspicion of nearby residents Friday evening and on Saturday evening, a next door resident accompanied by a young boy claim to have seen two men of a most peculiar build standing on the front porch of the house.

Mrs. Thomas Carrol told the Examiner last night that she saw the light in a back room of the house early Friday night and it still burned at seven o'clock Saturday morning. The light burned again Saturday evening.

Sydney Linton, 27, next door resident and Elmer Taylor, 13, went near the house to investigate. As they approached an east side window, Taylor suggested they could view interior of the house from a west side window. They were walking around front of the house about fifteen feet from the verandah when Taylor drew Linton's attention to two objects on the verandah.

There were two men standing on the verandah with the largest legs he ever saw, Linton stated. According to his description, each leg must have been about a foot and a half wide and longer than the average man's in proportion to his body.

"Naturally," said Linton, "we turned away from the house and went over to our house." He admitted both he and Taylor were frightened.

A check-up last night revealed no sign of a light in the house. It is vacant and all doors were locked. M. A. O'Shea, solicitor for the Orr estate owners, said that no one should be in the house as it has not been rented and was surprised to learn of the story. He is checking up today.

Youth No Worse But Parental Hold Slipping, -Broken Homes, Easy Mothers To Blame

LONDON, Dec. 13 (CP)—Broken homes, indulgent mothers or unkind stepmothers are blamed by Sir Samuel Hoare for the prevalence of juvenile crime in Great Britain. This indictment was uttered by the Home Secretary while piloting his prison reform bill through the House of Commons.

In 1937, the minister said, boys and girls under 17 represented 38 per cent of the number found guilty of indictable offences.

"This is a disquieting fact but our inquiries prove that the young are not more wicked than they were," he said. "They go to show, however, they are less controlled by their parents.

"They prove that it is not so much films and shilling shockers that make juvenile crime, but broken homes, indulgent mothers or unkind stepmothers."

"And lazy fathers," interjected Viscountess Astor, amid laughter.

One of the main objects of the bill Sir Samuel said, was to effect an immediate reduction in the number of young people received into prison. It also aimed at the ultimate abolition of imprisonment as a method of treatment for young offenders.

Two guiding principles lay behind the bill—the conviction that undue severity, rather than deterring criminals, actually incited them and that there was no rough and ready method of dealing with criminals. The Home Secretary said he was trying to approach the problem of juvenile crime from the angles of prevention and reformation.

'No Promises On Colonies' Chamberlain

Refuses Assurance He Will See House Before Seeing Hitler

LONDON, Dec. 13 (AP).—Prime Minister Chamberlain declined today to give specific assurance he would get the approval of the House of Commons before opening any negotiations with Germany over the return of former German colonies.

Asked by Duncan Sandys, Conservative, for such assurance, Mr. Chamberlain replied, "No, I do not think I can undertake it."

The Prime Minister then referred to a previous government pledge made by Malcolm MacDonald, Secretary for the Dominions and Colonies, that any colonial agreement would be submitted to parliament for ratification.

Mr. MacDonald also told the House of Commons last week that the colonial question was not one of practical politics now and was not being considered.

The Prime Minister said yesterday Germany had made no formal demand for her former colonies.

The diplomatic world today awaited the speech Prime Minister Chamberlain is to deliver tonight at (4.40 p.m. E.S.T.) before the Foreign Press Association in the hope it will indicate the line of policy to be followed from now until January 14 when he completes a visit to Italy.

The importance of the speech, on the Association's 50th anniversary, was indicated by the guest list which included most cabinet ministers, leading ambassadors and ministers, and 150 foreign correspondents representing 35 countries.

Mr. Chamberlain is expected to enlarge upon the government's attitude toward Memel and may discuss the British position toward military assistance for France political-economic agreement with Germany, and political understanding with Italy.

Shopping Spurt Looms, As Canada Fooled By Mild Wave Finds Christmas Only 12 Days Off

(By the Canadian Press.)

All the signs pointed to-day to an exceptionally hectic Dominion-wide spurt of last-minute Christmas shopping this year. For the weather across the country has been so unseasonably mild this Yuletide that Canadians can't realize Santa Claus soon will be on the scene.

Reports from most parts of Canada indicate Christmas buying hasn't yet reached its peak, though most merchants say it's been "better than expected" considering the weather. They anticipate a brisk pick-up any day now as there are only 10 shopping days remaining.

The lag in retail sales of Christmas merchandise has been particularly noticeable in Eastern Canada which this year experienced an open Autumn and—so far—one of the mildest Winters in years. In the West, which produced a 324,000,000-bushel wheat crop this year, 165,000,000 bushels more than in 1937, sales in most centres have been almost up to last year's levels.

Just Need Cold Wave

A note of optimism ran through the reports. Business generally gave indications of at least being equal to last year, once the expected rush to the stores gets under way. At some points, retail sales are above last year's levels. Merchants said a day or two of colder weather would send Canadians on a buying spree.

Generally good, though late, buying was the report from the Maritimes, where E. H. Saunders, secre-

May Continue Year Then Quit Says Aberhart

Calgary, Dec. 13 (CP)

PREMIER ABERHART hinted in an address here last night that he may retire after another year at the head of the Alberta government.

"I get weary sometimes and I think that I may work at full speed for another year and then ask the people to let me retire," he said.

In addressing a rally of the women's auxiliaries of the Social Credit League in the Calgary provincial constituency, the premier said: "There may be younger men who could do the work better." He referred to his job as premier as being "thankless work."

Mr. Aberhart's Social Credit government was elected in August, 1935.

Eden Begins Rounds In Washington

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—(AP).—Anthony Eden, insisting he had no official mission in Washington, began a two-day visit in the United States capital today with the assertion he expected to see "numerous officials informally."

These officials included President Roosevelt. His talks were expected to fulfill what he had earlier described as a hope to learn "something of the American outlook on foreign affairs."

After the visited President Roosevelt in the White House, Eden chatted with reporters for a few minutes, but all he would say was that he enjoyed his talk with the President.

The former British foreign secretary refused to discuss reports he might soon re-enter the British cabinet.

"I am here unofficially and have absolutely no mission," Eden said. "I had always wanted to see Washington and this was the opportunity. Although I expect to see numerous officials informally I have no official business to discuss."

Eden's plans for the day called for a visit to the state department to meet Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, who will take him to the White House. His noon appointment was an off-the-record address at the National Press club.

Next came a trip to Mount Vernon to see the home and tomb of George Washington, and the tomb of his great-great-grandfather, Sir Robert Eden, the last governor of Colonial Maryland.

After another visit, at the Lincoln memorial on the Potomac, came a White House tea for Mr. and Mrs. Eden with Mrs. Roosevelt and wives of cabinet secretaries.

Drug President Ordered Held

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(AP).—F. Donald Coster, president of McKesson and Robbins, Incorporated, drug concern whose financial affairs are under investigation, was ordered arrested today by the federal authorities on a charge of violating the Securities and Exchange Act.

George Dietrich, assistant treasurer, and George Vernard, Montreal agent of W. W. Smith and Company, English agents for the drug concern, were also ordered taken into custody.

Warrants for the seizure of the three men were filed in federal court by Irving Kaufman, assistant United States attorney, who left immediately with officers for New Haven to arrest Coster and Dietrich.

Coster lives in Fairfield, Conn., and has been president of the firm since 1926. The board of McKesson and Robbins yesterday demanded his resignation.

The Overt Act charged in the complaint was that Vernand, on Dec. 1938, deposited a checkue for $15,000 in a Brooklyn branch of the Chase National Bank, drawn against Manning and Company on the Royal Bank of Canada in Montreal.

Vote Manion Ahead Of King 'At Least He's Human' Says Premier Hepburn

Sees Federal Leader Doomed At Election, "Living In Another Generation" Tells Of Rejecting Gardiner Peace Offers

TORONTO, Dec. 13 (CP).—The Toronto Daily Star in a newspage story today quoted Premier Hepburn as saying Dominion Government authorities tried to make peace with him in the present dispute between the Premier's supporters and those of Prime Minister Mackenzie King by sending Agricultural Minister J. G. Gardiner to offer "certain concessions."

In an interview obtained at Mr. Hepburn's farm home near St. Thomas, the Star quoted the Premier as saying:

"I was told I could have some say in Ontario appointments, that I could name one Cabinet Minister, not two, as has been rumored, and that I could pass on Ontario Senators. I rejected the whole proposal flatly, saying I would have nothing to do with Federal patronage if Mr. King stayed."

Hostility between the two Liberal leaders broke open last week-end when two Federal Cabinet Ministers charged at Port Arthur Mr. Hepburn, in an "unnatural political alliance" with Premier Duplessis of Quebec, sought to remove Mr. Mackenzie King. Mr. Hepburn declared he would fight the Prime Minister in the next election.

The Star quoted Premier Hepburn as adding in the interview:

"Mr. Gardiner went back to Ottawa, saw Mr. King and returned to Toronto for a second conference. He said that the answer was that Mr. King had decided to lead the party in another general election."

Action Was Gardiner's

"I did not approach Mr. Gardiner. He approached me. I told him plainly I was prepared to support any new progressive leader with a constructive platform who might be chosen by the Liberal party in Canada. But I said 'if I have to reconstruct my self to another five years of the same kind of government we have had since Mr. King's return to power, I cannot and will not support Mr. King.'

"I informed Mr. Gardiner that I would seriously consider withdrawing from public life rather than disrupt the Liberal party under such circumstances; but that I could not stretch my conscience to support King. No mention was made of Mr. Duplessis or any conspiracy. I have not talked politics with Mr. Duplessis for many months. Certainly there has never been any thought of conspiracy."

Came as Peacemaker.

The Star said that Mr. Hepburn, questioned concerning rumors Mr. Gardiner had been proposed to succeed Mr. Mackenzie King as Prime Minister, replied:

"Mr. Gardiner came as a peacemaker. His efforts were entirely conciliatory. There was no mention of Mr. Gardiner's succeeding Mr. King. No one would expect Mr. Gardiner, as a member of the King Cabinet, to be disloyal enough to discuss himself as a successor with anyone while still under Mr. King's leadership."

The Premier said he told the Agricultural Minister he was prepared to support the nominee of the Liberal party "when he came before the people with a progressive policy." The two me nthen parted. Mr. Hepburn said the next thing he heard was the Saturday night attack upon him in Port Arthur by Transport Minister Howe and Labor Minister Norman Rogers.

The Star then quoted the Premier:

"I had nothing to do with Mr. Howe's nomination meeting; I did not know it was being held. But since he has asked for it I will see to it that all the influence I have will be directed against him—though I spoke at his nomination meeting in 1935.

"King Doomed to Lose."

"My last word to Mr. Gardiner, for whom I have a great regard, was that I would quit rather than break up the Liberal party—because that is the obvious fate, after such an attack. King will lose for the Liberals, whether I am with him or against him, but in these circumstances his defeat will be the more complete.

Chinese Retake Hunan Land, Turn To Canton

SHANGHAI, Dec. 13 — (AP). — Chinese troops reported today they had recovered virtually all the territory they had lost in Hunan province since the Japanese occupation of Yochow, Nov. 12.

Their latest asserted victories in the month-long counter-offensive included capture of three villages east of Yochow and took them across the Hupeh province border to within three miles of Tungcheng.

They reported Sunday that their forces father to the west had advanced up the shore of Tungting lake to within five miles of Yochow. Tungcheng is about 40 miles east of the salient.

Chinese advices also told of gains north of Hankow, former provisional captal, which is the base for operations on the Yochow front as well as those in Hupeh province to the west and north.

As a result of the recapture of three important towns east of the Peiping-Hankow railway, these advices said, most of the Japanese troops in that sector have withdrawn to Anlu, 100 miles northwest of Hankow.

The three towns said to be held by the Chinese were Loshan, 25 miles east of Sinyang, Hwangchwan, 60 miles east of Sinyang, and Kushih, 90 miles east of Sinyang.

Close In On Canton.

HONG KONG, Dec. 13—(CP). — Chinese troops were reported moving closer to Canton in a big semi-circle to-day causing the Japanese to withdraw into the city from previously conquered territory in South China.

Japanese sources said Kwangtung Province authorities were recruiting additional troops under a new order from General Chiang Kei-Shek to launch a counter-attack on the invaders.

General Rikichi Ando, commander-in-chief of Japanese forces in South China, challenged Chiang Kai-Shek to meet the Japanese in a decisive battle. Admitting that his 300,000 troops now massed at Canton were growing restless as a result of inactivity, and published an open letter to the Chinese leader.

"Come at the head of 1,000,000 troops and encounter Japanese forces to determine the final issue in a decisive battle."

Sunday Barn Dance Gets Flynn In Fights

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 13. — (AP).—Errol Flynn offered his regrets last night for fighting with Aidan Roak, polo-playing screen writer, at the Sunday barn dance staged by Mrs. Jock Whitney.

"I'm sorry it happened, but some of the remarks were too pointed, and I had to defend myself," said Flynn as he dashed into town to see the preview of his latest picture.

His version of the fisticuffs had been publicly released earlier by a spokesman at his film studio. Roark declined to discuss the matter.

The one-sided account was that Flynn and Roark didn't get on very well socially and before the last round of cocktails Roark was knocked down and out.

As two of his friends, Bud Ernst and Bruce Cabot, held him back from further hostilities, Flynn was said to have been punched by a prominent but unidentified Pasadena resident, who was punched in return.

Gang Knife Succeeds Behind Sing Sing Walls After Bullet Kills Innocent On Street

OSSINING, N.Y., Dec. 13 — (AP). — Underworld killers who killed John F. O'Hara, a young New York financial investigator, by mistake, carried their vengeance inside the gray walls of Sing Sing prison Sunday and fatally stabbed Matthew J. Kane, 41-year-old convict, the man they were after in the first place.

Kane was slashed with a sharpened table knife, which broke in his neck. Five convicts were placed in solitary confinement on suspicion as prison authorities carried on an exhaustive probe into the slaying.

O'Hara was shot to death from ambush at the entrance to his apartment home in Sunnyside, Queens. Back-tracking over the gangland error, police determined the slayers' intended victim probably was Kane, an ex-convict released from prison only six hours before the shooting.

Kane had stopped at a manhattan tavern for a round of drinks with old cronies before going to his mother's home, in the same block of flats where O'Hara resided with his sister and his widowed mother.

Taken into protective clustody," Kane, who closely resembled O'Hara, was returned to Sing Sing for violation of parole—the stop-over for drinks which violated the law but saved his life.

Houde Is Back As Mayor Of Montreal

MONTREAL, Dec. 13—(CP).—Out of the shadows of political oblivion today strode Camillien Houde, again Montreal's favorite son and ready to take up the mayoralty job where he left off two years ago.

The dynamic campaigner of a dozen hard-fought political battles swept into city hall for his fourth term, borne in on a current of electoral opinion that saw yesterday's ballotting sweep two candidates into backwash and give Houde a near-record total of 83,481 votes.

The 49-year-old former mayor, contesting the office for the sixth time after being beaten in 1936, had a plurality of 20,612 over Charles A. Gascon, "reform" candidate. The third man — Candide Rochefort — Union Nationale member of the legislature for Montreal St. Mary and defeated candidate two years ago—polled 4,228 votes.

For the redoutable Houde, long one of Quebec province's most spectacular personalities, it was a return from the political wilderness. His career had been in the doldrums since the day two years ago when J. Raynault ousted him from the mayoralty, the last of his three political position then left to Houde.

Union National member of the legislature for L'Assomption, Raynault gave up the mayoralty at the end of his first two-year term to give his full attention to his provincial office, he said. Then House stepped in and, with a whirlwind campaign, wooed another term from an electorate that rarely has failed to heed his appeals.

Able to Get Majority?

His plurality over Gascon actually was the smallest of any in his four victories—high spot was 54,000 in 1934. But on the other hand it was gained over Gascon's 62,689, which was 6,000 more than Raynault collected in getting elected in 1936.

As he moved back into the mayor's office, Houde appeared to have brought with him a majority of the 35-man city council. The lines were not clearly drawn, but political observers considered Houde would be able to summon a majority among the aldermen.

Out of the 30 aldermen of last last year's council seeking re-election, 26 were returned, six by acclamation. Nine new councilmen were elected. All members of the executive committee, except one who resigned, were carried back into office.

But is was strictly a Houde victory—one more feather in the cap of the irrepressible little man who has held just about every important political office in the province except that of a member of the government. As well as being mayor, he had represented St. Mary in the Legislature and has been Conservative leader for the province.

Crushed in 1931 beneath the old Liberal steam roller, he gave up the leadership next year. That year, too, he lost the mayoralty he had held since 1928, only to snatch it back in 1934. Before his term was up, he resigned because he said he

Coboconk Suit Aired In Court

LINDSAY, Ont., Dec. 13.—(CP).—Mrs. C. Christie, owner of the Canada Lime Company, Coboconk, testified yesterday at the trial of Sidney Gale, a former employee, that Gale was discharged because he interfered with the men, took reports from the office and would not give her a business statement.

Gale is charged with falsifying books of the company and destroying company documents. The trial was adjourned last night until today.

Mrs. Christie alleged that bankruptcy proceedings were instituted against her because Gale swore he was going to destroy the plant. After she dismissed him, Mrs. Christie said Gale was employed by a trust company to take charge of the office during bankruptcy.

Mrs. Isobel Sandford, company bookkeeper, testified that Gale and three bank officials came to her office and told her she would have to work for the bank and not for Mrs. Christie. She claimed they threatened to "throw me out of my office."

Peg-Leg Prairie Cow Ends Career As Food For Foxes

Regina, Dec. 13 (CP)

SASKATCHEWAN'S wooden-legged cow is dead. The bovine's adventurous career came to an end at Kelliher, when it was fed to silver foxes.

Thus was closed the life of a cow that had walked around for nearly a year with a wooden leg fashioned from a poplar tree, with pad and straps below the knee.

Once a good milker, the cow was owned by John Clarke, who last winter found it with a hind leg so badly frozen, amputation was necessary.

The cow wore the wooden leg for nine months and then, when it stopped milking, the Clarke family disposed of it to a neighboring fox rancher.

Jews Round Up First Of Fine

BERLIN, Dec. 13—(AP).—German Jews were assembling cash today for the first of four installments of the 1,000,000,000 marks ($400,000,000) fine which they must pay Thursday.

The fine, one of the major measures in the Nazi anti-Semitic campaign which began a month ago, was imposed after Ernest Vom Rath, secretary of the German Embassy in Paris, was shot fatally by Herschel Grynszpan, young Polish Jew.

The government demanded cash for the first payment and consequently the banks were prepared for much activity at tellers' counters during the next two days.

The Government apparently overestimated the ability of the Jews to obtain 25,000,000 marks ($100,000) in liquid wealth within three weeks.

Although a supplementary decree issued November 23 made it clear that cash alone was wanted for the first installment, provision later was made that in a number of cases real estate and securities would be accepted.

Meanwhile, Jewish circles hoped the impending visit of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reischbank, to London—although officially described as a private trip—would result in speeding up emigration plans.

The emigration problem was discussed at length in to-day's issue of the four-page Jewish information sheet, which appealed especially to American Jews to raise a "big loan" instead of giving scattered support to individuals.

Legion Carnival Be Held Monday

The Canadian Legion branch here is launching one of its greatest projects on Monday night next—a carnival in the Legion Hall in conjuction with the annual Christmas draw, tickets on which are now being sold.

Mayor James Hamilton is expected to be present to make the draws during the night and other civic officials will probably be on hand. All funds taken in will go to Christmas relief and other activities of the Legion.

The carnival will have all kinds of chance games, will feature hoss and lingerie boards so that women may have an opportunity to win something they like. There will be six individual door prizes in addition to all other awards, one being drawn each half-hour.

The support of the general public is asked by Fire Chief George Gimblett, president of the Legion. "All attending will have a good time; we guarantee that," he said.

Bank of Commerce Has Extensive Small Loan Services

General Manager A. E. Arscott Reports 108,000 Personal Loans Totalling $15,000,000—Over 106,000 Other Small Loans Aggregating $16,000,000. President S. H. Logan Notes Remarkable Growth of Mining and Industry.

Presenting a strong statement covering the Bank's operations, Mr. A. E. Arscott, General Manager of The Canadian Bank of Commerce, addressed the annual meeting of the Bank's shareholders in part as follows:

Before passing on to discuss general business conditions I should like to tell you of the operation of the Personal Loan Department which we inaugurated somewhat over two years ago. We started making this new type of loan in Toronto in June, 1936, and by the fall months of that year had its facilities available at all branches across Canada. In a little over two years we have made more than 108,000 individual loans aggregating in excess of $15,000,000. We are very gratified with the response to the efforts we have made to handle small personal loans. The record to date clearly indicates that we are providing a really valuable service for those who require credit on the Budget Saving Plan.

I should like to make it clear that our lending of small amounts is not confined to the Personal Loan Department which has been set up to deal with loans of a special character as a service supplementary to ordinary banking practice. Borrowers requiring small loans of the usual banking type obtain these as formerly direct from the branches. In the past eleven months, in addition to Personal Loans, there were more than 106,000 borrowers who obtained regular banking accommodation from the branches in amounts of less than $500, the aggregate sum so advanced being $16,168,000.

There have been many criticisms levelled at the banks in the past on the grounds that they deny accommodation to the small borrower in order to be able to make loans to large corporations, wealthy firms and individuals but I think the figures I have given you demonstrate that there is no truth in this charge. I can assure you that we have the same policy with regard to all borrowers, large and small. It is that if they are credit-worthy we welcome their business and I know that this is the case with all banks in Canada.

THE BANKING SYSTEM

There is nothing mysterious about banking. Our chief function is to accept the deposits of the public and to use these moneys by making loans to assist in the development of agriculture, commerce and industry. It has been claimed with great frequency that banks do not lend as freely as they should but obviously, if the banks were to loan the depositors' funds without consideration of the prospects of repayment by the borrower, the resulting losses would cause depositors to lose confidence in the banking system and they would be unwilling to place or keep their money in the banks. Banks are able to give valuable service not only to the depositors, but to the borrowers of this country as well, solely because they have demonstrated that they deserve public confidence.

There are criticis who endeavour to convey the impression that the banks are immensely rich in their own right but this is not the case. The last Government Statement, which records the position of all the chartered banks as at the end of October, shows that their loans and holdings of securities amount to $2,663,000,000, while the total of their shareholders' investment was less than 11 per cent. of that figure. It is evident, therefore, that most of the money which banks lend is not their own but comes from the sums entrusted to them by the depositors.

With reference to the very large amounts paid by the banks each year in taxes, some governing authorities appear to assume that banks can stand unlimited taxation, but it should be manifest that the ability of the banks to pay taxes is strictly limited if they are to render adequate banking service throughout the Dominion. They are in no different position in this respect from other taxpayers. There is no magical fund on which the banks may draw to cover taxes or other operating expenses.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY

We are able this year to present a better survey of industrial conditions than heretofore. With the co-operation of many industrialists from coast to coast, whose operations are of varied character and extent, we have prepared an industrial production index which will, we believe, portray factory and mill activity more readily and accurately than has any indicator available heretofore in Canada.

The index shows that industrial production activity in November was about 9 per cent. less than a year ago, and that industrial plants were as a whole operating at about 76 per cent. of capacity. This may rightly be considered as a satisfactory record in view of the difficulties encountered by industry the world over during the past year or more.

GENERAL BUSINESS

The year now drawing to a close has been a difficult one. At its commencement business was still suffering from the recession which began in the United States in the early months of 1937 as a result of too great and rapid an expansion in the latter part of 1936 and the first quarter of 1937. Gradual readjustment occurred until about mid-year when business activity showed signs of again advancing and the outlook was much improved. Following this encouraging turn we were, as you all know, plunged into a period of grave anxiety due to the international political situation which brought the major European countries to the brink of armed conflict. However, when the crisis passed the movement toward recovery was resumed.

THE YEAR AHEAD

We have an interesting year ahead of us. We are all looking forward to the visit of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth and we are highly gratified that they have arranged to make a tour across the Dominion. This will afford Their Majesties an opportunity to see the great development which has taken place and is continuing in this country.

We have also the new trade agreements which will become operative on 1st January and which will have a very important bearing on our economic situation. So far as I personally can judge and interpret the views of others, I have come to the conclusion that the agreements will do much to rehabilitate the agricultural industry in this country, which plays so vital a part in the structure of our economy.

I have no illusions as to the difficulties in the way of business which still have to be overcome but the revival in the United States appears to be making considerable headway. This has always had an important bearing on the trend of business in Canada and with the widening of trade channels I look for a substantial increase in our exports. Our prosperity is greatest when we enjoy extensive exchange of goods with other countries and provided the forward movement now in progress does not increase its momentum at too fast a pace or further international complications occur, I look to see a continued healthy advance.

PRESIDENT S. H. LOGAN'S ADDRESS

We experienced a comparatively moderate and short recession in general business activity during the past year, a decline of 15 per cent. extending only from November 1937 to the spring of 1938. A period of relative stability then ensued, followed by a slight recovery.

GREATER ECONOMIC STRENGTH

A remarkable transformation of Canadian economy has given this country greater strength than ever before to withstand depressing influences and has added materially to its recuperative powers.

Small Individual Loans Made by Bank of Commerce Aggregate Many Millions of Dollars.

•

In Ten Years Mine Production Has Aggregate Value Almost Equal to Canada's National Debt.

•

Bank's New Trade Index Shows Industrial Production in November Down Only 9%.

WIDESPREAD BENEFITS OF MINING

Mining has led the way in the transformation of Canadian economy. In the last decade the production of our mines had an aggregate value of $2,900,000,000, an amount not far short of the present net direct debt of the Dominion Government.

Furthermore, mining has helped greatly to enlarge the field of industry, in which there are now about 25,000 individual plants. In 1928 non-ferrous metal smelting and refining, rated as to the value of production, was in tenth place among Canadian industries, but it is now well in the lead with a gross annual value of output exceeding $200,000,000.

There is also a fairly close relationship between mining and the chemical industry, for most chemicals are derived from minerals, and some of our major mining concerns have chemical by-product plants. It is, therefore, one of the most gratifying features of this mineral-industrial association that the manufacture of chemicals in Canada rose recently to an all-time peak, with a yearly value of over $100,000,000.

SUMMARY OF ECONOMIC TRANSFORMATION

I should like to summarize the results of this large-scale reorganization of Canadian economy. Mining accounts for about 12 per cent. of the net value of national production, as compared with about half this proportion in the pre-depression period. Manufacturing, including metallurgical operations, contributes over 40 per cent., in comparison with about one-third prior to 1929. The relative status of forestry has not changed markedly, a fact which in itself is cause for satisfaction, having regard to the serious difficulties encountered by this industry. Whereas agriculture ten years ago accounted on the average for over one-third of the net value of production, its proportion fell to about 20 per cent. in 1937. Even in a year of normal crop production and of fair prices probably not more than one-quarter can in future be expected from this source, for the expansion of non-agricultural industries is of a permanent character.

FOREIGN TRADE

Our exports for the 12 months ending October were again over the billion dollar mark. Including coined gold, total exports amounted to $1,020,000,000 as compared with $1,162,000,000 in 1937, a decline of 12 per cent. This is a very creditable record in view of the coincidence of a short supply of wheat in 1937 with depressed conditions in our main foreign market, the United States. Our export trade with other countries was well maintained. As the average price of exported commodities fell nearly 8 per cent., the volume of trade actually declined by less than 5 per cent.

ECONOMIC WEAKNESSES

I wish it were possible to say that reconstruction of the national economy had proceeded as far in other directions as it has in mining, manufacturing, forestry and export trade. But the problems surrounding the railways, the construction industry and public finance persist. These ills will not, I fear, receive remedial treatment until it is impossible any longer to gloss over the weakening effects they are having on every other form of activity, collective and individual. General recognition and public disapproval of the failure to cope with the fundamental difficulties in these departments of Canadian economy are necessary to hasten their solution.

Real estate owners are justly complaining of the excessive burden pressing upon them, for they have had to provide over one-third of all taxes collected in Canada, which aggregate more than $700,000,000 per annum. In some cases property owners have even been called on for as much as 90 per cent. of the municipal levies. Real estate, indeed has had to bear increasing taxation for purposes which were never visualized when it was selected as a major source of revenue. Moreover, the base of this type of taxation has been prevented from expanding in any degree proportionate to the growing costs of official administration. For example, private building has been so subnormal in volume for years past that there is now an estimated deficiency of at least 200,000 dwelling units in the number required for good housing accommodation. It is clear, therefore, that unfair taxation in this form has depressed construction and employment in the building trades and that, until some measure of relief to the real estate taxpayer is devised, we cannot expect a major resumption of building.

Since no single government has been responsible for imposing all the inequitable and excessive taxes which are now drained from the public, no one legislative body can remove these handicaps to our progress.

MONETARY FALLACIES

I think that most people now recognize that easier money will not cure our existing problems. Action in other directions is obviously required and monetary experimentation directed to further cheapening the cost of short-term money holds, therefore, no hope of removing the remaining handicaps to complete recovery.

CONSTRUCTIVE ACTION

The commercial treaties recently arranged between the United States, Great Britain and Canada reflect a high concept of international duty in the minds of the various statesmen concerned. The combined foreign trade of these three nations amounts to about one-third of that of the whole world. Their representatives did not allow the difficulty of readjustments, always present in tariff revisions, to deter them. Instead, they wisely sought to afford their people better opportunities for economic advancement and to strengthen the bonds of democracy at one of the most critical stages of its history. Might we not with the same high motives and unity of purpose take our internal problems firmly in hand and so find ways of applying to our entire national economy the constructive forces which have been at work in mining, forestry, manufacturing and export trade?

PROMISING BUSINESS CONDITIONS

As regards the current business situation, the recent progress in manufacturing has cancelled about half of the recession in the latter part of 1937 and the early months of this year. The forest industries, however, may face difficult conditions during the winter, when the new wood cut will likely be the smallest in several years. There is now a healthier undertone in these industries. Mining activity is greater than ever before, more metal properties are in operation and more people are engaged in this industry than in the previous year.

The production value of the industry for the current year (about $450,000,000 may, because of lower base metal prices, be fractionally less than the record established in 1937 but that of gold, now at an annual rate of over $160,000,000, has reached a new peak.

Farm purchasing power, though no greater than a year ago mainly because of low prices for agricultural products and an unusually large proportion of unmerchantable grain, is now much better distributed as a result of the largest crop yields since 1932. The grain out-turn alone in the Prairie Provinces is 650,000,000 bushels as compared with 370,000,000 in 1937.

From this summary of current conditions it will be apparent that many of the essentials for further economic recovery are now present in Canada.

I am confident, therefore, that if peace between the major powers can be preserved and we can continue to expand our export business on reasonably satisfactory terms we shall experience substantially improved business conditions during the coming year.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Dec. 13 (C.P.). — A dip of more than a penny at Liverpool together with absence of aggressive demand in the pit here, pulled wheat futures prices fractionally lower at Winnipeg to-day. Trading for the most part was uninteresting and quotations closed ⅞ to 1 cent lower, December at 60⅞, May 63-63⅛ and uly 63 cents.

Export business was light for the first time in two weeks, and after output of 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat yesterday, shipments to-day were estimated at only 150,000 bushels.

Liverpool skidded from the opening on reports India would resell recent purchases of Australian wheat and hedging by a large miller.

Mission Band Holds Happy Gathering

A happy gathering was held at the Children's Shelter on Monday when members of the Margaret Ramsay Mission Band of St. Paul's Branch Sunday School visited the children with their leaders, Mrs. G. Chapin and Mrs. Leach. They brought with them candies, fruit and a small gift for each child.

A Christmas program was given by the following members: Choruses by the children; recitation by Joyce Jefferies; solos by Beth Melrose; duet by Bob Leach and Kenneth Reader; a Christmas story, told by Miss Elizabeth Walker; duet by Beth Melrose and Shirley Jefferies.

Gifts were distributed after the program, and the children adjourned to the play room where Mrs. McMillan served cocoa, sandwiches and cake.

Caledonian Club Meets

The Caledonian Club met for its bi-monthly meeting in the Paragon Hall on Friday evening. A good attendance was presided over by W. May, vice-president, in the unavoidable absence of R. Veitch, president. Regular routine business was discussed and plans completed for the social programs to be held during the holiday season. The annual children's Christmas will be held on Friday, the 23rd, at 6.30 in the evening. A Hogmanay dance will usher in the New Year. The usual Burns' supper in January will be celebrated.

After the business an hour was spent very enjoyable in games, music and the service of refreshments.

Evening Auxiliary Elects Mrs. M. Montgomery

The Evening Branch of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's church met on Monday, and was opened with devotional exercises by the president, Miss Agnes Stout, and a Bible reading by Mrs. J. Bell.

The correspondence included a letter from Rev. Father Snye of Milestone, Sask., in which he expressed deep appreciation of the three bales sent last month by the Auxiliary; and a letter from Mrs. (Rev.) Beckwith of Shellbrook, Sask., in which she told of desperate conditions in that section of the province. Many farmers realized only from one to three bushels to the acre, and then had to sell their cattle to pay for the threshing. Conditions in this district are far worse than at any time during previous years, and a bale and Christmas parcel was sent immediately to Shellbrook by the Auxiliary members.

The extra-cent-a-day report was given by Mrs. Bryitt, and following the roll call the election of officers took place as follows: Hon. president, Mrs. W. E. Conway; president, Mrs. W. J. Downer; vice-president, Mrs. M. Montgomery; secretary, Mrs. J. Collis; treasurer, Miss Adele Milburn; E.C.D., Mrs. Bryitt; Dorcas, Mrs. B. Ottowell; quilters, Mrs. E. W. Boyer and Mrs. W. M. Copperthwaite; press secretary, Mrs. L. Groombridge; living message, Miss J. M. Lancaster; U. Thankoffering, Miss E. Clementi; literary, Mrs. J. Bell; visiting, Mrs. Bell and Mrs. W. Ashby; refreshment, Miss Clementi; telephone committee, Mrs. W. Franks, Miss A. Foote, Miss Audrey Milburn; prayer partner, Miss Adele Milburn.

Following the Members' Prayer and the closing hymn, lunch was served by Miss Clementi and members of her committee.

Bullock—Thompson

At a ceremony performed in the Pentecostal Church by Rev. Geo. A. Chambers on Saturday, November 26, Miss Margery Christina Thompson, daughter of Mr. Richard Thompson, North Monaghan, was united in marriage to Mr. Ralph Emerson Bullock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bullock of Smith.

Chrysanthemums and ferns decorated the church for the occasion, and wedding music throughout the ceremony was played by Mrs. Irvine Hill. Miss Doreen Magee sang "Sunrise" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an attractive costume of navy crepe with wine accessories. She was attended by Miss Alice Varty, wearing turquoise blue with black accessories. Mr. Rodger Bullock attended the groom, and the ushers were Mr. Errol Hanbidge and Mr. Kenneth Laidley.

A reception was held at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. G. Trennum. Mr. and Mrs. Bullock will live in North Monaghan.

✧ ✧ ✧

Burns—Hess

The marriage of Hazel Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Hess, Oshawa, to George H. Burns, Peterborough, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Burns, Millbrook, took place in Simcoe Street United Church, Oshawa, at three o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. Rev. W. R. Tanton officiated.

The bride wore a period gown of white romance taffeta, made on princess lines, with matching bolero jacket and doll's hat of Killarney roses. She carried a bouquet of Killarney and Sweetheart roses.

Miss Violet McKenna, maid of honor, and Miss Louise Edmondson, bridesmaid, were gowned alike in period dresses in shades of fuchsia and minuet blue, made with picturesque hoop skirts and tiny boleros. They wore doll hats and carried colonial bouquets of roses and chrysanthemums. Mr. Thomas Hess was groomsman.

Following the ceremony, a dinner was served at the St. Regis Hotel, Toronto, and the bride and groom left on a motor trip. They will live in Peterborough.

We Noticed

....In a shop window on upper George street....two little frocks of utmost simplicity. One is a two-piece in black crepe, its bodice buttoned up front with small covered buttons, its collar formed of lace that resembles huge snowflakes stitched together at the tips—there's a wee drift of the same lace atop two demure little pockets, too.

✧ ✧ ✧

....The other is fashioned of ever-so-light wool in a lovely new shade that resembles tomato cocktail seen through crystal glass—the V-neckline, softly shirred shoulders, and neatly swung skirt are the newest of the new style versions, and a wide, wide suede belt of black accents the trim waistline.

✧ ✧ ✧

....And a new print that just arrived in one of the stores yesterday aroused the gypsy in us, it looked like such a perfect frock for traveling! It's as neat as a necktie, with small, bright figures on a dark ground. It is fashioned with tiny stitches tucks softly corrugating the bosom and sleeves, and a flash of suede rings the waist. Its shade was a new tone they call "King's Blue."

Ladies' Section Bowling Club Has Annual Bridge

Sixty-five tables of bridge and euchre were in play Monday evening in the Canadian Legion Hall, when the Ladies' Section of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club, assisted by the membership committee and the board of directors, held its third annual bridge.

Prizes for high score were given at each table, and draw prizes were as follows: Ladies' membership, Mrs. W. Garrow; gentlemen's membership, Mr. G. Burrows; 2nd prize, ladies, Mrs. J. Walton; 2nd prize, gentlemen's, Mr. W. E. Taylor; 3rd prize, ladies, Mrs. Morley Plunkett; 3rd prize, gentlemen's, Mr. P. LaRone; 4th, ladies, Miss W. Ahern; 4th gentlemen's, Mr. H. R. Martin; 5th, ladies, Mrs. A. Davis; 5th, gentlemen's, Mr. G. M. Stenton; 6th, ladies, Mrs. A. R. McWilliams; 6th, gentlemen's, Mr. C. Banks.

Refreshments were served by the social committee, Mrs. A. Heckman, convener, Mrs. J. Baird, Mrs. W. Hepburn, Mrs. Mary Edwards, Mrs. N. Killingbeck, Mrs. J. Kingsbury, Mrs. L. H. Bearne, Mrs. F. C. Dawe, Mrs. L. Yeates, assisted by the membership committee.

DOROTHY DIX

When You Get Married, Cut The Apron Strings That Tied You To Your Own Family; Don't Clutter Up Your House With Too Many Of Your Relatives.

YESTERDAY we started a set of rules on how to keep your husband in love with you. We gave you five. Today here are five more:

Sixth. Cut the apron strings when you get married. Be your husband's wife instead of your mother's daughter. If you feel that you can't live away from Mother and the girls, stay with them and keep from blighting some good man's life and prospects in the world. Don't feed your husband up on your family. Don't have them always under foot and cluttering up the guest room. A little of the society of Mother and Father, Sister Sue and little brother suffices for most men. An overdose of it makes them wonder what made them do it. Don't be cruel and unjust enough to keep your husband's nose to the grindstone supplying the money to pay for Mamma's operations and sending Bill to college.

Above all, never quote Mother's opinions. Every young husband is jealous of his authority in his own household, and he can get more green-eyed over his mother-in-law than he can over a movie hero. So use the indirect treatment on yours and let him believe that he thought of doing thus and so instead of telling him that Mother put you up to it. The simple phrase, "Mother says that we ought to do this," or "we ought not to do that," has started more family fights than anything else in the world.

Seventh. Give him a run for his money in his own home for, after all, he is Jones who pays the freight. Few wives do this. They think they have an undisputed right to monopolize the home and decide every detail concerning it, from the furniture up to the people who are permitted to come in it.

Don't do this. Don't be one of the wives who make their husbands wipe their feet on the mat before he dares enter his own door. Don't make your husband feel that the only privilege he has in his own home is paying the bills. Don't grab off all the closet space for yourself and not even leave a hook that belongs exclusively to him. Don't drive all of his old friends away by serving them cold shoulder whenever they come. Don't make him have to ask permission to invite a friend to dinner. Above all, make your husband's family welcome in your home. Treat them decently. There is no other one thing for which a husband is so grateful to his wife as he is for her getting along with his mother.

Eighth. Be cheerful. It takes a lot of courage to nail on your face the smile that won't come off even when you have a sick headache, and the baby is cross, and the children have been fighting all day, and the butcher bill is bigger than your expected—but it pays. If, after a man has been married five years, you should ask him what is the greatest virtue in a wife, he would say a jolly disposition. You see, in these days the average man has just about all the troubles and worries he can stand up under, and if he comes home at night to a woman who dumps her burden of gloom on him it crushes the last spark of hope and cheer out of him.

Besides, daughter, in even the best of husbands there are many things that you must laugh off or go to the divorce court about, and it is so much better to make a joke out of his little failings than it is to make tragedies out of them.

Ninth. Be your husband's best little yes-yesser. Jolly him along. Praise him. Keep his faith alive in himself by telling him how great and wonderful you think he is. Make your home brew of flattery so strong and potent that that offered by other women will taste as flat as water.

No husband ever tires of the wife who is his greatest admirer and who always gives him the glad hand. And the payoff on this is that we can always sell ourselves on the thing we are touting.

Tenth. Feed the brute. Beauty is bound to jade with time. Romance goes out the window. Wit loses its punch. But a man's appetite endures, and as long as that lasts a wife has something to appeal to. So learn to cook, daughter, if you would have a charm to conjure with that never fails. Though you were as beautiful as Miss America, as chaste as Caesar's wife, as intellectual as a college professor, as slim as a string bean and dressed like a manikin, yet will all of your virtues avail you naught in keeping your husband from wandering if you feed him out of a can or there is never a comfortable place to sit down in your house.

So remember that there is no lure that so surely draws a husband home of an evening as the certainty of a good dinner, and nothing that will so surely nail him to his own fireside as being too full to move. Marriage looks better to even a grouchy husband after a good meal, and a girl bride can handle any man if he is well fed.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by Mrs. MARY MOORE

Question—I would be very pleased to have recipes for peanut butter and cocoanut butter if it is not too much trouble. Your page has been a big help to me since I was married and I want to thank you for it. MRS. A.E.

Answer—We are glad you like the cookery page.

Peanut Butter (Homemade)

Place some shelled peanuts in a pan in a slow oven (250 deg. Fahr.), leaving the door slightly open, and allow to remain until they are so dry that the hulls will rub off easily. Put them into a paper bag and knead with the hands until the husks are well loosened. Separate the nuts from the husks by turning them from one pan into another. Grind the nuts and cook them for several hours in a double boiler without adding any water. Add a little olive oil (I would suggest 2 tablespoons to each lb. of ground nuts) and a little salt to suit your taste and then seal.

We have no recipe for Cocoanut Butter—(if any of our readers have would you kindly send it to us?)—but would suggest for a homemade product, that you remove cocoanut from the shell, peel off dark inner skin and force through finest knife of grinder. You may need to grind it two or three times to make it fine enough to suit you. Cocoanut oil (which is more the consistency of soft butter than oil) could be used to give it a butter consistency, but I would recommend some more tasteless oil—possibly butter and quite a bit of salt. Sorry I have had no experience with cocoanut butter, but will print any suggestions readers send in.

Question—We have taken your paper for some time and we use your recipes all the time. Could you please send me the recipe for Carrot Wine. It appeared in your paper some time ago, but we haven't it now. Thanking you. MARY A.

Answer—Thank you for your letter.

Carrot Wine.

Four lbs. grated carrots (when scrubbed and scraped), 1 gallon boiling water. Pour boiling water over grated carrots let boil two minutes. Then let stand until cold, then strain off the liquid through a fine cloth. To each gallon of liquid add ½ oz. cream of tartar and 3 lbs. sugar. Allow to ferment in clean cask, and when fermentation ceases add one-half pint brandy and rack off into bottles. It will be ready to use in 6 months or 1 year.

We hope you like this and that we can help you with some cookery subjects some time.

Question—I have enjoyed reading your page for a long time. Up to now I have had no questions to ask. I wonder if you would be so kind as to print the recipe for Javelle Water. I saw it once before on your page but I have mislaid it. Also could you please tell me if you have the recipe for making molasses. The reason I ask you is this: I am going over to England next month to live. They do not have molasses over there. They have what they call treacle. I don't think it is the same thing. Could you give me the address of the Flavoring company in Montreal who makes flavoring for soft drinks? Thanking you.

MRS. PETER S.

Javelle Water

Four lbs. bircarbonate of soda, 1 lb. chloride of lime. Put the soda into a kettle, add 1 gallon boiling water and let boil 12 minutes, remove from heat, then stir in the chloride of lime, avoiding lumps. It is ready to use when cool.

We hope this is the recipe you want.

My father who is an Englishman, says molasses and treacle are the same thing. This is the opinion of two English cooks I consulted. There may be some difference in various brands that might make you think they were not the same product. Molasses may be bought here in 25 gallon cans very cheaply.

There are many firms in Montreal making extracts for soft drinks — I have selected the following three at random from a list of many more: Davis and Lawrence Co., 1910 St. Antoine; W. P. Downey Ltd. (Bottlers color extracts), 120 Grey Nun street; Walter W. Esdon, 445 St. Helen street.

We hope these supply you with what you want. We are sorry you are going away—and hope your copies of The Examiner will follow you to England.

Do You Know?

That too long cooking will bring out a strong and undesirable flavor in cranberry sauce, and may prevent the berries from jelling?

If the jam for tarts is heated almost to the boiling point before using, the pastry will be delightfully crisp, and never sodden, as it is when cold jam is used?

✧ ✧ ✧

If you like just a hint of garlic flavor, try adding a cut clove of garlic to the melted butter for just an instant before pouring over fresh vegetables.

✧ ✧ ✧

Gummed paper tape has many uses around the home? It is nice for labeling jars of jelly and preserves, and also for labeling any wrapped packages. It takes the place of string for sealing small packages. It will hold a cemented dish or bowl until the cement has hardened.

Fashions

A precious "nightie" ensemble, ...with utter simplicity of deep vee neck, soft bodice fullness, and tiny rippling sleeves, lend such feminine flattery. Its bias-line makes it fit divinely through the "corselet" waistline and hips. You'll especially like the flared hem, surprisingly slit at the front. The accompanying bed jacket with a little girl collar, snug about your throat, may also be made with a tied neckline. Treat yourself to this easy-to-sew nightie ensemble in tea-rose satin....make several for Christmas gifts. It will win lots of friends for you. The separate jacket makes an exquisite gift of dainty printed silk, satin, lace, velvet, quilted fabrics, etc..... You'll enjoy sewing it....the low price will stretch your budget.

Style No. 3351 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39-inch material with 4½ yards of lace for nightgown; and 2 yards of 39-inch material for bed jacket.

Cheerful Workers' Bible Class Honors Teacher

With thirty-five members present the Cheerful Workers Bible Class of St. James' United Sunday School, held their annual meeting on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. W. M. Wood, George street.

A pleasant feature of the evening was the presentation to Mrs. R. B. English of a purse and beautiful scarf. In honoring their class teacher, an address of appreciation for faithful service was read by Mrs. S. Evans, while Mrs. C. Olaveson made the presentation. Mrs. English, though surprised, thanked the members of her class for this tribute of loyalty and assured them that her service as teacher of the Cheerful Workers was one from which she received splendid dividends.

At the election of officers which ensued, Mrs. English was in charge and the following executive was the result: President, Mrs. E. Baldry; vice-president, Mrs. O. S. Matchett; secretary, Mrs. C. Porter; assistant secretary, Mrs. McConkey; treasurer, Mrs. W. Swanger; missionary convener, Mrs. M. Copson; visiting convener, Mrs. Atkinson; telephone committee, Mrs. Lockhart and Mrs. Olaveson; social convener, Mrs. W. M. Wood and Mrs. H. Turner; flower convener, Mrs. B. Seabrook; program convener, Mrs. R. Payne; pianist, Mrs. L. Coombs.

At the conclusion of the business dainty refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

YOUNG FAITH HEALER

Home and School Association News

CENTRAL SCHOOL

The December meeting of Central Home and School Association was held on Monday evening at the school, with the president, Mrs. J. H. Quirt, presiding. The meeting opened with the singing of a Christmas carol. A splendid financial report was given by Mrs. Wilfred Boorman, in the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. L. Raper. Reports from the various conveners included: Membership by Mrs. G. Metcalfe; telephone by Mrs. A. Delahaye; social by Mrs. A. Payne; women's council by Mrs. N. Stanger, and welfare work by Mrs. G. Marshall, which showed that the wants of many children had been attended to. By a unanimous vote it was decided to ask Principal R. J. Bolton to accept the gift of a piano for school use, and a cheque was also given to each of the caretakers as a small Christmas gift. D. G. Munro proposed a vote of thanks to the conveners of the recent card party, for the great success of their efforts both financially and socially.

The roll call was won by Jack Nichols' room with six mothers present. The recent paper collection was very successful, this being due to the untiring efforts of teachers, pupils and caretakers. The room with the largest collection will be entertained on Thursday of this week by the association.

The musical program which followed the business was highly entertaining. Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt gave an enjoyable and informal talk on "The Christmas Spirit" and also contributed two songs, "Three For Jack" and "Jest Her Way." Roma Williamson gave two Christmas recitations. Ernest Lee sang a Christmas carol and as an encore "Jack Of The Ink Pot". A string trio by pupils of Roy Rome received great applause. The school orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Rome, with Mr. Munro at the piano gave several selections. Mrs. A. H. Radford and Mrs. Lee were accompanists for the evening. The meeting ended with the singing of "Hark The Herald Angels" and the National Anthem.

MAY'S SCHOOL

Giving prosperity and happiness as her definition of child welfare, Miss Rachel Young, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, addressed the members of the May's Home and School Association at its meeting on Monday evening. That there are lots of opportunities on our own doorstep for this welfare was pointed out by Miss Young, who said that in making our own children happy we are really achieving something worthwhile. She commended the work of the Home and School Associations and the Sunday schools in helping to build the character of the child.

Three subjects, environment, serenity, and a high standard of living, all absolutely necessary to the welfare of the home, were also discussed by the speaker in her address on child psychology. Miss Young was introduced to the members by the president, Mrs. W. H. Wheeler, who presided.

During the short business meeting it was decided that the association would provide oranges for the children of the school on the day of their Christmas tree. Mr. W. Wedlock announced the concert which the children of May's School are giving in Knox Sunday School Hall on Wednesday evening, December 14.

Two numbers, Brahm's "Lullaby" and "Away in a Manger," were sung by a quartet consisting of the following members: Mrs. Robt. Pilling, Mrs. Jack Cooper, Mr. Jack Branston and Mr. Arthur Siddall, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. R. King.

A vote of thanks to the guest speaker and those who contributed toward the musical program was moved by Mrs. A. Pearson and Mrs. W. Carter.

Before tea was served, a draw was conducted by Miss Young and Mr. Siddall for two dolls which the members had bought and dressed in knitted suits. The baby doll was won by Mr. Harold Drury, and the "picaninny" by Mrs. Tripp.

Fur and Cloth Combine in Coats

Fur and cloth are combined in many of the new coats. There are fur coats with cloth or velvet sleeves, and cloth or velvet coats with fur sleeves, and there are coats which have fur fronts and cloth back, and others in which fur and cloth are combined in wide diagonal stripes. Phoque, which is unplucked seal, is a favorite for the all-fur coat. Capes and short jackets of skunk are a novelty. Though cumbersome, these seem to have captured the hearts of those of slender figure who are not afraid of appearing stout. Breitswanz (broadtail to us) and mink remain the most elegant of all for the fur coat, but Indian lamb, which is lovely in black and white, and Russian squirrel are the season's closest rivals to these regal furs.

Fur hats to match the coats or coat trimmings are much in favor. As a rule, these take the form of a high, square-cuffed turban, without trimming and usually made entirely of the fur, though it may have the cuff of fur and the flat crown of velvet or cloth like the coat.

Sporting And Sensible

We are inclined to the opinion that Premier Hepburn has done the sporting as well as the sensible thing in facilitating the entrance of Col. George A. Drew, new Conservative provincial leader, into the Legislative Assembly. Mr. Hepburn, as soon as the result of the Conservative convention was announced, stated that if any Conservative member resigned in favor of Col. Drew he would at once make the arrangements for holding a by-election and would ask the Liberal organization not to enter a candidate against the new Opposition leader.

That is a gesture that reflects credit upon the Premier. It is manifestly in the interest not only of the Conservative party but of the province as a whole that the provincial leader should be a member of the Legislature as soon as possible. Strong oppositions help to make strong governments and obviously any opposition whose leader is not in the House is incapable of playing the part in public affairs that is essential to the efficient administration of the province's business.

Mr. Hepburn has pointed out that there is nothing that he can do to prevent the entrance of a third party candidate in the by-election that is looming up and that, of course is perfectly true. If the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, or any other organization, wants to put the province to the expense of an election there is nothing that other folk can do about the matter. It is to be hoped, however, that if a riding is opened for Col. Drew and the Liberal party does its part to expedite matters by refraining from naming a standard-bearer that other political organizations will recognize both the desirability of a strong opposition and the impossibility of a third party triumph and will also stand aloof. That will make it possible for the Conservative leader to be in the House when it next meets and we believe that it is in the public interest that he should be.

Black Thursday

In the rural calendar Thursday, December 15 is the black day of the year, the day of municipal reckoning, the inevitable day on which property owners have to dip down into the sock or the bank account and square things with the tax collector. Nothing more can be added to or taken away from the melancholy fact no matter how it might be paraphrased. The only addition to that might be mentioned is the gall and wormwood of penalties charged against properties that fall into the category of arrears when the day passes into the 16th.

City owners of houses and lots have to go through this gloomy crisis three times during the year possibly because they are more improvident than are their fellow-citizens living on the uncrowded acres in the country. But, no matter how fine the payments might be pared for the sake of convenience, they all add up to the same total, and the process is the same, a session at the tax office if you are lucky enough to have the cash on hand.

Some day, perhaps, when the present rural generation has passed on to the green pastures where tax cumbrances are omitted from the eternal economy, and everything can be put on the cuff, it may be that farmers may have reached the blissful stage in which "Billy" Anderson's 3,000 acres of community forest, probably greatly expanded by that time, will be yielding a revenue to the public purse that will simply preclude the painful necessity of charging folks for the upkeep of the sidelines and the mills of justice and county homes and the cost of educating more or less gifted youth.

But, that vision is so far over the horizon that it doesn't assuage the immediate hurts of this week when the township and village tax collectors await expectantly for citizens with the familiar "paid" stamps and a fresh supply of ink to erase the property indebtedness to the community for the present year.

It's Too Drastic

A case that is before the police court here at the present time suggests that when the lawmakers set out to protect the owners of motor cars from loss by theft they succeeded in bringing into force a law that comes under the head of ultra drastic.

That law provides that a person convicted of the theft of an automobile must be sentenced to at least a year's imprisonment. The right that the court has in other cases of stealing—that is, of giving a first offender considered worthy of such leniency a suspended sentence—does not exist in the case of motor car theft. There is no suspended sentence and the court's hands are tied.

The local case concerns an orphan boy, who for a year has had no home and who has been living from hand to mouth on the meagre sums he has been able to obtain from collecting and selling waste paper and similar articles. The other day he yielded to temptation, pushed an old used car from one wrecker's place down the road to the home of another man in the same business and sold the thing for $15. He was caught immediately after and readily admitted his guilt, as he stood there in police court, a pitiable figure in his ragged coat and equally dilapidated trousers. It was obvious that had the magistrate the power to have done so he would have suspended sentence, but under the existing law that act of mercy was denied him. All that he could do under the circumstances was to remand the unfortunate prisoner and suggest that the Crown authorities might be able to secure the consent of the Attorney-General to some other disposition of the case.

Granted it is essential to do everything possible to protect automobile owners from thieves because by their very nature motor cars invite the attention of the dishonest but even that fact should not tie up the courts so that magistrates and judges are prevented from following their own judgment and from exercising clemency when all the circumstances demand that mercy should be shown.

An Arresting Warning

That was an arresting address that was given here Sunday by Rev. W. A. McIlroy, secretary of the Prisoners' Rehabilitation Association, particularly that part of it in which he stressed the havoc that was being created in public morale and public morals by the reason of the fact that more than a million Canadians were on relief and 400,000 young people were unemployed.

Mr. McIlroy is not a politician seeking to say something sensational to catch the headlines nor is he a mere theorist spinning some idea that he has conjured up in his imagination. On the contrary he is a man who for the past decade has been constantly in touch with those who have offended against the law, particularly the young folk who have drifted from the straight and narrow path. It is his job to try to reclaim these youthful criminals and to study the causes for their delinquency and when he declares that the present economic situation, and particularly the feeling among thousands of young people who have tried in vain to find jobs, that they are unwanted, is responsible for many of the newcomers being in crime, that is a statement that should engage the attention of Canadians generally and especially those whose responsibility it is to administer public affairs.

The demoralizing effect of having thousands of young men and women who should be marrying and setting up homes, deprived of that opportunity because they have no jobs and no income, should be obvious to anyone who gives the matter a thought. And when is added to that destructive and soul-reaching result the cumulative effect of years of acceptance from the state of food and shelter for which no labor has been given in return the final consequences can be visualized.

Mr. McIlroy knows what is going on—common law households being kept on relief and young folk driven into crime because they have grown to feel that they are unwanted by organized society—and he has issued a warning that should strike home.

A Matter Of Business

Some criticism of the Ontario government's attitude toward fish and game conservation was voiced at the recent meeting of the local Fish and Game Association and at once the Minister of the department. Hon. Harry Nixon, rushed into print with a defence of his administration and a charge that the critics were prejudiced and disgruntled.

We do not see how the fish and game resources of Ontario are going to be helped a great deal by making them the cause d'etre of a political controversy. It should be a plain matter of business, not of politics, and the point at issue—and it was not disposed of by Mr. Nixon's vigorous statement to the press—is that the department of fish and game should not be regarded as in itself a money-making branch of government. A broader view than that is essential to an intelligent and business-like administration of this most important department.

What brings the majority of tourists to Ontario? The obvious answer is that they come for the fishing and hunting this province has to offer. That being the case, and it being equally obvious that this army of tourists adds materially to the revenue of the province through the gasoline tax and in other ways, then it is simply a matter of common sense that everything possible should be done to conserve what is left of our wild life and to re-stock on as large a scale as is feasible. When the contribution that our fish and game makes to provincial revenue—outside altogether of the money obtained from licenses, etc.—is considered, the shortsightedness of trying to operate the department at a profit, especially if lessened efficiency and the leaving undone of essential things are involved becomes apparent.

In expressing that view we are not suggesting that the fish and game department has been starved but merely that it is perhaps not being fed as generously as its importance merits. In other words we are not satisfied that this present government, any more than its predecessors, has done everything that could be done to save what fish and game we have left and replenish the store by the best means available.

Tackling a Big Job

It is intimated that one of the first activities of Col. George A. Drew will be to stage an attack on over-government in Canada. That is a big task and one that will challenge all the fighting qualities, and the patience that the new Conservative leader possesses, for while it is not uncommon to find laymen complaining about over-lapping governmental authorities and the big hole the cost of government makes in the pockets of the taxpayers, politicians rarely join in the chorus.

It is true that in Ontario within recent years something has been done to cut down the size of the Legislature and that gesture has been helpful although it falls a long way short of the goal that many folk believe desirable. The Legislature is still large enough to cost a sizeable sum for maintenance and there are still eight other Legislatures as well as the Federal government to pile up the burden for you and you and you.

There are plenty of people, although, as we have said, the politicians have rarely lined up with them, who think that some, at least, of these provincial parliaments could be scrapped in the interest alike of economy and efficiency. They argue that two out of the three prairie assemblies might be done away with by giving Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan one administration and that a similar saving could be effected in the Maritimes by grouping Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia under one assembly.

Of course the whole story of governmental expense is not told in the total cost of nine provincial legislatures. What really makes ducks and drakes of the taxpayers' money is the fact that there are so many departments all doing the same kind of work. For example, we have no fewer than ten departments of agriculture, ten departments of health, ten departments of labor and so on and to maintain all these departments and the staffs that are necessary to operate them is an expensive operation.

If Col. Drew really means to tilt a lance at this problem of government expense, Canadians, regardless of their political affiliations, should wish him well.

NOTE AND COMMENT

After the final score had arrived from Toronto on Saturday the Winnipeg fans must have been as blue as the Bombers.

Nazis in Vienna are censoring sermons in the Catholic churches. The situation tells its own story of how much liberty is enjoyed under the present regime.

Russian scientists claim the world is getting warmer. However there are a lot of folk to whom it does not appear so hot at the present writing.

Robberies in Toronto have reached a new all-time high it is reported. It is a situation that should worry more than the police.

New sportswriter for a Toronto paper was robbed of two suits of clothes on his arrival in the Queen City. Just what was a newspaperman doing with such an extensive wardrobe?

Herman Grieco, of Memphis, Tenn., has $30,000 waiting for him in Italy, but Italian law will not permit it to leave the country. He has to go there and spend it in 90 days. If they have a stock exchange or a race track at hand it could be done in even less time.

The Philadelphia Orchestra is to play a new composition, "Lament for the Stolen," based on the Lindbergh kidnapping and intended as a protest against that custom. We have a feeling that fear of the electric is a more forceful if less beautiful method of protest.

OLD AGE

Think not o'er much of Time's remorseless tread.
Too soon your love, ambition, grief will fade,
And you who lived must dwell among the dead,
Perchance beyond all power of mortal aid;
But yet, 'twere better so, than in old age
To face the thankless, morbid stares of youth,
Their lashing tongues and lofty patronage—
Or babblings of the secret home of Truth:
And what of friends and old remembered places?
Enshrined, but of a weakening will denied;
For Time, too soon, our longest age outpaces
And we are left in peace unsatisfied:
Far better gone beyond all human ken
Than rest alone, the prey of thoughtless men.

A Letter From Boy In Germany

(By Howard Vincent O'Brien in the Chicago News)

HERE IS A LETTER from Germany. It was written by a little boy. It comes to me from a man who says he knows the writer.

"Yesterday was my birthday. I was 10 years old. When I awoke mother was standing near my bed, looking down at me. She was crying. I could see tears in her eyes. She kissed me and held me tight. She said that I was her little man.

"Last week mother said that I might have a party on my birthday. Of course I knew I could not have a big party such as Hans Burger had. You see, Hans is not a Jew. He had a fine party, with many friends, and they played games and had a great deal of fun. I watched them from my window. They do not play with me.

"Mother said she would make a cake for me with chocolate icing and that my cousin Peter could come to my party. I was very happy. But I did not have my party yesterday. I told mother I did not mind.

✧ ✧ ✧

"ONE NIGHT last week some men in uniform took Uncle Samuel away. Aunt Esther came to our house with my cousin Peter. He is only 9 years old, and he was frightened. Aunt Esther cried and her eyes looked the same as the time when grandma did. She told mother she thought Uncle Samuel was sent to Poland. She had asked the police to tell her about Uncle Samuel, but they did not know and told her to go home.

"My dad was in the war. He was very brave. He has a medal, but he never wears it now. Dad limps when he walks. A long time ago, when I was very young, he had a fine store on a wide street. He sold many new clothes. He was always happy then. Now he has a shop where people get their old clothes fixed. It's a very small shop. Night before last some men broke all the windows in my father's shop. They broke everything inside. They even threw the clothes in the street. The clothes did not belong to my father.

"Yesterday father came home very early. He did not talk all day. He took out his medal and held it in his hand. He looked so strange I was frightened.

✧ ✧ ✧

"MOTHER has been very patient. She took some things off our chairs. They were just like pictures except they were sewn instead of painted. She often told Aunt Esther and other ladies how father had bought them in Vienna for her. Dad and mamma were there on their honeymoon. She called them petit point. She took them off and wrapped them up and went away some place.
